J. C Parker was elected mayor of Bemidji at the city election held there last Tuesday. The city polled nearly eight hundred votes out of which Mr. Parker obtained a majority of a hundred and sixty-five.

Owing to the fact that the attorney general's office was unable to send a representative on the 15th of February the hearing on the removal of County commissioner Lindquist and County Auditor Latendresse had to be postponed to Feb. the 23rd.

E. J. Archambault, a Soo Line engineer arrived here the first of the week to take charge of the first residency on this end of the new line. The residency was first in charge of Mr. C. A. # ONLY ONE SAVED

VESSEL CRASHES ON A REEF

Victims Mostly French Officers and Their Families.

Palma, Island of Majorca, Feb. 12.—Driven helplessly from her course in one of the wildest storms that has swept the Mediterranean sea in forty years the French Transatlantic Steamship company's steamer General Chanzy crashed at full speed in the dead of night on the treacherous reefs near the island of Minorca and all but one of the 157 souls on board perished.

The sole survivor is an Algerian customs official, Marcel Rodel, who was rescued by a fisherman and who lies in the hospital at Ciudadela raving as a result of the tortures through which he passed, and he is unable to give an account of the disaster.

In the ship's company there were eighty-seven passengers, of which thirty were in the first cabin. The crew numbered seventy.

The passengers of the Chanzy were mostly French officers and officials returning to their post in Algeria, accompanied by their wives and children; a few soldiers, some Italians and Turks and one priest. The only Anglo-Saxon names on the passenger lists were Green and Stakely. They were members of an opera troupe of eleven which had been engaged to sing at the Casino in Algiers.

The Chanzy is a total wreck. Steamers have been dispatched from Spain and from points in the Balearic islands to the scene of the catastrophe.

Among the victims was the celebrated Parisian music hall singer, Francis Dufor, as well as other music hall favorites.

MAJORITY IN NO DISTRICT

Poll Also Shows Hostility to the Payne Tariff Law.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—The majority of the Republican and independent newspapers in every one of the congressional districts in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin and Minnesota are opposed to the re-election of Joseph G. Cannon as speaker of the next congress, as determined by a poll conducted by the Chicago Tribune. In no district is he the choice of the majority of the editors' poll. In several districts he has not a single supporter.

In only four congressional districts in the seven states named did a majority of the Republican editors indorse the Aldrich-Cannon law. These four districts are the Third and Fourth of Ohio and the Twelfth of Indiana, which are represented by Democrats. Only one Republican congressman in the Central West, Douglas of the Eleventh Ohio district, finds that a majority of the Republican editors are in favor of his vote on the Aldrich law. Congressman Douglas is supported by the narrow vote of eight to seven Republicans, and the only independent editors who voted on the Tribune's ballot declared against the law.

The Tribune published the vote by states on the speakership and the Aldrich law, giving their opinions as gleaned from the ballots sent to the editors of every newspaper in Ohio and states west.

Only the ballots of the Republicans and independents are counted. A total of nearly 5,000 answers were received. The Tribune presents the analysis of the ballots by congressional districts in the seven states of the Central West.

CANNON ADDRESSES HOUSE

Briefly Refers to Magazine and Newspaper Criticism.

Washington, Feb. 15.—"If we lose sight of our own importance and of our own position for the time being, there will come in our places better and wiser men who will not lose sight of the necessity to provide for an orderly procedure under which a majority can work its will; where responsibility rests there must be power with the majority to move on, being responsible."

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, laying aside his gavel and speaking from the floor of the house, merely as "the gentelman from Illinois," sounded this warning to his colleagues.

"Representative" Cannon arose for the purpose of lending his approval to the pending rivers and harbors appropriation bill, but during his speech, which was of about twenty minutes' duration, he took occasion to refer lightly to magazine and newspaper criticism and to remind the minority members that the power of the majority was futile unless enforced by a well oiled machine.

POSTAL BANK BILL TO PASS

No Doubt Measure Will Be Approved by Congress.

Washington, Feb. 11.—There is no longer any doubt that before congress adjourns a law will be upon the statute books authorizing savings bank deposits in the postoffices throughout the United States.

The senate will pass the Carter bill in some form next week, by a majority of eight votes, if a poll just made is to be relied upon. The measure then will go to the house and will be referred to the committee on postoffices and post-roads. A Republican caucus of the members of the house will be held promptly. This caucus will recommend the passage of a postal savings bank bill, probably differing from that fathered by Senator Carter of Montana. After the action by the house a conference committee of the two houses will meet and in the final form drafted by that committee the measure will be passed and presented to the president for his approval.

EIGHT SERIOUSLY INJURED

Thirty-five Men Drop Six Stories in Elevator.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Thirty-five men employed at the Kenosha plant of the Simmons Manufacturing company had narrow escapes from death in the factory when an elevator in which they were riding dropped six stories to the bottom of the shaft.

Eight of the men were taken out badly injured. As many others suffered minor injuries.

At the hospital it was stated that three of the men might die.

SERIOUS STREET FIGHTING

Chinese Naval Force Kills and Wounds Many Rioters.

Canton, Feb. 15.—Petty trouble between foreign drilled Chinese soldiers and the city police has culminated in serious street fighting. A Chinese naval force was landed and killed and wounded more than a hundred rioters.

The city is closed to foreigners for three days.

To Keep Them on the Farm.

Commissioner of Immigration, Hon. Geo. Welsh, of this state, addressed the students of the school of Agiculture recently, speaking mainly upon the question of the boys and girls leaving the farm, presenting arguments and statistics showing how the country population is gradually drifting to the cities where especially are the prices for living increasing. In 1890 the proportion of Minnesota population in country districts was 58 per-cent; in 1901, 50 per cent, a decrease in country districts which he regarded as sersous. Then he took up the question of the cost of living, showing how the prices of food and clothing were going up the scale and regarding it as a most serious omen for the future There problems he believed could be controlled only by such schools as the state is providing its boys and girls along the line of farm husbandry. As encouragement to the students to remain on the farm, Mr. Welsh told them that the men who are guiding the nation, and trying to solve the difficult problems confronting the country are from the farm, and were it not for the intelligence and the muscle that the farm develops, the labor of guidance would be more serious. Instead of a school system which threatened a boy that if he did not learn his lesson he would be relegated to the farm and the plow, he would have our schools teach agriculture and its importance to the world, and convey the idea to the young minds that it is an eminently respectable calling. He belived the method of teaching in the schools had had a large influence in driving the young people to the cities by giving the impression that if the boys and girls learned their lessons well they would be enabled to go away from the farm duties to more attractive work, thus indirectly teaching them that farm life was not a desirable thing to follow, when, in fact, the farmer is the only producer, while the rest of the human family are merely transformers of wealth. He would teach that farming is more to be respected than any other calling. Last year the state produced $420,000,000 of farm commodities, and he regarded this wonterful result as one of the effects of the agriculture school upon the methods of production. He thought that by sending more young men and young women to this school the state would more rapidly increase in wealth and production. In illustrating what has been done by the agricultural department, he said we are now raising corn away up on the Canadian border a result obtained by the study of and experiments with, soil, seeds, crops, crops enemies, etc.

He spoke of the census saying that among the farmers there is a feeling that by the giving of actual statistics to the enumerators the farmers' assessments might be affected, and tried to disabuse the minds of the students that there was any force in the argument. He hoped every boy he was addressing would go home with a feeling that the giving of true statistics would have a benificlay effect on making the state hold her own and forge ahead with the other agricultural states.

Visit Red Lake Falls.

Two white men and a breed, members of the band that have been raiding saloons in the "Indian territory," were in town last Friday. They found an awfully dry place here for they were not able to "liquidate" at any of the places in town and no doubt the breed, if he did not wear a boot leg, went out of town with parched lips and an unsatisfied desire for stimulants.

There is little occasion anyhow for the federal authorities to mix in affairs here, for an indian in Red Lake Falls in now such a rare sight that the cigar sign decoy was a curiosity.

Bad Wreck on Soo.

Fireman Dahl was probably fatally injured and Engineer Wendall sightly injured, as a result of a wreck a mile east of Stewartville this afternoon on the Soo.

The westbound freight train stalled on a hill and the engine with half of the train had pulled to the next station and Conductor Heath, of the freight, to make sure there would be no mistake, went back to flag the passenger train due in a short time. Heath placed torpedoes on the track and endeavored to show a red flag, but a storm was raging at the time, and the engineer of the passenger did not see the signal. A small snow plow was on the passenger engine, and it is supposed this pushed the torpedoes off the track without exploding them. The engine crashed into the caboose of the freight train at full speed and demolished the engine, caboose and several box cars and damaged the mail car on the passenger train.

Engineer Wendall suffered only a broken finger, but Fireman Dahl was so badly scalded by escaping steam that is though he has a small chance of recovery. The tender of the passenger engine was driven into the caboose and it is a miracle that both men were not killed.

The wounded men, passengers and mail were loaded into empty box cars and the train was taken to Bismarck only about one hour late.

The Linton branch of the Northern Pacific which was only opened yesterday after having been blocked for a week on account of the storm of last Monday, is again closed up by the storm of today.—Wednesday Crookston Times.

MEETS WITH HORRIBLE DEATH

Young Man Burns to Death in Empty Railroad Camp.

A young man about 18 or 19 years of age burned to death on Wednesday night of last week in a empty railroad camp about twelve miles south west of Plummer on the New Soo Line now under construction. Such details of the happening as the Pioneer has been able to gather are rather meagre. The young man it seem's showed up at Higgins camp in Gully about ten days before and wanted to take a job at station work. Not being able to do the work he was given a job around the headquarters camp as a kind of office boy. He gave his name as Roy Motts, and his residence as Thief River Falls, altho he had shipped out of Duluth.

He evidently thought that it was too slow a job gathering the filthy lucre by toil so Wednesday when was no body else around the camp he helped himself to about $7 in change among which there was quite a bunch of pennies which later helped to indentify him, and struck out afoot evidently intending to walk to Plummer. About dusk he inquired from a farmer living there about the camp. The farmer told him where the camp was but told him that there was no body there then. He evidently had started a hot fire and rolling himself up in some blankets had gone to sleep. The shack tock fire from the over heated stove and he was very likely smothered without regaining consciousness. The body was not discovered until a couple of days latter when some of the men were sent over to see if the fire had left anything of value further particulars are not forth comming at the present time and it is not sure that Thief River Falls is the youngmans home. The body was burned beyond any hope of indentification the only means left being the pennies and a small peice of his clothing. There is no doubt tho that it is the youngman that left camp that day.

Proposed Amendments to The State Constitution.

Six constitional amendments will be submitted to the voters at the general election next November. Attorney General Simpson has given Secretary of the State Julius Schmahl an opinion, as required by law, telling what amendments are to be submitted and the purport of each, so that the secretary of state can have the proper ballots prepared. The following are the amendments which will be submitted:

Changing the good roads provision so that the state can pay half instead of only one-third the cost of a state road.

Repealing the requirement that the report of the state treasurer be bound in the same volume as the session laws.

Permitting the state to conduct a hail and tornado insurance.

Permitting the legislature to make a reapportionment at any session following a census.

Permitting the legislature to exempt timber lands from taxation.

Resolution Adopted By The Northern Minnesota Developement Association.

Delegates from thirty counties, of Northern Minnesota, in Convention assembled at the City of Bemidji, February 17 and 18, 1910, composing the Northern Minnesota Development Association, realizing that in northern Minnesota lie the greatest opportunities for future development of natural resources and advantages such as no other land possesses and to the end that this development may be speedily accomplished, do hereby adopt the following resolutions:

Whereas, the representation of the northern half of the State in the State Legislature is conceded to be wholly inequitable and unjust in view of the rapid growth in population of that part of the state as compared with other portions, and

Whereas, this condition is contrary both to the letter and spirit of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota and to every principal of right and justice.

Be it resolved, that this Association demands imperatively that a reapportionment be made at the coming session of the Legislature that shall remedy this condition on a basis which will give to all parts of the state equal representation both in the Senate and the House according to the population as shown by the United States census of 1910.

Be it further resolved, that to this end, we recommend that all candidates for the Senate and for the House of Representatives from the counties included in this organization be required to pledge themselves to work and vote for such a law regardless of their personal or political interests and that those who fail to make such pledge be refused support at the polls without regard to party.

Be it further resolved, that all political parties be requested to insert in their platforms a plank pledging the early passage of a just reapportionment law.

2. Whereas, No extensive colonization of the unoccupied lands Northern Minnesota can be accomplished until roads and bridges are constructed, and it is absolutely essential to the highest development of the agricultural sections of this State that the best possible roads be provided.

Be it therefore resolved, that it is expedient, proper and absolutely necessary that the Legislature submit to the people for adoption a Constitutional Amendment providing for the general property tax of 1 mill for road purposes, the fund thereby created to be distributed by the State Highway Commission among the several counties of the State of Minnesota.

3. There having been a lack of moneys from time to time in the funds from which loans are made by the State Board of Investment.

Be it resolved, that it the wish and will of this Association that Minnesota, thru its Board of Investment, dispose of, at the earliest possible opportunity, enough of the bonds of other states held by this State, necessary to secure and loan to our own people the money essential to State development, and especially for roads, drainage and schools.

Whereas, there are two million acres yet remaining unsettled lack of drainage and the same are suseptible of drainage.

Therefore, be it resolved that we are heartily in accord with the drainage movement commenced by the different counties, the State Drainage Commission and the United States Government, and we recommend that all northern Minnesota counties do all in their power to further the cause of drainage; that the Federal Government be urged to reclaim the millions of acres held by them in trust for the Chippewa In-

Senator B. R. Tillman, the pitch fork guard of South Carolina, sustained a stroke of paralysis last week that threatens to end his checkered career. The Senator must have floan off the handle at least once too often.

Still, everything considered, you can hardly blame the North Pole for moving further south so as to keep in the lime-light. The lack of attention accorded that worthy' personage'the last couple of months, after what he had been accustomed to,is enough to make anyone"sore".

The organized opposition against the proposed Corporation Tax Law by the different corporations, including the "Trusts",who are using all their influence to try and have congress kill the bill, looks suspicious. Must be that Taft has one piece of legislation up his sleeve that has some merit.

It would seem that Governor Eberhart is rather lacking in finesse when one considers that, tho the state of Minnesota contains some 350 odd thousand voters, he only honored some 5,000 or so, by appointing them delegates to the conservation congress. It appears that he has wasted a chance to make sure of a comfortable majority at next fall's election.

When King Edward opened the third parliament of his reign last Monday it is said that he failed to solve any of the present problems in his opening speech and hence he precipitated a crisis amongst the different parties. He is not much worse off than the President of the United States who seems to be able to make beautiful speeches and great pleas for the keeping of party promises but fails to produce the results.

If the northern part of the state sticks to the slogan of "No more legislation until we get reapportionment", and all hang together, it will not be long until the state is fairly apportioned. It would add spice to the election to have all the state wide candidates declare themselves in favor of the program, or lose the support of the northern half of the state. The question would rival that of county option, and when he has to face them both, the candidate will wish he had stayed at home.

dians, and further that the next State Legislature submit a constitutional amendment to the end that appropriation of funds can be made for the straightening and the deepening of the rivers and channels which are the natural outlets of our drainage projects and to generally assist in this most important work.

We urge that all matters pending in the several departments at Washington relating to our Indian Reservations be immediately considered, thereby aiding us in our work of development and improvements of northern Minnesota.

Resolved that the Association hereby heartily endorses the campaign of the Minnesota Federation of Commerical Clubs for a State Appropriation of $100,000.00 per year for state advertising under the direction of its immigration department.

Resolved, that this Convention heartily endorse the conservation movements and pledges the support of the thirty counties here represented.

Resolved, that the Board of Management of the Minnesota State Fair be requested to allow no advertisement of lands except Minuesota lands on the printed matter issued by the State Fair Management; and that the space on the back of all tags or tickets attached to exhibits be offered to the State Immigration Department, free of charge, for the purpose of advertising Minnesota's agricultural resources.

Believing that one of the important factors of the agricultural development of of our State is the proper education of our farm boys and girls for farm life, and believing also that the policy of the State should be to offer as much elementary education as possible to the farm boys and girls in their home schools; that fully appreciating the magnificent urban, graded and high schools which have been built up in the State of Minnesota under the direction and guidance of the High School Board and by the liberal appropriations granted by the State Legislature, and realizing that the proper education of our rural children is of as much importance to the welfare of the State as the State as the education of its urban children, and further recognizing that the present system of rural schools offers to rural children educational advantages greatly inferior to those now offered to our villages and cities.

Be it resolved, that the State of Minnesota should, proceeding along similar lines to those by which it has built up its excellent system of urban, graded and high schools, build up a system of rural, township, graded and high schools which shall fully meet the needs of our rural population and shall insure to them in their home schools as much instruction in elementary agriculture, manual-training and home economies as it is possible to give.

Be it further resolved, that we recommend the establisement of more schools in the State of the type of the Crookston Schools of Agriculture, and further believing that such a system of rural, graded and high schools can and will be established it the near future.

Be it further resolved, that the movments for the establishment of agricultural departments in urban high schools be restricted to those high schools so situated that the rural schools surrounding the village or city can secure better results through co-operation with the village or city high school than through independent organization.

Further be it resolved, that we recommend to the State Legislature the establishment of a Rural High School Board whose duties it shall be to foster and direct the building up of an efficient system of rural schools.

Whereas, Northern Minnesota is a region of fruitful soil, splended waterways and waterpowers, boundless wealth producing resources and healthful climate, and is the varitable parlor of nature's palace, and

Whereas, the said State of Minnesota is possessed of large and extensive areas of lands secured under special grants from the Federal Government, and said lands as now handled constitute continuing barrier against the early settlement and development of Northern Minnesota by landlocking the settlers in this region, making the building of roads impossible, and hence retarding the agricultural development of Northern Minnesota.

Therefore be it resolved, that it is the demand of Northern Minnesota in convention assembled, that speedy adequate relief be afforded by the next Legislature looking to the correction of these evils. That laws be passed imposing a tax on all state lands not used exclusively for public purposes to the end that these vast areas of State lands in Northern Minnesota may pay their just proportion of the tax necessary for the building of roads, schools and public buildings. That State lands, suitable for agriculture, when sold or offered for sale, be sold in their virgin state with the timber by contract or in fee simple to the end that the settlers building a home on these tracts may have some means of support from the timber while developing these farms. That the State lands, in order to be handled rightly and intelligent be classified and appraised after a thorough examination. That the present method of dealing with actual settlers in matters of contest with homesteadeis whose entires conflict with State Swamp selections be discouraged by appropriate Legislative enactment. That an amenddment to the Constitution of the State be submitted to the people ammending article Eight thereof so as to permit enactment of a better and more businesslike method of disposing of State lands, having in view the proper protection of the permanent school fund of the State.

The unamious thanks of this convention is hereby proffered to the genial gentleman, who energy and executive skill has been in so great a measure responsible for the successfull completion of the objects desired in the calling of this convention for the spirit of harm among the thirty counties which his tact has brought about, believing this is the beginng of a dew era for northern Minnesota—for this, we hereby thank Mr. W. R. Mackenize of Bemidji.

Be it further resolved, that the delegates of this convention, each and every one of them, hereby express their appreciation of the courtous hospital treatment accorded them by the people of the City of Bemidji during this convention:

M. N. Koll, Chairman.
C. MacKenize, Secretary of the Committee of 33 on Resolutions.

WEEK'S DOINGS AT WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., February 24, 1910.—Indication is not wanting that the Administration has grave apprehension of the success of the legislative program which the President has urged Congress to adopt before its adjournment in order to carry out the pledges of the Chicago platform and enable the Republican party to make a strong showing in the fall elections.

Despite the assurances repeatedly given the President during the session that the measures recommended by him in special or general messages would be enacted into law as early as possible, it has become evident to those in close touch with the White House that the leaders in the House and Senate are not over-disposed to rush matters in carrying out the promises made. The general appropriation bills have reached their customary stage for this date on the calender, being only two days behind the record of the last session, but the postal savings bank, statehood, corporation' injunction, conservation and other measures of fundamental importance which are considered to be demanded by public opinion are still in by process of discussion and perfection in the committees which have them in charge. No particular day has been set for their consideration and apparently they seem as far from enactment into law as a month ago.

Those Senators who are chairman of committees having in charge the bills President Taft has urged were called into consultation at the White House during the week and impressed with the idea that something must be done soon in order to satisfy him and the country. He endeavored to smooth over the rough places which have arisen because of amendments proposed. He is understood to take the position that the legislative branch of the government should work out the details, but that as titular leader of the Republican party now in power and chief executive, the measures themselves must reach the statute books. They renewed promises to comply with his wishes.

The Administratio has much at stake in its legislature progrm. Indeed, its success is depended upon the enactment of the measures recommended. No doubt is felt here of the President's anxiety under the circumstances. It is thought by those conversant with the inside situation that the leaders of the Senate, headed by Senator Aldrich, and the House organization, headed by Speaker Cannon, are not inclined to give the President all he asked. Though some doubt has been expressed in regard to the success of the postal savings bank bill because of the amendment proposed by Senator Root, it is conceded that of all the measures recommened by the President and having the general approval of all the people of the country it is most likely to be enacted into law before the adjournment of Congress. The statehood bill is now certain of passage but the conservation bills and the amendment to the interstate commerce act, together with measures which propose to limit injunctions in conformity with the wishes of labor organizations, are in a more doubtful position. If the President fails to secure nearly all his recommendations, the alliance between him and Senator Aldrich and Speaaer Cannon will be considered to have been unsatisfactory to him. The Democrats are jubilant over the prospect of this thing occuring. To map out out the legislation that should be enacted by a session of Congress is one thing, to carry it into effect is another. The results alone count, and Washington is therefore viewing the game with great interest.

The record made by Aldrich and Cannon during the seven years of opposition to the Roosevelt policies and last year in the passage of the Payne-Aldrich tarifl act does not heighten the hopes of those who wish for the successful completion of the Taft legislative program. Even the forthcoming congressional election and its menace to the Republican cause is not thought to frightened these leaders into complete compliance with the President's wishes. For the second time during the winter the success of the Administration seems to be hanging in the balance. The gravity of the situation has only been accentuated by discovery at this late day that a formal amendment to the tariff law will be necessary in order to enforce the publicity feature of the corporation tax provision. It is not discovered that $50,000 should be appropriated to carry it into practical effect. Chairman Tawney of the Appropriation Committee says the Ways and Means Committee will have to take up the matter in the form of an amendment to the old law. The Democrats, headed by Champ Clark, minority leader, declare that should the amendment be proposed by the Ways and Means Committee it will open the way for other amendments and a general discussion of the entire Payne tariff. Meanwhile the corporations of the couatry, which have persistently opposed the publicity feature, are quite contented with the present situation, under which the government is powerless to enforce the law empowering it to collect full information regarding the minute detils of their management.

There is a little doubt that the American people have paid for Paris a couple of times, but they will not acquire title to the city of fashions even though they pay for it a dozen times more.

MAY ISSUE A STATEMENT

Secretary of State Weary of Being Criticised.

NOT FOR MORGAN'S BENEFIT

Mr. Knox Resents Accusation That He Is Running His Department for the Benefit of the Financier—Cabinet Official Believes in Mixing Commercialism With Diplomacy. Inside History of Hankow Railroad Loan.

Washington, Feb. 22.—Secretary Knox may issue a statement to the public within a few days indicating his resentment of the criticism of his conduct of the state department and conveying the notice that if the people do not like his kind of diplomacy he is ready to lapse into a do nothing rut or give way to some one else. Mr. Knox believes in mixing commercialism and diplomacy, and it makes him tired when he is accused of running the department for the benefit of J. Pierpont Morgan and other big financiers.

Some of the inside history connected with the Hankow railroad loan was given out which throws a new light on the part taken in that transaction by the United States. It seems that big world politics are involved. This government stepped in just in time to prevent an act that would have retarded for many years the plans for the national progress of China.

The $30,000,000 Hankow railroad loan had been practically awarded to the German-French-English syndicate. At the eleventh hour the United States interfered and demanded a share of the loan, the European diplomats laughed at our representations.

Why the United States Took Part.

The real reason the United States took a hand in the proceeding was the knowledge that the foreign syndicate was to be secured in its loan by a lien on the likin taxes of the various provinces. This tax is regarded as one of the most archaic institutions of China and a great deterrent to its development. The United States plans to abolish this tax and at the same time put the Chinese currency on a modern basis and reform the customs service. These reforms would have been impossible, or at least delayed for many years, if the Hankow loan had been put through in its original shape. The lien on the likin taxes would have perpetuated the ancient customs.

The United States insisted on our right to share in the loan because of our treaty obligations with China and our prestige in that part of the world, our part in establishing the open door policy and other valid reasons. After a long and bitter controversy the United States won out. Secretary Knox regards this as his finest bit of statesmanship. It saved China a further setback and enhanced the influence of the United States in the East. At the same time stipulation was made that part of the supplies for the railroad should be purchased in America.

Turned It Over to Morgan.

Secretary Knox turned over to J. Pierpont Morgan the duty of handling the share of the loan awarded to America. He merely stipulated that the firms taken into the syndicate should be of such a character as to carry absolute confidence to the foreigners. Morgan took in Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the First National bank and the National City bank. Secretary Knox regards this syndicate as responsible as those which represent France, Germany and England.

In reply to the critics who allege that the Knox diplomacy is nothing more than a plan to obtain foreign contracts for the Morgan group of bankers comes the statement that any Americans can obtain recognition at the state department by merely showing that they are in a position to "make good" and are as responsible as the foreign syndicate.

It is stated that the department's action in the loan to the Honduras government was governed by the same motives. The refunding of that debt was turned over to the Morgan group because it has a standing before all the world.

In view of the larger politics involved in these transactions, Secretary Knox grows very weary when he hears the charge that he is running the state department in the interests of Morgan and other bankers. He believes that his policy furthers the best interests of the United States government.

Court Decides Oleo Case.

Washington, Feb. 22.—That the use of natural palm olive oil as one of the ingredients of oleomargarine, to improve the texture, quality and healthfulness of oleomargarine, subjects it to the payment of an internal revenue tax of 10 cents a pound, was decided by the supreme court of the United States. It had previously decided that when it was added to give color the tax of 10 cents a pound applied.

CHAMBERLAIN TAKES OATH

Former British Leader Appears in House of Commons.

London, Feb. 17.—For the first time since he was stricken with paralysis years ago Joseph Chamberlain put in an appearance in the house of commons and took the oath as a member of the new parliament. The advent of the tariff reformer was quite unexpected and afforded a dramatic surprise for the officials and members who were being sworn in. Mr. Chamberlain walked with marked difficulty, being assisted by his son, Joseph Austen Chamberlain, and Lord Morpeth.

Mr. Chamberlain advanced to a front seat before the bench, where the oath was administered. When the membership roll was placed before him for his signature he required the aid of Austen, who signed the name of the father, the latter appending his mark. Still supported on either side Mr. Chamberlain moved to the speaker's chair and shook hands with Mr. Lowther.

Then the famous leader made his way slowly from the chamber within which so many stirring episodes of his life have occurred.

KING OUTLINES POLICY

Reads Address at Opening of British Parliament.

London, Feb. 22.—King Edward opened in state the third parliament of his reign. In a momentous speech from the throne his majesty outlined the plan of the ministerial campaign against the house of lords as follows:

"Recent experience has disclosed serious difficulties, due to recurring differences of strong opinion between the two branches of the legislature. Proposals will be laid before you with all convenient speed to define the relations between the houses of parliament so as to secure the undivided authority of the house of commons over finance and its predominance in legislation. These measures, in the opinion of advisers, should provide that this house should be so constituted and empowered as to exercise impartially in regard to proposed legislation."

The king's speech, which had been awaited with such profound interest, proved to be unusually brief and made plain that the work of the session would be confined to the matter of finance and the question of the house of lords.

Well Known Actor Dies Suddenly at Kansas City.

Mr. Clement finished a week's engagement at a local theater Saturday night. He had not been feeling well and decided to remain here over Sunday.

He grew worse rapidly and early Monday was seized with convulsions.

He then was hurried to the hospital, where he soon became unconscious and died twenty minutes later.

WASHINGTON BY OUR STANDARDS

by James A. Edgerton

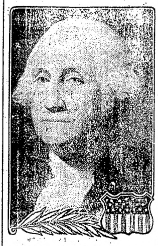
[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

G. WASHINGTON, a name you may recall,
Whose owner was the father of us all,
Had such a wealth of titles unto fame
I have not time to catalogue the same,
But, looked at from this distance, it would seem
The chief of all his claims to our esteem
Lies in the marked and gratifying way
He differed from some statesmen of today

As an example, history records
That he refused all offers of rewards
For his long years of toil and sacrifice,
But gave them without money, without price.
In these our times the process is reversed—
Where he placed service of his country first
And took no wage, our patriots today
Omit the service and accept the pay.



The difference appears in other things:
He freed the country from the rule of kings,
While we have those, or so I have been told,
Who foster trust kings worse than those of old.
He drove the mercenaries from our shores,
The hireling armies feeding on our stores.
We have a foe more fierce and ravenous—
The army of the grafters feeds on us.

Great Washington, who lacked the gift of speech,
In deeds, not words, his lessons sought to teach,
But we, with floods of talk that know no bound,
Drown our performance in a sea of sound.
His wisdom lay in knowing his defect,
Which grows a virtue seen in retrospect.
Our statesmen, who can speak no more than he,
Are not restrained by his humility.

He spurned a crown. We make of wealth a king
And crown not man, but an insensate thing.
He sought retirement when his work was through,
But certain statesmen of the modern crew,
Who heard their own and not their country's call.
Have not the mercy to retire at all.
He farmed his farm like Cincinnatus old;
They farm the people and the crop is gold.

They call him first in peace and first in war
And first in the esteem his country bore.
We have some statesmen first, I understand,
In making peace with those who rob the land,
First in the gains of buying war supplies,
First in the hearts of those who victimize
Their countrymen and first to speculate
On inside news that they themselves create.

We need such contrasts to appreciate
How purely, loftily and nobly great
Was this unselfish statesman, Washington.
He grows in stature by comparison.
When measured by the standards we maintain
He seems a being of another plane.
He served mankind, and so it is, I say,
The nation needs some Washingtons today.

George Washington never was much of a speechmaker. Thomas Jefferson, who served with him in the Virginia house of burgesses, stated that he never heard Washington speak for more than ten minutes at a time.

Washington had a high temper, but he usually kept it under excellent control. Several notable occasions are on record, however, when he became "raging mad."

Washington served on a grand jury after his retirement from the presidency. Before he became president he had been a petit juror several times.

Cornwallis' Surrender.

Many thousands of Virginia citizens were gathered to watch the scene, all eager to get a glimpse of Lord Cornwallis. But they were disappointed in that. Cornwallis pleaded indisposition and stayed in his quarters. He sent his sword by one of his officers, General O'Hara, to be delivered to Washington. General O'Hara offered the sword to Washington, who directed him to General Lincoln, the officer whom Washington had appointed to conduct the surrender. Lincoln took the sword from O'Hara's hand and then politely handed it back, to be returned to Cornwallis.

One Way Out.

Perkins had been appointed tutor to the young lord of the manor, and together they were making the grand tour. Perkins was congratulating himself on the excellent behavior of his pupil; but, alas, they had only reached Geneva when his charge fell deeply in love with a pretty Swiss peasant. In vain did he remonstrate with the young lord, pointing out the social barrier that existed between the lovers and the total impossibility of marriage. But all to no purpose. The beautiful Swiss maiden held the young lord's heart captive, and he would scarcely leave her side.

A day or two passed in agonizing suspense.

At last the answer came. Perkins breathed a sigh of relief. All his anxiety would now be over. He tore open the envelope, but as he read the letter he groaned in the anguish of his soul. It consisted of three words:

"Marry her yourself."

Poor Bijou!

During the siege of Paris, Francisque Sarcey indignantly protested against the practice of eating dogs. Hunger, however, knows no law, and canine and feline butcher shops were opened in different parts of Paris. Skillfully prepared, properly skinned and cooked, with a good sauce, the dogs proved excellent eating. Their meat was pink and delicate and by no means tough. Canine cutlets were sold at 2 francs each, and a leg of dog might be purchased at double that price a pound.

Two good bourgeois, husband and wife, had a little dog of which they were very fond. But a day came when there was nothing to eat in the house, and poor Bijou had to be killed and cooked. His master and mistress sat down to dinner with tears in their eyes, and during the dinner the latter mechanically placed the tiny rib bones on the side of her plate. "Poor Bijou!" she ejaculated with a sigh. "What a treat these would have been for him!" —Frank Schlosser in Contemporary Review.

A Tearful Eye to Business.

Advertising is nowadays almost a fine art. Clever advertisements attract customers in two ways—first, because they effectually call attention to the goods, and, second, because of their cleverness, pure and simple. Such a one is the following, quoted from London M. A. P., which adorned a boot shop in the Rue d'Amsterdam, in Paris:

> LIQUIDATION.
> With tears in my eyes, I am obliged to clear the whole of my stock of boots.
> To get rid of it all in a week I offer it to you at a loss of 50 per cent.
> My husband seeing fit to abandon me with five children.
> WHY
> Can't I go on without my husband? Because my husband alone was able to obtain job lines from the big provincial and foreign bootmakers.
> Prudent ladies will profit by these extraordinarily low prices, which will enable me to clear out my stock and search for my husband throughout Europe.
> MME. MARIE-LOUISE X.

Nothing to Say.

According to a delightful story of Shelley, recounted in the International Journal of Ethics by the Rev. Bradley Gilman, the splendid mental equipment of the poet did not include humor. In his characteristically impassioned way, Shelley was deeply interested in the problem of immortality. One day he met a nursemaid wheeling a very young child in a perambulator.

"Here is a little soul," he reflected, "recently come to earth out of the great unknown preceding human life. Perhaps he can tell me something about the great unknown after human life. The two realms may be one and the same."

He accosted the infant twice, but of course gained no response, only a blank infantile stare.

Rubber and Gutta Percha.

There are important distinctions between india rubber and gutta percha, and in the majority of purposes for which they are employed one cannot replace the other. While the trees yielding india rubber are well distributed over the tropical parts of the world and may be cultivated with more or less facility, the tree which furnishes gutta percha is to be found only in Borneo, Sumatra and the Malay archipelago generally.

pleasant, after all, to travel alone. Her adventure on the top of the castle was certainly not a pleasant thing to look back upon. Washington, Feb. 18.—Charging Senator R. L. Owen of Oklahoma with being interested in the affairs of the Standard Oil company and saying that he would like to see J. D. The speech was relative to the efforts of Mr. Owen to have passed a general bill giving right of way through the public lands of Arkansas for a gas pipe line.

SAVES HIS PRISONERS

Sheriff at Cairo, Ill., Prevents Attempted Lynchings.

Cairo, Ill., Feb. 19.—One man killed and three wounded is the result of an attack on the jail here by a mob which tried to lynch two negroes who were arrested for snatching purses from women.

When the mob, which numbered more than 200, marched to the jail steps Sheriff Nellis threw open the front door of the courthouse above the jail and said: "I am here to protect my prisoners," and at the same time his deputies began shooting into the mob, killing Thomas Halliday, son of ex-Mayor Thomas W. Halliday, and wounding three others.

The crowd fell back and the body of Halliday lay upon the steps of the courthouse all night, Sheriff Nellis refusing to allow any one to enter the yard to remove the body until daylight.

SHOOT AT THEIR PURSUERS

Bold Robbers Make Their Escape After firing a Fusillade of Shots at the Crowd That Chased Them—Diners Thrown Into a Panic by Bullets Going Through Windows.

St. Paul, Feb. 22.—Stanley Colburn, cashier of Carling's Uptown cafe, was held up by two men, who robbed the cash drawer of $300 and made their escape after shooting at Clarence Thompson, the negro doortender of the place, and firing seven shots at men on the street who tried to stop them.

Colburn was busy going over his accounts when the men approached his desk in the front of the cafe on the Fifth street side near the Fifth street entrance. He supposed they were diners about to pay their score until one said in low, menacing tones: "Hold up your hands."

Colburn looked up then and directly into the muzzles of two revolvers, one in each man's hand.

There was nothing for him to do but obey. Both then backed to the front entrance, keeping Colburn covered with their guns.

Reaching the door they made a sudden dash for the street. Clarence Thompson, the doortender, saw the guns in their hands and, noticing their hurried exit, tried to stop them. One of the men shot at Thompson, the bullet crashing through the glass doors.

The shot was the signal for wild commotion in the room, there being thirty or more after theater parties dining in the cafe at the time.

Creates Panic in Cafe.

The sound of the shot was the first intimation the people in the cafe had of the holdup and they all rushed to the front of the place.

Meanwhile Cashier Colburn had sounded the alarm and H. H. Dunbar, manager of the place, and H. J. Prescott, the head waiter, jumped in pursuit of the robbers, followed by most of the crowd.

As Dunbar and Prescott reached the sidewalk the men turned and fired three shots at them, all of them hitting the front of the cafe and miraculously missing the men in pursuit and the crowd of men and women crushing to get through the doors.

The robbers ran toward the Orpheum theater and almost into the arms of George Kassowitz, Robert N. Joreman, J. Landon and H. A. May, traveling men, stopping at the Hotel Ryan, who, in response to the shouts of the people following the men, tried to stop the robbers. The latter cut loose with their revolvers at the traveling men, firing four shots almost point blank at Landon, Foreman and May, who dropped to the ground to escape a further fusillade, although they had not been hit.

Along Fifth street, past the Orpheum and through Rice park the robbers ran at top speed, with the crowd at their heels, Dunbar, Prescott and Colburn in the lead.

Behind the old Metropolitan hotel the men disappeared in an alley and were lost, making their escape, that being the last seen of them by the crowd.

QUESTIONED ABOUT MERGER

Kruttschnitt Cross-Examined by Attorney Kellogg.

New York, Feb. 22.—Frank B. Kellogg took up the cross-examination of Julius Kruttschnitt, vice president of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific system, in the government's suit to dissolve the merger of the two roads.

Mr. Kellogg asked among other things about the list of commodities which are used by the merger system and on which Mr. Kruttschnitt had testified that prices had increased.

"Did you select for this list commodities upon which there had been large increases?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

"No, I simply asked our purchasing agents to make a list of the principal commodities showing the differences in the prices paid," was the reply. He said there were very few things which had not advanced in price.

"Watered stock," dividends and property valuation were other things regarding which Mr. Kruttschnitt was questioned. When Mr. Kruttschnitt quoted the interstate commerce commission report on dividend averages and showed that; although his roads were paying a 10 per cent dividend now, the average of the Union Pacific for a ten-year period was 4.62 and on the Southern Pacific 1.9 per cent. Mr. Kellogg asked:

"Would you undertake to say what portion of the stock upon which railroads pay dividends is watered stock and which paid actual capital investment?"

Mr. Kruttschnitt answered that he rather believed the interstate commerce commission had disregarded watered stock in preparing the tabulation of dividend averages. He said he did not know that any of the 10 per cent dividends were paid on investments.

Plummer is shipping more grain this year than every before according to the grain buyers here. Close to 60,000 bushels has already been shipped this year as compared to only a little over 40,000 for last year. This at the prices of grain for this year as compared to last means nearly twice the amount about $85,000. 18 cars of flax have been shipped so far, aggregating about 20000 bushel making at the present price $41,200. With the products of the Plummer and Clearwater Creameries bringing about $45,000 last year the remaining products such as stock, eggs, dairy butter, cheese factory, and vegatables, of which there were several cars shipped last fall, well make a grand total well over the $200,000 that the Plummer farmers received last year for their products besides what were used for home consumption. A quarter of a million of dollars would be a conservitive estimote of the values of the farm products raised in Plummer territory last year.

Chilean Cruiser Rescues Scores From Sinking Ship.

ARRIVES IN NICK OF TIME

Vessel Fast Going to Pieces as Halp Reached Scene.

Quellon, Chile, Feb. 18.—The Chilean tugboat Pisagua, arriving here, reports that the Chilean cruiser Ministre Zenteno has rescued the eighty-eight persons who had been left on the wreck of the British steamer Lima, in the Huamblin passage, Strait of Magellan.

When the cruiser arrived at Huamblin passage she found eighty-six of the survivors still clinging to the wreck. Two others had reached shore. Those on the wreck were taken off in small boats with the aid of lines attaching the cruiser to the wreck. The two who had gotten ashore were picked up later.

The Lima stranded on Searle point, in Huamblin passage, after being rendered helpless in the storm.

Over 200 of the passengers were taken off by a British steamer, which was forced to abandon rescue work because all of its boats were put out of service by the heavy waves. This steamer then left the wreck and hurried to Valparaiso to summon further assistance. Six steamers were at once dispatched in a race south to the Lima, one of which was the Chilean warship Ministre Zenteno, which outstripped the others and reached the scene of the wreck first and in time to rescue all of those remaining on the stranded vessel.

Gondokoro, Soudan, Feb. 18.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Kermit Roosevelt and the other members of the Smithsonian African scientific expedition have arrived here. All are well and enthusiastic over their experiences and the scientific results of their explorations.

The entrance of the Americans into Gondokoro was rudely picturesque and nothing that British and native hospitality could suggest was lacking in the welcome. The arrival of the expedition in the outskirts of the town was heralded with bugle blasts by Chief Keriba's band, which led the van. Chief Keriba accompanied his musicians. The natives had met the expedition sixteen miles to the south. On the way here all the honor that could be gotten out of their instruments of brass and tomtoms was furnished in full.

HUNT FOR TUG ABANDONED

Vessel and Crew of Thirty-two Given Up for Lost.

Washington, Feb. 18.—All hope that the missing United States navy tug Nina, which left Norfolk Feb. 6 bound to Boston with thirty-two souls on board, is still afloat has been abandoned by the navy department and the warships which for five days have been searching for the Nina have been ordered to discontinue the hunt.

The reason given for the abandonment of the search was that there could be no hope for the safety of a vessel of the Nina's type which had been out of port eleven days on a cruise which she should have completed in two or three days at the outside.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 17.—Most of the mining engineers in the Butte district have gone out on strike. This was caused by the mine owners' refusal to grant concessions in certain jurisdictional disputes. # IN STATE OF SIEGE

Streets of Philadelphia Swarm With Policemen.

CITIZENS AFRAID TO RIDE

Boycott Street Cars Rather Than Face Possible Injury.

Philadelphia, Feb. 22.—With every member of the police force on duty and the regulars augmented by specially picked men sworn in for the purpose this city is practically in a state of siege. Following the rioting of the previous day street fighting was resumed when the street car company, the employes of which are on strike, attempted to run its cars.

Because most workmen were forced to resume their regular employment the rioting was not of so severe a character and the police managed to break up all the fights without serious delay.

A drizzling rain, carried through the street by a brisk wind, made pedestrianism most uncomfortable, but many walked to their work rather than face the chance of stopping a brick or a bullet by patronizing the cars.

Vehicles of all descriptions are transporting persons to and from their work and team owners are reaping a harvest, but are unable to take care of more than an infinitesimal part of the traffic.

In the Kensington district, where the worst rioting took place, many workmen are idle. This section is inhabited mostly by working people and those who work at a distance remained at home rather than walk and as they are absolutely in sympathy with the strikers they would not patronize the cars.

The police are coming in for severe criticism because of the fact that on the Lancaster avenue division policemen are running the cars with the nonunion men hidden in the doorway of the cars telling them how to do it.

As an evidence of Sunday night's rioting it is said by the company that 297 of its cars were damaged and that many will have to be rebuilt before being restored to service.

Cars were attacked in various parts of the city during the morning. The most serious outbreak occurred in the mill district, in the northeastern section, when a crowd, after beating the motorman and conductor of a car, wrecked the conveyance. The two men injured had to be taken to hospitals. The motorman's skull is be-

Perhaps there are some business men in this town who have tried advertising and found the results unsatisfactory.

If so, something was the trouble. Contracting for space in a newspaper is not enough. When secured the space must be used to advantage. A convincing story should be told. A plant will not grow unless it is tended. An impression cannot be made upon the purchasing public except by careful, persistent work.

Many merchants err grievously in believing that time spent upon their ads is time wasted. No time can be made more profitable.

We believe the advertising columns of this paper can be used profitably by any one who seeks to reach the buyers of this community. We will gladly aid any one who desires to try it or who is trying it and is not satisfied.

WRONG IDEA ABOUT CENSUS

Need Not Be Afraid To Answer Questions Of Enumerator.

Washington., D. C., March 2, 1910.

Letters from the census supervisors to the United States Census Bureau show the erroneous apprehension of a considerable element of the population that their answers to the enumerators' questions in the next census, beginning April 15, this year, will cause increased taxation, legal entanglements, or injurious consequences to their persons and property.

In order to quiet such unfounded fear, which would, unless removed, materially affect the accurancy of the census, the bureau has prepared an official statement relative to the decennial census, its origin, purpose, and uses.

This statement should furnish complete assurance to those concerned that information given the enumerators is held by the Census Bureau in the strictest confidence with reference to the identity of the informants, as required by the policy of the bureau and commanded by the law of the United States.

The bureau earnestly hopes that clergymen, priests, physicians, school teachers, employers, and other public-spirited citizens who come in contact with large numbers of people, will cooperate with the bureau by telling persons who are believed to entertain erroneous opinions of the census the real facts and urging them to give full replies to the enumerators. Teachers are particularly requested to speak of the census to the school children and ask them to tell their parents about it.

The statement issued by the bureau explains that the Constitution requires a census of the population to be taken every ten years in order to reapportion state representation in the National House of Representatives. It is the means also to ascertain the increase in the population agriculture, industries, and resources of the nation since the last census.

It is emphatically declared, by the statement, that the information sought from the people of the U. S is solely for general statistical purposes. It will neither be published nor used in any other way to disclose facts regarding any individual or enterprise. The census, it goes on to say, is not, never has been, and can not be employed to obtain information that can be used in any way in the assessment of property for purposes of taxation or the collection of taxes, either national, state, or local; or for deportation proceedings, extradition measuses, army or navy conscription, internal-revenue investigations, compulsory school attendance, child-labor law prosecutions, quarantine regulations, or in any way to affect the life, liberty, or property of any person.

It points out that replies to the enumerators are and must be held by the Census Bureau in strict and absolute confidence. All the bureau officials, supervisors, supervisors' clerks, enumerators, and interpreters, before entering upon their duties, are obliged to take a solemn oath not to disclose any information they may obtain, except to the Census Bureau, and a violation of the United States law in regard to this oath means a $1,000 fine or imprisonment for two years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

State Exhibit Extensive.

George Welch, commissioner of Immigration and Prof. C. P. Bull, of the University Agricultural Experiment Farm, who is assisting to arrange a comprehensive state exhibit at the Conservation Congress, did not know the state had so much to show until they "took stock" When the plans were finished they found they need more room.

Here are some of the departments which will be represented in their exhibit: Mining; farm drainage; live stock and farm sanitation; dairy and food; public health; stone and brick; pottery and clay products; game and fish; forestry, and young people's work in the schools. Besides all these representative exhibits, the agricultural interests claim a big part of the show, which opens March 16 and continues four days.

ARPIN SECURES BIG CONTRACT

Big Mud Lake Drainage System Contract Let Tuesday.

A. M. Aripin of Thief River Falls, representing the Northwestern Drainage Company, of Grand Rapids, Wis., was awarded the contract for the construction of the joint Judical ditch No. 11, at a consideration of 10.3 cents per yard for all the excavating and $115 per mile for finishing a road along side of the ditch, by Judge Grindeland at Warren Tuesday.

This is the greatest ditching project ever undertaken in the United States. When all this land is drained it will furnish farm homes for 800 families or more, in addition to those who are already there and are making their homes now almost on worthless lands. The excavation will be over 5,500,000 cubic yards of dirt and this ditch will approximate $600,000.

Immediately upon receipt of this contract Mr. Arpin wired for coal to be shipped to Holt and he will have over fifty teams hauling coal for the construction of this ditch within a week. The greatest amount of work that will be done this summer will be the constructing of the main ditch up through Mud Lake, thus lowering the water level of the country in general thruout the country and making it possible to work farther up on the branches with a walking machine during the following seasons.

In addition to digging the ditch Mr. Arpin also submitted a proposition offering to purchase the entire issue of bonds for this work at par, the bonds to bear interest at five per cent. This was done in order that the entire ditch might be le a d completed with all possible speed, and inasmuch as it may be har to float the Beltrami county bonds it feared that this great ditch project might be held up if some manner of furnishing the money was not definitely provided.

Village Election Tuesday.

Best Corn in The World.

The ten best ears of corn in the world are to be exhibited in St. Paul. They are now owned by E. T. Meredith, of Des Moines, Ia., who has them mounted in a case and has loaned them to a number of expositions and corn shows held since Jan. 1. The corn was grown by Jos. R. Overstreet of Franklin, Ind. and was awarded the prize at the National Corn Exposition held in Omaha, where it was in competition with about three and a half miles of corn. Mr. Meredith has consented to send the ears to the Conservation Congress to be held in St. Paul, March 16-19.

We have just received our line of samples and illustrations showing the styles in Mens Tailor Made Cloths for the spring and summer of 1910. If you would like to be well dressed at a reasonable price come in and let us talk it over.

Barley a Profitable Crop.

It would seem from a study of crop yields in Minnesota for the past ten years that barley is, all things considered, one of the most profitable grain crops grown in the state. The following figures taken from the United States Department of Agriculture Year book for 1907 help to emphasize the fact. The average yields per acre of some of the grain crops in Minnesota are as follhws: Barley, 1255 lb; Oats, 1058 lb; Wheat, 708 lb, and Flax 594 lb. The average market value per acre of these crops, based on the average farm price for ten years, is: Flax $10.27; Barley $10.12; Oats, $9.12 and Wheat. $8.77, which shows that excebting flax, barley yields considerably more in money value per acre than does any of the other grain crops.

From the above it is seen that while barley yields less bushels per acre than oats, it yields 197 pounds per acre more than oats, 487 pounds per acre more than wheat and more than twice as many pounds as flax. Barley has the advantage over flax in being a good crop for cleaning land of weeds, and it may often be fed on the farm at a profit over the market price.

From the stand point of food value per acre, it is still further ahead of the other crops. Comparing these crops with bran at $20.00 per ton, the average yields per acre of food value are as follows; Barley, $13,25; Oats, $9.91; Wheat, $8.83, and Flax $6.35.

The fact that barley requires a shorter growing period than the other grain crops gives to it many advantages. It may be seeded later, thus giving a longer seeding time. It may be harvested earlier thus giving more time for harvest, and a longer time for fall pasturing of the stubble fields if one has seeded rape or clover with tha barley. It is not well to pasture newly seeded clover in the fall if it is to be left for a crop the following year. Barley grows so thick on the ground and so quickly that few weeds can grow in it, and land may be treated to destroy weeds either before seeding barley or after harvesting it.

Barley seeded early in the spring on fall plowed land or on disced corn stubble is one of the very best nurse crops with which to seed clover or timothy. Barley should receive a fair trial on most farms of the Northwest, especially where corn is still a bit uncertain. It costs on the average, 65c per cwt. to raise barley and 63c per cwt. to raise corn.

Mor Railroads.

What is the Great Northern railway company going to do? That is what a whole lot of people living in this vicinity would like to know. This week train crews commenced hauling ties to the material yards near the location of the old depot, and before the work is completed in the neighborhood of 150,000 ties will be piled up there—enough to build 100 miles of road. G. N. officials announce that these tires are to be used to replace old ties on this branch, but that hardly seems possible. All of the ties on this branch, with the exception from Thief River Falls to Red Lake Falls, are practically new, and then this city would not be the most convenient place to pile up the ties if they were to be used for this purpose.

For some time past there has been rumors in circulation to the effect that the G. N. was going to build a line from this city to Bagley and run a through passenger train from Warroad to the Twin Cities over this line instead of going by way of Crookston. And then of cource the ties may be used for constructing a road northeast of here. There is no question, but that the country north east will soon be occupied by a railroad, and while it has generally been believed that the Soo would be the road that would construct this line, it is possible that the Great Northern is not going to take a back seat in this section any longer.

Auction Sale.

There will be an auction sale at the farm of August Thiel, Section 33 of the town of Kratka, Saturday, March 19. Watch for ad next week.

Plummer is shipping more grain this year than every before according to the grain buyers here. Close to 60,000 bushels has already been shipped this year as compared to only a little over 40,000 for last year. This at the prices of grain for this year as compared to last means nearly twice the amount about $85,000. 18 cars of flax have been shipped so far, aggregating about 20000 bushel making at the present price $41,200. With the products of the Plummer and Clearwater Creameries bringing about $45,000 last year the remaining products such as stock, eggs, dairy butter, cheese factory, and vegatables, of which there were several cars shipped last fall, well make a grand total well over the $200,000 that the Plummer farmers received last year for their products besides what were used for home consumption. A quarter of a million of dollars would be a conservitive estimote of the values of the farm products raised in Plummer territory last year.

Red Lake County should be represented at the Conservation Congress. For some reason or other the county has never made the showing it should in this line. A good exhibit is the most important thing and Red Lake County can make a showing second to none in the state. The advertising received will amply cover the trouble and expense of same.

The Duluth News-Tribune, in a recent cartoon, represents President Taft as trying to sweep back the ocean, the ocean being the popular discontent against the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, and broom being the president's speeches. The president, however, is not alone in the struggle as he is represented, having the able assistance of a coterie of senators and representatives who are put there for that purpose by the men "higher up."

Judging by the noise made by the county option forces in convention assembled they must certainly be a strong army. They held the greatest convention ever held at St. Paul last Wednesday and passed some of the firmest resolutions ever passed and as these people have a reputation for living up to their resolutions they will no donbt have a strong political affect, we publish their resolutions elsewhere in full, and a short report of the doings of the convention.

For State Auditor.

Thief River Press,
Thief River Falls, Minn.
Dear Sir:—

Some time ago I announced that I was a candidate for the Office of State Auditor, and I write at this time to solicit your support.

For more than thirty-two years I have helped fight the battles of the Republicans of this state, and therefore I do not feel as if I was an intruder at this time when I ask support of Republicans.

While the interests of the state should be zealously guarded and protected, I believe that the bona fide settlers, who are trying to make homes for themselves in the northern part of the state shouldbe given a "square deal" and every encouragement should be offered to them; they should not be unnecessarily annoyed and harassed.

I also believe that arrangements should be made whereby the state could finance the building of drainage canals where needed at a low intercharge instead of compelling the land owners to pay extortionate rates of interest as many districts have been compelled to do in the past, in order to carry on these grand enterprises.

I am heartily in favor of the levying of a one mill tax for building of highways, believing that by so doing every part of the state would be greatly benefitted and more especially the sparsely settled parts of the state where good roads are so badly needed.

Further, that the state board of immigration could wisely assist the different counties in advertising their resources by setting aside a part of the funds available to said board to be used in advertising in the local papers of the several counties, or in the preparation of the printing of pamphlets, etc., as might be deemed the most advantageous.

If nominated and elected I shall endeavor to discharge the duties of this important office to the best of my ability without fear or favor.

Thanking you in advance for any aid that you may give me, I am,

Very truly yours,
Robert J. Wells.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK PROBLEM

President Makes Determined Effort to Carry Out Policy Program.

Washington, D. C. March 2nd 1910. President Taft's principal piece of progressive legislation - the postal savings bank bill - is in serious danger of defeat at the hands of the Republican organization in the House of Representatives. It is intended by the leaders in the Senate that the measure shall be adopted by that body during the next few days, but it is the expectation of these same leaders that the House will then work over it in committee, change it considerably, report it late, have it disscussed previously in the House, have it go to a conference of the two legislative bodies, and there, if possible, put it to sleep.

The notion that this will be done is so general at the Capitol that Chairman Penrose, of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, has openly declared it is to be his opinion that the bill will never be enacted into law at this session of Congress. Several other Senators have likewise expressed themselves. In the House the opposition at this time is general among the organization men, and the success of the measure is understood to rest entirely upon the power of the President to whip a sufficient number of votes into line to carry it, and after that more force will be needed in the conference committee.

The opposition in the House to the establishment of a system of Savings banks conducted by the government is due to several causes. Chief among them is the fact that such a system is regarded as a fundamental change which might lead to the concentration of greater power in the hands of the federal government. Many of the Democrats who are defenders of state rights are considering the advisability of taking a stand against the bill on this ground. Back of this, and perhaps if the truth be known a more important factor, is the antagonism of private banking interests throughout the country, who feel that the operation of postal banks under the proposed law would result in financial disadvantage to themselves. These banks in a great many cases are said to have a hold upon the vote of individual members of Congress, brought about in this way: An ambitious young lawyer desires to run for Congress; he is urged to do so by a banker friend; he replies that he can not afford to make the race; the banker agrees to finance him on his note, he runs, is elected, and is under obligation to the bank. In this emergency the banker expects him to help defeat legislation that would mean a loss of money from his pocket.

This is not a criticism of members of Congress. The transaction is in every way honorable and has been known since the beginning of practical politics. But it is, nevertheless, a fact and may be depended upon to to be of importance in securing the defeat of the bill, should it be defeated. But, just as in the fight for the enactment of the pure food law, letters and telegrams to members of Congress from voters and organizations in their respective home constituencies may have the effect of letting the doubting member know that the people in his district want the bill to become law and therefore want his vote to be registered in favor of it.

Because of the contention that the government is going into the banking business and that such a business would be in competition with them, the private banking interest-that is, the national, state, city and private banks - are lined up against the measure now being discussed in the Senate. In other words, the private interests are lining up against what is considered on the other side to be in the interests of all the people of the country. The great banking interests which are centered in New York also see in the measure a menace to their privileges and they are active in bringing pressure to bear upon Congress.

There is some ground for this belief on the part of the moneyed interests that postal savings bank bill if enacted into law would be a menace to them. The British post office saving bank has been a complete success since the day of its establishment in 1861. It has grown from year to year until in 1908 it carried accounts to the number of 11,018,251 and had total deposits amounting to $781,794,533. Almost every civilized nation on earth, with the exception of Germany, which has an efficient and widely patronized system of municipal savings banks, and the United States, which has only scattered private savings institutions, has followed the lead of Great Britain.

It is anticipated by those who are pushing the present measure, and particularly by the President, who urged a postal savings system in his message, and Postmaster-General Hitchcock, who urged it in his annual report, that it will operate to the great benefit of the working classes. With deposit practically assured by the United States government, it is thought by them that those who look upon deposits in private banking concerns as insecure, even in the slightest degree, will widely patronize the savings banks of the government thus established.

On the assumption that the lead of Great Britain will be followed in large measure and that three-quarters of a billion dollars would be deposited in the government banks, it is not wondered at here that the private bankers, who naturally want to use this amount of money in their own institutions, are anxious to defeat the bill. Considerable pressure is already being brought to bear upon the members of the House by the President in anticipation of a struggle and headway in favor of it has been made by him. But the question is: Will he bring enough pressure to put the measure thru? The fact that a Congressional election is about to be held and that each member's vote will be carefully scanned will, it is believed here, have more to do with favorable action than anything else.

The argument is being made by those favoring the bill that the private banking interests, on the other hand, would not be put to a disadvantage by it. They claim it would be a help and not a hindrance to private enterprise. They say that postal deposits in those countries where it has been tried increase until they reach a certain point and then remain stationary, indicating, first, that the money which has been reached is mostly that which can not be reached by private banks and has been drawn from places of concealment or collected in exceedingly small sums, and, second, that the patrons having accumulated a little money learn its earning power and decide to place it where it will receive greater returns. Attention is invited by these advocates of the bill to the fact that in Canada the deposits in chartered banks have increased from $424,000,000 in 1903 to $655,000,009 in 1907, whereas those in post office saving banks have increased from $44,900,000 in 1903 to only $45,000,000 in 1909.

In the present bill the Root amendment, which proposes that the money deposited in the postal savings banks be invested in government bonds in order to assure the constitutionality of the law, is not likely to pass the Senate because of the opinion of a large number of members of that body that the postal money should be left free and that it is constitutionally unnecessary. Nor will the Smoot amendment, proposing to put the money in local banks, which in the opinion of the President would clearly make the bill unconstitutional, be acted upon favorably. When the measure finally passes the Senate it will be the following form: The Postmaster-general will designate as rapidly as consistent with good administration the money order offices as places for the receipt of savings deposits and will be empowered to so designate other offices as he may deem advisable. There are approximately 50,000 money order post offices, so that Postmaster-General Hitchcock may at first restrict the depositories to post offices of the Presidential grade, of which there are about 7,500. Accounts may be opened by any person ten years or more of age. Married women may have accounts free from interference by their husbands. No person can have more than one account. The minimum deposit which will be accepted is one dollar. Interest is to be allowed at a rate not exceeding two percent per annum. No account may have a total credit exceeding $500, exclusive of accumulated interest, and not more than $100 may be deposited in any one month. Withdrawals may be made under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Postmaster General. Postal savings funds, so far as practicable, will be deposited by the Postmaster-General in banks at a rate of not less than two and a quarter percent per annum.

The bill does not undertake to prescribe administrative details for the reason that it is believed wiser and far more prudent to leave such details to be worked out by the board of trustees in the light of experience, It is considerered that a rigid rule of law might greatly hamper administrative work, detract from the efficiency of the system, increase its cost and retard improvement. All such details will be provided by a board to be appointed.

The Great want of this world is men; men who are honest, sound from center to circumference, true to heart's core; men who will condemn wrong in friend or foe, in themselves as well as others; men whose consciences are as steady as the needle to the pole; men who stand for the right if the heavens totter and the earth falls; men that never flag nor flinch; men that have courage without shouting; men in whom the currents of everlasting life run still, deep and strong; men who do not cry nor spoil their voices to be heard on the streets but who will not fall or be discouraged, till judgment be set on the earth; men who will not lie; men who are not too lazy to work nor too pround to be poor; men who hold their places and keep them; men who are willing to eat what they have paid for.

No man pleases everybody. If he does he is weak-kneed, carries water on both shoulders and won't tell the truth. But when a man don't please you be man enough to go to him and talk with him rather than talk on the streets and say things you would not say to his face.

Option Convention Enthusiastic Affair

Every County in the State Represented. Over Twenty-five Hundred Delegates Cheer and Applaud Eloquent Speakers

The County Option Convention, which assembled at St. Paul last Wednesday was the greatest demonstration of anti-liquor interests that has ever been seen in the state of Minnesota. There were present 1805 delegates with credentials and in addition there to almost as many interested parties who did not hold credentials. Music was furnished during the day by Gustavus Adolphus College Lyric, and in the evening by the University band. J. N. Johnson of Canby, Minnesota, was chosen as Chairman and E. L. Quist of Thief River Falls, was chosen Secretary.

The principal addresses were given by the Hon. Elias Rachie of Willmar, the Hon. J. F. Jacobson of Lac Qui Parle, the Hon. E. T. Young of St. Paul, the Rev. Andrew Gillis of Minneapolis, the Rev. Father James Reardon of St. Paul, and the Hon. Seaborn Wright of Geogia. Some of the speeches were the most outspoken and positive demonstrations of anti-Saloon sentiment that the writer has ever heard, and it seems that some of the state's greatest politicians have been awakened to the idea that the liquor interests of this state must cease to control state and national politics.

We publish in full the resolutions as adopted by this convention, as we believe that they are of interest to every man in the state of whatever party, church or creed, not only of the men who are in favor of the sentiment expressed, but to those opposed to it, as well.

Resolution.

Whereas, the unrestricted liquor traffic is today the most evil influence upon the moral and social health of the community, and a constant and serious obstacle to the best economic development of the state, and

Whereas, the organization maintained by the liquor dealers of the state and nation is a standing menace to the public welfare, being a power which for purposes of sordid gain seeks to control and corrupt the political affairs of town and city, state and nation, forming for its own selfish ends unscrupulous alliances with any and all of the predatory interests that are active in corrupting public officials, defeating proper legislation and enacting vicious measures against the public interest, and

Whereas, under our form of government, the County is the primary unit for the suppression of crimes directly and indirectly traceable to the liquor traffic, and is the only judicial and administrative unit endowed with the power to deal with the cases arising under our liquor laws, and is further the primary unit of taxation for bearing the heavy burdens caused by its ravages, and

Whereas, we believe that the people who must suffer the wrongs and bear the burdens of this evil ought to have an enlarged power to deal with its dangers, according to the deliberate judgment of the community in which these dangers manifest themselves, thus assuring to themselves a just and proper measure of self-government;

Be it therefore resolved, that we, members of the County Option Convention of Minnesota, meeting on the 2nd day of March, 1910, in the city of St. Paul, representing civic, religious and political organizations in all parts of the state, being members of various political parties, but dominated by a primary interest in the earliest possible passage of an effective county option measure by the legislative authorities of this state:

Do hereby appeal to the political parties of the State of Minnesota, in their approaching county and state conventions, to declare themselves definitely upon this issue.

And we pledge ourselves further to support exclusively such candidates for state executive and legislative offices as are known to be in thorough sympathy with the proposed county option legislation; and in order that this pledge may be made effective in the contingencies that may arise, be it resolved:

That the chairman of this convention appoint within ten days of this day and date, a County Option State Central Committee, to consist of 27 members, three from each congressional district, he (the chairman) to constitute one of three members from his district, and in addition the State Superintendent and the Legislative Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League; said committee to be charged with the duty of so arranging the County Option Campaign throughout the state, that candidates favoring our cause may be nominated and elected, that party platforms may contain unequivocal declarations in favor of a County Option law, and, further,

Said committee shall, after the various party conventions have formulated their platforms and selected their candidates take suitable measures for the support of those favoring our cause, or in the event of the failure of the party conventions to take favorable action, the committee is hereby instructed to take such other steps as will in its judgment best insure the realization of the legislative reform that is our supreme interest in this campaign.

Powers at Work.

The people are soverign power in our land. Once this power spoke against an evil and four million slaves raised their faces to the sun, free men and women. This same power is speaking against another evil and state after state is being redeemed from the curse of strong drink. The air is full of the sound of victory. Dr. P. A. Baker, of the Anti-saloon League, is responsible for the Statement that since Jan. 1, 1909, saloons are being closed in our nation at the rate of forty a day. 21,000,000 people in the south are now living under prohibition.

We believe the time has come to rid our beautiful Minnesota of the infamous liquor traffic. The State Woman's Christian Temperance Union in their last annual convention declared for a state-wide prohibition campaign, and we ask the hearty cooperation of all temperance organizations, all pastors and Christian people, Women's Clubs, Lodges, all Editors of newspapers and all who are in anyway interested in the conservation of the lives, happiness and prosperity of our splendid citizens.

We ask you to aid in pledging every candidate for our next state legislature that he will vote for a bill to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes, in the State of Minnesota. We also ask you to help defeat every candidate at the primaries and at the general election who will not so pledge himself.

We further call upon the people of our State to observe July 31st as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer for the over throw of the Saloon in Minnesota.

Yours for a clean, wholesome and prosperous state.

Miss Rozette Hendrix State Pres.

Mrs. B. Laythe Scovell State Vice President.

Mrs. Kate Kercher, State Corresponding Secretary.

Mrs. Belle M. Welch: State Recording Secretary.

UNFAITHFUL TO HIS TRUST

Says Secretary Was Recreant to the Public and False to the President.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Charging directly that Secretary of the Interior Ballinger has been unfaithful both to the public, whose property he has endangered, and to President Taft, whom he deliberately deceived, former Forester Gifford Pinchot went on the witness stand in the Ballinger investigation today and opened a fight on Mr. Ballinger that promises sensational developments.

Mr. Pinchot preceded his testimony with a statement of what he expected to show by his evidence. He did not mince words in going after Secretary Ballinger. He accused the secretary of falsifying and declared it would be proved that he had been recreant to his trust as a public servant. He accused the secretary of having made an explanation of his conduct to the president that was "essentially false." He charged him with being a "dangerous enemy to conservation." He charged him with having made a statement shown by undisputed documentary evidence "to be absolutely false in three essential particulars." He charged him with having "wilfully deceived the president" and of being disloyel to the president.

Mr. Pinchot's first hours on the witness stand were as replete with sensations as had been promised and the suffocating crowd in the hearing room hung intently upon every word that fell from his lips. A trifle nervous at first Mr. Pinchot soon became accustomed to his surroundings and maintained a confident poise thereafter. Summarized, here is Pinchot's testimony:

Charges Against Ballinger.

That the policy of conservation of national resources, initiated under President Roosevelt, was undermined, its foundations completely destroyed and the structure put in danger of collapse by the first new official acts of Ballinger as secretary of the interior.

That Ballinger, immediately upon assuming office, by throwing open to entry water power sites previously withdrawn to safeguard the people's interest by Secretary Garfield and President Roosevelt, sought to undo this work and was stopped only by presidential order.

That by terminating an agreement which the interior department had with the forest service whereby the latter administration restored the forest lands on Indian reservations, these wards of the government lost money, the people the best utilization of the forests and the interior department services of vast importance.

That the co-operative agreement was terminated upon the production of false evidence.

A stirring incident of the day was the objection of Attorney Vertrees, counsel for Ballinger, to Pinchot's relating while on the stand, the substance of an interview which the former chief forester had with President Taft on the ground that such might result in embarrassment to the president and was not good policy. The testimony was finally withheld pending a settlement in executive session.

EIGHT DIRECTORS INDICTED

Other Leaders of Milk Trust Escape on Immunity Plea.

New York, Feb. 25.—The so called milk trust has been indicted.

After a grand jury investigation extending over a period of weeks a blanket indictment was handed down in the criminal court naming eight of seventeen directors of the Consolidated Milk Exchange, a New Jersey corporation, and charging that they met June 29, 1909, in New York and "conspired together and with others to fix the wholesale price of milk and did fix it at $1.41 for a forty-quart can of milk."

One year in prison and a fine of not more than $5,000, or both, is the penalty for each offense, which is a misdemeanor.

Nine other directors of the exchange escaped indictment, having earned immunity by testifying before the grand jury and before the state inquiry into the milk trade, which is still in progress.

NOW UP TO THE SENATE

Taft Railroad Bill Favorably Reported From Committee.

Washington, Feb. 26.—The administration railroad bill to create a court of commerce and amend the interstate commerce laws was favorably reported by the senate committee on interstate commerce by the narrow margin of 6 to 4.

Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota and Senator A. B. Cummins of Iowa both Republicans, voted against a favorable report.

The majority report will recommend the passage of the bill practically as it was revised recently by Attorney General Wickersham.

The minority also will make a report. There were three absentees when the committee met. They were Tillman of South Carolina, Foster of Louisiana and Taylor of Tennessee. With these three Democrats absent the outcome was a foregone conclusion, resulting as follows:

FIRST TRIAL OF STRENGTH

Shows Small Majority for British Government.

London, Feb. 25.—The first trial of strength in the new parliament occurred at a crowded session of the house of commons when Austen Chamberlain's fiscal amendment was rejected by a vote of 285 to 254. Speeches were made by Arthur J. Balfour, leader of the opposition; Chancellor Lloyd-George, Walter Runciman, president of the board of education; A. Bonar Law, and others, none of which, however, gave any new aspect to the fiscal controversy.

Although victorious only by the narrow majority of thirty-one, the government may regard the result as satisfactory, inasmuch as there was no cross voting and no evidence of any intention on the part of the discontented groups to overthrow the ministry.

AGAINST THE PACKERS

Indictments Returned by Grand Jury at Jersey City.

New York, Feb. 26.—The "beef trust" of the United States, embracing six great packing companies and twenty-one packers, was indicted by a grand jury in Hudson county, New Jersey, charged with conspiracy in limiting the supply of meat and poultry.

The indictment is drawn under the law of New Jersey, which provides upon conviction a maximum penalty of three years in the penitentiary or a $1,000 fine, or both. The offense is extraditable, which practically means that the meat barons of this country must either successfully resist extradition or come to Jersey City for trial.

Pierre Garven, the public prosecutor of Hudson county, announced that he would forthwith notify the defendants of their indictment and would be ready to force extradition in each case where the individual concerned is not willing to face trial voluntarily. The defendants as named are as follows:

Corporations—The National Packing company, Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Morris & Co., Hammond Packing company, G. H. Hammond company.

WILL ADDRESS SUFFRAGISTS

President Taft Accepts Invitation on Conditions.

Washington, Feb. 25.—With the strict injunction that he was not to be represented as favoring votes for women President Taft accepted an invitation to address the opening session of the annual convention of the National American Women's Suffrage association, to be held in this city April 14. Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, first vice president of the association, and Miss Emma M. Jillett, a local member, extended the invitation and stated that more than 300 delegates would attend the convention.

MANY ON BOTH SIDES KILLED

Turks and Bulgarians Reported in Serious Clash.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 24.—News has reached here of a serious clash between the Turkish and Bulgarian frontier troops in the Tamrush district, in which many on both sides were killed. No details of the fighting have been received further than that the soldiers fought with rifles and machine guns.

Bulgaria [illegible] more than 40,000 troops massed [illegible] the Kostendil and Dubnitza districts and there is grave fear that they may commit some overt act that will precipitate [illegible] Turko-Bulgarian struggle before Bulgaria is ready for it.

SCORE ARE KILLED

Snowslides Engulf Mining Towns in Northern Idaho.

HUNDREDS NARROWLY ESCAPE

Avalanche Just Misses Workman's Boarding House.

Spokane, Wash., March 1.—Twenty-one are known to be dead as the result of the snowslides in the mining district of Northern Idaho.

To the sixteen known to have perished in the snowslides at Mace and Burke, Ida., are added three more who died in a similar disaster when the camp of the Carbonate Hill Mining company at Mullan, Ida., was destroyed. Two more were killed at Dorsey, Ida.

Mace is situated on the creek bed and the mountains rise high on either side of the town. The main body of the avalanche, which started from the top of Custer mountain, passed beyond the town, striking the opposite mountainside. The canyon is filled to a depth of from forty to fifty feet.

The damage to the town was done by a branch of the main slide, which carried a construction train from the track as it plunged into the ravine. As it rolled up the other side it demolished the houses in its path and stopped a short distance beyond the Pascoe home. The boarding house of the Standard mine, where about 300 miners were sleeping, was missed by 120 feet.

The first slide, which almost wiped out the town of Mace, occurred while all except the men on the night shift in the mines were sleeping.

Warned of Threatened Danger.

That more lives were not lost at Burke is due to Seamon S. Rowe, foreman of the Hecla mine. Realizing the danger that threatened the sleeping citizens of the town, a mile further up the stream, he sent Bert Clement to Burke to arouse the inhabitants and urge them to seek safety.

Three of those who lost their lives at Burke were members of the rescue party that had been at work at Mace. They were David Sheppard, Dick Richold and James Rogers.

These men were among the first to respond to the call for succor when the news of the disaster reached Burke. They started to Burke to aid in removing the women and children from danger. They arrived in time to be caught in the slide there.

Burke is buried fifty feet under a mass of snow and earth. The slide is 3,000 feet long and completely fills the canyon.

Twelve bodies have been recovered at Mace and thirty-seven persons are injured as a result of the slide.

SERIOUS FLOODS IN OHIO

Several Persons Drowned and Many Thousands Homeless.

Cleveland, March 1.—At least two dead, many thousands homeless, scores of factories preparing to close down and property damage reaching into hundreds of thousands of dollars are the main results of the floods which have devastated Ohio during the past two days and which have not yet reached their full volume.

At Elkton the Beaver creek has flooded the town. Canton is in almost as bad a plight and the majority of the population is marooned in the upper stories of their homes.

East Liverpool reports that the potteries, which support hundreds of workmen, are preparing to close down. Similar news is sent by Youngstown in respect to its great steel plants.

At Zanesville 500 houses are reported under water. All service on the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern railroad between Zanesville and Newark has been suspended. Residents of Dayton are being moved from their homes by boats and the electric lines have practically stopped running.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE LIKELY

One Hundred Thousand Union Men May Quit Their Jobs.

Philadelphia, Feb. 28.—Action fraught with possible momentous consequences to Philadelphia was taken by the Central Labor union when that body, representing 140 unions with a membership said to be 125,000, voted to begin a sympathetic strike next Saturday in aid of the street railway employes now on strike.

This action came at the end of a secret session of about 700 delegates in Labor Lyceum hall, which lasted more than six hours. There was apparently no question but that delegates would vote to strike, the split being on the question of whether it would be started immediately. The more conservative element prevailed, however, and the walkout was put off until next Saturday. Meanwhile there is hope that the street railway strike will be arbitrated despite the repeated declarations of the transit company that there is nothing to arbitrate.

High Prices Cause of Suicide.

St. Louis, March 1.—The high price he was forced to pay for his meat, together with the loss of trade through Lent, caused Alexander Bindebeutel, a butcher, to kill himself. His body was found in the ice box of his shop.

WAITING FOR A WIFE.

One Man Who Thought Twenty Years Was Just a Starter.

"There's romance for you," said little Binks, putting aside his morning paper. "This paper has a story of a college professor who met a beautiful girl twenty years ago, fell in love with her at first sight and then lost sight of her altogether. Now, after waiting for twenty years, he is rewarded by leading her to the altar as his bride. Just think of it, waiting twenty years for a wife!"

"What of it?" asked the genial philosopher. "There's nothing extraordinary about that. I've waited thirty-five years for mine."

"You? Waited thirty-five years? Why, I thought you'd been married that long!" said little Binks.

"I have," said the genial philosopher. "That's how I know how long I've waited. I've waited for her to get her gloves on about three years. I've waited for her to change her hat about four years. I've waited while she said just one last word to the cook for at least five years. I've waited upstairs, I've waited downstairs, I've waited at church, I've waited at the theater, and I have waited in cabs, omnibuses, taxies, motorcars and the Lord knows what else besides. Fact is, Binksy, I've waited so long, so often and so regularly that between you and me that little college professor of yours, with only one wait of twenty years, strikes me as a miserable little piker." —Harper's Weekly.

The Word "Woebegone."

The word "woebegone" is an interesting survival of the far past. "Begone" here represents the past participle of the Anglo-Saxon verb "began," to go around about, a word which has otherwise entirely disappeared from our vocabulary, but which has its analogies in such verbs as "beset" and "begird," in which the prefix "be" represents the modern preposition "by." A woebegon countenance is thus that of a man compassed about with woe, though perhaps it is most generally used in a somewhat slighting manner to imply that the appearance of grief is greater than the circumstances warrant. Thus it has partially undergone the same process of degeneration which has made "maudlin tears"—original tears of penitence from Mary Magdalene — bear a contemptuous meaning.—London Standard.

TAFT'S BILLS NOT ACTED ON

Congress Ignores Administration Programme.

OPPOSED TO SHIP SUBSIDY

Progressive Republicans Will Not Go Into a Caucus Where They Might Be Bound Hand and Foot to Support It—House Leaders Accuse Insurgents of Holding Up the Programme of the Chief Executive.

Washington, March 1.—For four months congress has now been in session, yet not one of the measures in President Taft's legislative programme has become a law, and none of them is well advanced through the legislative mill. The house, it is true, has disposed of seven of the fourteen great regular appropriation bills, as well as the river and harbor and statehood bills. In addition it has disposed of two bills that are expected to minimize if not entirely break up the white slave traffic, and has amended the employers' liability and bankruptcy laws. But of all these pieces of legislation, the statehod bill is the only one urged by the president. Another of the president's measures has been reported from the house committee, but is hanging fire in the house. This is the ship subsidy bill. The ostensible reason for the delay in considering it is to give the minority time to formulate their report and present a substitute bill. But the real reason why the house leaders procrastinate over taking the ship subsidy bill up for consideration is that the speaker fears another defeat at the hands of the insurgents and Democrats if he brings in a rule to protect the measure from amendment and prevent the house from giving it intelligent discussion.

The progressive Republicans are in the main opposed to ship subsidy, and will not go into a Republican caucus where they might be bound hand and foot to support it. For this reason the house leaders are charging the insurgents with holding up the president's programme.

Opposed by the Progressives.

This ship subsidy bill is the only one on the White House programme to which any considerable number of progressive Republicans are opposed. As to the rest of the programme they are hand in glove with the president

The senate some time ago passed the principal one of the Taft conservation bills. This bill has been in the hands of the house lands committee for nearly two weeks without action on it. Mr. Weeks, chairman of the house postoffice committee, has made no effort to report out a postal savings banks bill, while the senate has had such a bill before it for weeks and will vote on it Thursday. The senate interstate commerce committee has reported out the administration bill amending the interstate commerce law, but the house committee is still dragging this matter along in executive session.

The speaker claims that he wants to put these administration measures through the house as written by the administration, without adding to or taking from them. This attitude, it will be noted, is a marked departure from that he took toward the Roosevelt administration bills, notably the meat inspection bill. The speaker now seems to stand ready to abdicate the legislative functions of the house and pass legislation as it is drawn up at the White House or the department of justice. The progressive Republicans and the Democrats decline to abdicate their functions, and insist they must have the right of careful consideration and amending, if they think wise, any bill that comes to them from outside.

AGAINST INDICTED PACKERS

Prosecutor Garven of New Jersey to Take Action.

New York, March 1.—The next move of Prosecutor Garven of Hudson county, New Jersey, against the indicted packers and their companies will be to apply at Trenton, the state capital, for the minutes of the accused corporations. If these are not produced an order will be asked compelling the companies to show cause why they should not be dissolved for contumacy. Prosecutor Garven would not say when he intended to take such steps.

The sheriff will shortly report which of the corporations and their officers indicted are now in his jurisdiction. Copies of the capiases and indictments against those elsewhere will then be sent to the police of the counties where they live. If the police decline to make arrests the governor of New Jersey will then make requisitions for extradition.

Fall From Bridge Fatal.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 1.—As a result of a fall of thirty-two feet from the Great Northern bridge here Haskell Olson died in St. Michael's hospital. He was employed in hoisting heavy timbers from the ice to the bridge and, falling to the ice, he received such injuries that he lived only five hours.

If you don't do better today you'll do worse tomorrow.—Loomis.

NOT CONSIDERING SUBJECT

Street Railway Officials Have No Arbitration Proposition.

Philadelphia, March 1.—In spite of the constantly increasing number of demands by religious bodies and others that arbitration be resorted to to settle the strike against the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company, officials of that company declared that no proposition looking toward arbitration in any form is being considered by the directors.

There were few disturbances along any of the lines of the company and an increased number of cars left the barns. Heavy rain kept the crowds from the streets and cars were run on all lines until midnight.

Many labor leaders still hope public sympathy will force arbitration before the general strike voted for Sunday goes into effect Saturday. The national heads of labor organizations in the country are expected to reach here in time to participate in another meeting of labor chiefs and it is possible the general strike order may be changed then to become effective immediately in many trades.

FAVORS COMMERCE COURT

House Committee Reports on Administration Railroad Bill.

Washington, March 1.—By a majority of two the house committee on interstate commerce voted to create the interstate commerce court, which is one of the principal features of the Townsend administration railroad bill. Chairman Mann and Representative Stevens of Minnesota, Republicans, and Representatives Adamson of Georgia, Richardson of Alabama, Bartlett of Georgia, Russell of Texas, Sims of Tennessee and Peters of Massachusetts voted against the commerce court.

"One Is Quick to Suspect Where One Has Suffered Harm Before."

Perhaps there are some business men in this town who have tried advertising and found the results unsatisfactory.

If so, something was the trouble. Contracting for space in a newspaper is not enough. When secured the space must be used to advantage. A convincing story should be told. A plant will not grow unless it is tended. An impression cannot be made upon the purchasing public except by careful, persistent work.

Many merchants err grievously in believing that time spent upon their ads is time wasted. No time can be made more profitable.

We believe the advertising columns of this paper can be used profitably by any one who seeks to reach the buyers of this community. We will gladly aid any one who desires to try it or who is trying it and is not satisfied.

The old man had evidently dropped something in the muddy road, and he began searching for it. In three minutes about thirty strangers had joined in the search, and every additional minute brought additional searchers, till at last one, bolder than the rest, plucked up heart and spoke:

"What are you looking for?" he inquired.

"My friend," mumbled the old man, "I have dropped a piece of taffy candy."

"But, great Scott," cried another of the crowd angrily, "why do you go looking for it when it will be covered with dirt?"

"Because, my inquisitive friend," replied the old man, "my false teeth are sticking to that taffy."

Strange Hiding Place.

False teeth are occasionally used for secretive purposes. An eccentric old lady boasts of a roof plate which consists of two thin sheets of gold between which a miniature copy of her will is inserted. In a similar manner a dyer preserves a prescription which he declares he would not disclose for a large sum.—London Mail.

Envious.

"Just think of it!" said the student of immigration. "Many men who come to this country cannot write their own names."

"Yes," answered Mr. Pinchpenny, "and when I get down my check book on the first of the month I am inclined to envy them."—Washington Star.

Fixing the Break.

"They were both broken up by their separation."

"But I understand they've effected a reconciliation and are now re-paired." —St. Louis Star.

There is no teacher like necessity; it has been the making of man; it wakes up his dormant faculties and stimulates to action his latent talents.

Others Join the Procession.

Something of the interest felt thru the country in the first Minnesota Conservation and Agricultural Development Congress, to be held in the Municipal Auditorium, Saint Paul, March 16th to 19th, has been evidenced by the activity, along the same lines, of other states in the middle west. Iowa was first to lead the procession which is following Minnesota by calling a good road convention to be held in Des Moines. This convention will be similar in many respects to the Minnesota Congress although the consideration of good roads will be its especial business. Wisconsin and Illinois are now planning to hold conservation and agricultural development congresses, and there are many other indications that the middle west, which has so long quietly and self contentedly allowed other sections of the country to profit by intelligent discussion and exploitation, is now in a fair way to call the attention of the whole country at large to a wealth of opportunity long overlooked. Minnesota, the first of these states to show activity on behalf of itself and its agricuturists, will be the first to realize the profit which is certain to follow such activity.

Don't imagine for a moment that advertising will not bring yon results in your immediate field. That's an error that many merchants make, when they assure themselves that their store is so well known that it doesn't require newspaper advertising —that the trade will naturally drift his way, anyhow. There isn't a store anywhere in the world that has so secure a footing as that—not a single store—and you are not doing business in a field but that your sales can be increased by careful newspaper advertising. If this is not true, why is it that a stream of mail orders is constantly going out of your town to catalogue houses? And are not these sales made by these catalogue houses the result of persistent advertising in the very field you feel that you have cultivated to the limit? Whenever you get such an idea fixed in your mind, and really believe that there's nothing more to conquer, you are simply turning over ready money to the man that does possess the broader vision—you are ceding territory and rights to others that careful newspaper advertising would retain in your possession.

The annual election for villages and Townships of the state of Minnesota was held Tuesday. The license question was voted on in most of the villages of the state in some places the fight very bitter on this question. The local election was a very quite affair there being only one ticket in the field and no other question to vote on. The following are some of the results.

VICTIM OF FIRE IDENTIFIED

Man Burned to death in Soo Camp on Feb. 19 Was Jesse Mots.

Parents Live at Strathcona North of Thief River Falls.

The identity and previous residence of Jesse Mots, who was burned to death in a camp in Chester Township, Polk county, on the night of Feb. 19, has been positively proven by John Mendell and wife, who were in Bemidji last week, they ascertaining that young Mots son of Mrs. Mendiel being a child born to her when married to her first husband.

Coroner Stenshouel of Crookston visited the scene of the camp (in Chester township along the line of the new Soo railway right-of-way) and investigated the cause of the fire and the death of the man, whose body was found in the smouldering embers of the fire. Mr. Stenshoel assertained that a young man named Jesse Mots had been working at a Soo railway company's camp, operated by a man by a man named Thompson, and that he had left the camp. The young fellow was traced to a post-office a few miles from the camp and had inquired the distance to camp six.

Mr. and Mrs. Mendell, who live at Strathcona, some thirty miles north of Thief River Falls, saw an account of the death of young mots and they went to Bemidji to investigate the affair. As young mots had stated while working in the railway camp that his home was north of Thief River Falls; and other circumstances surrounding the case tend to firmly established the identity of the young man.

A message from Crookston states that no inquest was held on the body of young Mots and that the remains were buried in a cemetery in Chester Township about four miles from Trail City, a new point on the Soo right of way. Young Mots wys an inmate of Bemidji hospital prior to his going to work in the railroad camp.

He was only 15 years old, although well developed ant believed to have been near 20. Mr. and Mrs. Mendell state that they do not believe they will remove the body from its present resting place.

The Importance of The Tuberculin Test.

If there were no state laws no city ordinances, requiring the tuberculin testing of cattle, I contend that it is to the interest of every stockowner to apply the tuberculin test in a nice clean, sensible manner for his own protection.

By applying the test you can determine whether or not you have tuberculosis in the herd and the least that can be done would be to remove the tubercular cattle from the herd, or if this were not convenient, move them to one end of the stable, or better still, a partition might be placed between the healthy and the infected ones. In this way you would protect the balance of your herd. As I have often noticed, where one tubercular animal is found in a herd, usually the ones on either side of her become infected sooner than animals further from her, showing that the disease is more apt to spread by actual contact than otherwise.

Another very important method of preventing and overcomming tuberculosis in cattle is to have a thorough ly ventilated, sunlighted, well drained stable. Owing to the fact that the direct rays of the sun will destroy germs, it is a very good reason why, at some hours of the day the sun should be permitted to shine on all parts of walls and floors of stables where cattle are housed. If this be impossible the sunlight should be substituted by a good, reliable germ destroyer as it is unreasonable to expect a herd to thrive and do well where the germs of any disease are present.

Successful Ugly Women.

Successful women were not always of irreproachable beauty or modeling. Thus the Princess d'Evoli of Louis XV.'s time was one eyed; the slit of Montespan's mouth reached her ears; Mme. de Maintenon was thin, meager, yellowish; La Valliere lame, Gabrielle d'Estrees one armed, Anne Boleyn six fingered.—Hindustan Review.

Summer School to be held at Thief River Falls.

The Red Lake county summer training school for teachers will be at Thief River Falls this year. The school will be in session four weeks, from July the fifth to July the thirtyth. Besides a review of the common and high school subjects the work will also cover the methods of teaching, organization and school hygiene. There will also be some time devoted to the study of agriculture.

The school will be in charge of J. A Cederstrom of Wenthrop, Minn. He will be assisted by A. W. Mathewson of the state university, C. P. Stanley of Olivia, and Miss Edith M. Whitney of St. Cloud.

The country newspaper is the greatest agency for the betterment of your community, and it will be progressive or backward in the degree that you support it" is what L. J. Boughner, city editor of the Minnesota Tribune, told 400 students at the state agricultural school yesterday. "When you go back to the farm, look up the editor of your local newspaper," he urged, "and make a friend of him. The editor of your local newspaper will help you in everything you undertake for the upbuilding of your locality. You need his co-operation and he need yours."

Having disposed of my hardware and implement business I request all those knowing themselves indebted to me to call and settle at once. O. O. Gullingsrud.

Pratical Seed Testing.

An opportunity which, if taken advantage of, will increase the annual profits of Minnesota farmers by millions of dollars, will be offered at the Minnesota Conservation and agricultural Development Congress to be held at the St. Paul Auditorium March 16 to 19, by the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station in an extensive exhibit of seed testing apparatus carefully modeled upon that used with such effect by the seed testing department at Washington.

Dr. E. M. Freeman, head of the division of botany and plant pathology at the state experiment station, has given his personal attention to the completion of this Minnesota seed testing apparatus and W. L. Oswald, of the seed laboratory at the station, who has made a thorough study of the subject of pure seed and the federal method of making purity and germination tests at the seed laboratory of the U. S. department of agriculture will be in charge.

The importance of seed testing has been vividly illustrated during the past few weeks by the energetic campaign carried on in Nebraska to prevent Nebraska farmers from using as seed corn this bear any of last years crop, which, in responding to tests shows so little germinating power as to threaten the state with immense losses, unless the Nebraska farmers are warned in time. Happily for Minnesota farmers, Minnesota corn shows a far higher percentage of germinating power and it is with them largely a matter of selection of seed corn in this state this season.

Care in the selection of all kinds of seed is, however a subject which can not be too often impressed upon farmers, in the opinion of the Minnesota experiment station, and it is a subject which farmers approach with enthusiasm. During each day of the Minnesota Conservation Congress, actual tests of wheat, oats, barley, rye, clover, timothy and vegetable seeds, both for purity and germination, will be made by Mr. Oswald. These tests will be made without charge and it is hoped by Dr. Freeman and Mr. Oswald that thousands of farmers will bring their seeds to the congress' where they will not only see the tests made but will receive information showing how the seed tests may be made at home.

In connection with the seed tests there will also be an exhibit of Minnesota's worst seeds as well as many of the most injurious weed seeds found on Minnesota lands. These tests will be of great assistance to many farmers who, thru lack of information, are apt to sow dangerous weed seeds and seed with a low percentage of germination. Farmers desiring to test their seeds are requested to bring two ounce samples.

Dr. David Roberts Wisconsin State Veterinarian.

There is a vast difference between a house and a home. The house is but the building and furniture, the outward shelter and gathering place of the household. The home includes the kindly family affection, the thoughtful care and ready sympathy and mutual confidence and trust of the members. A true home breathes the atmosphere of love. A child should be made to feel that his home is indeed a home, the happiest place in the world to him, not merely an outward shelter and resting place, but a center of enjoyment by love, the thought and remembrance of which shall be the safeguard of his life as he goes forth to the world, giving strength and proportion to his character, and turning his tho't to all that may prepare him for the heavenly home when the scenes of earth shall have passed away.

THOUSANDS IDLE

Extensive Labor Demonstration at Philadelphia.

MANY UNIONS ARE ON STRIKE

Quit Work in Sympathy With Street Car Employes.

Philadelphia, March 8.—If the computation of the Philadelphia police department is correct—and the officials declare it to be based on a careful and complete canvass of the city—less than 20,000 workers have responded to the call for a general tieup of the city's industries in support of the striking conductors and motormen of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company.

As against this came the reiterated declaration of the leaders of the general strike movement that at least 125,000 men were out in obedience to the general strike call, and that there were practical assurances that 25,000 more would join the ranks of the strikers. No detailed figures were furnished.

The day was the most peaceful, not only since the calling of the general strike, but since the walking out of the carmen more than two weeks ago.

A minor demonstration following a big meeting of workingmen in Labor Lyceum was attended by some disorder and stoning of cars, but the police speedily quelled the disturbance. Word that the order for federal troops had been canceled indicated that the authorities believe the worst of the trouble was over.

STRIKE MAY BE STATEWIDE

Convention at Newcastle May Order Men Out.

Newcastle, Pa., March 8.—Rumors that the general strike in Philadelphia in sympathy with the street car men was likely to become statewide were put up to President Elmer E. Greenawalt of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor for confirmation. President Greenawalt came here to arrange for the annual meeting of the state federation.

"The convention here will have complete authority to call a statewide strike if it sees fit," said President Greenawalt, "but as to the likelihood of such action I cannot commit myself.

"The convention will represent 300,000 organized workingmen of this state, a majority of whom are employed in Philadelphia and Pittsburg. There are about 100,000 in Pittsburg. The situation in Philadelphia is extremely critical. One great American revolution was started there and it might be no strange thing if another one did so—but one of ballots instead of bullets."

PINCHOT IS CROSS-EXAMINED

Admits His Knowledge of Ballinger's Acts Is Limited.

Washington, March 5.—The Ballinger-Pinchot investigation dragged slowly along through two sessions. Mr. Vertrees, counsel for Secretary Ballinger, continued his cross-examination of Gifford Pinchot.

He elicited some interesting facts from the former forester, but for the most part the day was taken up largely with wrangles between the attorney and the witness and sometimes between Mr. Vertrees and counsel for the other side. Mr. Pinchot complained to the committee that it was difficult to explain forest service matters to a man so little informed on the subject as Mr. Vertrees appeared to be.

Mr. Pinchot admitted his first hand knowledge of Mr. Ballinger's acts was limited, but he reiterated that the secretary of the interior had deceived the president concerning the Cunningham coal cases and had made a statement to the president which was "obviously untrue."

CONGRESSMEN THREATENED

Must Get Busy and Do Their Duty or Be Blown Up.

Washington, March 6.—An anonymous letter was received by members of congress threatening them and their property with dynamite unless the members get busy and do their duty. The letter is signed by "The Committee" and bears the postmark of the Inley Park station, Chicago.

The writer begins by saying that members are aware that the prices of the necessities of life are beyond the reach of those who are compelled to labor for a living.

"You are also aware," he continues, "that this state of affairs was brought on by the trusts and the illegal combinations and you are aware these can only exist in this country through the legislation of congress and through the governors of the states. Every man sent to congress or elected to high office is paid by the trusts and corporations to do their will."

Will Keep Their Wood Pulp.

Montreal, March 6.—According to Premier Gouin the order prohibiting the exportation of pulp wood will be ratified at the legislative assembly of Quebec, which meets March 15, and will become operative Sept. 1.

CHANGES IN THE RAILROAD BILL

Made by House Committee on Interstate Commerce.

SOME OF THEM ARE DRASTIC

Authorization Under Which a Carrier That Owns Fifty Per Cent of the Stock of Another Line May Still Further Extend Its Holdings Stricken Out—This Is One of the Provisions Inserted in the Measure at the Request of the Attorney General.

Washington, March 8.—The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce has made a drastic change in the administration railroad bill by striking out the authorization under which a carrier which owns 50 per cent of the stock of another line may still further extend its holdings. This is one of the provisions inserted in the bill at the request of Attorney General Wickersham. Other changes were ordered bearing upon the question of whether one line shall be permitted to exercise control over another. The provision to allow a railroad now leasing another line for twenty years or more to renew that lease, or acquire the reversionary ownership of the lesser company, was among the portions eliminated. An amendment was adopted to prohibit a director of one line from becoming a director of a competing line.

Another amendment which had been inserted in the bill by the senate committee to broaden the scope of competition so as to make it still more difficult for one road to own stock or exercise control of a competing line was adopted also by the house committee. The provision exempting street, suburban or interurban electric lines from the prohibition against a railroad having an interest in a competing line also was stricken out.

Other Alterations May Be Made.

Next to the recent retention of the court of commerce feature and the inclusion of water transportation companies in the purpose of the bill the latest action constitutes the most important step in the house committee's remodeling of the measure. In its original state it was the principal feature of President Taft's legislative programme. An effort was made to report the bill without amendment, as was done in the senate. Now that the way has been opened it is not improbable that other important alterations will be made. This is true particularly because Chairman Mann is violently opposed to a great many of the administration views on the subject of amending the interstate commerce laws.

The expected sharp discussion on the 50 per cent ownership exemption chiefly occupied the day's session. The proviso which was to permit the exemption was characterized by its opponents as inequitable and unfair and legalizing combinations of railroads and railroad capital.

Representative Stevens of Minnesota, an "insurgent" Republican, strenuously objected to this proviso and it was stricken out on his motion. Several other Republicans and all of the Democrats on the committee voted to sustain the point made.

TRAIN ESCAPES AVALANCHE

Last Car Misses Snowslide by Only Ten Feet.

Vancouver, B. C., March 8.—A Canadian Pacific passenger train had a thrilling race with a gigantic snowslide just east of Field, on the western slope of the Rockies. The engineer opened the throttle and the train dashed down grade, escaping by only a few feet.

The train was the westbound express No. 97. The engineer heard plainly the thunder of the avalanche booming down the mountainside. He opened the throttle and the race between the train and the snowslide was on.

The last car had just got by a steep point when the slide struck the rails not ten feet behind. An enormous mass of packed snow and ice, carrying big tree trunks, covered the rails to a depth of twenty feet. The train was stalled at Field.

Only twenty bodies have been recovered from the debris of Saturday morning's accident on the Canadian Pacific near Roger's pass, at the summit of the Selkirks. Eight hundred men are clearing the track. On account of the danger of slides they work only during daylight. The rails in many places are buried to a depth of eighty feet.

It has been established that no one directly in the path of the avalanche escaped alive. The official list of victims is placed at sixty-one.

Will Bury Indians in Minnesota.

Washington, March 8.—Arrangements have been made by the Indian office to send the remains of the two Chippewa Indian chiefs, Bay-Bum-Mah-Ji-Wa-Skung and A-Ni-We-Wah-Ausk, who were suffocated by gas fumes at their boarding house in this city on Thursday night, to Minnesota. The expenses of the funeral will be paid by the Indian office.

A Merited Rebuke.

At the age of eighty-six Mme. Reynolds still found much zest in life, and, having retained all her faculties, she felt that a few of the physical disabilities of her age were of small account and portended nothing. Her nephew Thomas was a man of much worth, but of a certain tactlessness of speech, which always roused the ire of his aunt.

A few weeks before the old lady's eighty-seventh birthday Thomas, who had been overweighted with business cares for years, started on a trip round the world which was to consume two years.

"I've come to say goodby," he announced when he appeared at his aunt's house in a town fifty miles distant from his home. "I'm starting round the world next week, and as I'm to be gone two years and perhaps longer I thought I might not ever—well, you understand, I wanted to be sure to see you once more."

The old lady leaned forward, fixing him with her beadlike eyes.

"Thomas," she said imperatively, "do you mean to tell me the doctor doesn't think you'll live to get back?"

Pinched Plums.

The mistress of the mathematical class was mathematizing for her mathematical pupils, while her mathematical pupils were inwardly mathematizing mathematics.

"Now, suppose," said the mistress, "I had a pound of plums"—

At which point it occurred to her how much better she could illustrate her example to her youthful charges if she really had a pound of plums. So—

"Mary," she said to a girl of eight, "here's sixpence. Go out and get me a pound of plums. And as I'm going to give them in the end to the girl who gets the sum right first be sure before you buy them you pinch one or two just to see that they are wholesome."

A few minutes and Mary had returned. With flushed face and triumphant eyes she approached the teacher's desk as one worthy of commendation and plumped down a bag of plums and the sixpence.

"There, mum!" she said. "I pinched one or two, as you told me, and when the man wasn't looking I pinched the blessed lot!"—London Answers

WHAT FARMERS SHOULD KNOW

Instructions Relative to the Taking of the Farm Census.

QUESTIONS SURE TO BE ASKED

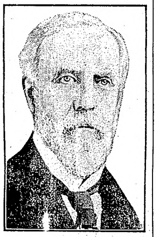
By Preparing an Accurate Statement of Their Farm Operations and Making an Inventory of Their Possessions Farmers Will Speed the Work.

BY preparing an accurate account of their farm operations during the year ended Dec. 31, 1909, and by making an inventory on April 15, 1910, of all their farm possessions the farmers of the country can render the census bureau and the public at large an inestimable service. It is not to be expected that farmers will ever keep as complete accounts as do manufacturers and merchants. The very nature of their occupation—the long hours and arduous labor of the summer months—are a partial bar to scientific bookkeeping. The fact that a large part of his daily bread is supplied from his own farm instead of being purchased out of cash on hand naturally causes the farmer to place an uncertain value on the products consumed in his home. Nevertheless a constantly increasing number of farmers are keeping accurate records of their daily receipts and expenses and of the exact quantities of all classes of products grown or raised.



LE GRAND POWERS, HEAD OF AGRICULTURAL DIVISION.

In order that the great majority of farmers who do not ordinarily keep book records of their farm operations may be given an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the scope of the census to be taken this year an outline of the schedule is here presented. Every farm operator is strongly urged to study this outline carefully and to write down the answer to each question as soon as the necessary information becomes available. When completed the notebook should be laid aside for reference when the enumerator calls. Questions to be asked concerning farm property will be these:

First.—Total value of farm, with all buildings and improvements.

Second.—Value of buildings.

Third.—Value of all improvements and machinery, including tools, wagons, carriages, harnesses, etc., and all appliances and apparatus used in farming operations.

Fourth.—Number and value of domestic animals, classified as follows:

Cattle—(a) Born before Jan. 1, 1909: Cows and heifers kept for milk, cows and heifers not kept for milk, steers and bulls kept for work, steers and bulls not kept for work.

(b) Born in 1909: Heifers, steers and bulls.

(c) Calves born in 1910.

Horses—All horses born before Jan. 1, 1909; colts born after Jan. 1, 1909; colts born after Jan. 1, 1910.

Mules—All mules born before Jan. 1, 1909; mule colts born after Jan. 1, 1909; mule colts born after Jan. 1, 1910.

Asses and burros, all ages.

Sheep—Ewes born before Jan. 1, 1910; rams and wethers born before Jan. 1, 1910; lambs born after Jan. 1, 1910.

Goats and kids, all ages.

Fifth.—Number and value of poultry over three months old: Chickens, ducks, geese, turkeys, guinea fowls, pigeons.

Sixth.—Number and value of swarms of bees.

The census will not ask the value of household goods nor that of hay, grain or other farm crops on hand on April 15. These items should be included, however, by all desiring a complete inventory of their farm property.

The Actual Value.

The value given to the farm should be as nearly as can be judged the amount that could be obtained for it if offered for sale under normal conditions. Current market prices should be carefully considered in estimating the value of live stock.

Although the census merely requires a statement of total value of all implements and machinery, it is believed that a classification of these items under the following four heads will be found valuable:

First.—Vehicles, comprising automobiles, wagons, carriages and sleighs and equipment used in connection with them, as harnesses, blankets, whips, etc.

Second.—Heavy farm implements, comprising all implements and machinery operated by any power other than hand power, as plows, harrows, rollers, reapers, mowers, hay loaders, feed grinders, etc.

Third.—Hand machinery and tools, including carpenters' tools, hoes, shovels, scythes, forks, grindstones, fanning mills, etc.

Fourth.—Miscellaneous articles, including all such minor equipment as kettles, pails, barrels, baskets, ladders, ropes, chains, etc., not included in the first three classes.

Many farmers greatly underestimate the total value of their possessions of this character when considering them in the aggregate, and it is only by preparing an itemized list, as suggested above, that an accurate estimate of their worth can be made. The value assigned this class of property in the inventory should be the estimated amount it would bring at public auction under favorable conditions.

No special blanks or forms are necessary for preparing an inventory. An ordinary notebook answers all purposes, but it should be large enough to admit of carrying the figures for at least five years in parallel columns. This facilitates comparison of the figures for different years. Some may find it more convenient or desirable to take stock on Jan. 1 than on April 15. It will be a simple matter to bring such an inventory up to date when the census enumerator calls.

As in the case of the farm inventory no special blanks are required for the record of farm products of 1909. An ordinary notebook with leaves at least six inches wide will be found convenient. The following information will be called for:

First.—Farm expenses in 1909:

(a) Amount spent in cash for farm labor, exclusive of housework.

(b) Estimated value of house rent and board furnished farm laborers in addition to cash wages paid.

(c) Amount spent for hay, grain and other produce (not raised on the farm) for feed of domestic animals and poultry.

(d) Amount spent for manure and other fertilizers.

Not Too Curious.

No inquiry is made regarding household or personal expenses or expenditures for repairs or improvements. Each of the four questions asked is of fundamental importance in its bearing on agriculture as an industry.

Second.—Live stock: (a) Number of young animals of each kind born on the farm in 1909.

(b) Number of animals of each kind purchased in 1909 and the amount paid, number sold and amount received and number and value of those slaughtered on the farm.

Third.—Dairy products:

(a) Quantities and value of milk, butter and cheese produced on the farm in 1909.

(b) Quantities of milk, butter, cream, butter fat and cheese sold in 1909 and amounts received.

Fourth.—Poultry and eggs:

(a) Value of poultry of all kinds raised in 1909, whether sold, consumed or on hand.

(b) Amount received from poultry sold in 1909.

(c) Quantity and value of eggs produced in 1909.

Sixth.—Crops:

For each crop harvested on the farm in 1909 give the number of acres, the quantity produced and the value of the products. The number of acres of each crop to be planted for harvest in 1910 will also be called for by the enumerator. This cannot be determined much before the date of the enumeration. Instead of giving the number of acres in orchards and vineyards, give as nearly as possible the number of trees and vines of bearing age. The quantity of certain fruit products, as cider, vinegar, wine and dried fruits, produced in 1909 will be required, as will also the quantity and value of sugar, sirup and molasses produced from cane, sorghum, sugar beets and maple trees.

Seventh.—Sales of specified products in 1909:

A considerable part of the annual production of corn, oats, barley, Kaffir corn, milo maize, hay, flax fiber and straw, other straw, cornstalks and cotton seed is usually consumed on the farm. Owing to this fact a report will be asked concerning the quantity of each of these products sold in 1909 and the amounts realized therefrom.

Eighth.—Forest products:

The value of all forest products cut or produced in 1909 for farm consumption will be asked, as will also the value of similar products cut or produced for sale, including receipts from the sale of standing timber.

Ninth.—Irrigation:

Farmers who irrigate their land will be asked to report the source from which water is obtained, the number of acres of pasture land irrigated and the total irrigated acreage.

This outline covers every important question that will be asked concerning the farm products of 1909. American agriculture is so diversified and so highly specialized in many of its branches that any schedule designed to secure a fairly complete exhibit of its resources and operations must necessarily contain a large number of inquiries. The average farm operator will not be called upon to answer one-seventh of the printed questions; hence the somewhat formidable appearance of the schedule should occasion no alarm.

WILLIAM M. STEUART, HEAD OF MANUFACTURES' DIVISION.

No one should attempt to complete a farm schedule in one evening, but the work should be divided as indicated in the above outline, one evening being given up to farm expenses, a second to live stock, a third to dairy products, and so on through the list. In this way each topic can be given the consideration it deserves, and the resulting figures are certain to be more accurate than if compiled hastily.

INQUIRY IS DEMANDED

Sensational Charges Against Merchant Marine League.

Washington, March 4.—Sensational charges alleging that officers of the Merchant Marine league of Cleveland, O., along with them former Governor Herrick, have conspired and federated with a view to securing the enactment of ship subsidy legislation by corrupt means are contained in a resolution presented to the house by Representative Halvor Steenerson of Minnesota. The Steenerson resolution, which was submitted in the open house, provides for the appointment of a special committee of seven members to inquire into the charges. It was referred to the house committee on the judiciary.

The Steenerson measure is a lengthy document. It recites that the officers and other members of the Merchant Marine league are engaged in issuing pamphlets, periodicals and other printed matter devoted to the advancement and agitation of legislation for appropriations by congress for ocean mail service and subsidy payments generally. Further, that an effort is being made improperly to influence members of congress in connection with this legislation.

In pursuance of this conspiracy the resolution recites funds are being collected in various states of the Union from interested persons.

SENSATION AT KANSAS CITY

Millionaire Banker Is Assaulted by Wealthy Packer.

Kansas City, March 8.—With J. S. Lillis, president of the Western Exchange bank, in a serious condition in St. Mary's hospital and John P. Cudahy, son of Michael Cudahy, the millionaire packer, secreted in the home of a friend after attacking Lillis and being released on $100 bond, social and financial circles are expecting sensational allegations to be made in the event Lillis' injuries should prove fatal.

Physicians at the hospital declare the banker will probably recover, but will be disfigured for life. He is suffering from severe cuts about the face, arms and legs, supposed to have been inflicted with a knife by Cudahy.

Lillis was found in the parlor of the Cudahy home. He was half nude and bleeding from numerous jagged wounds, while Cudahy and his chauffeur stood over his prostrate form. Cudahy told the police Lillis had ruined his home.

HEYBURN SCORES FOREST SERVICE

Idaho Senator Says It Is an Expensive Proposition.

RIGHTS OF SETTLERS IGNORED

Past Administration Said to Have Gone Upon the Theory That Where There Was No Law There Should Be License—Best Use Land Could Be Put to Is to Settle It.

Washington, March 8.—The forestry reservation question was discussed and the forest service criticised for about an hour in the senate by Senator Heyburn of Idaho in connection with the consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill, which was before the senate during the entire day.

The measure carried an appropriation of $5,703,700 in the interest of the forest service, or about $4,000,000 in excess of the receipts from the service. Mr. Heyburn contended that the appropriation was increasing from year to year, whereas assurance had been given in the beginning that the service would be self-sustaining.

He declared the past administration had been conducted regardless of the rights of the settlers of the West and had gone upon the theory that where there was no law there should be license. He expressed confidence, however, that the country was now entering upon a different system.

Mr. Heyburn contended that the best use the land could be put to was to settle it and he declared that he would rather have one man on an acre of ground than have 10,000 trees, and one Alderney cow than whole herds of spotted fawns. Answering the objections that the public lands were owned by all the people, those of the East as well as of the West, he said that they were only owned by the Eastern people to the extent that they utilized them.

"If they own the public lands let them come West and take possession of them," he said. "We will welcome them, but we of the West claim the right to administer our own affairs and we want the lands utilized so as to render them a source of production."

CONFERENCE IS POSTPONED

Railroad Managers and Employes Will Meet on Thursday.

St. Paul, March 8.—The conference between the committees of the general managers of the railroads and of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, which was to have been held in Chicago Monday, was postponed until next Thursday. At that time the result of the strike vote which has been taken in the unions west of Chicago will be announced and the firemen probably will deliver an ultimatum to the general managers of the roads.

Rumors came both from Chicago and from Pacific coast points that the firemen had orders to strike at midnight Monday night. Railroad managers in St. Paul did not believe it possible because the conference called for Monday was postponed at the request of the firemen until Thursday and they did not believe that the brotherhood men would strike until they had delivered their ultimatum to the managers. Besides that the vote taken was not directly on the question of striking, but only gave the officials of the brotherhood authority to call a strike if their demands were not met by the railroads.

The general managers and the brotherhood officials have been holding conferences since Dec. 27. The conferences continued until Feb. 1 when it was adjourned until March 7 to allow the strike vote to be taken. The conference concerns all the lines west of Chicago, forty-eight in all. Practically all of the firemen and some of the engineers are members of the order. A strike would therefore mean serious demoralization of the traffic on all the Western lines.

ACCUSED OF GRAVE ROBBERY

Montana Man and Woman Under Arrest.

Great Falls, Mont., March 8.—After months of searching and waiting, two arrests have been made in connection with the grave robbery in which the body of an infant grandson of W. G. Conrad was stolen.

Alice Locker, twenty-three years old, employed in a local laundry, and Edward Locker, twenty-five years old, who is supposed to be her husband, are held at the county jail. They were arrested on the charge of being accessories to the robbery.

The body has not yet been recovered. On the theory that there are others in the case, the authorities are bending every effort to locate men who have so far eluded both police and private detectives.

Oil Found in Iowa.

Gowrie, Ia., March 8.—Oil has been discovered in the city well at this place. While citizens were investigating a lighted match set fire to the flow and one man was badly burned by the exploding gas.

SOME PLAIN CENSUS FACTS

Its Purpose Not to Pry Into Anybody's Private Affairs.

EVERYBODY'S DUTY TO ASSIST

Officials Bound by Solemn Oath Not to Disclose Information Received Except to Proper Departments—Refusal to Answer a Violation of Law.

THE census is not, never has been and cannot be used to obtain information in connection with the enforcement of tax rates, deportation proceedings, extradition measures, army or navy conscription, compulsory school attendance, child labor prosecutions, quarantine enforcement or in any way to interfere with the enjoyment of life, liberty or property by any person.

It has nothing whatever to do with the legal detection, arrest, prosecution or punishment of any person for any suspected or actual violation of a law, whether of a city or state or the national government or of a foreign nation.

It is to find out how much bigger the nation has grown since ten years before, how many more people, how many more native born, how many more foreign born, how many work for their bread, how many for whom there is no work, how many own their own homes and other similar facts.

That is all. It is not to pry into your private affairs. It is not to increase your taxes. It is not to find out who should be deported. It is not to send any person back to his native country. It is not to make any person join the army or navy. It is not to find if any are breaking the laws of a city or state or the United States. It is not to trouble or to harm or to prosecute anybody for anything he has done or is doing.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WILLOUGHBY

The census count is made by men called enumerators, which means counters. The enumerator asks the questions. The questions are not from his own mind. They are from the bureau of the United States census, which prints a list for the enumerator. He simply sets down the answers opposite the questions. He will not ask questions not on the list. All persons must answer the same questions.

The counter, or enumerator, will call at your home Friday, April 15 next, or maybe a day or three days or a week later. He will call as soon as he can. You will know him by a census badge, "United States Census, 1910," he will wear on his coat and a yellow khaki bag he carries. In this are his printed questions. He may have an interpreter with him. The enumerator may be a woman.

You must not refuse to admit him to your home. You must not refuse to answer. You must not answer falsely.

Listen to him. Answer him willingly and truthfully. Encourage your relatives, friends and neighbors to tell him. Help him in every way you can. It is your duty. It is everybody's duty. It is the law of the United States. He is not a spy, a policeman or a tax assessor. He is not an agent of the city, county or state. He is working for the bureau of the United States census. He tells no one but the census bureau what is told him, and the United States law will not let the census bureau tell any other persons or officials or other government departments or any foreign ambassador, consul or nation.

The census law with reference to population requires that the enumerator's questions shall for each inhabitant call for—

"The name, relationship to head of family, color, sex, age, conjugal condition, place of birth, place of birth of parents, number of years in the United States, citizenship, occupation, whether or not employer or employee, and if employee, whether or not employed at the date of enumeration (April 15, 1910), and the number of months unemployed during the preceding calender year (1909), whether or not engaged in agriculture, school attendance, literacy and tenure of home and whether or not a survivor of the Union or Confederate army or navy, and the name and address of each blind or deaf and dumb person."

The same law with reference to agriculture requires that the enumerator's questions shall for each inhabitant call for—

"The name, color and country of birth of occupant of each farm, tenure, acreage of farm, acreage of woodland and character of timber thereon, value of farm and improvements, value of farm implements, number and value of live stock on farms and ranges, number and value of domestic animals not on farms and ranges and the acreage of crops planted and to be planted during the year of enumeration and the acreage of crops and the quantity and value of crops and other farm products for the year ending Dec. 31 next preceding the enumeration."

All questions relating to population and the inventory of farm equipment apply to conditions existing only on April 15, the "census day."

The census bureau's instructions to enumerators with reference to the enumeration of the population present some important and interesting distinctions.

Persons living on April 15, 1910, but who died after it and before enumerators call, are to be counted, but persons born after April 15 are not to be included in the count. Persons who were single on April 15 are to be reported as single even though they have married subsequently and before the canvasser has called. This is true similarly of persons who become widowed or divorced after April 15.

The census law provides that all persons shall be enumerated at their "usual place of abode" on April 15. This means the place where they may be said to live or belong or the place which is their home. As a rule, the usual place of abode is not the place where a person works or where he eats, but where he regularly sleeps. The enumerators are cautioned, however, that where a man happens to sleep at the time of the enumeration may not be the place where he regularly sleeps.

As to Absentees.

If any one in an enumeration district is temporarily away from home on a visit or on business or traveling for pleasure or attending school or college or sick in a hospital such absent person is to be enumerated and included with other members of the family. But a son or daughter regularly living in another locality should not be counted with the family at home.

Servants, laborers or other employees who live with the family and sleep in the same house or on the premises should be enumerated with the family.

The census bureau states that there will be, on the other hand, a certain number of persons present and perhaps lodging and sleeping in districts at the time of the enumeration who do not have their usual place of abode there. These are not to be enumerated. It must be assumed that they will be enumerated elsewhere. They should not, therefore, unless it is practically certain that they will not be enumerated anywhere else, enumerate or include with the members of a family they are enumerating any of the following classes:

Persons visiting a family, transient boarders or lodgers who have some other usual or permanent place of abode, students or children living or boarding with a family in order to attend some school, college or other educational institution in the locality, but not regarding the place as their home; persons who take their meals with a family, but lodge or sleep elsewhere; servants, apprentices or other persons employed by a family and working in the house or on the premises, but not sleeping there, or any person who was formerly in a family, but has since become a permanent inmate of an asylum, almshouse, home for the aged, reformatory, prison or any other institution in which the inmates may remain for long periods of time.

The words "dwelling house" and "family" are, for census purposes, given a much wider application than they have in ordinary speech. A "dwelling" is defined as a place in which at the time of the census one or more persons regularly sleep. It need not be a house in the common meaning of the word.

A Census Family.

A "family," as a census term, may mean a group of individuals who occupy jointly a dwelling place or part of a dwelling place or an individual living alone in any place of abode. All the occupants and employees of a hotel, if they regularly sleep there, make up a single family because they occupy one dwelling place, and persons living alone are regarded as families.

The enumerators are required to enter on the schedule the name of every person whose usual place of abode on April 15, 1910, was with the family or in the dwelling place for which the enumeration is being made. The head of the family is to be entered first, then the wife, next the children, whether sons or daughters, in the order of their ages, and, lastly, all other persons living with the family, whether relatives, boarders, lodgers or servants.

If any adult refuses or willfully neglects to answer the questions on the enumerator's list or if he or she willfully gives answers that are false he or she will be arrested, carried to court and fined up to $100. Keepers of hotels, apartment houses, boarding or lodging houses, tenements or other buildings in which people make their homes must help the enumerator when requested or they will be arrested, carried to court and fined up to $500.

It is everybody's duty to help make the next census, which is the thirteenth taken since the year 1790, an accurate statement of the population conditions in the United States as they actually exist April 15, 1910. It is not only their duty; it is the law.

SLIDE KILLS FIFTY

Avalanche on Canadian Pacific in British Columbia.

ALL THE VICTIMS WORKMEN

Swept to Death While Removing Obstruction on Tracks.

Vancouver, B. C., March 6.—In a snowslide between Rogers Pass station and Glacier, on the line of the Canadian Pacific, in the Rocky mountains, fifty men were killed. All the victims were workmen for the railway company and more than half of them were Japanese.

The men were a working crew clearing away a small slide that had come down early in the evening. They were working a rotary engine, when a large slide came down and carried them to their death in the canyon below.

At first it was believed that all of the hundred men engaged in the work had been killed, but later it was found that many had escaped. The death total is now estimated at fifty.

All passenger trains on the line are safe, though it will probably be a day or two before they are able to pass the place where the slide occurred.

It was one of the worst nights ever experienced in the railway section of the Canadian Rockies. There was a heavy storm of rain and sleet and sometimes snow.

A storm also occurred in the Arrow lakes. Communication with the East is down. A long section of telegraph line was carried away by the slide.

EIGHTY-SEVEN MET DEATH

Result of Avalanche in the Cascade Mountains.

Wellington, Wash., March 8.—Eighty-seven people were killed when the Great Northern passenger train was swept down a mountain by an avalanche last week, according to a revised list given out by the railroad officials.

Fifty-two bodies have now been taken from the avalanche ruins and it is thought about sixty-five are still in the gulch. If so, the railway list of eighty-seven dead is too conservative by twenty. It is thought that the smoking car of the passenger train, which had been turned into a bunkhouse for the foreign laborers, has been located and that its dead will be taken out. With the rapid progress being made by the relief train from the east side of the Cascades, all the difficulties in caring for the dead and wounded are vanishing. The railroad company expects to bring the train into Wellington soon. There seems no reason to doubt that every body will be recovered this week. All the dead are well preserved in the snow.

WESTERN FLOODS ARE OVER

Colder Weather Causes Rivers to Recede Rapidly.

Seattle, Wash., March 6.—The weather bureau believes the floods in the Northwest are ended. There was a light freeze in Seattle and a hard freeze in the mountains. All the rivers are falling rapidly. The Northern Pacific has resumed its regular train schedule. The Chicago, Milwaukee and Puget Sound railroad has suffered small losses and will clear its tracks in a few days.

NORTHERN PACIFIC UPHELD

Federal Supreme Court Decides Portland Gateway Case.

Washington, March 8.—The Northern Pacific Railway company won its fight in the so called Portland gateway case by a decision of the supreme court of the United States.

This controversy was over the attempt of the interstate commerce commission to require the Northern Pacific to join with other railroads in establishing a through passenger route and joint rates from the East to Puget sound territory via Portland, Ore.

In announcing the decision Justice Holmes said that the commission had power to require a new route only when no reasonable or satisfactory way already existed. The reasons assigned by the commission as to why the Northern Pacific plan was not a satisfactory or reasonable one could only be maintained by giving the statute an artificial meaning.

SETTLED BY ARBITRATION

Workmen Given From Five to Ten Per Cent nlcrease.

Ludlow, Mass., March 6.—The Ludlow Manufacturing association has posted a notice of an increase in wages of from 5 to 10 per cent. The increase is a result of the mediation of the state board of arbitration. which took up the matter of the relations between the company and its employes after the eventful strike of two months ago.

Bomb Explosion at Lisbon.

Lisbon, March 8.—Two bombs were hurled into a room where a party of clerical candidates were dining. The explosion killed two of the diners and wounded seven others, including the priest who was presiding.

If you don't do better today you'll do worse tomorrow.—Loomis.

THOMAS C. PLATT DEAD

Noted New Yorker a Victim of Bright's Disease.

New York, March 7.—Thomas Collier Platt, formerly United States senator from New York and for many years a national figure in Republican politics, died in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Abele, on West Eleventh street, from whom he had rented three rooms for the past four years. Mrs. Abele had been his nurse.

Dr. Paul Auterbridge, his physician, said that the cause of death was acute Bright's disease. The body was removed to the home of Frank H. Platt, his son, and will be taken to Owego, N. Y., the senator's birthplace, where the funeral services will be held. An hour before the senator died his two sons, Frank Harry and Edward, with their families, had left the house, after their usual visit. Mr. Platt sank into unconsciousness and died fifteen minutes later. The relatives had all returned to his bedside.

Last Wednesday Senator Platt was at his office down town. For several years he had been in feeble health. Despite his advanced age he took an active interest in affairs and refused to neglect his business until the dictates of nature imposed a rest. He was out of bed at 7 o'clock every morning and always early at his office.

TWENTY-THREE MINERS DEAD

Eight Others Injured, Four Probably Fatally.

Juneau, Alaska, March 4.—Twenty-three miners were killed by an explosion of a powder magazine in the 1,100-foot level of the Mexican mine, one of the group of Treadwell gold properties on Douglas island. Eight men were seriously injured, of whom it is feared four will die.

The last shots had been fired by the shift of men twenty minutes before the explosion took place and the miners had assembled at the landing of the skip and were arranging to enter it and go on top. The magazine, which contained 275 pounds of powder, was thirty feet away from the place where the men were standing and every man was killed or injured. Most of the miners were foreigners.

The mine was little damaged. It is not known what caused the explosion.

Perhaps there are some business men in this town who have tried advertising and found the results unsatisfactory.

If so, something was the trouble. Contracting for space in a newspaper is not enough. When secured the space must be used to advantage. A convincing story should be told. A plant will not grow unless it is tended. An impression cannot be made upon the purchasing public except by careful, persistent work.

Many merchants err grievously in believing that time spent upon their ads is time wasted. No time can be made more profitable.

We believe the advertising columns of this paper can be used profitably by any one who seeks to reach the buyers of this community. We will gladly aid any one who desires to try it or who is trying it and is not satisfied.

THOUSANDS TO GO ON STRIKE

Firemen on Forty-seven Western Railroads Will Be Called Out

FROM CHICAGO TO THE COAST

Estimated That Fully Twenty-five Thousand Men Will Obey the Summons.

Chicago, March 15.—W. S. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, announced that a strike of 25,000 firemen on practically all the Western railroads had been called.

Mr. Carter said the decision to strike had been reached at a meeting of forty-three members of the Western federated board of the brotherhood, each member representing a Western railroad.

The exact hour at which the men are to walk out, he said, soon would be decided upon and every member of the union between Chicago and the Pacific coast would then be informed by telegraph when to quit work.

"The strike has been called—that much is certain," said Mr. Carter. "It means that not only 25,000 firemen, members of our union, will go out, but perhaps that many more employes will be thrown out in consequence. We gave our ultimatum to the railroads that the men had voted to strike and we were prepared to call one unless we were granted an arbitration of all questions in dispute. The railroads refused to arbitrate anything but the wage question.

Further Parleying Useless.

"We decided it was useless to further parley with the railroad managers. We adopted a resolution calling a strike. Owing to the lateness of the hour and in order that the men would not go out in confusion, and not knowing the true state of affairs, we agreed to wait for a while before telegraphing the order.

"The men will quit work within twenty-four hours after the order is issued."

The controversy which has been under discussion for more than six weeks involves forty-seven railways, operating west, northwest and southwest of Chicago, and embraces about 150,000 miles of railroads.

It has previously been stated by both sides that if a strike were called it would tie up practically every freight and passenger train between Chicago and the Pacific coast.

The railroads have issued a statement declaring that to prevent a strike they would, if necessary, appeal to the authorities at Washington.

Dredges at work at ditches No. 35 and 36 already

A. M. Arpin has opened operations on ditch No. 36 and is working night and day. This means that this ditch will be completed just as soon as the big shovel can move the dirt, which will in all probability be by the first of June. This ditch will possibly open up the worst country which is now tributary to Thief River Falls as far as actual operations are concerned. He has also started a crew at work on ditch No. 35 and as this lacks only about four miles of being completed it is quite certain that he will have this finished in time to protect the crops from any possible failure by water this coming season. These two dredges will go further up the country as soon as the ditches they are now working at are completed. If Arpin gets the contracts for the Red Lake county ditches and thus there will be absolutely no delay. The ditches will be completed with all possible speed and there be no delay whatever in waiting for the construction of a machine. These dredges will have completed the ditches that they are now at work on about the time the other contracts are let and in this way will make it possible to complete all the drainage systems that are at present being planned for the eleven towns and have everything dry by the time the frost comes in November.

CONSERVATION CONGRESS A SUCCESS

Over Two Thousand Had Registered up to Thusday noon.

All Except Five Counties Have Exhibits Showing Resources.

The first Conservation Congress of Minnesota, holding its session in St. Paul starting Wednesday, is proving a big success and the good resulting will likely be seen in the influx of settlers from the central states to the more sparsely settled portions of the state, and an added impetus to the good roads and drainage movement and more intensive farming.

About two thousann delegates had registered up to Thursday noon and the total registration is expected to reach close to four thousand. All the counties except five had exhibits showing what they could raise at home. There was a large attendance of excellent speakers covering every subject of interest to the delegates. The most enthusiastic reception given any speaker was that accorded James J. Hill, the people refering to him as the, "Empire Builder." Following are some extracts from his speech.

"The highest conception of a nation is that of a trustee for posterity."

"We are living in a age of world-wide financial delirium."

"In our cities modern extravagance finds its most untrammeled expression

"I know of nothing bearing more directly or forcibly upon the subject of national waste and the conservation of national resources than the profligacy disclosed by our public expense ledgers."

"The answer to the charge of a billion-dollar session of congress is that this has become a billion-dollar country. The apology is neither relevant nor true."

"The phenomenal increase of public expenditure already has producdd a plentiful crop of public ills. It is one of the causes of the increas in prices now disturbing the people."

"Lavish expenditure has now grown to be a national trait. The aim of legislators ambitious for popularity is to find new vents for the treasury."

"You cannot cheat the first four rules of arithmetic. You cannot eat your cake and have it, too. The same money that has bought an automobile is not on hand to build a steam thresher."

"Where so much public money is flowing down the gutter, many a man finds it easier to scoop up what he wants than to work for it."

One of the last things men learn is that every dollar paid out by a goverment must first have been paid in by the community."

"We must save the wealth of the country, its capital, its credit, from the predatory poor as well as the predatory rich, but above all from the predatory politician."

"Stop grafting, the offspring of public extravagance and the parent of civic decay. Individual and public economy, these are the essentials of the new and better conservation.

Notice.

Having disposed of my hardware and implement business I request all those knowing themselves indebted to me to call and settle at once. O. O. Gullingsrud.

Trees Instead of Potatoes.

Raise trees instead of potatoes, is a new idea being urged by those talking about preserving the forests and growing new ones. On the face of it the idea does not seem practical. To think of a farmer growing trees and hoping to make money thereby, d'ont sound good but in Germany and France the farmers pay the closest attention to their tree crops, with of an eye to profit as corn or wheat. They allow only the best wood to grow, cutting the weaker trees and secure an annual growth of 4,500 bo 6,500 pounds per acre each year. One of the features of the comming conservation congress in St. Paul will be a demonstration of the profits which farmers can actually make growing trees.

Settler From Southern Wisconsin.

Mr. Henry Miller arrived yesterday from Osceola, Wisconsin, and will make his future home on a quarter section ol land just two miles north of Plummer that he purchased from Mr. Pleth last fall. The family will arrive just as soon as Mr. Miller has things ready for them. His brother arrived Thursday evening with a carload of stock and farming machinery and they will be allready to start in farming.

The indications are that there will be a heavy influx of settlers from southern Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois and Indiana the comming summer as the people living there are just learning what a good thing they can get in Northern Minnesota where, although good land can be obtained for about a fifth of what it costs in that section yet as large a value from the crop per acre can be had here as there It will undoubtedly be but a short time before it will be impossible to to purchase good land here less than fifty dollars per acre.

To Acvertise Red River Valley.

An important recognition of the claims of the Red River Valley to proper attention by the dairy papers is the engagement of Geo. L. Austin special representative of a big commission house at Spokane, who makes his headquarters here, and who is one of the best known practical dairymen in this section, to edit a special Red River Valley department in the Butter Cheese and Egg Journal, published weekly at Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

This department will be a weekly feature and will be a great advertisement for this section as a dairying and cheese and egg producing section thruout the wide territory covered by this publication.

Choking and Stoppage of the Teat in Cattle.

Choking in cattle is generally caused by the lodgment of a foreign obstacle in the esophagus or gullet. It is known by slobbering, distressed breathing and accumulation of gas, which may be noticed on the left side or paunch. The proper method of handling an animal thus afflicted is to stand the cow with her head down hill, pressing the head downward as much as possible while the attendant squeezes as much saliva out of the gullet as possible, then allow her to raise her head and give her one-half pint of raw linseed oil, giving but one swallow at a time. If she is not relived from within ten to thirty minutes, a half inch rubber hose six foot long may be passed gently down the gullet. This will force the obstacle into the stomach, at the same time allowing the gas to escape. If the animal has been greatly extended by gas before relived, it may be necessary to give her a laxative and tonic to over come partial paralpsis of the bowls which some times follows.

A very common trouble in the ordinary dairy is to find an animal with the point of the teat closed, either due to a bruise of the teat itself or to infection of the milk duct which causes a little scab to form over the point of the teat and unless this is properly handled with care and cleanliness, the infection is apt to cause the loss of the entire quarter. The proper manner in which to handle and treat such cases is to thoroughly wash the teat in a antiseptic solution then dip a teat plug into a healing ointment and insert it into the point of the teat, allowing same to remain from one milking to another. In this manner closure of the point of the teats can be overcome in a very simple and satisfactory way. Never use a milking tube if it can be possibly avoided as there is much danger of infecting the entire quarter by the use of the tube.

Dr. David Roberts Wisconsin State Veterinarian.

On the charge of having sold liquor to persons of indian blood, Albert Vallaire working in the Star theater and Gilbert Lien employed in Jens Hanson's Christinia saloon both at Bemidji and Charles Williams, a bartender for Buff Gorreau at Nymore just south of Bemidji were arraigned before H. A. Simons, United States Commissioner and were held to the federal grand jury. Bail was fixed at $500 in each case which was furnished.

BALLINGER and Cannon have one characteristic in common; that of being good stickers.

From present indications there will be no difficulty in finding enough candidates in the ninth district this year.

President Taft has issued a proclamation ordering the taking of the National census this year. Presently we will know how many and who we are.

IF this is the real article that the weather man is handing us, Northern Minnesota is enjoying the earliest spring since 1896, according to the "old uns".

Why not be a little careful in picking a representative to serve in the state legislature from this section this time? It is just as easy to elect a good man as a poor one.

Reapportionment, state funds invested at home for roads and ditches, is the tune northern Minnesota will drum into the ears of the remainder ot the state until she gets her just dues.

The book on the "Life of John Albert Johnson" is now ready for the public. It being a true characterization of that great man it certainly is worthy of a place in every home and public library in the state.

Wilkin county boasts of corn that yielded 84.24 bushels per acre. That is certainly a good showing for northern Minnesota but we really believe that Red Lake County can make as good a showing as that if they will only go after it.

THE conservation congress now in session is undoubtedly one of the best means of causing an influx of settlers to the sparsely settled portions of Minnesota that could have been devised, and the present governor undoubtedly deserves some credit for the same.

THE local postmaster recently received from one of the rural routes a four-pound package of Red Lake county's most famous product, which the sender expected Uncle Sam to tote to the "Windy City" for him. As the sender had not done up the package so that it could be mixed with the rest of the mail, the Chicago family will have to stick to colored "ole".

Two great world's fair are planned to celebrate the opening of the Panama canal in 1915—one at San Francisco and the other at New Orleans—and the government will be asked to finance them to the extent of many millions of dollars. The government should call a halt on the financing of world's fair—the United State treasury has already lost large sums by advancing money to promoters of enterprises such as those named. Princeton Union.

WASHINGTON D.C. IN TURMOIL

Republican Regulars and Insurgents are planning campaign

Washington, D. C. March, 16, 1910. So many signs of a battle to the finish at the polls next Nov. between the Regular and Insurgent wings of the Republican party have appeared here during the past few days that any ground of any compromise between them is now considered out of the question.

Both sides realize that the cleavage is permanent and that the party cannot again become harmonious until one or the other has been definitely and decisively rejected by the people themselves, who are regarded as the jury before which the fundamental differences of opinion concerning the conduct of the government must be tried. Hence each is seeking every possible ally and not overlooking any point of vantage that may help to win. The Regulars are closing up their ranks and ousting every man who fails to give full support to the President and the leaders of the House and Senate. The Insurgents are seeking support for the principles for which they stand and care not from what quarter it comes.

The Republican Congressional Committee, which has already well under way the campaign for the reelection of a Republican House, will do nothing for the Insurgent representatives, now practically considered by the Regulars, who, of course, control the committee as well as the machinery of the House, as outside the immediate ranks of the party. They will not even be left alone to work out their own salvation, but Regular candidates will be put in the field against them, so that, if possible, democratic rather than Insurgent representatives may be returned from their districts. With this situation confronting them, the Insurgents are considering the advisability of acting on the old maxim that "turn about is fair play" and putting up Insurgent candidates in the districts represented by the Regulars. This would mean the liveliest bolt in the history of the Republican party and might lead to the formation of a new party, because it is obvious to political observers here that neither Regulars nor Insurgents can succeed in annihilating the other in one election.

While it is conceded at the Capital that the fight can only redound to to the benefit of the Democrats so far as the immediate future is concerned, it is also conceded that this will have no conciliatory effect on either side in the Republican factional row because each is determined to carry the case to the people for final adjudication. When the the only compromise acceptable to either side is surrender, the only course left is to fight. Therefore the fight is on and the politicians in Washington are looking for the liveliest time politically that the country has seen since 1896.

The Regulars consider that the President is with them in their effort to rid the party of the Insurgents. They regard the combination as one of choice and necessity. As proof that it is a matter of choice they quietly point to the dinner given Speaker Cannon a few days ago. The fact that the President should give the Speaker of the House of Representatives a dinner is not thought unusual because there is ample precedent for such a social function. It grew out of the Speaker's displeasure at being placed below the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court in precedence during President Roosevelt's first term and a decision to give the Speaker a separate dinner. But the fact that no Insurgents were invited and that the Regular leaders of the House were present is looked upon as indicative of the President's attitude. Another fact that pleased the Regulars was the affair at the White House a few evening ago at which President Taft and Speaker Cannon were the joint actors in an old fashioned dance. And it was only a day or two ago that the President called for Speaker Cannon at the Capitol in his automobile so that the two might enjoy a twenty-five mile drive together.

More tangible and public evidence of a political alliance between White House and the Regulars in Congress is to be found in the expressions from time to time of the President on the subject. The representatives of the lotter in the Senate point to the President's open espousal of the cause of Senator Aldrich in his speech at Boston last year. Those in the House refer with pride to the Winona speech, in which the President read out of the party those Insurgents who opposed the Payne-Aldrich tariff; which he declared to be the best tariff law the country has ever had enacted and placed on the statute books.

Despite all the talks that have been held at the White House lately and all other efforts at compromise, the Insurgents have not receded in the slightest in their opposition either to the tariff law, the present House rules, or those general causes of dissatisfaction embraced under what they term Cannonism. Talks with them privately afford ample proof of this. They are close touch with their respective districts and say that they have heard in no uncertain way that they are truly representative of those districts and must continue to take the stand they have in order to remain representative. They declare that the function of a representative in the House of Representatives is to be representative. A Senator represents his state, but a member of the House represents the people of his district and is amenable tp their will alone. This might seem primary were it not for the lesson of former Representative James McCleary, of Minnesota, not long ago in disregarding it. His district was in favor of tariff reform. He told his district the duties provided in the Dingley law ought to be raised instead of lowered. Shortly thereafter he retired to private life.

The Regulars also contend that the President is of necessity bound to support them because of the stand he took last year in signing the tariff bill. Once having signed it they say he allied himself with them and that with the tariff an issue in the coming campaign he must go before the people with them. He and they will go up or down together, as far as their fortunes can be won or lost at a congressional election. As the Insurgents are against that measure in the form in which it was enacted they can only be opposed, both openly and secretly, by the White House and the associates of Aldrich and Cannon. The Congressional Committee is busy sending out the President's declaration at Winona and other speeches in favor of the tariff law, including that made at Kansas City by Speaker Cannon. Representative McKinley, of California, a staunch supporter of both the President and Speaker Cannon, will shortly start out on a stumping tour through the Middle west to uphold the cause of the Regulars. Other orators will follow.

As the Insurgents can expect no help from either side they are working hard under the surface to secure aid elsewhere. They will, in all likelihood, have little money in their campaign coffers and therefore not much literature. But on the stump they will, they claim, have all kinds of talent, and their reliance, they say, is upon the determination of the voters to overcome that which they are fighting. They hope for support from the Roosevelt wing of the party and are as anxious as the Regulars to ascertain what the former President will do on his return to this country. The Congressional Committee issued a story during the the week to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt would stump the country, porticularly the West and Middle West for the Regular ticket during the campaign. The Insurgents, who remember the ardour with which these same Regulars fought President Roosevelt when in the White House, laugh at this. Still, there is an element of doubt in the situation which they do not relish. "Nick" Longworth, the former son-in-law, says he does not know what Mr. Roosevelt will do and that nobody else knows, with the important exception of Mr. Roosevelt himself.

As important element in the situation is the attitude of the Regulars toward the Insurgents in the three rock-ribbed Insurgent states of Iowa Minnesota and Wisconsin. In those states they will actually make an attemp to swing thestate conventions to be held in June into line in support of the Regulars. Failing in this, they will pursue the coursee already outlined in the several Congressional districts in those states. In all three of these states the Senators and practically all the Representatives are Insurgents. Many of the districts are so close that with two Republican candidates in the field politician here regard it as a likely result that the state will be largely represented by Democrats.

The Insurgents are receiving support from unexpected quarters. Senator Gore, the blind statesman from Oklahoma, in his Chautanqua lectures thruout the Middle West, has openly advised Democrats to support an Insurgent candidate where he is opposed by a Regular in a Congressional district. They also count upon the monthly magazines and weekly periodicals to keep up their work in attacking the Regulars and thus forming public opinion against them. That they will do so is indicated by the attempts made by Postmaster General Hitchcock to have enacted a law which will increase the rate of postage charged them for transporting their material through the mails.

SEES NO DANGER OF WAR

Japanese Foreign Minister Sends Message to New York Paper.

New York, March 13.—A cable message dated Tokio from Count Komura, minister of foreign affairs for Japan, to a New York paper denies that there is any danger of war between Japan and the United States. The message reads:

"I am convinced that there is nothing in American-Japanese relations to cause uneasiness. The real Far Eastern interests of the two powers are not inconsistent or antagonistic. War is inconceivable. It would be a crime without excuse or palliation. My conviction finds ample support in the understanding of 1908."

MOVEMENT FOR PEACE

Efforts to End Great Strike at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, March 15.—The first step taken by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company toward settling the dispute with its striking employes, and incidentally the ending of the sympathetic strike which has now been in progress for ten days, was taken when President Kruger of the Rapid Transit company conferred with W. D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes. This conference was the result of outside influences and it is the first time officials of the company have dealt directly with any national officer of the street carmen's union.

The conference was held in the office of George H. Earle, one of the representatives of the city on the transit company's board of directors. Mr. Earle and a sub-committee of the general committee in charge of the general sympathetic strike were also present.

When the conference was ended Mr. Earle said no plan of settlement was discussed, even tentatively, but the difficulty of a settlement was gone over. He and Mr. Kruger said the company wanted to safeguard its loyal men and that there seemed to be too many men for the positions that were vacant.

GREETED BY A GREAT CROWD

Former President Roosevelt Arrives at Khartum.

Khartum, March 15.—Looking the picture of health and physical fitness, Theodore Roosevelt came back from the long trail over which he had spent nearly a year in the pursuit of game. Thousands of persons had gathered here to see him, and they descried from afar the familiar form and more familiar smile—made so even to those who had never before set eyes on the former president of the United States by the countless pictures of him which have recently been published.

Later in the day there was a joyous reunion of Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt and their children, Kermit and Miss Ethel in the north station of Khartum.

Fifteen Others Injured by a Falling Wall at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, March 11.—Five men were killed and seven more were probably fatally injured by the collapse of a brick wall left standing in the ruins of the fire which Tuesday morning partly destroyed the manufacturing plant of M. Lanz & Sons. Twenty workmen, mostly foreigners, who were at work razing the ruins, were buried under the wall. Not one of the score of workmen escaped injury.

GREAT WASTE OF MONEY

Declares Expense to the Government Is Tremendous, While the Results Are Comparatively Small—Says Some of the Officials Are Either Incompetents or Crooks and Calls Many of Pinchot's Ideas "Asinine."

Los Angeles, Cal., March 15.—Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, in an interview here summed up the weaknesses in the government's reclamation methods.

He even went so far as to say that the service is filled with either incompetents or "crooks." He called some of Gifford Pinchot's ideas asinine. He said the government reclamation plants, in many instances, were junk piles.

"Pinchot is a nice gentleman, but an impractical faddist. There is no Oriental trade. The only way to establish relations with the Orient is to admit Chinese to a certain extent."

"The government reclamation service is filled with officials who are either incompetents or crooks; charity leads to the supposition that they are incompetent."

Calls It Waste of Money.

Mr. Hill was sitting in a deck chair on the Cabrillo, bound for Avalon, when during the interview he found occasion many times to pound the rail by way of emphasis.

"The government," he said, "is engaged in so called reclamation work which is costing a tremendous amount of money. And the results are universally small.

"I know Mr. Pinchot very well, was with him and some senators on a three weeks' junketing trip once and had a good opportunity to find out what he doesn't know about forestry and kindred subjects in which he was supposed to be an expert.

"Not very long ago he broached a scheme for making a fish preserve of the Pacific coast waters. Think of the asininity of that. It is an index to his impracticable ideas.

"The government reclamation plants are, with few exceptions, useless and in many instances they are junk piles. When the government finishes a reclamation project it charges more for the land and twice as much for the water as private concerns."

Damascus, a Garden City.

Damascus is a garden city touched by the great desert. Under its roses one feels the sands. Beside its trembling waters one dreams of the trembling mirage. The cry of its muezzins seems to echo from its mosque towers to that most wonderful thing in nature which is "God without man." The breath of the wastes passes among the poplars as that Bedouin boy passed among the merchants when he came and when he went. In Damascus one hears the two voices. And when one looks from the sacred mountain upon that city of dream, cradled among the woods, one sees far off the tawny beginnings of that other magic which looks out from the Bedouin's eyes. And though perhaps with the pilgrims from Samarkand one loves to rest beside the fountains under the hedges of roses, one is aware of the other love, intercourse with which has made Damascus an earthly paradise for them and for you.—Robert Hichens in Century.

Handicapped.

Two old settlers sat smoking in their cabin far away in the backwoods. No woman's hand had ever desecrated that sanctum, and grime reigned supreme and triumphant. The conversation veered around from state politics to cooking.

"Ya-as," said the elder of the two, with a drawl, "I did get one o' them there cookbooks wunst, but I could never do nothin' with it."

"How was that?" inquired the other. "What was the hitch?"

"Waal," was the answer, "every one o' them receits begun in the same way with the same words. Every one o' 'em started off with 'take a clean dish,' and I never got no farther."

And he slowly replaced his old black clay pipe in his mouth and fell to ruminating sadly on the narrow outlook on the world of human beings as displayed by authors of cookery books.

Origin of Kilts.

It will doubtless surprise many Scotchmen to learn that the kilt as at present worn is only a modern fancy costume and is not of Scottish origin at all. The honor of its invention is due to two Englishmen—an army tailor who accompanied General Wade's forces to Scotland in 1719 and Thomas Rawlinson, overseer of some iron works in Glengarry's country. For more than a century previously, indeed, the tartan plaid had been the common garb of the highlanders, but it was all in one piece, wound in folds around the body, leaving the knees bare. Prior to the adoption of the tartan, which probably took place about the close of the fifteenth century, the long, loose saffron colored skirt, the real "garb of old Gaul," was the highland dress.—London Mail.

JUDGE K. M. LANDIS.

Federal Jurist Gives Stiff Sentences to Oleo Makers.

OFFENDERS HARD HIT

Judge Landis Gives Oleo Makers Long Terms in Prison.

Chicago, March 12.—Summary action was taken by Judge K. M. Landis of the United States district court in sentencing violators of the federal laws regulating the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine. He fixed the punishment of Samuel Driesbach, who pleaded guilty, at a fine of $15,000 and six years' imprisonment in the United States penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

To Daniel Bortz, who also pleaded guilty, the court meted out an eighteen months' term in the house of correction in this city. William Broadwell, who was sentenced some days ago, must meet like punishment with Driesbach.

On the order of the court Bortz was immediately taken to the prison and preparations were made to take Driesbach and Broadwell to Leavenworth at once.

The quick execution of the sentence was unexpected, as it had been intimated by the presiding judge that the men who have been giving much information concerning the oleomargarine business would not be sent to jail until their confessions had been given to the grand jury.

PATTEN SAILS FOR HOME

English Press Has No Sympathy for Chicago Speculator.

London, March 13.—James A. Patten, the Chicago speculator, who was jostled and driven out of the Manchester Cotton Exchange, sailed from Liverpool for New York on board the steamer Mauretania.

The English press, generally strong for law and order, extends no sympathy for Mr. Patten in his Manchester experience. The Westminster Gazette says:

"We are glad that the American cotton king got out of the Manchester exchange with nothing worse than some hustling and hooting, but cannot profess any sympathy for his wounded feelings."

LOST ON DRESS PARADE.

A Romance That Might Have Been, but Fate Intervened.

By O. HENRY.

[Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.]

Mr. Towers Chandler was pressing his evening suit in his hall bedroom. One iron was heating on a small gas stove, the other was being pushed vigorously back and forth to make the desirable crease that would be seen later on extending in straight lines from Mr. Chandler's patent leather shoes to the edge of his low cut vest.

Our next view of him shall be as he descends the steps of his lodging house immaculately and correctly clothed, calm, assured, handsome—in appearance the typical New York young clubman setting out, slightly bored, to inaugurate the pleasures of the evening.

HE DECIDED TO ASK HER.

Chandler's honorarium was $18 per week. He was employed in the office of an architect. He was twenty-two years old.

Out of each week's earnings Chandler set aside $1. At the end of each ten weeks with the extra capital thus accumulated he purchased one gentleman's evening from the bargain counter of stingy old Father Time. He arrayed himself in the regalia of millionaires and presidents; he took himself to the quarter where life is brightest and showiest and there dined with taste and luxury.

This one delectable evening culled from each dull seventy was to Chandler a source of renascent bliss. To the society bud comes but one debut—it stands alone sweet in her memory when her hair has whitened—but to Chandler each ten weeks brought a joy as keen, as thrilling, as new as the first had been. To sit among bon vivants under palms in the swirl of concealed music, to look upon the habitues of such a paradise and to be looked upon by them—what is a girl's first dance and short sleeved tulle compared with this?

Up Broadway Chandler moved with the vespertine dress parade. For this evening he was an exhibit as well as a gazer. For the next sixty-nine evenings he would be dining in cheviot and worsted at dubious table d'hotes, at whirlwind lunch counters, on sandwiches and beer in his hall bedroom. He was willing to do that, for he was a true son of the great city of razzle-dazzle, and to him one evening in the limelight made up for many dark ones.

Chandler protracted his walk until the Forties began to intersect the great and glittering primrose way, for the evening was yet young, and when one is of the beau monde only one day in seventy, one loves to protract the pleasure. Eyes bright, sinister, curious, admiring, provocating, alluring, were bent upon him, for his garb and air proclaimed him a devotee to the hour of solace and pleasure.

At a certain corner he came to a standstill, proposing to himself the question of turning back toward the showy and fashionable restaurant in which he usually dined on the evenings of his especial luxury. Just then a girl scudded lightly around the corner, slipped on a patch of icy snow and fell plump upon the sidewalk.

Chandler assisted her to her feet with instant and solicitous courtesy. The girl hobbled to the wall of the building, leaned against it and thanked him demurely.

"I think my ankle is strained," she said. "It twisted when I fell."

"Does it pain you much?" inquired Chandler.

"Only when I rest my weight upon it. I think I will be able to walk in a minute or two."

"If I can be of any further service," suggested the young man, "I will call a cab, or"—

"Thank you," said the girl softly, but heartily. "I am sure you need not trouble yourself any further. It was so awkward of me. And my shoe heels are horridly common sense. I can't blame them at all."

Chandler looked at the girl and found her swiftly drawing his interest. She was pretty in a refined way, and her eye was both merry and kind. She was inexpensively clothed in a plain black dress that suggested a sort of uniform such as shopgirls wear. Her glossy dark brown hair showed its coils beneath a cheap hat of black straw whose only ornament was a velvet ribbon and bow. She could have posed as a model for the self respecting working girl of the best type.

A sudden idea came into the head of the young architect. He would ask this girl to dine with him. Here was the element that his splendid but solitary periodic feasts had lacked. His brief season of elegant luxury would be doubly enjoyable if he could add to it a lady's society. This girl was a lady, he was sure—her manner and speech settled that. And in spite of her extremely plain attire he felt that he would be pleased to sit at table with her.

These thoughts passed swiftly through his mind, and he decided to ask her. It was a breach of etiquette, of course, but oftentimes wage earning girls waived formalities in matters of this kind. They were generally shrewd judges of men and thought better of their own judgment than they did of useless conventions. His $10, discreetly expended, would enable the two to dine very well indeed. The dinner would no doubt be a wonderful experience thrown into the dull routine of the girl's life, and her lively appreciation of it would add to his own triumph and pleasure.

"I think," he said to her, with frank gravity, "that your foot needs a longer rest than you suppose. Now, I am going to suggest a way in which you can give it that and at the same time do me a favor. I was on my way to dine all by my lonely self when you came tumbling around the corner. You come with me, and we'll have a cozy dinner and a pleasant talk together, and by that time your game ankle will carry you home very nicely, I am sure."

The girl looked quickly up into Chandler's clear, pleasant countenance. Her eyes twinkled once very brightly, and then she smiled ingenuously.

"But we don't know each other. It wouldn't be right, would it?" she said doubtfully.

"There is nothing wrong about it," said the young man candidly. "I'll introduce myself—permit me—Mr. Towers Chandler. After our dinner, which I will try to make as pleasant as possible, I will bid you good evening or attend you safely to your door, whichever you prefer."

"But, dear me!" said the girl, with a glance at Chandler's faultless attire. "In this old dress and hat!"

"Never mind that," said Chandler cheerfully. "I'm sure you look more charming in them than any one we shall see in the most elaborate dinner toilet."

"My ankle does hurt yet," admitted the girl, attempting a limping step. "I think I will accept your invitation, Mr. Chandler. You may call me Miss Marian."

"Come, then, Miss Marian," said the young architect gayly, but with perfect courtesy. "You will not have far to walk. There is a very respectable and good restaurant in the next block. You will have to lean on my arm—so—and walk slowly. It is lonely dining all by oneself. I'm just a little bit glad that you slipped on the ice."

When the two were established at a well appointed table with a promising waiter hovering in attendance Chandler began to experience the real joy that his regular outing always brought to him.

The restaurant was not so showy or pretentious as the one farther down Broadway which he always preferred, but it was nearly so. The tables were well filled with prosperous looking diners, there was a good orchestra playing softly enough to make conversation a possible pleasure, and the cuisine and service were beyond criticism. His companion even in her cheap hat and dress held herself with an air that added distinction to the natural beauty of her face and figure. And it is certain that she looked at Chandler, with his animated but self possessed manner and his kindling and frank blue eyes, with something not far from admiration in her own charming face.

SO HE BEGAN TO PRATE OF CLUBS.

Then it was that the madness of Manhattan, the frenzy of fuss and feathers, the bacillus of brag, the provincial plague of pose, seized upon Towers Chandler. He was on Broadway, surrounded by pomp and style, and there were eyes to look at him. On the stage of that comedy he had assumed to play the one night part of a butterfly of fashion and an idler of means and taste. He was dressed for the part, and all his good angels had not the power to prevent him from acting it.

So he began to prate to Miss Marian of clubs, of teas, of golf and riding and kennels and cotillons and tours abroad and threw out hints of a yacht lying at Larchmont. He could see that she was vastly impressed by this vague talk, so he indorsed his pose by random insinuations concerning great wealth and mentioned familiarly a few names that are handled reverently by the proletariat. It was Chandler's short little day, and he was wringing from it the best that could be had as he saw it. And yet once or twice he saw the pure gold of this girl shine through the mist that his egotism had raised between him and all objects.

"This way of living that you speak of," she said, "sounds so futile and purposeless. Haven't you any work to do in the world that might interest you more?"

"My dear Miss Marian," he exclaimed—"work! Think of dressing every day for dinner, of making half a dozen calls in an afternoon, with a policeman at every corner ready to jump into your auto and take you to the station if you get up any greater speed than a donkey cart's gait! We do-nothings are the hardest workers in the land."

The dinner was concluded, the waiter generously feed, and the two walked out to the corner where they had met. Miss Marian walked very well now; her limp was scarcely noticeable.

"Thank you for a nice time," she said frankly. "I must run home now. I liked the dinner very much, Mr. Chandler."

He shook hands with her, smiling cordially, and said something about a game of bridge at his club. He watched her for a moment, walking rather rapidly eastward, and then he found a cab to drive him slowly homeward.

In his chilly bedroom Chandler laid away his evening clothes for a sixty-nine days' rest. He went about it thoughtfully.

"That was a stunning girl," he said to himself. "She's all right, too, I'd be sworn, even if she does have to work. Perhaps if I'd told her the truth instead of all that razzle-dazzle we might— But, confound it, I had to play up to my clothes!"

Thus spoke the brave who was born and reared in the wigwams of the tribe of the Manhattans.

The girl, after leaving her entertainer, sped swiftly cross town until she arrived at a handsome and sedate mansion two squares to the east, facing on that avenue which is the highway of Mammon and the auxiliary gods. Here she entered hurriedly and ascended to a room where a handsome young lady in an elaborate house dress was looking anxiously out the window.

"Oh, you madcap!" exclaimed the elder girl when the other entered. "When will you quit frightening us this way? It is two hours since you ran out in that rag of an old dress and Marie's hat. Mamma has been so alarmed. She sent Louis in the auto to try to find you. You are a bad, thoughtless puss."

The elder girl touched a button, and a maid came in a moment.

"Marie, tell mamma that Miss Marian has returned."

"Don't scold, sister. I only ran down to Mme. Theo's to tell her to use mauve insertion instead of pink. My costume and Marie's hat were just what I needed. Every one thought I was a shopgirl, I am sure."

"Dinner is over, dear; you stayed so late."

"I know. I slipped on the sidewalk and turned my ankle. I could not walk, so I hobbled into a restaurant and sat there until I was better. That is why I was so long."

The two girls sat in the window seat looking out at the lights and the stream of hurrying vehicles in the avenue. The younger one cuddled down with her head in her sister's lap.

"We will have to marry some day," she said dreamily—"both of us. We have so much money that we will not be allowed to disappoint the public. Do you want me to tell you the kind of man I could love, sis?"

"Go on, you scatterbrain," smiled the other.

"I could love a man with dark and kind blue eyes, who is gentle and respectful to poor girls, who is handsome and good and does not try to flirt. But I could love him only if he had an ambition, an object, some work to do in the world. I would not care how poor he was if I could help him build his way up. But, sister dear, the kind of man we always meet—the man who lives an idle life between society and his clubs—I could not love a man like that even if his eyes were blue and he were ever so kind to poor girls whom he met in the street."

BIRDS' NECKS.

It's the Number of Bones In Them That Makes Them Flexible.

The flamingoes were making their afternoon toilets in the big flying cage at the Bronx zoo the other afternoon, says a writer in a New York paper. A crowd of children and grown people were looking on and exclaiming with admiring wonder at the way these birds were twisting their long necks about into all sorts of corkscrews and curves when one of the ornithological experts came along and stopped to watch the performance.

"It's the larger number of bones in a bird's neck, not the length, that make it so flexible," he remarked. "There are twenty-three bones in the neck of a swan, for example, and a few more in that of the flamingo. It seems that the smaller the animal organism the larger the number of neck bones. The giraffe, for instance, has only seven bones in his long neck, which has a reach of nearly twenty feet from the ground. That little white throated sparrow over there is only three inches high, but he has fourteen bones in his neck and can almost scratch the back of his head with his bill. The swan has twenty-three neck bones and swings his head about with even greater freedom than a snake."

FRANCE GETS VERY LITTLE

Receipts From Church Sales Stolen or Used for Expenses.

Paris, March 11.—No further arrests have been made in connection with the scandal developed in the discovery of a shortage of something like $2,000,000 in the accounts of M. Duez, one of the liquidators of the church properties taken over by the state. The severe criticism of the judicial authorities for the lax control exercised over the liquidators continues, however, and the prosecuting attorney's office especially is being attacked sharply.

The Journal gives some interesting figures regarding the deterioration of the property of non-authorized congregations and teaching orders which former Premier Waldeck-Rousseau originally estimated would realize $200,000,000 for the state. After inventories had been made the estimated figures were reduced to $100,000,000 and subsequently to $50,000,000 when the church issued a decree of ex-communication against the purchasers. As a matter of fact the gross receipts thus far from this property amount to only $19,000,000, of which sum $13,200,000 has been expended in the adjudication of claims against the property and in other costs, including attorneys' fees, expenditures and commissions to the liquidators.

"A Danger Foreseen Is Half Averted."

If you are in business and don't advertise you are in danger.

This is a warning.

See your mistake in time and avert it.

A poor publisher, the proprietor of a struggling magazine, sent a half inch advertisement to the New York Herald The ad man made it a half page The bill was bigger than the publisher's entire possessions. He thought he was ruined.

It was the turning point. The magazine sold It was good and people liked it. Other half page ads followed Result: fortune, fame, honor

Advertising is just as potent a lever now as it was then.

The American Sunday School Union in Minnesota.

Those who have watched the growth and usefulness of the American S. S. Union will be pleased to learn that success crowned the efforts of the consecrated Missionaries who represented this great Society in the neglected sections of our state last year. We began the year with sixteen men one retired after spending only a few months in the service. The following report represents the work actually accomplished by fifteen men on the frontier and isolated sections of the more thickly settled rural districts.

Our ambition, as a society, is to go to the "otherwise unreached" for whom Christ died. The work is primarily for the children, organizing Sunday Schools among them, giving them gospel privileges and good reading matter. 149 were opened, 4858 pupils were enrolled, 531 publicly confessed Christ, 1408 sermons and addresses were delivered, nearly one thousand bibles and testaments were distributed. Over 1700 scholars came in touch with the missionaries in their work, 8052 homes were visited where seldom if ever a regular pastor is seen; 24 points have been turned over to the denominational churches and are now being fostered by them.

We are grateful to the pulpit, Press and personal friends for their assistance in this good work.

Yours for the childern;
John O. Ferris;
State Representative.

Work For The Red River Valley Dairymen's Association.

—From Dairy Record—"Crookston to be Creamery Centre" is the gleeful head-line in the Crookston, Minn,. Times over an account of the sale of the local creamery to a firm that will at once turn it into a first-class plant in every particular, capable of manufacturing upwards of 1,000,000 pounds of butter per annum." If the good people of Crookston really want their town to be the centre of Red River Valley Dairying, they should have the officers of the Red River Dairymen's Association give the Times editor a few pointers as to what makes a great dairy district. And it would seem that the same association has a lot of missionary work waiting for it.

THINKS COMBINES TO BLAME

Senator Lodge Discusses Cause of High Prices.

Brockton, Mass., March 22.—Discussing the tariff and the cause of high prices Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, speaking at a Republican rally, said:

"I have no doubt myself, although I await the result of the inquiry of the committee of which I am chairman, that at the present time there are certain articles which are lifted above a normal market price by combinations to control the market. If it can be proved that such combinations exist, creating artificial prices by artificial means, I am in favor of any legislation which will remedy such an evil."

Mr. Lodge scouted the charge that on many important articles the high prices are due to the tariff. The advance in prices, he maintained, was worldwide and due chiefly to the enormous increase in the supply of gold.

PACKERS ARE INDICTED

Suit Follows to Dissolve Alleged Combination.

Chicago, March 22.—Eight weeks after it began its investigation of alleged violations of the Sherman antitrust law, the federal grand jury returned indictments against the National Packing company and ten subsidiary concerns.

Immediately upon the announcement of the indictments before Judge Kenesaw M. Landis the government filed a suit seeking the dissolution of the National Packing company.

The latter action is known as a suit in equity, and besides those indicted sixteen firms and individuals are made defendants. In a statement issued on behalf of the National Packing company, Ralph Crews, its general counsel, gives some inkling of the determination to fight the government to the limit.

Killed by Cave-in of Cut.

A week ago Saturday, Arne Byklum residing in Chester Township, Polk county, was killed by a cave-in of a cut in which he was working about a mile east of Gully on the New Plummer—Duluth Soo line now under construction. Byklum with some of his neighbors had taken a sub contract of grading and it was while working at this that he was killed. He had just exploded a charge of dynamite in the cut and having shoveled down as he thought all the lossened dirt, he desended into the cut to load a dump car: while so doing another mass of the frozen dirt slid down into the cut pinning him against the car. He lived but a short time after being rescued. He was the son of Torger Byklum of Chester and was but 21 years old.

Dies Very Suddenly.

Rosmunda Gunderson, residing with her son Otto, in the town of Garnes died very suddenly of heart failure about two thirty Wednesday morning Corner Melby was down from Thief River Fall in the evening and issued a death certificate deciding that a inquest was unnecessary. Deceased was 65 years of age and had resided in Garnes a little over a year comming here from Iowa. Besides her son Otto she has a daughter, Mrs. O. M. Mattson living in Garnes.

New Record For Early Plowing.

Crookston Times, March 20th. This morning H. A. Tofsley, the well known and progressive Hammond Townspip farmer, started plowing. He phoned in that the ground is in fine shape and permitted first class work. This is the earliest plowing that has been done in this section for many years, and none was ever done much if any earlier. Farm work will be general in Hammond Monday, practically all the farmers planning on harrowing, and a few will seed some wheat if the weather continues as at present, and there are no indications of any change.

While the season is generally a trifle earlier in western Polk county on account of the soil being so sandy and not as heavy as in this vicinity several of the farmers here stated that they had fields that were in such shape that they could be seeded but they were afraid that it was almost too early and doubtful whether the present weather was the real thing in the „spring" line.

March so far has been the warmest ever recorded in the annals of the U. S. Weather Bureau since a branch of that department has been established in Minnesota. Some of the smaller rivers to the south opened up the first of last week while the Clearwater opened up last Saturday and the Red Lake the first of this week. Navigation has already opened up on the Red Lake River being the earliest in the memory of any of the white settlers altho a few of the old timers state that the spring of '95 was just as early.

RAILROAD MAN KILLED

Former Chief Dispatcher at Thief River Falls Fataly Injured.

While working in the train yards in Minneapolis last Sunday morning at 4:30 Wm. G. Gillick former chief dispatcher here and then acting trainmaster of the Glenwood division was struck by the moving cars of a train he was directing and sustained injuries that ended his life at 9:40 A. M. the same day.

The injured man was hurried to the Swedish hospital not far away and his wife was called. Mr. Gillick remained conscious up to the very last and talked freely with his wife who remained at his side to the end.

Mr. Gillick was thirty-one years of age. He has been for six years in the employ of the Soo Line and during that time had made very rapid progress and was considered by those who knew him as one of the best and ablest men on the Line. Besides his wife he leaves a son three years old and a daughter two years old to look in vain for the loving father's return. Others relatives were, his father and sister and four brothers all prominent in railway circles. These are J. T. Gillick Supt. on the Milwaukee road L. W. Gillick Passenger Conductor, E. G. Gillick R. R. Station Agent and H. M. Gillick Train Dispatcher. One brother residing at Tacoma, Wash. was unable to be present at the funeral.

The funeral was held from the Holy Rosary church at 9:00 A. M on Tuesday and the enterment was at the St. Marys Cemetery.

The four brothers named and two of Mrs. Gillick's brothers acted as pall bearers. Every dispatcher on entire system had contributed something toward a floral offering for the departed comrad and such a display of floral mementoes was scarcely ever seen on such an occassion, and everyone seemed to be more than ever impressed with the sadness of the hour.

Those from this city who attended the last sad rites were, Miss Flynn, Mrs. Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Boyce, Supt., Ed. Foster, Mr. Jones, O. J. Schei and Dr. Bockman.

Arrangements had been completed to have Mr. Gillick go to Glenwood on Tuesday to take charge of that office but cruel fats had decreed a longer journey for our friend.

While residing here both Mr. and Mrs. Gillick made many friends who will learn with much regret of their friends early departure and the families bereavement.

Peat Plant at Fertile.

G. M. Bigelow of New Hampron, Iowa and P. W Belangee of Waterloo were at the state capitol today to file articles of incorperation for the Peat Fuel Manufacturing Company. They have a tract of 240 acres of peat two miles from Fertile Minnesota, averaging sixteen feet in depth, and unique in the fact that it is above the surrounding country. So far as known it is the only upland peat bed in the country.

The company which is to start with a capitalization of $250,000, has a process for drying and briquetting the peat, partly by air drying and partly by steam. It will put the briquettes on the market in competition with coal, and the fiberous portion of the peat, which will be seperated in the briquetting process, will be baled and sold for stable,being a disinfectant and absorbent. The company's offices will be in Minneapolis and the first annual meeting will be held May 2nd.

" We are going to begin the erection of our plant right away," Said Mr. Belangee today " and will be able to commence production this summer. We know that there is a big market for our product. An exhibit is being prepared for the conservation congress this week that will show what we expect to accomplish." —Minneapolis Journal.

Seed Breeding.

One of the most important things which the division of agriculture of the Minnesota Experiment Station has done for the benefit of the farmers is the breeding of pedigreed seeds.

It has been known for a long time that animals could be bred for efficiency along desired lines, but the knowledge is of comparatively recent date that seeds—those wonderful storehouses of energy, beauty and utility, could be similary bred, and thus induced to produce a greater amount or a better quality or both of grain. That this is preeminently true however, has been ably demonstrated by the Agricultural Division, which has produced several varieties of improved grains, including corn, barley oats, flax and wheat, which are much more prolific than the grains commonly grown and which have in their increased yield, neteed the farmers of the state many thousands of dollars. These seeds may be obtained from the Saation or from co-operating seed growers, at resonable prices, and with each purchase a certificate of pedigree and purity of seed is issued to the purchaser.

Prof. Andrew Boss, chief of this division, states that something over 15,000 bushels of pedigreed seeds have been distributed at first hand to 3,248 co-operating seed growers, and that these men have in turn supplied so many farmersthat it is estimated that from one fourth to one third of the grain growing area of Minnesota is now seeded annually to improved seeds developed at the Experiment Station.

Pittsburg may rejoice at times that a pall of smoke hangs over that "worthy burg."

If the insurgents and democrats are going after "Uncle Joe" as hard as the cartoonists, he certainly must be having a tuff time of it.

All the "old ones" are talking about the spring of '95 and even the worst pessimists are acknowledging that "it looks like spring."

The insurgents are reported to have won a wonderful victory in the House of Representatives the first of the week. Whether the people will feel the effects of the victory time alone will tell.

Why not have a clean-up week in Plummer in the near future? There are several spots that could be made more sightly and the visitor thus leave with a good impression of our town instead of a poor one.

A bill has been introduced into Congress for uniform federal inspection and grading of grain. The boards of Trade are reported to be lobbying against it in the interest of the big elevator terminal trusts.

The PIONEER is always glad to publish any news of local interest. When you know of such tell us about it, or if you want to express your opinion on some local topic write up your copy, sign it, and bring or send it in; we will always be glad to give you space. Tellyour views to several hundred, instead of to the few you happen to meet, when they are on topics of public interest.

Under the heading, "What the creamery is to blame for in King township" the McIntosh Times gives a list of new barns, residences, and telephones that the farmers are putting up. If the situation is the same as it is in the vicinity of Plummer, they could have added the fact that instead of paying Eastern capitalists interest on mortgages the creamery patrons have money in the bank at interest.

James J. Hill ascribes the cost of high living to an extravagant disposition not only of the individual but of the nation, states and municipalities as well. Dr. Atwater of the Wesleayan University has performed a series of scientific investigations to determine the laws of nutrition and finds that the cost of highliving is due to the fact that we use greater amounts of expensive food stuffs than were formerly used and stil these food stuffs are not necessarily the most nutritious. We quote from him the following.

"We cannot judge of nutritive value of food by the quantity. There is as much nutriment in a pound of wheat flour as in seven pounds, or three and one-half quarts of oysters. There is still less connection between nutritive value and prices. In buying at ordinary market rates we get as much material to build up our bodies, repair their wastes and give strength for work, in 5 cents' worth of flour or beans or codfish as 50 cents or a dollar will pay for in tenderloin, salmon or lobsters.

"One of the ways in which many people are uneconomical is in the buying of needlessly high-priced foods. For this error prejudice, the palate and poor cooking are mainly responsible. There is a prevalent but unfounded idea that the costliest foods, such as the tenderest meats the finest fish the highest priced butter, fancy brands of flour and the most delicate vegetables, possess some peculiar virtue which is lacking in the less expensive materials. many who have small incomes and really wish to econnomize think it beneath them to use the cheaper meats and inexpensive but substantial groceries. People pay for flavor rather than for nutriment, and in many households high prices are depended on to make the tale attractive, when good cooking and tasteful serving would be far better if they were practiced,"

The Week in Congress.

Washington, D. C. March 23th, 1910. With the Insurgents and Democrats practically in control of the House of Representatives and thoroughly determined to wrest from Speaker Cannon his power at the earliest possible date; with the fighting forced in the Senate against both Senator Aldrich and the Administration by Senator Cummins, of Iowa, and his fellow-Insurgents in that body, and with the greatest legal battle in a generation in the Supreme Court of the United States over the case which will determine whether the Standard Oil Company shall be disolved under the Sherman anti-trust law, the past week in Washington has been replete with excitement.

In the house the situation has become more sensational than at any time since the early nineties, when the Democrats and Republicans fought so bitterly over the Reed rules, and it is a significant fact that those same Reed rules have risen to plague and probably defeat those who have upheld them. By those rules Cannon and Cannonism have been retained in control of the house. Sufficient strength has been shown on every test vote taken during the present session and especially during the past few days to indicate that those rules will be fundamentally amended. If they are fundamentally amended it will not be necessary to wait for the next election of members of the House to overthrow the power of Cannon and Candonism; it will be nullified immediately.

As is usual in great crises, the storm that has been slowly gathering has been precipitated by a technicality. On Wednesday a small cloud appeared on the horizon of the Capitol. It was an apparently harmless resolution offered by Representative Crumpacker, of Indiana, amending the Census law so as to provide for an additional question in the enumeration of the population of the United States to be taken next sum-in order to secure information regarding the mother tongue of all citizens. Mr. Crumpacker is the only Republican representative of Indiana now in the House and is a Regular. Representative Fitzgerald, of New York, a Democrat and a member of the Rules Committee, argued that the bill was not entitled to come up for discussion as the day had been set aside for the consideration of bills on the calendar in their regular order. Mr. Crumpacker retorted that the measure was privileged under the fundamental law of the land—the constitution—for the reason that it concerned the carrying out of a work provided in that document. The Speaker upheld the Indiana member. Mr. Fitzgerald appealed from the decision of the chair. The Regulars then sought to postpona consideration until the following day, but were defeated decisively by a vote of 153 to 121. The Speaker then made a personal plea to the House in which he stated that he was only what other speakers had been. This resulted in the most humiliating defeat yet sustained by the House organization. The appeal was sustainrd by a vote of 163 to 111, a majority of 52.

The Regulars had hardly recovered from the dazed state into which they were thus thrown when on Thursday the Insurgents proved that they intended to use the Speaker's own argument against him. Representative Norris, of Nebraska, one of the ablest fighters among those opposing Cannon, offered a resolution which would follow up the victory gained by the combination of Insurgents and Democrats and deprive the Speaker of the powrr to enforce his own individual ideas regarding legislation. His resolution provides that the Rules Committee shall be enlarged from its present membership of five to fifteen, consisting of nine Republicans and six Democrats. The Regulars promptly objected to consideration and it was up to the Speaker to give a ruling on its consideration. They then precipitated a lively filibuster by discussion and attempts to adjourn, in every one of which they were defeated. An all-night session and deadlock resulted.

Summed up in a few words the situation is as follows: Speaker Cannon and the Regular organization in the House, which have been in absolute ascendancy during the last seven years, are hopelessly beaten. They have not a sufficient number of votes to control, no matter how many Regulars who are out of Washington return to the city and take their seats in the House. Speaker Cannon was elected by a very slight majority, brought about by a combination with Representative Fitzgerald, of New York. Since that time so Republican members of the House who then supported Cannon for the Speakership have been impressed with sentiment adverse to him in their districts and have joined the ranks of the Insurgents that the majority of a year ago has dwindled into a minority. That the Regulars consede this is indicated by the several attempts at compromise that been made. They have agreed to an enlargement of the committee but not to the elimination from that committee of Speaker Cannon as proposed in the Norris resolution. Hence all attempts at compromise have failed.

It is now apparent that the Insurgent and Democratic combination will control the House during the remainder ot this session and the Sixty-second Congress. It is conceded here that the fight will go on with more or less acrimony until Congress adjourns. With the House in a constant uproar, the serious consideration of the legislation recommended by the President and the success of his entire legislative program are looked upon by many members of both House and Senate as extremely doubtful. The President has upheld the Regulars and depended upon the Speaker to put through his measures. They have met with overwhelming defeat and now the politicians admit that if those measures go through it will be after they have been overhauled and emasculated by the Insurgents and Democrats. With a comparatively slight majority held by this combination and snch a wide divergence of opinon prevailing in the House in regard to the Presidential program, it is not likely that any of the bills in that program will be excepted readily by the Senate when they reach a conference of the two houses.

This reveals another situation in which the Regulars in the House have been placed by the developments of the week. For years a Republican President has been able to secure the passage of legislation through agreements reached with the leaders of both House and Senate. During a part ot President Roosevelt term he was opposed by those leaders and they were able to force through measures that were not entirelp to his liking but which were signed by him because he excepted them in principle. President Taft has sought the support of Cannon and Aldrich. Now Cannon can no longer "deliver the goods" either to the leaders of the party in the Senate or the President himself. Agreements reached between the Senate and House leaders can not be carried out. This makes the future of legislation during the remainder of the session doubly uncertain.

Coincident with the fight made against the Speaker and the Regular organization in the House, the Insurgents in the Senate have thrown down the guantlet to Aldrich. In a speech in that body Senator Cummins attacked the Administration's bill to amend the Interstate Commerce act of 1896 on the ground that it was in reality an attempt to repeal the railway rate law, enacted after the now historic fight made against that law by the railroads. Senator Aldrich replied that the bill was submitted by the Attorney-General and the President, implying that if any blame was attached to the bill it should be laid at the door of those who formulated it. Senator Aldrich sought by veiled statements to read Cummins out of the party. Senator Bailey pointed out to tke Senate that Aldrich was really trying to bring out that Cummins was opposed to the administration. The latter made the very significant admission that rhis was true.

Behind Cummins in his fight against the commerce bill in its present form are all the Insurgents, and on the facts presented they will make a stand and attempt to override the Senate Regulars and materially amend the bill, with the aid of the Democrats. If they succeed they will be able to show the country that Senator Aldrich has no more power to deliver the Senate than has Speaker Cannon any longer the power to promise certain legislation enacted in a certain way in the House.

PEACE REIGNS IN THE HOUSE

Regulars and Insurgents on Speaking Terms.

BOTH SIDES WANT HARMONY

Desire to Enact Legislation That Can Be Used as Capital for the Republican Party at the Coming Elections. Speaker Cannon's Speech of Saturday Night the Subject of Adverse Comment.

Washington, March 22.—For the first time in two years the leaders of the Republican factions in the house of representatives speak as they pass by. All was peace and order in the house, where the riot and disorder prevailed in the closing days of last week. This was true behind the scenes as well as on the open stage. Insurgent leaders as well as regulars got together in conference, each side expressing a desire for harmony to the end that legislation might be enacted to be used as capital for the grand old party at the coming elections. Some of the hotheads among the regulars declared in stentorian tones that the nine insurgent Republicans who voted to depose Speaker Cannon on Saturday should be denied admission to the party caucus that is to be held this week to nominate the majority members of the new committee on rules. Conservatives counseled moderation, pointing out that the insurgents were willing to meet the regulars half way in order that the house might get down to the enactment of legislation demanded by the country and recommended by the administration.

"No Republican who wants to attend will be debarred from the meeting to be called this week," said Representative Currier, chairman of the Republican caucus. "We want all Republicans to come into line for the good of the party."

Insurgent leaders said that they would not insist upon representation on the committee on rules. All they wanted was that a committee of fair men should be named. Assurances were given by the regulars that a committee would be nominated that would in no respect be obnoxious to the men who so successfully attacked the house organization last week.

Merry Row In Prospect.

The Democrats will meet in caucus to select the minority members of the committee on rules. The Republicans will meet for a like purpose later in the week. There promises to be a merry row at the Democratic gathering. It is agreed by the Democrats that Minority Leader Clark of Missouri and Representative Fitzgerald, who are members of the present committee on rules, shall be appointed to the new committee. A lively scrap is imminent over the filling of the two other minority places. Representatives Underwood of Alabama and Slayden of Texas are candidates for one of the places, while Representatives Shirley of Kentucky and Hammond of Minnesota are aspirants for the fourth position.

The regular leaders discussed informally the question as to the personnel of the rules committee. It seems to be settled that Representatives Dalzell of Pennsylvania and Smith, members of the old committee, will be elected to the new committee. Representative Norris of Nebraska, the insurgent who led the fight last week, in discussing the personnel of the committee, said:

"We will not urge the appointment of an insurgent. We will abide by the action of the caucus, firm in the belief that fair men will be named. Inasmuch as the minority leader, Mr. Clark, is to go on this committee I see no reason why the majority leader, Mr. Payne, should not be assigned to it."

"Until we have had an opportunity for an extended conference it is impossible to say just whom the regulars will propose for place on the committee on rules," said Representative Tawney of Minnesota.

Speaker Cannon's speech at the banquet of the Illinois association Saturday night, in which he excoriated the insurgents who voted against t Burleson resolution declaring t speaker's chair vacant, excited a good deal of adverse comment.

Child Accused of Crime.

Massillon, O., March 22.—A story that is unique in the history of Ohio crime is contained in the charge of murder that the police have laid against Catherine Manz, a child sixteen years old. She is accused of poisoning her sister Elizabeth, three years her senior, with strychnine and the motive imputed to her is jealousy of her sister's wardrobe, more brilliant than her own.

Jealous Lover Kills Girl.

Superior, Wis., March 22.—Dorothy Brooks of this city was shot and killed by Dugal McIntosh of Proctor, Minn., who immediately turned the weapon upon himself and died an hour later. McIntosh was infatuated with the girl and the tragedy followed a quarrel over her acceptance of the attentions of other men.

PRESIDENT TAFT LAUDS IRISH

Eulogizes Sons of Emerald Isle Who Have Helped Make History.

Chicago, March 18.—St. Patrick was nobly remembered in Chicago, but the brunt of it fell upon President Taft and he was a thoroughly tired man when his train left for Rochester, N. Y.

During the day he spoke to members of the Chicago Newspaper club, the Traffic club, to a mass meeting, to members and guests of the Hamilton club and twice at functions provided by the Irish Fellowship club, which was his host for the day.

At the Irish Fellowship club President Taft reviewed the life and works of St. Patrick, declaring that attempts of critical German scholars to show the life of the patron saint a myth had been shattered by the recent discovery of proofs of his works.

The president also eulogized the noted Irishmen who had made history in the Old world and in the New.

DISPUTE TO BE SETTLED

Firemen on Western Railroads Will Not Strike.

Chicago, March 22.—All questions in dispute between the 27,000 firemen on Western railroads and the railroad managers will be amicably settled, according to an arrangement reached through the aid of United States Commissioner of Labor C. P. Neill. It was agreed by W. S. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and his committee representing the men, and the general managers' committee, representing the forty-seven railroads involved, to settle the controversy in the following manner:

The question of seniority, or the promotion of old time firemen over new men, and the question of representation by the union of firemen who have been promoted to be engineers are to be compromised before any arbitration is attempted.

The demand of the men for an increase in wages of 12½ per cent is then to be submitted to arbitration under the Erdman act.

GUILTY OF ACCEPTING BRIBES

Ten Pitsburg Councilmen Confess to Wrongdoing.

Pittsburg, March 22.—Forty present and former members of the select and common councils under indictment on a charge of bribery, and ten more with suspended sentences and held in $500 bonds upon their own confession of sharing in a pool of $102,000 to influence the votes of the municipal bodies, is the result of the first day's probe of the grand jury following the sensational confession of Captain John Klein, former member of the councils, who, as chief disbursing officer of the fund, characterizes himself as "chancellor of the exchequer."

Up to the adjournment of the court for the day ten had confessed their guilt. In most instances the amount of money they confessed to accepting as a bribe was not over $100. One man got $500 and another $200, while others got but $81.10.

ARGUMENTS ARE COMPLETED

Oil Trust Dissolution Case Now Rests With Supreme Court.

Washington, March 17.—The dissolution of the "Standard Oil" is now a question for the supreme court of the United States to grapple with alone. The final argument of the famous suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company of New Jersey as a conspiracy and a monopoly in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law has been made and the court took the matter under consideration.

Long Hatpins Barred.

Chicago, March 22.—It is now a misdemeanor for any woman to wear a long hatpin in public places in Chicago. Any woman caught wearing one is liable to arrest and a fine of $50.

DEATH BLOW TO "CANNONISM"

Insurgent and Democratic Allies Force Speaker From the Rules Committee.

WILL CONTINUE TO PRESIDE

Insurgents Desert Democrats on a Motion to Declare the Chair Vacant.

Washington, March 19.—Speaker Cannon went down to defeat today, but when his enemies believed him to be in utter rout he turned and forced from them what practically amounts to a vote of confidence. It was the last play of a veteran fighter and of a parliamentarian whose hand has been trained by years of practical experience.

The speaker was forced from the rules committee by a vote of 191 to 155, forty Republican insurgents siding with the solid Democratic vote. The trick that the speaker turned on his enemies was in the form of a resolution presented by Representative Burleson of Texas, a Democrat, declaring the speaker's chair vacant and ordering an election of Mr. Cannon's successor. The speaker already had announced from the chair that he would entertain such a motion. It was promptly voted down by 191 to 155 amid a scene that is probably without parallel in the history of the house of representatives. Only nine insurgents sided with the Democrats in voting to depose Uncle Joe from the post that he has held for seven years. As a matter of fact the proposition to oust him from the speakership was rejected by a majority of thirty-six, which is ten more than the majority that the speaker had when he was first elected to the office. By paving the way for this vote on the speakership question, which never has been directly involved in the present fight, Mr. Cannon adroitly drew a line of cleavage between the issue presented in his present defeat and that known as Cannonism. The vote will go before the country as the best evidence that Cannon, the individual, was not the issue in the present struggle, but that it was the system which he had inherited from his predecessor. It was a mighty clever move on the speaker's part and it also was the child of his own brain, as his advisers had been urging him to throw down the gavel and resign.

Power of Organization Gone.

The rules committee, under the insurgent victory today, will be changed from the form which it has had for half a century and the Cannon organization will be shorn of the power which it has exercised under it for the last seven years. The committee will be enlarged from five to ten members, all of whom shall be elected by the house itself, instead of being appointed by the speaker. Of the ten six are to be Republicans and four Democrats. In the selection of the members of this committee will be found the possibility of another big row in the house, although it is conceded that the insurgents and the Democrats will be able to carry out their will in the matter if they stick together. On this point, however, there is a much greater chance of a split. The resolution adopted by the insurgents and Democratic vote specifically eliminates the speaker from the committee.

From the very beginning of the fight in the house today it was apparent to everybody that the Cannon organization would be humbled and the control of the house, temporarily at least, transferred from the Republican normal majority to the actual majority composed of the insurgents and the Democrats. The first test vote foreshadowed defeat for the regulars and each succeeding vote demonstrated as the day wore on that the insurgents were gathering strength. Here is the Norris resolution which caused the row, but which was adopted:

"There shall be a committee on rules, elected by the house (hitherto the committee of five, like all other house committees, has been appointed by the speaker), consisting of ten members, six of whom shall be members of the majority party and four of whom shall be members of the minority party. The speaker shall not be a member of the committee and the committee shall elect its own chairman from its own members.

"Resolved, further, That within ten days after the adoption of this resolution there shall be an election of this committee and immediately upon its election the present committee on rules shall be dissolved."

Senator Daniel Improves.

Daytona, Fla., March 22.—Further signs of improvement in the condition of United States Senator John W. Daniel of Virginia, who has been suffering from a stroke of paralysis, are noted. There is some muscular twitching of the paralyzed leg. The senator is again conscious.

A Shot That Made Trouble.

An odd incident happened in the then Danish West Indies in the last century that nearly caused serious international complications. An American marksman, paying a visit to Charlotte Amalia, amused the governor by an exhibition of his skill with the rifle. Sitting on the veranda of the government house, he said that he could cut with a bullet the signal halyards on the flagstaff of the fort and lower the Danish standard to the ground. As the lines were almost invisible in the distance the governor was willing to bet that he could not do it. The shot rang out, and the flag fell. Presently a horseman dashed up, informing the governor that some one had fired on the flag. There was great excitement. The governor, none too popular, it seems, with the military, ruined his political future by admitting that the affair was a joke in which he connived. Report being sent to Copenhagen, highly colored, of course, by the commandant, his excellency was summarily removed.

Cultivating Ginger.

Ginger is made a matter of scientific culture in Jamaica. It is propagated by cutting up small pieces of the root, and, if possible, rich, cool soil from recently cleared woods is selected for it. It is a great impoverisher of the soil and grows so luxuriantly that in a short time a little piece of root will spread so as to produce nearly a pound of new roots. The sets are planted in March or April and get to their full growth about September. The roots are dug usually in Jamaica in January or February. They are washed, exposed to the sun until thoroughly dried and packed in parcels of about a hundred pounds each. In order to dry them more rapidly they are first scalded in a little copper pot in order to destroy life, of which the roots are very tenacious. White ginger and black ginger are from the same roots, the difference arising from methods of curing. Roots for sugar preserving are dug while quite young, before the stems are more than five or six inches high.

A Luckless Word.

Superstition dies hard, at least in the north of England. On Tyneside it is reckoned highly unlucky to hear or mention the word "pig," and evil consequences can only be averted by touching cold iron. If that material is not at hand its name must be uttered aloud as the next best thing.

It is no uncommon thing to see a group of sailors or workmen suddenly scatter to lay hold of iron railings, lampposts, etc., when by chance "pig" has slipped into their conversation.

A stranger to the district was not long ago puzzled to see four little shoeblacks, squatted at a game of cards on their blacking box, suddenly scramble to their feet, run to some iron posts several yards away, touch them and then return and resume their game quite unconcernedly. When he obtained an explanation his amusement equaled his astonishment. The origin of the superstition seems to be unknown.—London Scraps.

Uses Animals Make of Their Tails.

Horses, cows and other creatures use their tails as fly flappers. Cats, squirrels and many more twist them around their necks for comforters. The rat has raised the use of the tail to a fine art, for by its means it guides the blind and steals jelly, oil and cream out of jars and bottles. The macaco plays as merrily with its tail as a kitten does, and the marmoset while it sleeps uses its tail as a sort of blanket. The raccoon catches crabs with its tail. Every one knows how the monkeys journey through pathless forests by swinging from tree to tree, while the fishes steer their way through the water by their tail fins. The ant eater puts up its big bushy tail for an umbrella. The vanity of the peacock is fed by the beauty of its tail.—Dumb Animals.

A Chemist's Happy Thought.

The guests at a ball given at the Tuileries, Paris, were once distressed by something in the air which irritated everybody. The most famous chemist of the day was consulted as to the mysterious cause. His son-in-law, Dumas, had the happy thought that perhaps the irritating particles in the air came from the wax candles. He found on analysis that these candles had been bleached by chlorine. Immediately they were lighted a compound was added to the air that irritated throats and noses. This chance discovery led Dumas to study the whole effect of chlorine, with farreaching results in chemistry.

Exact Information.

A census enumerator was questioning a woman of indubitable Celtic extraction and had come to the division of sexes.

"How many males have you in your family?" he asked.

"Three a day, sorr, an' I git 'um me silf," she replied emphatically.

Forethought.

"You are probably not aware, sir," said the angry father, "that last year my daughter spent $1,500 on her dress."

"Yes, I am," said the young man firmly. "I advised her to do it over a year ago, when we first became engaged."

YOU SHOULD TEST YOUR SEED CORN

THE STATE EXPERIMENT STATION URGES TESTING AND GRADING OF SEED CORN

TESTING SHOULD NOTBE DELAYED

Selection of Good Grain for Planting By the Use of a Well Constructed Fanning Mill.

Individual Ear Test of Seed Corn.

There is an alarming condition in the corn states south of Minnesota. The question of seed corn is disturbing the farmers. Continuous tests of Nebraska corn, made by the Commercial Club of Omaha, fail to show more than a thirty per cent test of germination. That is to say, the tests fail to show than more than 30 kernels of corn out of 100 germinate, when tested for their power of germination. Nebraska is looking elsewhere for seed that will grow, and the railroads are sending bulletins to their agents to warn the farmers in season for them to procure seed.

Fortunately Minnesota is better off, but whether she will have any seed to spare will depend upon the tests the Experiment station at St. Anthony Park is urging farmers to make, and will continue to urge them to do, until the planting season is over. Hence Minnesota farmers are in position to supply a large amount of seed to their southern brethren if their own tests develop as well as the corn tested for a few farmers at the station thus far made.

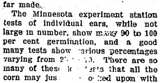

Fig. 1. An illustration of the testing box described herewith. Note the two-inch squares which should be numbered, also the method of rolling back the cover cloth which [illegible] on back part of box.

The Minnesota experiment station tests of individual ears, while not large in number, show many 90 to 100 per cent germination, and a good many tests show various percentages varying from 2[illegible]. There are so many of these low tests that all the corn may justly be looked upon with suspicion until every farmer makes his own test and knows exactly what his seed will do. Farmers having 90 to 100 per cent germination seed will find a ready sale for their surplus.

The Minnesota experiment station recommends the following method of testing seed corn: Take a box 36 inches square, and from 4 to 6 inches deep. Fill it with sawdust, sand or dirt. Moisten it well. Take a piece of sheeting large enough to cover the top of the box. Mark it off into two-inch squares with a lead pencil and number the squares. This makes 324 squares, or spaces enough to test the seed ears needed for twenty acres. Next, get three or four six-inch boards. Divide them into 2½ inch spaces by driving ten penny nails every 2½ inches, and number the spaces. Select what you regard as the best ears. With a knife remove ten kernels, one from each of ten places on the ear, carefully avoiding the tip and butt kernels. Place these ten kernels on ear No. 1 on the square No. 1 in the box, and place the ear back on space No. 1 on the board; then treat ear No. 2 in the same manner. Treat all the ears in this manner. Cover the box with a damp cloth and a little more sawdust, or sand, or dirt, and set it away in a warm place, as in a living room, and keep moist, but not saturated. In 5 or 6 days examine for germination. Roll the upper cloth back carefully so as to not disturb the seeds. Watch the number of kernels starting and the vigor of growth. If ten kernels sprout in square No. 1 in the box, it means that the ear on Space No. 1 on the board will germinate 100 per cent. If you find in any square in the box only 3 kernels sprouting, you may know that only 30 per cent. of the seed is germinating on the ear of the same number on the board. Such an ear is not good enough for seed, for no ear should be saved which germinates less than 90 per cent, unless better seed cannot be secured. In that case use the 80 per cent seed, but plant one more kernel to each hill than is the custom. Much better results will come from using 100 per cent seed. The temperature for testing should be between 60 and 80 degrees.

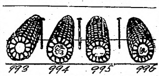

Fig. 2. Shows one method of keeping the ears separate while the testing is in progress. The ears could as well be forced on to the nails and the numbers placed at the foot of each nail. The figures under the ears are only suggestive of the way of numbering each.

If it is not possible to make a single ear test, test of the bulk should be made. For this testing two plates will suffice. Partly fill one plate with sand or dirt; count out 100 kernels just as they come. Stick these points downward in the sand. Moisten the sand thoroughly and turn the other plate over the whole. Set the "germinator" (the two plates) in a warm room and keep the sand or dirt moist. In five or six days the amount of germination can be noted. A low or weak germination now means a much lower or weaker one, or a total failure, at planting time. Observe closely the germinated seed when counting, and reject all seeds as not germinated which do not have both roots and stem, and a strong, vigorous growth. If seed tests well from this test it is not necessary to make the individual ear test, but if the bulk test shows a low germination, much good seed may be secured eliminated by the individual ear test. from the bulk if the poor ears are

Mr. F. W. Meyer, of St. James, writes to the department that where he planted seed testing 100 per cent, that is, seed from ears whose ten kernels sprouted, he had 100 per cent stand of corn, and where he planted seed testing 90 per cent he had a stand of only 92 per cent, a loss of eight per cent, which means four bushels on a fifty bushel yield. In 1908 Mr. Meyer tested 5,000 ears of corn and figuring his time worth 25 cents per hour, it cost him 15 cents per acre to thus test his seed.

If more details are desired the Division of Agriculture, University Farm, St. Paul, will cheerfully supply it on request.

CLEANING AND GRADING GRAIN.

(Minn. Bul. No. 115.)

Selection of Seed.

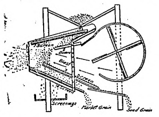
Superior individuals may be selected from the bin of grain as well as from the herd of cattle. Individual kernels of grain vary as much in ability to produce good or poor offspring as do individual animals. The heavy, plump seeds were produced in most cases upon the strongest and most vigorous plants, and the light, shrunken seeds from the weaker, less vigorous plants. That "like produces like" is a well-known axiom in plant breeding. The influence of heredity is as strong in plant life as in animal life. Improvements can be effected only by eliminating the poorest and breeding from the strongest individuals. Hence there is as much reason for selecting good individual seeds of grain as for selecting good individual animals.

Yields From Heavy and Light Weight Seeds.

A plump, heavy kernel of grain will produce a stronger plant and nourish it better than will a shrunken, light kernel. This fact has been demonstrated beyond doubt by testing the yield from light and heavy weight seeds.

FANNING MILL SELECTION.



"Side-Shake" Mill for Separating Seed Grain.

Screen No. 1 should be just coarse enough to let the grain through. It is used simply to run off sticks and straw. Board No. 2 carries the grain backward in the mill, so as to let it drop through the blast at one place. The light kernels are blown past the end of screen No. 3, the heavier kernels fall on screen No. 3. Board No. 2 may be moved forward or backward to throw a large or small per cent of grain on screen No. 3, as desired. Screen No. 3 should be coarse enough to let the small kernels through on to Screen No. 4.

Screen No. 3 is adjustable as to slant and may be moved forward or backward to regulate the amount of grain it will catch. Screen No. 4 is fine enough to carry nearly all of the grain over into market grain. Any side shake mill may be fixed up in this way. Separation by weight can not be made with the end shake mills, but the large kernels can be separated from the small ones in any proportion desired, simply by using coarse or fine screens in the lower part of mill.

The Nebraska Experiment Station compared heavy and light weight seed of winter wheat for two years by sowing them side by side in the field, and the heavy seed averaged 4.6 bushels more per acre than did the light weight seed.

A similar experiment at the Minnesota Experiment Station with heavy and light weight oats (Bulletin No. 31) gave an increase of 9¼ bushels per acre in favor of the heavy seed and heavy wheat gave a yield 36 per cent greater than that of light wheat.

Principles of Separating Grain.

Being convinced of the value of good seed, the question now arises: How may a farmer select good seed in a practical manner? Every field or bin of grain has kernels in it which differ in producing power, some are good, some are poor. It is only the best than are wanted for seed. There are two principles by which grain can be separated in ordinary fanning mills, namely, by weight and by size of kernel.

Fanning Mills.

With the end shake fanning mill, grain can be well cleaned and the small seeds screened out, but there is no way to get the light, full sized seeds separated from the heavy seeds. For this purpose the side shake mills are preferable, as they are so arranged that the grain can be allowed to drop several inches thru a strong wind blast. This blast blows the lighter kernels over the end of the screen and the heavy kernels fall on the screen, which is coarse enough to let the small kernels thru. Thus, only the heavy and large kernels get into the seed grain while the smaller and lighter ones go into the market grain.

FORTY-FIVE DEAD IN IOWA WRECK

CAUSED BY SPREADING RAILS

Train on Rock Island Railroad Ditched While Going Thirty Miles an Hour.

Marshalltown, Ia., March 22.—Forty-five people were killed and forty were injured, many of them fatally, in the wreck four and a half miles north of Green Mountain, Ia., of a Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific passenger train.

The train, which was a consolidation of No. 19 from Chicago, and No. 21 from St. Louis, bound for St. Paul, was being detoured over the tracks of the Chicago Great Western road. Going at about thirty miles an hour, with the engines running backward, in a cut north of Green Mountain the train struck a spread rail, it is believed.

The tender of the pilot locomotive jumped the track and with terrific force was buried in an embankment of soft clay. A second locomotive, just behind the first, rolled over and the impact of the sudden stop hurled all the rear cars forward.

A coach, a smoker and a Pullman car were smashed to splinters, almost all the occupants being killed or injured. The superstructure of the Pullman was literally shaved off and was jammed like a ramrod through the smoker and day coach.

Many passengers were apparently killed outright, but the suffering among the injured was indescribable. Heads were severed from bodies and arms and legs were cut off. The wreckage was almost crimson with blood, some of the bodies being crushed beyond recognition by the mass of twisted rails and splintered cars. A few of the passengers were found still living, with a rod or a splinter impaling them in the wreck. Decapitated bodies were picked up and it was almost impossible to correctly assort the dismembered parts.

Injured Suffer Greatly.

The wreck occurred at a point where it was difficult to reach with prompt relief. Such bodies as could be pulled out were stretched out in an adjoining pasture. But first attention was given to the wounded. The cries of these, coming from beneath the cars and from places which were walled in, were pitiable. Fortunately the wreckage did not take fire. The rescue party, reinforced later on by trains of wreckers, nurses and surgeons sent from the nearest available points, worked all day and until long after dark.

The injured were rushed to a hospital, several of them dying on the way.

An explanation given by the railroad was that the train was being detoured on account of a blockade due to a freight wreck at Shellsburg, Ia. The section from St. Louis and the section from Chicago had been consolidated at Cedar Rapids, Ia. They were to have been uncoupled and run as separate trains at Waterloo. The St. Louis section is operated by the Rock Island in conjunction with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy. Fatalities occurred only in the first three coaches. The rear coaches all remained on the track.

MABRAY SENT TO PRISON

Nine Associates Given Same Punishment as Their Leader.

Council Bluffs, Ia., March 22.—John C. Mabray and nine others, convicted of fraudulent use of the mails in connection with fake racing schemes, were sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and $10,000 fine each.

Aside from Mabray those given the full penalty were Edward Loser, Edward K. Morris, Tom S. Robinson, Edward Leach, Clarence Forbes, Harry Forbes, Ed McCoy, Clarence Class and William Powell.

Bert Shores and William Marsh, who pleaded guilty, were sentenced to fifteen months in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $100 each. W. S. Harris, who also pleaded guilty, was sentenced to six months in jail and a fine of $100; so was Frank Scott.

DEADLOCK AT PHILADELPHIA

No Progress Made In Efforts to End the Strike.

Philadelphia, March 22.—Although Mayor Reyburn has added his efforts to those of the other politicians who have been striving to obtain a settlement of the street car strike the trolley men are still holding out for terms which will mean recognition of only one grievance committee. It was this demand that caused a deadlock between the company and the men before the strike was declared more than four weeks ago.

BY VOTE OF HOUSE

New Rules Committee Selected in Caucus Approved.

NORRIS PLAN NOW IN FORCE

Insurgents Offer No Objection to Personnel of Body.

Washington, March 26.—By a unanimous vote the house adopted a resolution naming a committee on rules, composed of six Republicans and four Democrats, in pursuance of the provision of the Norris resolution.

Mr. Currier of New Hampshire reported a resolution naming as a committee on rules Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Walter I. Smith of Iowa, Boutell of Illinois, Lawrence of Massachusetts, Fassett of New York, Smith of California, Republicans, and Clark of Missouri, Underwood of Alabama, Dixon of Indiana and Fitzgerald of New York, Democrats.

After a brief discussion, which made it a matter of record that the members named in the resolution had been selected in party caucuses, the house, by a viva voce vote, adopted the resolution.

"Yeas and nays," demanded Mr. Currier, although no one voted in the negative, in order to put the insurgents on record in voting for the nominees of the caucus.

Numerous protests against having a roll call were heard and only a handful of members arose to insist on the demand.

"Not a sufficient number," declared Speaker Cannon, looking over the house.

"The vote was unanimous," added the speaker, who, by that statement, made the record clear that no insurgent had objected to the personnel of the new enlarged committee on rules.

Short Route For N. P.

Special to The Journal.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 30.—The activities of the Soo Line in building its cutoff between Thief River Falls and Duluth with such rush means more than has appeared on the surface thus far, according to reports here. It means in brief that the Canadian Pacific has found a way to make its route between Montreal and the Pacific coast 250 miles shorter than the route of any other transcontinental.

The Great Northern and Northern Pacific are planning for cutoffs which will materially shorten their lines to the coast and the Canadian Pacific and Soo do not propose to be left behind. The Canadian Pacific road for 1,000 miles east of the roughest country in the world, with many heavy grades and numerous long detours in the wild country north of Lake Superior. Half a dozen miles are traversed in many places to take the train one mile nearer their goal.

When the new Duluth-Thief River Falls and Brooten line and another projected by the Soo from Tolley, in northwestern North Dakota, are completed, the Canadian Pacific will be able to make the transcontinental trip in half a day s time less than any other route.

The Duluth-South Shore line, now owned by the same interests, will take the Canadian Pacific trains at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and land them in Duluth over an almost air line; thence the trains will go over the new line to Thief River Falls, and from there over the Soo's "Wheat Line" to Tolley and thence over the cutoff, to be built this season from Tolley, to connect with the Canadian Pacific's main line in western Canada.

The Soo Line is preparing to work several gravel trains on its "Wheat Line" and it is predicted that before the working season of 1910 closes the Canadian Pacific will be running its fast through trains between Motreal and the Pacific coast over he new route.

The large barn on the farm of Martin Ysem, who lives a mile southeast of Gary, was struck by lightning about midnight Monday and burned to the ground. The report is that all the horses and cattle, about fifty in number and a large nomber of chickens were burned to death and other property destroyed. The electrical storm that passed over this section Monday night was one of the most severe storms that has visited this section in years but no other losses or damages are reported. —Norman County Herald.

Return From Montana.

A party comprising Julmer Olson of Cisco and Martin Johnson, Olaf Lien, H. H. Finrow and son Arnold of Plummer returned last Saturday evening from a two weeks trip thru Montana where they had gone to look over the country with the intention of taking homestead claims. They were not able however to find any good land near enough to a railroad to make it a good business proposition, and Mr. Finrow was the only one who went to the trouble of filing.

While in some respects they liked the looks of the country they did not seem to think that it held any advantages in any way over northern Minnesota. The country was over-run by land seekers from every state in the Union and there was also the usual crop of locators.

New Elevator Company.

—Thief River News: As will be noticed by articles of incorporation published in another column, the Montana and Dakota Grain company, is the name of a new corporation that will have its headquarters in Thief River Falls and be controlled by locol capital.......The incorporators are largely the owners of the stock of the Hansen and Barzen Milling Co. and the business of the two concerns will be closely related.....The Hansen and Barzen Milling Company is one of the leading concerns of this section and is ever pushing to the front. A line of elevators now owned in western North Dakota and Eastern Montana by them will be taken over by the new company and a number of new ones will also be built. Much of the wheat purchased out there will be brought to this city to be manufactured into flour.

$111 An Acre.

Charles Wentzel has sold his farm adjoining the city limits to J. S. Hilleboe for a consideration of $7,500. As the farm 67½ acres including an ont lot, the price paid per acre was $111. This is certainly a big price for land, even tho the personal property is included in the purchase price. Yet the land is worth it and more too. Mr. Hilleboe who is an old resident here and thouroughly familiar with land values, considers that he got a bargin even at the price paid.

—Warren Sheaf.

Last week 100 well to do people from Hollrnd arrived at New York Mills in Otter Tail County and they will settle on farms in that neighbor hood. They are said to be the finest lot of immigrants that ever passed thru New York and they are the advance guard of a big movement of settlers from Holland.

Dipping Sheep.

Sheep are dipped to rid them of external parasites and the scap mite: Kinds of dips—Lime and sulpher dips are injurious to the wool, because of the caustic effect they have. Tobbacco and arsenic dips are poisonous both to speep and man and must be used with great care. Coal tar dips are considered among the best by experienced sheep men, because they are effective, nonpoisonous and oidinarily do not injure the wool.

Testing and mixing—All dips should be tested. Mix one teaspoonful of dip to 50 or 75 of water, as per directions. After loosely wrapping a few Ticks or bed bugs in a very thin gause dip them in the mixture for thirty seconds. Then remove and place under a tumbler: If all are dead in six hours then the mixture is strong enough: If not make solution stronger untill thirty seconds in the dip is effective. In dipping sheep keep them in the dip for one minute. To mix; place the dip in the tank first, then add the water; otherwise it does not always mix uniformly.

When to dip—Dip just after shearing, then little dip is lost. Results are better if dipping is deferred until wool is one fourth to one half inch long, as more dip will be held in the fleece. If ticks are present at shearing time, the entire flock should be dipped at once before ticks get to the lambs. Repeat the dipping in ten days to kill any escaped or newly hatched insects. After dipping remove speep from the sheds and yards in which they were kept. then any loose ticks or lice can not get back on them.

CARELESS WITH FIRE

State Laws are Very Stringent in regard to setting of Fires.

Chapter 22 of the Revised Laws of Minnesota, 1905, entitled "Forestry and fire wardens," requires the Forestry Commissioner to prepare an abstract of the penal laws relating to forest and prairie fires and he may require any county board to cause at least three weeks published notice thereof to be given. The following is accordingly hereby published:

STATE OF MINNESOTA.
Office of Forestry Commissioner.
St. Paul, March, 15, 1910.

The law of Minnesota for preventing and suppressing forest and praire fires, as amended by Chapter 182, Laws of 1909, makes town supervisors, town clerks, village presidents and mayors of cities fire wardens; and requires them to take precautions against such fires, report them promptly and prosecute offenders.

THE LAW FORBIDS:

Setting fire and not extinguishing it before it endangers the property of another;

Throwing or dropping burning substance into combustible material without extinguishing same;

Starting camp-fire without clearing ground within a radius of ten feet;

Setting fire to brush or slashings in clearing land before pilling same;

Setting fire to brush or slashings or other combustible material in a dry season, or allowing fire to be burning or smouldering in such season.

Those who cut timber or wood to sell must pile the slashings and burn the same as soon as practicable, and when it can be done without danger, and before the first of May.

Rangers may be appointed in a dry and dangerous season.

Railroad companies must keep their right of ways clear of combustible material, extinguish fires that occur near their lines of road, also patrol their roads in dangerous weather. The master mechanic and locomotive engineer, as well as the company, are responsible for the efficiency of spark arresters.

The minimum penalty for violation of any of the provisions of this law is $50; the maximum penalty. $100 or three months imprisonment in jail.

C. C. ANDREWS,
Forestry Commissioner.

BOOZE FLOWS AT BAGLEY.

Special Goverment Agent Destroys Contraband Liquor.

Bagley was treated to the spectacle of liquor being used for street sprinkling purposes last Wednesday when some of the contraband article was quickly disposed of by a special agent in accordance with the ruling that liquor must not be sold in the Indian country.

Special Agent sero of the Indian department, who has been furnished information by the Bagley Civic league as to the storage of liquor, appeared on the scene yesterday afternoon and proceeded to get busy. He went to the Bloomquist livery barn, where, in a little feed room, he found a barrel of whiskey, which he immediately poured into the gutter. He also found some bottles which followed the contents of the barrel.

After finishing up there, he walked down to the barn belonging to the Scandia notel, broke the latch, when the key was refused him, up in the big loft unearther twenty four quart bottles and two jugs of high grade whiskey. Thss was also used for street skrinkling. All the liquors found are said to have been owned by Hans Hanson one of the members of the board of education in town. The barrel is said to have been marked from Pepper & Son, Bemidji, Minn. Sero has a "nose" for the stuff, and is understood that he has active helpers in Bagley.

W. E. Johnson, chief of the special agents of the Indian department, visited Bemidji wednesday and had a consultation with members of the village council, the city attorney and others with relation to the liquor traffic.

While but little is given out as to the results of the meeting, it is known that Mr. Johnson stated that he believed that it woule be to the best interests of all concerned if the saloons of Bemidji were reduced in number until there was but fifteen or twelve refreshment parlors doing business in the city: that as fast as what might be termed "undersireable" licenses expired, the council might refurse to renew these licenses, which would solve the problem as desired by those who were trying to do away with the traffic of selling liquor to Indians.

If the people of this country would look after themselves in regard to the liquor traffic as assiduously as they try to protect the Indians, brewery and distillery stock could be had for the asking.—Crookston Times.

The second meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development Association will be held in Crookston, June 1st, 2nd and 3rd.

April the 29th has been set aside by a proclamation of Governor Eberhart as Arbor and Bird Day, and on that date the beautifying of public grounds and the highways of Minnesota will be undertaken by the people of the state. All schools and state institutions will be closed and a general observation of the day is urged. In his proclamation the governor calls attention to the devastation of the forests of the state as a sacrifice for development of industrial and agricultural pursuits and urges co-operation of the people in reforestration, saying that it is the timber lands that furnish the raw material for the maintenance of many of the largest industries in Minnesota in addition to lending charm and beauty to the landscape.

On good roads and reapportionment every state candidate asking for support in the northern part of the state will have to tell where he stands.

If anyone says ugly things about you don't go out of the road to gather them up, for "truth crushed to earth will rise again."

To hear the merry croaking of the awakening frogs on March 24th is indeed an unusual thing in Northern Minnesota and yet that is just exactly what we hear this year.

R. C. Dunn has announced that though he is not a "personal" friend of Gov. Eberhart's yet he will support him in the coming campaign. The sincerity of "Bobby's" support can best be seen after next fall.

It seems that the real cause of the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy is that both gentlemen are extremists in their plans and interpresations of the conservation laws; Ballinger in favor of the interests, Pinchot, the people.

The only results apparent from the recent battle between the insurgents and Cannonism in which Cannon was supposed to have suffered a crushing defeat is that it gives the insurgents something to tell the home folks about.

Little favors, kind words and loving smiles win truer friends often than costly gifts, for the former comes from the heart, while the latter often reaches nothing more than the pocket book, and that only for show.

WHY? is the question many Minnesotans are asking in respect to the rush of settlers to Montana. 'Tis not to be said that Montana offers no chances, for all the west half of the country does that and plenty of them, but the man that leaves Minnesota, attracted by the lurid descriptions of get-rich-quick chances in the West rarely fails to be disappointed, as he finds that a man must work for success there as elsewhere, and that the chances are no better there than here.

It is now claimed by some of the supporters of the present head of the administration that the reason that he is having such an uncomfortable time of it is that he is unable to be a successful fraud, as was Roosevelt, that under Roosevelt's administration, Cannonism and Aldrich flourished and in a flourishing condition were handed down by him, to Taft. That while under the Roosevelt administration, the interests of the "interests" flourished, they are now having an uncomfortable time of it. This idea will seem a peculiar one to parts of the "middle west."

It is often noticed that some men are scrupulously polite and courteous to every other, woman but are rude, insolent and overbearing to their own wives. This is a great mystery to the spectator. Then another class of men, often good men, too, think it a sign of weakness—or at least a waste of time to speak words of kindly appreciation to the often over-worked wife. The man of this description is usually a self-sufficient person, but there are many who without meaing any unkindness take all things for granted.

The wife of an unappreciative man is a woman whom no old maid should envy for her loving toil is all in vain. The wife's one redress is to master her husband, and it is never pleasant to any true-hearted woman that she has to master her husband in order to live comfortably with him. The man who never praises his wife will find fault with everything on every possible occassion. It is the easiest thing in the world to find fault—easier than the proverbial sliding down hill.. It gets to be a habit with some men and they are hardly concious when they are exercising it.

The country newspaper is recognized by some at least as the farmers best friend and we believe that the most progressive farmer in the community should take this into consideration. We quote a short article from the Minneapolis Journal showing how one great editor feels on the subject "The country newspaper is the greatest agency for the betterment of your community, and it will b progressive or backwad in the degree that you support it" is what L. J. Boughner, city editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, told 400 students at the state agricultural school yesterday. "When you go back to the farm look up the editor of your local newspaper," he urged, "and make a friend of him. The editor of your local paper will help you in everything you undertake for the upbuilding of your locality. You need his co-opetraion and he needs yours."

Many people are under the impression that the printing of stamped envelopes by the government is done at the govrnment printing office in Washington. This is erroneous. The office at which this particular work is done is located Dayton, Ohio, for which the government simply acts as agent and sales manager. The record show that the volume of this work for fiscal year ending June 1, 1908, amounted to the enormous sum of $1,672,789.86, the business coming from every state in the union. This office is grinding out about four million envelopes daily. There are perhaps 20,000 job offices in this country and these private enterprises are rightfully entitled to this business.

A Defeated Conscience.

The secretary of the Kansas State Historical society tells a story about an early day Kansas justice of the peace who will be nameless here:

"This J. P.," said the secretary, "would marry a couple one day as justice of the peace and divorce them the next as notary public."

One time, as the story ran, a man surrendered himself to this J. P.

"An' phwat's the matter?" asked the judge.

"I killed a man out here on the prairie in a fight," was the reply. "I want to give myself up."

"You did kill him, sor?" asked the J. P.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Who saw you?" asked the J. P.

"Nobody."

"An' nobody saw you kill 'im?"

"No, sir. Just we two were there."

"An' you're shure nobody saw you?" reiterated the J. P.

"Of course I'm sure," was the reply.

"Thin you're discharged," said the J. P., bringing his fist down on the table. "You're discharged. You can't 'criminate yourself. Fifty dollars, please!"—Kansas City Journal.

Hedgehogs and Eggs.

Some years ago, not being able to account for the disappearance of eggs, a wire cage trap was set in a fowl run. After a little time this was occupied—not by a rat, but a fine hedgehog filled to its utmost capacity the trap. It was reset, to be filled in a few days by Mrs. Hedgehog. No more eggs were missed.—London Times.

A MULE CART EXPERIENCE.

How a Whisky Peddler Was Turned From Evil Ways.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"You mus'n't tote that, maw; hit's too heavy. Sot hit down."

The boy's voice was full of expostulatory tenderness, and after glancing at him irresolutely the woman set the heavy pail she was carrying upon the ground. "I reckoned hit mout he'p you uns," she said wearily, "there's so much to be did. Your paw's got to mend the waggin an' satisfy the crap an' look arter a chance o' small things 'fore we can go."

There was a warm flush on the boy's sallow cheeks as he lifted the pail and started toward the cabin. The woman followed more slowly, but a soft light crept into her eyes as she watched the small figure trudging before her.

Before she reached the small cabin Jeff came out. He held a hammer in one hand and a tin can half filled with rusty nails in the other.

"Now I'm goin' to he'p pap with the waggin," he said, with a grin. "Jest you rest easy. The wuk's no great, an' pap 'll p'intedly be ready for startin' come Chuesday."

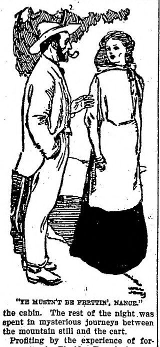
In his younger days Tom Norton had the reputation of being a thrifty, hardworking man. But, like many of his neighbors, he owned a still, hidden somewhere in the mountains, which he was accustomed to work at odd moments. Gradually as the years went by he came under the influence of his own distillations and spent more time in the mountains and less on the farm. And instead of being a source of revenue the still was the reverse.

"If only Tom was shet o' the still," Mrs. Norton would say to Jeff as she moved wearily about the cabin, "things mout shapen theirse'f. Tom was a master hand for wuk 'fore he took up with the Stillman boys. 'Tain't the whisky he keers for as much as the fun o' bein' roun' with the boys. I wisht some o' his Flurridy projections mout suiten him. If he'd light on some land as 'd jest p'intedly tickle him he'd more'n likely settle down an' quit his cavortin'."

Every year when the first premonitory chill of winter steals down from the north there is a hurried migration of a certain class of south Georgia Crackers into "Flurridy." Generally it consists of shiftless whites who rent "mule farms"—forty acres—or small truck patches from the large landowners. Most of the "crap" goes to the landlord for rent and advances, and after it is gathered there is nothing to keep the renters from following their nomadic instincts.

The one indispensable adjunct of a party is a mule "kyart" of some description, and this is something that nearly every renter possesses. It may be old and an outcast from commercial value, but with the gun and dog forms indisputable evidence of the renter's respectability.

It was near noon the next Tuesday before the Norton family were ready to make a start. The night before Tom had made his wife and Jeff go to bed early and had himself curled up on a blanket before the fire and pretended to fall asleep, but a few hours later he arose softly and stole from the cabin. The rest of the night was spent in mysterious journeys between the mountain still and the cart.



"YE MUSTN'T BE FRETTIN', NANCE."

Profiting by the experience of former trips in Florida, Tom had made a rough covering for his cart. It looked clumsy and awkward, but was strong and waterproof. Under the seat he had also made a strong box, which he provided with a lock. To Jeff's inquiry, "What's hit for?" he answered that it was "for rattlers an' pizen things that boys shouldn't be a-pursuin' of."

Although the cart was not large, it was roomy enough to hold their few belongings and still leave room for an easy chair for Mrs. Norton. Tom still owned a strong pair of mules, so it was not necessary for either him or Jeff to walk.

After crossing into Florida they followed the Suwanee river for several days and then turned to the southeast and passed through the lake region and on to Orlando and Kissimmee. They went slowly and made frequent pauses. Occasionally Tom had visitors whom he regarded with suspicion. Several times he had broken camp in the middle of the night and hurried away with all possible speed.

It was late in December when they entered the wilderness that lies between Kissimmee and Charlotte Harbor. It was a region new to Tom, and as each day disclosed fresh beauties he grew more and more enthusiastic in its praises.

One day they were surprised by the visit of a horseman, who said he came from "right smart back yonder." He proved talkative and in answer to Tom's inquiry said that very little of the land had been entered and that one could have his pick of homesteads. After he left Mrs. Norton looked anxiously at her husband.

"Hit's be a mighty nice place to settle," she at last ventured.

"Purty fair," he admitted, looking around appreciatively, "but I 'low I ain't jest ready for that yit. I must look roun' mo'. There's said to be 'mazin' good land down Charlotte Harbor way." Then, seeing the hopeless look creep back to her eyes, he added, not unkindly: "Ye mustn't be frettin', Nance. I figger on makin' jest a little mo', an' then we'll settle down for sure an' certing. We can come back here any time if there's no better land to be foun'. I 'low on stoppin' to Bartow, an' then we'll push on straight for the Harbor."

Another day was spent in hunting, and then they resumed their journey. Late one afternoon they reached the outskirts of Bartow and, as usual, made camp in the woods half a mile or so from town. While Jeff and his mother prepared supper Tom went to "look roun'." As soon as breakfast was over the next morning he again departed. Soon after Mrs. Norton went to buy groceries. Jeff remained to gather firewood. As he was returning to camp with an armful of pine knots he saw two large rattlesnakes almost in his path. At first he thought it strange that they had given no warning, but a little investigation showed that both were dead, probably killed by some sportsman the day before.

After he had gathered enough firewood he went to the cart to get a palmetto cane he had been at work upon at odd moments. There was no inducement to hunt near the town, and he had decided to spend the day in camp working on his cane. While he was still searching for it he was accosted by a rough voice:

"Howdy, thar, sonny! Come out an' show yourse'f. Whar's the boss?"

Looking around, he saw several men watching him from the back end of the cart. He did not like their looks and answered briefly:

"Pap's not here. He's in town."

"Waal, hit don't matter. You'll do jest as well," and the speaker came round to the forward end of the cart, followed by his companions.

"We uns seen your paw in town an' 'lowed he'd be here 'fore this. We're arter suthin' to drink an' reckon you can sarve us," and as he spoke he took a handful of small coins from his pocket and began to jingle them.

"There's the water bucket," said Jeff quietly. "You can he'p yourse'fs."

The man laughed derisively. "That's all right, sonny; but ye needn't be feared of we uns. We ain't talkers. Jest hand out the pizen, an' we'll be trottin' back. Here's yo' money."

"There's no drink here for you 'cep'n what's in the bucket. You can take hit or leave hit," and Jeff resumed his search for the missing cane.

The men muttered angrily among themselves.

"See here, sonny," said one of them menacingly, "we ain't come for fun. We 'low there's whisky in that box under the seat, an' we are p'intedly for tastin' hit. Fact is, Bill here was in Kissimmee a spell back an' had a peep in that box, an' he 'lows yo' paw has a fine layout. So ye mout as well be spreadin' hit for we uns."

Jeff made no answer.

"Bust the box," suggested one of the men.

"No, no," objected another. "We ain't got 'thority for that. If we all 'spects to make money outen this thing we must keep in the law. I reckon hit'll be best." Then followed a whispered conversation in which Jeff caught the words "sheriff," "'thority," "s'arch warrant," "back 'fore he knows hit."

Then a head was thrust into the back of the cart. "Say, bub, s'posen ye give we uns a peep in that box?"

"Can't do hit. Pap has the key. 'Sides, he 'lowed hit was for rattlers an' sich an' if I was too p'intedly cur'us he'd wrap a hickory roun' me. You uns mout's well be gittin'."

"Waal, then, far'well, sonny. Mebbe ye'll be more hospiterble when we calls ag'in an' axes for a peep at yo' rattlers."

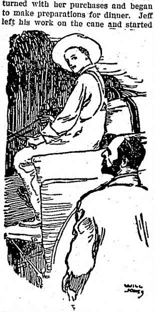
Jeff listened until the sounds of their footsteps had died away in the brush. Then he crawled quickly from the cart. In one hand he held the missing cane; the other grasped a hammer and cold chisel. Assuring himself that no one was in sight, he made a hurried examination of the fastenings of the box. It was firm and strong.

"Have to break the lock staple," he muttered to himself. "Most likely pap 'll r'ar an' charge when he finds hit out, but there's no other way as I can see. An' 'pears to me the 'casion calls for hit."

A few quick blows, and the staple yielded to the keen edge of the chisel. Lifting the cover, Jeff saw that the box was filled with small kegs and jugs. Sandwiched among them were bottles of various sizes. Many of them were empty. Jeff did not waste time. Grasping one of the kegs, he attempted to lift it from the box. But the keg was very heavy, and it was only after repeated efforts that he succeeded in getting his load to the ground. Then, with the keg grasped firmly in his arms, he staggered into the woods. In a few minutes he returned for another keg. At the end of twenty minutes the box was empty. Then he went after the rattlesnakes he had found a short time before. These he coiled in the box to look as natural as possible.

But he was not yet satisfied. There was an unmistakable odor of whisky about the box. He must remove it. But how? Presently a broad grin spread over his face. Going to the back part of the cart, he found a large can of kerosene. Nearly half of this was poured into the box and carefully rubbed into every corner and crevice. Then the can itself was placed in the box beside the snakes. He now shut the box and took a staple from his pocket. Connecting this with the lock, he drove it into the very holes from which he had removed the other staple.

An hour went by. His mother returned with her purchases and began to make preparations for dinner. Jeff left his work on the cane and started a fire and brought water. Then he returned to the cart. Soon after he saw a number of men coming through the woods. As they came nearer he saw that his father was in their midst. But instead of leading he seemed to be led, and the men about him were talking excitedly.



"BACK TO WHERE YOUR MOTHER WANTED TO HOMESTEAD."

"Waal, sonny, here we air," said one of them who had visited him before. "We uns have come to gin ye one mo' chance to be hospiterble, an' we have an argymint this time."

"Be quiet, Jim; I will manage this thing," and a tall, broad shouldered man stepped from the group. "The fact is, youngster," he continued, addressing Jeff, "your father is suspected of selling whisky contrary to law, and I am here with a search warrant. If he is innocent the search will be a mere matter of form; if not—well, it will be a bad job for your father."

"But he ain't innercent," cried the man called Bill. "That box is jammed plumb full o' whisky. I've seed hit."

"We will soon find out," said the sheriff. Then, turning to Tom, he added sternly: "Give me the key. It will save breaking the box."

Tom produced it with trembling fingers.

"Now, boy, jump down. We will not require your help."

"But there's only rattlers an' kerosene in the box."

"Never mind. We'll see for ourselves."

As the sheriff raised the lid of the box several of the men crowded forward eagerly. Jeff saw his father glance around hastily, as though meditating escape. But whatever his intention it was arrested by a surprised exclamation from the sheriff.

"Rattlesnakes!" and the box cover came down with a bang. The men looked at each other blankly.

"But there must be whisky!" insisted Bill, who had stood a little in the background. "I've seen hit, an' I've tasted hit."

Bill approached cautiously and raised the lid a few inches, but he closed it quickly. At the same time he gave a sniff of disgust. "Rattlesnakes an' ile! Not a breath o' whisky, an' the ole contrapshun smells as though it 'd been soaked in carysene for twenty year. Hit beats me, sheriff. If the waggin don't show whisky I give up."

But nothing could be found. At last the sheriff approached Tom. "There is more in this than I understand," he said abruptly, "and I have an idea that you are as much surprised as the rest of us. Your looks show it. After we go away you would better ask that boy of yours to make an explanation."

Tom did not answer. But after the sheriff had departed with his men a light came into his face. Turning to Jeff, he said, "Waal?"

For answer the boy led him back into the woods to a pile of broken kegs and bottles. A strong odor of whisky filled the air.

Tom regarded the pile for some time in silence. "Hit's the last o' the still," he said at length. "This here's been too close a shave to take any mo' chances. I'll drop hit fo' good."

After dinner preparations were made to depart. As Jeff climbed into the cart and took the reins he looked at his father interrogatively.

"Back to whar yo' maw wanted to homestead. We'll build a cabin, an' then I'll go up t' Gainesville an' enter the claim. Hit's cheaper to earn by work than by dodgin' roun' the law."

J. J. VERTREES.

Attorney for Ballinger Bitterly Denounces Pinchot and Glavis.

DEFENSE OPENS ITS CASE

Attorney Vertrees Warmly Commends Secretary Ballinger.

Washington, March 26.—The defense had its first inning today at the congressional inquiry into the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy. Attorney Vertrees, chief counsel for the secretary of the interior, in a statement presenting his case, poured out the vials of his wrath upon Gifford Pinchot, former forester, and L. R. Glavis, former chief of the Seattle field division of the land office, the two principals in the prosecution.

He answered the charges against Ballinger in term of bitter denunciation on the one hand and warm commendation of the secretary on the other.

The Pinchot-Glavis side finished shortly after the luncheon recess. Attorney L. D. Brandeis, at that time, made a second ineffectual attempt to force the committee to call Secretary Ballinger to testify as the first witness for the "defense," but the committee overruled the request, as it previously decided against a demand by Brandeis that he be allowed to call Ballinger as a witness for the "prosecution."

Attorney Vertrees then began his opening statement, which he read from a carefully prepared manuscript.

"When Mr. Ballinger has been heard," said Attorney Vertrees, "it will be said that true conservation has no steadier supporter than he. He holds that conservation is not a thing of caprice, but of law; that those who have already been born and now breathe have rights as well as those yet to be born and breathe."

GIRLS PERISH IN FIRE

Blaze at Chicago Results in Death of Sixteen.

Chicago, March 26.—Sixteen or more lives, mostly those of young girls, are believed to have been sacrificed in a fire which destroyed one of the L. Fish Furniture company's stores at 1906-1908 Wabash avenue. Twelve bodies have been recovered.

The deaths occurred on the fifth and sixth floors. Employes of these floors were cut off from escape by fire which enveloped the building almost instantaneously following the explosion of several cans of benzine.

The financial loss is placed at $300,000, equally divided between building and stock.

Simon Fish, a member of the furniture company, while the blaze was at its height, created a sensation by making charges of negligence against the firemen.

RIVER OF LAVA IS SPREADING

Villages Near Mount Etna Menaced by Fiery Flood.

Catania, Sicily, March 27.—The eruptions from the fourteen side craters of Mount Etna continue and the fiery river formed at the foot of Mount Castellazo moved slowly toward Borrello and Belpasso, consuming everything in its path.

The lavatic stream, winding in and out over the uneven surface at the mountain base, has covered probably twenty-five miles, though its head is not more than ten miles from the sources in an air line. Throughout the night the summit of Mount Etna appears to be ablaze, but a cloud of black smoke envelopes the peak. Prolonged rumblings from the central crater and frequent explosions from the side fissures served as effectually as the flood itself to hold in terror the populace for miles around.

GENERAL BELL INJURED

Chief of Staff of Army In Fatal Auto Accident.

Washington, March 24.—Major General J. Franklin Bell, chief of staff of the army, was severely but probably not dangerously injured and Mrs. Herbert J. Slocum, wife of Major Slocum of the Seventh cavalry, was almost instantly killed in a collision of their auto with a trolley car on the Tenallytown road, in the northwest outskirts of the city. General Bell suffered a fracture of one rib, a deep scalp wound and severe bruises. The chauffeur was uninjured.

Mrs. Slocum, whose husband is a nephew of Mrs. Russell Sage, was visiting her sister, Mrs. H. L. Green, at the Wyoming apartment house in this city, but went to Fort Myer to visit General and Mrs. Bell, with whom she and her husband were on terms of intimate friendship. It was on the way back to the Wyoming that the fatal collision occurred.

SOME FIND PLACES FILLED

General Strikers at Philadelphia Return to Work.

Philadelphia, March 29.—The sympathetic strike in aid of the trolleymen having been officially declared off by the Central Labor union there was a general resumption of work. This was especially noticeable in the building trades, operations throughout the city having been generally tied up since the sympathetic strike was begun March 5.

All men who went out on sympathetic strike did not find employment when they reported, however, their places having been filled in many instances by nonunion workmen. These cases will cause some friction, but little trouble is expected.

The Philadelphia Rapid Transit company is still operating with a limited number of cars.

DEATH IS SUDDEN

Justice Brewer of Federal Supreme Court Expires.

WAS SECOND OLDEST MEMBER

Had Been Indisposed, but End Was Unexpected.

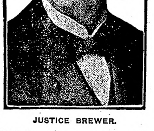
Washington, March 29. — David Josiah Brewer, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, is dead as the result of a stroke of apoplexy. His death followed within a minute or two, before he could be carried to his bed. Mrs. Brewer was with him when the end came. Mr. Justice Brewer was seventy-three years old.

The end came altogether unexpectedly. Although he had not been feeling well for the past few days the aged jurist was out and apparently in the best of health and spirits. He was in equally good spirits at dinner and spent the evening in reading.

He retired to his room and within a few minutes Mrs. Brewer heard a heavy fall and went to investigate the cause. She found her husband prone on the floor of the bathroom. He did not regain consciousness and died before a physician, hastily summoned, could reach the house.

The two daughters of the jurist, Mrs. James F. Karrich and Mrs. H. J. Jetmore, were summoned at once, but reached the residence too late.

Mr. Justice Brewer came to the supreme court of the United States from the federal court in Kansas. He was the second oldest member of the court, Mr. Justice Harlan only being his senior. He was regarded as the most democratic of all the members of the court. He was the one man on the bench who had proof copies of his opinions prepared for the newspapers and this he did consistently.



JUSTICE BREWER.

Mr. Justice Brewer's sympathies always were with the West. He dealt largely with railroad corporations and with corporations generally, and he will be missed on the momentous questions concerning the Standard Oil and tobacco cases now under consideration.

Mr. Justice Brewer's death raises a serious question in the court regarding the Standard Oil and American Tobacco company suits, and it is not improbable that the cases will have to be retried, since there now remains but seven judges to pass upon them, Justice Moody not having participated in the trials by reason of continued illness.

OVER TWO HUNDRED KILLED

Fire Cause of Frightful Disaster In Hungary.

Mateszalka, Hungary, March 29.—Two hundred and fifty people were killed and many others injured in the village of Oekoerite when fire broke out in a hotel where a ball was being held.

A coachhouse connected with the hotel had been fitted up as a ballroom and was crowded with several hundred guests when the fire started.

The flames were first noticed when a woman's dress was seen to be ablaze. A moment later the gowns of several other women were burning.

Panic followed and in a mad rush to the exits many persons fell and were trodden to death.

As if to make matters worse the roof caved in before the hall could be cleared. Many injured persons and those who, because of the crash at the doors, had been prevented from escaping, were buried with the dead in the ruins.

Four Hundred Structures Destroyed at Mount Hope, W. Va.

The loss is roughly estimated at $250,000.

An Awful Rebuke.

Once upon a time a certain community planned to give a dinner to a judge there. When the judge came to scan the list of those invited he raised vigorous protest against one name, that of a man who had been the most brilliant lawyer in town, but who was now the town drunkard. They finally overcame his opposition, but the town drunkard had heard of it. He was the last speaker called upon. He arose and said: "Mr. Toastmaster—Fifteen years ago I had a practice in this town that amounted to $12,000 a year. I had a wife and family whom I supported in comfort. I had my own horse and carriage. At that time the guest of the evening was on his way west in an emigrant wagon. He landed in this town and started in to make his living. Since then, Mr. Toastmaster," he cried, with a pathetic break in his voice—"since that time I have been going steadily down, down, down, and our guest has been going up, up, up, until now we are just about on a level."

Would Expedite Work of the Tariff Board.

ELECTION IN MASSACHUSETTS

Said to Have Convinced the President That the Country Refuses to Be Reconciled to the New Tariff Act. Reverts Significantly to a Passage in His Annual Message Sent to Congress at Beginning of the Session.

Washington, March 29.—Between the lines of a message the president sent to the senate asking an appropriation of $250,000 for pushing the work of the tariff board there is much more interesting and significant reading than in the text itself. The whole tone of the communication is regarded here as furnishing indisputable evidence that the president has read and pondered the returns from last week's election in the Fourteenth Massachusetts district, when the Payne-Aldrich tariff act was the principal issue, and the Democratic candidate, who made his campaign in avowed hostility to it, was elected by over 6,000 plurality as against a Republican plurality of over 14,000 less than two years ago. This result has plainly taught the president that the country refuses to be reconciled to the new tariff act, notwithstanding his many speeches in defense of it, the last of which was made in Rhode Island the night before the Massachusetts election, with the evident purpose of influencing the voters of the Fourteenth Massachusetts district.

In this message to congress the president speaks very approvingly of the work of the tariff board created by the Payne-Aldrich act and urges that an appropriation of $250,000 be granted without delay in order that the board may undertake and prosecute to a finish the larger and more important task of ascertaining the difference in the cost of production in the United States and abroad. In this relation the president reverts significantly to a passage in his annual message sent to congress at the beginning of the session, in which he said regarding the proposed investigation as to the difference in cost of production here and abroad:

Would Inform Congress.

"If the facts secured by the tariff board are of such a character as to show generally that the rates of duties imposed by the present tariff law are excessive under the principles of protection as described in the platform of the successful party at the late election, I shall not hesitate to invite the attention of congress to this fact and to the secretary for action predicated thereon."

The progressive Republicans and, indeed, members of the senate generally look on this recital of his utterances on the tariff in his regular annual message as proof that the president has recently seen a new light and wants the opponents of the new tariff act in congress and the country to understand that he is not unalterably committed to it, and will be for another revision as soon as the investigations of the tariff board warrant such action. The progressives see in the message a dire appeal to them not to press their proposed fight for revision and for a tariff commission at this time, and a promise that the president will be w[illegible] them later on if facts [illegible] warrant it. # FROM EFFECTS OF ARSENIC

Alexander J. Moody Said to Have Died.

Chicago, March 29.—That Alexander J. Moody, whose death on Feb. 20 last was attributed to ptomaine poisoning, really died from the effects of arsenic, was the startling assertion made by Coroner Hoffman.

That the poison was contained in Hamburger steak eaten by the decedent seems clear to the authorities, but the manner in which it was placed in the meat is a mystery which neither the coroner nor the police have been able to solve.

While the coroner and Assistant Chief of Police Herman Schuettler declare that they accused no one, it is admitted that a woman of Mr. Moody's household, and one of his employes, have been under surveillance for a month.

REVOLUTION NOT CRUSHED

Reinforcements to Be Sent to Nicaraguan Insurgents.

New Orleans, March 29.—That the reinforcements which the insurgents' representatives at New Orleans now plan to send to Nicaragua will be on a much more extensive scale than had been generally understood became evident when General Victor D. B. Gordon expressed a desire for American sympathy in the movement against the Madriz government. It is apparent that the revolutionists not only firmly believe that they can hold for some time what they may now call their own, but that they also look forward with confidence to ultimate success in reaching Managua and overthrowing Madriz. They now laugh at the assertion made several weeks ago that the revolution had been crushed.

Des Moines Claim Dropped.

Washington, March 29.—The interstate commerce commission dismissed another complaint of the Greater Des Moines committee; in which it was alleged that rates from Des Moines to points west of that city are discriminatory in favor of Minneapolis. The commission says that sufficient evidence was not furnished to establish the claim of discrimination.

Dare Results in Death.

Towner, N. D., March 29.—H. P. Johnson of Kief was placed under arrest by officials of McHenry county charged with manslaughter and is now being held in the county jail here pending a hearing. His dare to Pewan Krachenko, a Russian, that he could not drink five glasses of alcohol in succession and the Russian's attempt to do so resulting in the latter's death, is the foundation upon which the prosecution hopes to build up a charge of manslaughter against the prisoner.

Fourteenth Massachusetts District Selects Democrat for Congress.

Brockton, Mass., March 23.—The national political weathercock turned Democratward in Massachusetts when the Old Colony section, one of the Republican strongholds of the state, placed Eugene N. Foss of Boston, one of the country's leading exponents of reciprocity with Canada, in the congressional seat of the late William C. Lovering. Mr Foss accomplished what was regarded as almost a political miracle, turning a Republican plurality of 14,250 into a Democratic victory of 5,840.

EUGENE N. FOSS.

The result is considered of more than statewide importance, for Mr. Foss stumped the Fourteenth district on national questions and the people backed him up with a whoop.

Points regarding the Census

The enumerators will wear a badge inscribed 'United States Census, 1910'

The law requires every adult person to furnish the perscribed information but also provides that it shall be treated confidentially, so that no injury can come to any person from answering the questions.

The Census Bureau, prior to April 15 will distribute to every farm owner and tenant in this state a blank or schedule containing the census questions relative to farm operations and equipment. This should be filled up if possible, not later than the morning of April 15, but if any one has been unacle to fill it out by that time he should do so as soon afterwards as he can.

People who do not speak English or who do not understand the schedule completely should get help from others if possible in filling it out.

The President has issued a proclamation calling on all citizens to cooperate with the Census and assuring them that it has nothing to do with taxation, army or jury service, compulsory school attendance, regulation of immigration, or the enforcement of any law, and that no one can be injured by answering any of the inquiries.

It is of the utmost importance that the farm census of this state be complete and correct.

Therefor every farm tenant should promptly fully and accurately fill up the Advance Farm Schedule and carefully perserve it for the enumerator when he calls.

New Council Meets.

The newly elected village council held their first meeting last Monday evening. A few bills were allowed and a one days road tax, which amounts to a dollar and a half was levied. It is intended to raise enough more by subscribtion so that considerable road work can be accomplished. John Rice was appointed road overseer. The saloon license was raised from six hundred to seven hundred and fifty dollars. E. L. Wichterman was appointed assessor. Ways and means, in connection with the new jail, were discussed but the council decided to take no action until they had the plans and specifications from the state board and had made inquiries in regard to materials cost of same etc.

More Ditches.

The work of constructing three of the largest ditch systems in Red Lake county was let last Tuesday by County Auditor A. A. Latendresse and Civil Engineer, C. H. Martz. These ditches will all be dug east of this city and will directly benefit the towns of Kratka, Highlanding and Star.

Ditch No 89 known as the Nesja ditch was let to Daniel Shaw and F. S. Doege both of this city at 10.70 cents per cubic yard. This will make this ditch cost about $13,000. It is understood that Messrs Shaw and Doege have purchased a "Gopher" walking dredge and with this they expect to be able to complete this ditch this summer. Duch No. 38 was let to Jerry Sherwood of Litchfield at 11.50 cents per cubic yard, for the main ditch and 12 cents per cubic yard for the branches. This system will cost approximately $25,000, and will benefit vast tracts in the east central part of Highlanding and the town of Star.

Ditch No. 11 was let to Charles Seedcliff also of Litchfield at 12.20 cents per cubic yard. This system will cost about $8,000. and will drain the northern part of of the town of Highlanding.

It is not sufficient to say that these lands will benefit the particular towns thru which they will be dug for their influence will be felt thruout the entire county and even beyond its limits This is only one of the great moves that is bringing Northern Minnesota to the front at a very rapid pace, and as all these contracts are to be completed by fall it is a certainty that the once vast swampy districts thru the eastern part of our county will be turned into veritable gardens within the next couple of years.

A New Name?

Division Superintendant, Michels, of the Soo Line, stopped off here Friday for a short talk with some of the local business men, in regard to the changing the name of the town as there are two other towns on the Soo Line by the name of Plummer and this fact is continuly causing confusion in the matter of frieght etc.

While the idea did not strike the business men very favorably on account of advertising, stationary and the trouble and confusion it would cause for some time to come it seems that the railroad has the arbitrary right to change the name of a station when ever they so desire tho the people have the say in regard to the post office. There will be a meeting tonight to talk over the matter.

Treatment of Smut in Grain

Every farmer knows what smut in oats or wheat means. He knows how a field of wheat which gives promise of 20 bushel per acre of grain will produce, infected with smut, only 15 bushel or less, and inferior smutted grain at that. Every farmer ought to know that such smutted grain if not treated before seeding will again produce smut—more smut than before. Every farmer ought to know that even if his seed looks clean, it may still have smut on it, unless he is sure that it comes from a field with out smut and that it has not been contaminated with smut in the separator, in the bin, sacks, or seeder. Finally every farmer ought to know that by a simple, inexpensive seed treatment he can be absolutely sure that he will have a clean crop—he can buy insurance at a very low cost by treating his seed.

Several methods can be used on the farm—only one of these will be described. It can be recommended to any farmer for cheapness, efficiency and simplicity. Buy from a reliable druggist standard "formalin" of guaranteed strength (namely of 40 percent solution of formaldehyde). Mix 1 lb, (1 pint) in 45 gallons of water in a ordinary wooden barrel and stir it. Two ways of applying this solution to the grain can be used:—

1. Dipping Method: Put the grain in clean sacks that have first been placed in boiling water for a few minutes; take each sack of grain, and dip it in the solution in the barrel—raise it and lower until each seed is wet; set the sack on a clean floor and let it stand over night The grain can then be dumped out on a clean floor or left in the sacks until it dries enough to let it run thru the drill. (A floor is clean when it is washed with boiling hot water). Be sure not to let the swollen grain stand so long that it will sprout. If it cannot be sown immelately, it should be thoroughly dried and may then be kept indefinitely. When dry enough to run thru the drill sow it. Be sure the drill is clean. Sow more seed per acre if the grain is swollen.

2. Sprinkling method: Make the solution the same as in the dipping method. Put the grain on a clean floor, spread it out and with a sprinkling can sprinkle the solution on it. Shovel the grain and sprinkle again. Repeat until each kernel is moist but not too wet. Shovel into a pile and cover with sacks or canvass overnight Then spread it out and shovel occasionally until dry enough to sow. Follow the precautions for drying and sowing given under the dipping method. This treatment will prevent the following common smut: Oat smut Stinking smut or common smut of wheat (but not the loose smut or black head). Covered smut of barley (but not the early or loose smut). Grain smut or common smut of sorgum or cane.

If it does not prevent these smuts you have not followed directions. It must be remembered that this treatment will not prevent corn smut, black heads, early smut of wheat, nor the early or loose smut one of the common smuts of barley). For these see the next issue of this bulletin.

Importation of Cattle.

Each year immigration is becoming more pronounced which is no doubt due to the fact of eagerness to attain greater wealth and for this reason it has been found necessary to enforce various laws in the various states in order to protect the residents therein against disease. This same may be applied to the importation of cattle, it having been found necessary in order to protect the stock owner, that all cattle before entering the state must be thoroughly inspected and passed upon as being free from any infectious or contagious disease.

While each and every disease in cattle has a tendency to reduce the profits of a herd, exceptional attention has been paid to the eradication of tuberculosis and for this reason most states require, that before a non resident herd can enter the state, that it shall been accompanied by a certificate which shows that every animal has been tuberculin tested and is free from same.

While cattle that have been imported may have been apparently free from disease at the time of purchase owing to the delay of arrival, and exposal they are subjected to, it has been deemed necessary to hold same in quarantine for a certain length of time, there by definitely determining as to the exact condition of each individual animal before its introduction into the states, and while it has often been found that they are free from tuberculosis, the owner is many times disappointed to find upon thorough examination that they are afflicted with the germs of contagious abortion and for this reason each animal is treated until all signs of this disease have disappeared before introducing them into their new quarters in this way following out the theory that one ounce of pervention is worth a pound of cure.

The democratic state central committee will meet in St. Paul next Thursday to fix the date for holding the democratic state convention which will probably be held in Minneapolis during state fair week.

Congressman Stenerson has instituted suit against J. A. Penton, Secretary of the Merchant Marine league, charging him with criminal libel, Penton having stated in his publication, the 'American Flag', that Steenerson was fighting the ship subsidy bill in the interest of foreign shipping concerns.

The St. Paul Dispatch has made a forecast of the next Minnesota state Senate and has the following for the Red River Valley districts: Fiftyninth Elmer Adams, Fergus Falls. Sixtieth F. H. Peterson, Moorhead. Sixty-first A. L. Hanson, Ada. Sixty-second—A. D. Stephens, Crookston. Sixty-third—B. E. Sundberg, Kennedy.

At a meeting of the Republican State Central, committee held last Saturday, June 21st was agreed upon as the time for holding the state convention which will be at St. Paul. The convention will be made up of 1,075 delegates of which number the three big counties St. Louis, Ramsey and Hennepin will have 193.

A circular from the immigration department of the state says that settlers who have moved into Minnesota, during the week ending Monday, March 28, added fully $500,000 to the wealth of the state. This is a conservative estimate by those who have been watching the wonderful influx of new-comers into Minnesota and the Northwest.

Every Minnesota farmer is entitled to have his name placed on the Extension Division mailing list and to receive regularly the Farmers' Library. No one should be negligent about requesting that the library be sent. He should provide means for future reference, for it will be full of useful hints and suggestions which will prove valuable at any season of the year.

According to the Grygla Eagle, Middle River is going to try to have Marshall county divided at the next election in order to become the county seat of the new county. The Grygla paper is opposed to the division on the grounds, we suppose, that that place would like to be the county seat of the new county. Marshall county will surely have to be divided at some time in the near future, as it is too large a county at present.—T. R. F. News.

The time to do a worthy deed is where the opportunity offers.

The welfare of humanity is entitled to your first considerations not only to the stray thoughts that you cannot avoid giving it.

The ice on Red Lake River broke up this year on March 31st. This is seven weeks earlier than the ice has disappeared some years.

ExPresident Roosevelt will indeed be a good one if he completes his European tour without being spoiled by the hero worship he is receiving everywhere he goes.

The recent Pittsburg graft exposure shows that some of the councilmen sold themselves for the measly sum of fifty dollars. Wonder if any U. S. Congressmen were ever bought that cheap.

Taking everything into consideration the present incumbrance of the Presidential chair seems to be one of the poorest, it has been the peoples bad fortune to pick up for some time.

There has been more printers ink used in the discussion of "The High Cost of Living" during the last six months than on any other subject. The terms have been inverted. It should have been The Cost of High Living.

Magistrate Barlow of New York may be in training for the Chautauqua circuit or he may be merely naturally modest. When a young women appeared in his court with a plea that a corset which she had purchased did not fit, for which reason she demanded the return of her money, the justice looked at the corset and, with horror depicted upon his countenance, cried:

"If that awful looking harness you lay before me is a latter-day corset than I don't wonder that the plaintiff refuses to wear it and wants her money back."

Then the purchaser of the corset proposed to put it on for the purpose of showing wherein it failed to meet requirments, but the magistrate held up his hands and exclaimed:

"No! I positively refuse to allow the young woman to don those cruel looking things in my court."

In answer to their own question, "What can the Republicans do to be saved," Colliers weekly has the following:

1. Joseph G. Cannon should be eliminated as a factor by a declaration that he will not be a candidate for re-election. The new committee on rules is dominated by the old crowd and Tawney's struggle to put Fitzgerald in line for the chairmanship shows what the old crowd is up to. It may even hope to save Cannon.

2. The insurgents should be treated, not as enemies to the organization, but as the healthiest group of legislators now in service.

3. A parcels post bill ought to be passed, altho the courage required to do this in defiance of the express companies is so great that the question becomes merely academic.

4. The sugar trust cases ought not to be sent to oblivion.

5. Mr. Tafts remaining appointments ought not to be in the class of Fulton and Kerens.

6. The Appalachian bill should be passed.

7. The Administration conservation bill should be passed.

8. The investigating committee should report on the Ballinger investigation as soon as the testimony is in, for if it undertakes to jog along until after the elections, the country will form conclusions not flattering to the candor and courage of the administration and the dominant wing of the Republican Party.

DID NOT SEE POPE

Roosevelt Rejects Conditions Imposed by the Vatican.

WOULD MAKE NO STIPULATIONS

Ex-President Desired Freedom of Conduct While in Rome.

Rome, April 5.—The audience which it was believed former President Roosevelt would have with the pope did not take place, owing to conditions which the Vatican imposed and which Mr. Roosevelt refused to accept. The communications regarding the proposed meeting, which have just been made public, are, briefly, as follows:

From Gondakoro Mr. Roosevelt wrote to J. G. A. Leishman, United States ambassador to Italy, saying that he would be glad of an audience with King Victor Emmanuel and Pope Pius. King Victor Emmanual at once granted the audience, but the pope did not.

Mgr. Kennedy, rector of the American Catholic college, finally said the pope would be delighted to grant Mr. Roosevelt audience April 5, adding, "and hopes that nothing will arise to prevent it such as the much regretted incident which made the reception of Mr. Fairbanks impossible."

In view of the fact that Mr. Roosevelt's other engagements in Rome were limited to the audience with the king of Italy and a dinner given in his honor by the municipality he declined to make any stipulations or submit to any conditions which would in any way limit his freedom of conduct.

Mgr. Kennedy again notified Ambassador Leishman that the original conditions were insisted upon.

Mr. Roosevelt then notified Mr. Leishman that the proposed presentation could not take place. To the Outlook he wired:

"I am sure that the great majority of my fellow citizens will feel that I acted in the only way possible for an American to act."

Papal Delegate Falconio Discusses Roosevelt Incident.

Washington, April 5.—Sharply criticising the work of the Methodist church in Rome as "insulting agitation and offensive proselytism, which constitute a real warfare against the pope and the Catholic religion," Mgr. Falconio, papal delegate to the United States, commented upon the Roosevelt incident with the Vatican. The papal delegate declared that neither the pope nor the cardinal's secretary of state was to blame for the situation, which he described as "the intolerable condition created for the holy see by the Methodists in Rome."

"In the case of Colonel Roosevelt, as of Mr. Fairbanks, it was not at all a question of religion, but of the self-respect and dignity of the apostolic see. Colonel Roosevelt could have gone to any other Protestant church in Rome, and even, as would have appeared from reports, to the Methodists, after his reception by the pope."

GUEST OF THE KING OF ITALY

Roosevelt Attends Grand Dinner at the Palace.

Rome, April 5.—Twice during the day Theodore Roosevelt was the guest of King Victor Emmanuel. The king received the former president at an early hour at the Quirinal with particular warmth, and they talked together for nearly an hour. In the evening there was a grand dinner at the palace given by the king and queen in honor of Colonel Roosevelt and his family. Great preparations had been going on for this event, and the queen herself directed all the arrangements, desiring that no detail should be neglected. At dinner Colonel Roosevelt sat at the queen's right.

Movement for Impeachment Proceedings Against Judge Grosscup.

Washington, April 2.—A movement started by organized labor to institute impeachment proceedings against United States Circuit Judge Peter S. Grosscup is behind a resolution asking an investigation of the federal court officers' fees, which Representative Sabath of Chicago introduced in the house.

Mr. Sabath admitted that charges preferred against the judge by labor organizations had been laid before him and that he was awaiting the outcome of further investigation.

The labor leaders charge Judge Grosscup with official acts for which, they assert, he lacked authority of law. The principal criticism centers about the conduct of receiverships, principally that of the Union Traction company of Chicago, in his court. The labor men assert the appointment of Marshall E. Samsell as receiver of this company while he was private secretary to Judge Grosscup and afterward clerk of the circuit court was distinctly improper and unlawful. Upon these and similar grounds labor organizations want impeachment proceedings against the judge instituted in the house of representatives.

Steel Trust Considering General Increase in Wages.

New York, April 1.—The United States Steel corporation is considering a voluntary increase in the wages of its employes. It is believed that it will equal the 6 per cent increase announced by the Pennsylvania Railroad company.

The aggregate payroll of the United States Steel corporation in 1909 amounted to $151,663,394 and an increase of 6 per cent would mean an additional disbursement of $9,099,804, or nearly one-half of the 4 per cent dividend paid last year on the common stock.

The Scorpion's Wonderful Ear.

I have studied the habits of the scorpion for many years and have often noticed how very sensitive scorpions are to the most delicate sound, musical or otherwise. Under the thorax the scorpion has two comblike appendages, which are the antennae (pectinatae). It is pretty well settled by physiologists and entomologists that in insects the antennae represent the organs of hearing. These delicate structures are easily affected by the vibrations of sound, and there can be no doubt whatever that they are also affected by sounds quite inaudible to the human ear. The slightest vibration of the atmosphere from any cause whatever at once puts in motion the delicate structures which compose the antennae, to which organs insects owe the power of protecting themselves against danger as well as the means of recognizing the approach of one another.—London Spectator.

At one of the early dog shows Samuel J. Tilden bought an immense Great Dane dog. "What's his name?" asked a visitor.

"Askim," said Mr. Tilden.

"What good would that do?"

So it was—Askim.

Pittsburgers Show Resentment When Mayor Attempts to Speak.

Pittsburg, April 3.—The indignation of 4,000 citizens over the political corruption now being unearthed by the grand jury by councilmanic confessions and denunciations of civil vice generally was vehemently expressed at a mass meeting in Exposition hall.

Mayor William A. Magee, who sought to address the meeting, was hooted off the stage. The resentment shown was at the chief executive's failure to clean up the red light district, delayed action on traction problems and other local matters.

JOHN DUGGAN'S SECOND WIFE.

A Man's Quest For His Ideal and Its Realization.

By MARGARET COY KENDALL.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"It's the grand little home I'll be bringin' her to," John Duggan mused proudly as he surveyed the four tiny rooms he had furnished anew to honor the homecoming of the second Mrs. Duggan. He wandered from room to room, chuckling in delight over the shining freshness of it all. The little sitting room held him spellbound. Its gorgeous flowered walls, its bright hued carpet, the new nickel trimmed heater and all the other new and unfamiliar things down to the white globed kerosene lamp seemed to him the height and depth of the home comfort he had so long dreamed of.

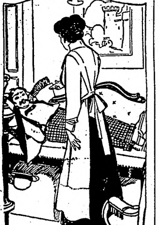
"It's the grand little home," he repeated half aloud, "an' it's Katy will be the happy woman in it. An', her so nate an' clane, it's foine she'll keep it." He laughed softly with brimming delight. "Sure it's shinin' like a whistle she'll hev it the whole God's blessed time wid the scrubbin' an' the clanin' of her." His little eyes grew reminiscent. He clasped his hands about one knee and teetered gently back and forth. "It's what I've always wanted, a nate home," he meditated. "Poor Honora, God rest her, was that aisy goin'! Nothin' troubled her. Sure it was only a laugh I'd get for me trouble when I'd want things a bit spruce. But it's no matter now. Perhaps the poor girl was not strong for all the hearty look of her," he added in sudden remorse, remembering Honora's recent demise.

There were impatient days of waiting, and then came the happy day that John Duggan brought home his second bride. Katy walked silently through the rooms that John so proudly displayed. He watched her face eagerly, waiting to see the delight come into it. But Katy's stolid Celtic countenance reflected nothing but the interest of a prudent housewife.

"That couch will have to be moved from the window—the sun will fade it dreadful there. And you'll have to put some tin behind the stove. It's terrible the way the heat fades these cheap wall papers," she criticised.

Duggan's face fell. He looked blankly from the couch to the stove, wondering dimly how it was he had not noticed those things before.

"It takes a woman to see things right," he said aloud. "You'll hev everything jist as you want it, Katy. Jist say what you want." And Duggan's eyes began to wander over the room again, looking for flaws he had not before detected in his perfect picture.



"NOW, DON'T BE LYING THERE ON THAT NEW COUCH."

Before a week had passed the rooms wore a new aspect. Katy had moved and shifted things about and arranged them with a precision that indicated well the dominating trait of the woman's character. Neatness shone in every corner, and cleanliness seemed to be in the very air. It was all the very realization of John's dream when, suffering the discomforts of Honora's slack housekeeping, he had indulged his fancy with a picture of things under a more strenuous system. John was long in acknowledging, and then only secretly, that the reality did not somehow possess all the delights that anticipation had promised. Strangely enough, Honora's easy going ways gradually assumed in the perspective all the comfort giving properties that the more thoroughgoing Katy seemed strangely to lack.

"Now, don't be lying there on that new couch in your dirty working clothes," Katy had said sharply the first evening John had stretched himself wearily out for his initial taste of the bliss he had pictured.

John had risen slowly and seated himself before the stove. Katy eyed him covertly for some time as he tilted back and forth, his foot resting on the nickel footpiece. She opened her lips several times to speak, but hesitated, an annoyed frown growing between her brows.

"You'll be knocking that stove over, putting the whole weight of you on it like that," she said icily.

For a moment a look almost of anger came into Duggan's downcast eyes. In that moment his illusions all but failed. But suddenly he looked up, a resolute smile wrinkling his face.

"Sure it's me own stove," he said, with a playful attempt at joviality, "I kin knock it over if I want to."

Again John's illusions trembled, and he sat dumb, looking vacantly about the room. After all, it was not a perfect room. Something essential was missing. His mind groped stupidly for what it might be. Then, like an inspiration, it came to him.

"A bit of music would be cheerful loike in the house," he said, looking placatingly at Katy. "How would you loike one of those nice phonographs they have at MacGrath's? I was thinkin"— The look of horror in Katy's eyes cut him short.

"A phonograph!" Her voice rasped sharp with repulsion. "I hate the squeaking, snorting things. Don't bring one here."

"To be sure, to be sure," John soothed, "they are the onnatural things, an' that noisy too. You're right about it, Katy, jewel. I was just thinkin'"— His voice trailed into wondering silence again.

The next night there was no fire in the sitting room stove when Duggan came home. Katy was at work in the kitchen. Everything in the little room shone as if from recent scouring. Katy herself in a stiffly ironed print gown and spotless white apron moved about in noiseless efficiency. Duggan seated himself gingerly upon the edge of a chair and tried to feel the delight he professed in watching the clocklike working out of the domestic system he had so long desired. When he had prodded his fancy to a state of approbation he rose, contented, and, picking up an armful of wood, started for the sitting room. Katy stopped him.

"We'll have no more fires in there," she said firmly. "It makes too much mess. I spend my whole time cleaning up after you. You can sit out here."

Duggan's wrath blazed slowly. With heavy deliberation he put down the wood and stood facing Katy.

"An' has it come to this," he said, scowling savagely, "that I be denied the privilege of me own fireside?"

Katy faced him, her eyes flintlike.

"I can't be forever cleaning after you," she cried, her voice shrilling with excitement. "You make more dirt—I never saw the like. It's a servant you need to be after you the whole blessed time."

A quick flame flashed in Duggan's eyes, and his clinched fist smashed down upon the table with a dish rattling force. "You'll clean for me no more, d'ye understand?" he cried, with sudden decision in his voice. "You kin hev the house to yourself. Now, kape it as clane as you plaze." And, slamming his hat over his eyes, he went out the door.

"He'll be back as soon as his tantrum is over," she said, yet her hands shook as she went on with her work.

She set his place for supper and waited, but he did not come. When she had finished her own meal she set everything away, then drew a straight backed chair before the kitchen stove and sat there. At bedtime she rose and with the same precision that marked her every movement made her usual preparations for the night. Over the locking of the door she hesitated but a breath. Then with a click of the key it was done, and Duggan was barred for the night.

Days lengthened into weeks, and John's hand never once sought the door latch. Katy began to hear vague rumors of wild extravagances that filled her frugal soul with anguish. When in time these rumors became more specific and visions of her own portionless lot rose before her she felt that something must be done.

Duggan was standing before a concert hall about to enter with two of his cronies when Katy found him. When she laid a hand on his sleeve he turned, and, seeing her, his jaw dropped and the laugh on his lips died.

"Come, John," she said, firmly. "I have a word to say to you."

He held back a moment, eying her distrustfully, then walked a few steps with her and stopped again.

"Aren't you coming?" Katy demanded, making as if to go on.

John looked over his worn clothes with a deprecatory smile.

"Do you think me clane enough?" he queried with suddenly assumed anxiety.

Katy looked at him sharply, but his eyes were fixed solicitously upon the tips of his shabby boots.

"I've had enough of this tomfoolery"—she lowered her voice to a tense whisper—"you spending your money like a common rowdy and living away from your lawful home. Come home with me this minute! Do you hear?"

John squared back and looked at her a full minute before answering.

"Go home," he repeated, shaking his head slowly. "I'm sorry to disappoint you, Katy, jewel, but I'm that comfortable at Mrs. Gerry's. She's not as clane as some perhaps, but I like the comfort of her aisy goin' ways."

An angry red crept to Katy's cheeks, and the determined line of her lips set closer. She drew near to John and laid a hand in a detaining grip on his arm.

"If I was too fussy, John, I'm sorry. I'll be different now," she said, softening her voice with a note of regret.

John deliberated long, his eyes fixed vacantly on a point down the street where his two companions stood waiting. An impatient nod from one of them brought him suddenly to himself, and before Katy could interpose he had turned and was on his way to rejoin them.

"I'll let you know in the mornin'," he called back as he went.

The next morning a messenger brought to Katy's door a clumsily sealed envelope. On opening it Katy was confronted with a document which, for all its labored briefness, took long studying on her part to even faintly comprehend. It read:

To Kate Duggan, to be accepted or not, as it please her:

First.—Whereas Cleanliness is next to Godliness, yet Comfort is next the Heart.

Third.—Man does not live by Bread alone, for an unruly Tongue is sharper than the tooth of a Serpent.

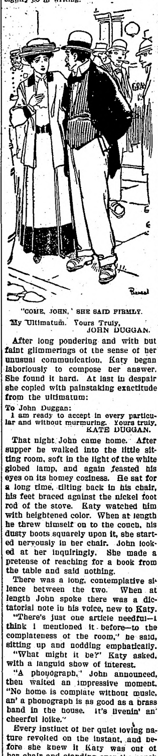
Sixth.—Woman was created subject to Man, to obey in all things Whatsoever.

Seventh.—It is of the Covenant that only he who is Master can come unto His Own. Am I to be Master in all things Whatsoever?

Eighth.—If ready to accept the above in every particular and without murmuring, signify so in writing.



"COME, JOHN,' SHE SAID FIRMLY.

My Ultimatum. Yours Truly,
JOHN DUGGAN.

After long pondering and with but faint glimmerings of the sense of her unusual communication, Katy began laboriously to compose her answer. She found it hard. At last in despair she copied with painstaking exactitude from the ultimatum:

To John Duggan:

I am ready to accept in every particular and without murmuring. Yours truly,
KATE DUGGAN.

That night John came home. After supper he walked into the little sitting room, soft in the light of the white globed lamp, and again feasted his eyes on its homey coziness. He sat for a long time, tilting back in his chair, his feet braced against the nickel foot rod of the stove. Katy watched him with heightened color. When at length he threw himself on to the couch, his dusty boots squarely upon it, she started nervously in her chair. John looked at her inquiringly. She made a pretense of reaching for a book from the table and said nothing.

There was a long, contemplative silence between the two. When at length John spoke there was a dictatorial note in his voice, new to Katy.

"There's just one article needful—I think I mentioned it before—to the complateness of the room," he said, sitting up and nodding emphatically.

"What might it be?" Katy asked, with a languid show of interest.

"A phonograph," John announced, then waited an impressive moment. "No home is complate without music, an' a phonograph is as good as a brass band in the house. It's livenin' an' cheerful loike."

Every instinct of her quiet loving nature revolted on the instant, and before she knew it Katy was out of her chair and standing over the couch threateningly.

"A phonograph,' she cried, catching her breath sobbingly. "I won't have one of the grinding, shrieking things. They drive me wild."

Duggan sat up, astonishment written large on his broad features. At the look on his face Katy felt all her opposition fade into trembling rout.

"Sit down, woman," John commanded, waving her authoritatively to her chair. "A phonograph I said. Did you not understand rightly?"

John's eyes fixed in a disconcerting stare upon her agitated face, and he sat for a full moment staring at her in silence. Then his hand began to fumble in his coat pocket and he drew forth a carefully folded sheet of paper.

"Did you sign that or did you not?" he cried, waving it triumphantly before her face.

It was the sheet on which she had signed away her independence, and Katy's eyes fell before it. The color receded slowly from her cheeks, and she sank limply into her chair.

John continued waving the ultimatum before her like a flag of victory. "The screechin', grindin' things, indade! Well, I loike 'em. An' I'm thinkin' a man can hev what he loikes in his own house—when he's master," he added, tapping the paper he held significantly.

Katy said nothing, but sat dully watching as Duggan carefully folded the disciplinary document and again stowed it in a convenient pocket.

OBJECTED TO BY CUMMINS

Plan to Vote on Railroad Bill Next Saturday.

SAYS PROPOSITION IS A JOKE

Iowa Senator Declares That Two Week's Time Will Be Necessary for Consideration of the Measure and Amendments That Have Been Offered—Senator Bacon Sides With the Man From the Northwest.

Washington, April 5.—Declaring that no less than two weeks' time will be necessary to consider the amendments already offered to the railroad bill, Senator Cummins resisted the combined efforts of Senators Hale and Elkins to obtain an agreement to vote next Saturday on the bill. The Iowa senator not only objected to the proposition, but he pronounced it a joke.

Senator Bacon made evident that if no one else had objected he would do so. He contended that the managers of the bill were not justified in asking for an agreement looking to a vote until they are able to present a perfected bill.

Mr. Elkins brought up the question of a vote after the close of a speech by Senator Crawford advocating the amendation of the commerce court provision of the bill.

"I don't want to push senators," Mr. Elkins said, "but we all want to get away from here by June 15. I therefore urge that senators desiring to speak on the bill or amendments will prepare themselves to do so and give us an opportunity to vote."

Cummins Suggests Substitute.

Mr. Cummins regarded Mr. Elkins as not only amiable, but jocular. There were more than a hundred amendments to be considered, he said, and no less than a fortnight would be necessary for the duty alone. He suggested as a substitute an agreement that not less than three hours a day be devoted to the consideration of the bill and amendments until disposed of.

Mr. Bacon would not consent.

"Senators say the bill has been here six weeks," he said. "It is not here yet. Amendments have been offered which none have seen, and we receive no assurance as to when the bill will be completed."

"The amendments are not of a kind that surprise senators," Mr. Hale responded.

"We don't know," Mr. Bacon replied, "we haven't seen them."

Mr. Cummins brought the discussion to an end by presenting an amendment striking out the provision authorizing the submission in advance of agreements to the court of commerce.

The senate then went into executive session and adjourned without further proceedings on the railroad bill.

Action was taken to insure prompt consideration of the railroad bill by the house. All of the parliamentary privileges were allowed to that measure that pertain to appropriation bills.

Under the terms of a resolution offered by Mr. Mann and adopted by the house the debate on the railroad bill will be limited to the subject matter of that measure.

NEW OLEOMARGARINE BILL

Introduced in the House by Congressman Goebel.

Washington, April 5.—Representative Goebel of Ohio presented an oleomagarine bill repealing all existing oleo laws, reducing the tax on oleo and establishing new regulations for its manufacture and sale. The bill is said to meet the approval of the secretary of the treasury, the department and the commissioner of internal revenues. The bill changes the name of oleomargarine to margarine. It classes renovated butter and adulterated butter with margarine.

Adulterated butter is defined as that made by mixing, reworking or rechurning in milk or cream, refining, or in any way producing a uniform purified or improved product from different lots of melted or unmelted butter or butter fat through the addition of acid, alkaloid or chemical.

Renovated butter is that subjected to processes by which it is melted, clarified or refined and made to resemble genuine butter. Manufacturers of margarine are to pay a license of $600 a year. Wholesalers, or those selling in quantities over 100 pounds, $125 a year; retailers, who sell in quantities under 10 pounds, $6 a year. Manufacturers must give bond of $5,000 and file statements of the quantities of materials used.

May Ignore Tariff Law.

Indianapolis, April 5.—If the friends of United States Senator A. B. Beveridge have their way in the Republican state convention here no mention in the platform will be made of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law or of the county local option law, two questions that have caused party leaders deep concern during the past few days.

Joel P. Heatwole Dies Suddenly at Northfield, Minn.

VICTIM OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Deceased Was Elected to Congress as a Republican From a District That Had Previously Been Democratic, Serving Four Terms in the Lower House—Was Editor of the Northfield News and Long Prominent in Minnesota Politics.

Northfield, Minn., April 5.—Joel P. Heatwole, editor of the Northfield News, died suddenly at his residence here.

In spite of the fact that Mr. Heatwole suffered with Bright's disease and had been in poor health for some time, his death was wholly unexpected.

When Mr. Heatwole arose in the morning he was feeling in better health than for some time. After dinner he was sitting in a chair when the fatal stroke came. Acute Bright's disease caused death.

With him at the time were Mrs. Heatwole and his stepdaughter, Alice Archibald, and his medical attendant.

Mr. Heatwole is survived by his widow, Gertrude Archibald Heatwole, whom he married in 1890 in London, Eng., and by his stepdaughter, Miss Alice Archibald.

Mr. Heatwole was born in Waterford Mills, Ind., Aug. 22, 1856. Attended public and private schools; worked on a farm; worked in printing shops; taught country and village schools; owned a newspaper in 1876; came to Minnesota in 1882; worked on the Enterprise, Glencoe, and Lake Superior News, Duluth; bought the Northfield news in 1884.

President of Editorial Association.

He served three terms as president of the Minnesota Editorial association; delegate to state Republican convention in 1886; member state Republican committee and secretary; same positions in 1888; delegate at large to the national Republican convention in 1888; chairman state Republican committee in 1890; member state board of regents state university; defeated for congress in 1892; elected mayor of Northfield in 1894; elected to congress in 1894 by a plurality of 5,268, the district having nearly 9,000 Democratic and Populist majority in 1890; was reelected in 1896 by a majority of over 6,000, and re-elected in 1898 and 1900, respectively, by increased majorities; member of the committee on foreign affairs for eight years; member of the sub-committee dealing with Cuban affairs; one of the three house conferees having under consideration the resolutions leading to the war with Spain; chairman of the committee on printing for four years; member, among others, of the committees on census, board of visitors to naval academy, Capitol celebration.

He was one of six Republican congressmen who refused to vote to impose a tariff on Porto Rico; voted gainst the Philippine tariff bill; in 1890 declared that trust controlled articles should go on the free list, the first public declaration of the sort made.

CHURCHMAN MUST RETURN

McTeer's Efforts to Avoid Extradition Fail.

Grand Forks, N. D., April 5.—Notice has been received in Grand Forks that a judgment of extradition has been entered at Montreal against Archibald McTeer, the former Grand Forks churchman who is accused of obtaining money under false pretenses. McTeer has been placed in jail at Montreal pending the hearing of an application for a writ of habeas corpus, which has been made on the plea that the action against him was started to collect a civil debt. This case has been in progress since last November, McTeer making a hard effort to defeat extradition.

Hatcher Brothers of this city accuse him of securing $1,900 from them under false pretenses.

Crop Conditions Good.

Grand Forks, N. D., April 5.—Crop conditions in North Dakota were never better, according to J. H. Griffin, division freight agent of the Great Northern, whose position puts him closely in touch with business men and farmers. This week sees the real opening of spring work in the state, and those who have held off are now at work. Although there was a scarcity of help two weeks ago, this is not the case at present.

Killed in Railroad Wreck.

Bemidji, Minn., April 5.—Fred O. Sibley, a merchant of Island Lake, Minn., and prominent in Beltrami county, was killed at the Whitefish spur in a wreck on the Wilton and Northern railroad, in which the engine was demolished. No one else was injured, the engineer and fireman saving themselves by jumping.

GENERAL BOOTH.

Feared End of Salvation Army Founder Is Near.

SEIZED WITH FAINTING SPELL

General Booth Seriously Ill at His Home in London.

London, April 5.—General William Booth, head of the Salvation Army, is seriously ill at his home here. He was seized with a fainting spell Sunday. Those close to the general fear his present illness marks a general breakdown. He is eighty-one years old and his health has been failing rapidly in recent years.

General Booth seems to realize that the end is not far off, for he expressed his pleasure to several of his coworkers who called on him.

Affairs of the Salvation Army are in such shape that his passing away would be without serious effect.

THOUSANDS ARE IDLE

Bituminous Coal Miners Cease Their Labors.

Indianapolis, April 1.—Three hundred thousand organized miners of the bituminous coal fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas have quit work.

The miners, members of the United Mine Workers of America, declared the walkout was not a strike, but merely a suspension of work pending an arrangement between themselves and the operators of a wage scale for another year, the old scale having expired with the month of March. The men demand an increase of pay in some instances of 5 cents a ton, in other instances more and certain changes in working conditions.

While the miners predicted the suspension would be cut short by a prompt signing of wage scales some of the operators maintained the mines might be kept closed for a month, or sixty days or longer.

Conferences between the miners' organizations in the several districts and the operators' associations have been arranged. Adjustment of the difficulty may be a question of weeks or days. In the Brazil block coal district of Indiana the operators conceded the higher wage demand of the miners.

Patroness of Music.

The origin of music is lost in antiquity. Among civilized people it is probably to be traced to the ancient Egyptian priests, who employed this art in their religious rites and ceremonies. From the Egyptians the Greeks and the Romans derived their knowledge of music. The ancient Hebrews probably took with them into Palestine some of the songs they had learned in Egypt The hymns used in the temple formed the basis of the melodies of the early Christian church, and from these hymns was formulated the first authoritative musical system. St. Cecelia is termed the patroness of music.—Exchange.

The Spit Snake.

There is a snake belonging to the small family causidae, inhabiting Africa, that is said to have the power of ejecting its venom to a short distance This snake is called by the Dutch Boers "spuw slang," or spit snake. When this snake erects its teeth the pressure of the maxillary bone on the gland causes the venom to flow in drops, and it may be quite possible that by discharging air from its mouth the poison may be blown some distance.

The Gypsies.

The origin of the people known as gypsies remains largely a mystery. Egypt, India, Persia and Arabia have in turn been pointed out as their original country, but there is little definite knowledge on the subject. The weight of evidence is in favor of their having originated in India. They first appeared in Europe about 1400 and from the Danube region spread all over the continent, appearing in England about 1520.

Served Him Well.

During the early days of the career of William Allen White, when he was charged with the conduct of a country paper in Iowa, he one day received a call from an indignant contributor, who bitterly complained that matter of his, long before submitted, had not been published.

"Softly, my friend," said White in his most soothing tone. "Really I must offer my best thanks to you for those features. They have served me well. From time to time when I get to thinking that this sheet is a pretty poor one to inflict upon a long suffering public I look up your stuff and read it carefully, a process which enables me to perceive how much worse my paper might be, whereupon I become real cheerful. Please don't take them from me."—Cleveland Leader.

RAID ON BROKERS

Government Makes Sudden Move Against Bucket Shops.

SECRET INDICTMENTS FOUND

Special Agents Swoop Down on Offices in Several Cities.

Washington, April 3.—Armed with bench warrants issued by the supreme court of the District of Columbia special agents of the department of justice simultaneously raided brokers' offices in New York, Philadelphia, Jersey City, Baltimore, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Conspiracy indictments in which twenty-nine persons are named—five of them said to be millionaires and all interested in brokers' offices in large cities of the United States—were returned by the federal grand jury of the District of Columbia upon evidence which agents of the department of justice had been gathering for more than a year.

The indictments were withheld on the request of Attorney General Wickersham so that the department of justice detectives might make the raids simultaneously upon the places suspected of being "bucket shops."

The men indicted are said to be those financially interested in the corporation known as E. S. Boggs & Co., which has offices in New York and Philadelphia; Price & Co., which has offices in Baltimore and New York, and the Standard Stock and Grain Dealers, which has offices in Jersey City, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Move Prepared With Secrecy.

This, the United States government's first attack upon stock gambling, has been thoroughly prepared with greatest secrecy. Its scope practically covers the United States from the Missouri river to the Atlantic. The three concerns indicted maintain more than 250 offices and branch offices located from New England to Oklahoma.

With the aid of United States Attorney Baker of the District of Columbia, Special Assistant Attorney General A. Bruce Bielaski and Chief Finch of Attorney General Wickersham's bureau of investigation have been presenting the evidence to the grand jury for several days.

The theory of the conspiracy indictments is that every man who was connected in any way with the operation of the three firms which did business in the district, had entered into a conspiracy to relieve people of their money.

The government maintains that every alleged bucketing transaction of the local brokers named was the act of each and every person charged in the indictment.

JURYMAN WAS NOT QUALIFIED

Attack Made on Graft Indictments at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, April 5.—The trial of councilmen indicted in the recent fraud exposures has begun. Two former councilmen pleaded no defense. Many others under indictment failed to answer their names when the trial list, comprising forty-two cases, was read and deputy sheriffs were sent out to bring them in.

Interesting legal procedure is involved by the question raised by one of the defense attorneys, who asked for quash ruling on the indictments against his client on the grounds that Foreman Harrison Nesbit of the grand jury, formerly a national bank examiner, is not a qualified elector and not qualified to sit on a jury in this state. If Mr. Nesbit is proved to be a resident of the District of Columbia, as contended by the defense, a ruling quashing all indictments brought by the graft investigating grand jury to date is not unlikely.

A Multiplication Trick.

Here is a little trick in multiplication that may amuse you. Ask a friend to write down the numbers 12345679, omitting the number 8. Then tell him to select any one figure from the list, multiply it by 9 and with the answer to this sum multiply the whole list—thus, assuming that he selects either the figure 4 or 6:

| Select 4×9=36. | Select 6×9=54. |
| 36 | 54 |
| 74074074 | 49382716 |
| 37037037 | 61728395 |
| 444444444 | 666666666 |

You see, the answer of the sum is composed of figures similar to the one selected.

AT LEAST A SCORE PERISH

British Vessel Sunk and Apprentice Boy Is Only Survivor.

Falmouth, Eng., April 5.—The four-masted British ship Kate Thomas, while in tow off Lands End, was run down and sunk by an unknown steamer. The captain and mates, with their wives, and fifteen of the crew were drowned. The only survivor was an apprentice boy, who was picked up by the tug which was doing the towing.

COMMITTEEMEN CLASH

Party Spirit Shown at Ballinger-Pinchot Inquiry.

Washington, April 2.—The most serious clash that has yet occurred among the members of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation committee marked the forenoon sitting. The quarrel, which continued for an hour or more, was added evidence of the growing feeling of partisanship among the Democratic and Republican members of the committee and was taken by many to mean the hopelessness of a unanimous agreement.

The row was precipitated when Chairman Nelson accused Attorney Brandeis, representing the "prosecution," of attempting to deceive or conceal something from the committee. The attorney, flushed with anger, jumped to his feet and demanded that the chairman's remarks be withdrawn.

The Democratic members of the committee were quick to take up the defense of the attorney and Representative Graham of Illinois moved that the chairman be directed to withdraw the imputation. Representative James seconded the motion. There followed a general discussion in which every member of the committe present took part and stated his personal views. A number of Republicans said they did not agree with Senator Nelson that Mr. Brandeis was attempting concealment of any sort, but at the same time they would not vote to compel the chairman to withdraw it.

The matter finally was disposed of by a motion from Representative Olmsted to lay on the table. This was caried by a vote of 6 to 3.

GERMAN RAILROAD DISASTER

More Than a Score Killed and Over Two Hundred Injured.

Mulheim-am-Rhein, Germany, April 1.—It appears that more than 200 persons were injured when the steamer express ran down and wrecked a military train bound for Strassburg. There was one death during the night, making the total fatalities twenty-two. Six other persons are said to be dying. The victims were soldiers. Two signal men have been arrested and are charged with having given both trains the right of way at the same moment.

Myra Kelly, Authoress, Is Dead.

London, April 1.—Myra Kelly (Mrs. Allan MacNaughton), the American educator and author, is dead at Torquay, where she had been stopping with her husband. Mrs. MacNaughton had been in ill health for a long time.

Movement of Icebergs.

In the investigation of the currents round the coast of Newfoundland it has been observed that there is at times a wide difference in the direction of the drift of icebergs and that of the flat or pan ice, which, having no great depth, is governed in its motions by the surface currents and the winds, whereas the icebergs, the larger parts of which are submerged to a great depth, follow only the movement of the ocean water as a whole and are uninfluenced by the winds. In consequence a huge berg may often be seen majestically maintaining its slow advance in opposition to the wind and across the general motion of the fields of flat ice surrounding it. The sealers often take advantage of this fact by mooring their vessels to an iceberg in order to prevent a drift to leeward.—Philadelphia Record.

Hunting the Kangaroo.

When brought to bay the kangaroo jumps like a flash for the hunter's chest and tries to crush it in with his fore feet. To prevent this each man wears across his breast a two or three inch thick matting. Armed with a spear, with a club attachment at the other end, they ride upon swift horses into a herd. With the agility and equipoise of circus riders they stand erect upon their horses and use their spears and clubs.

The kangaroo is able to jump clear over a horse. As the game is bagged it is skinned, and the skin is stretched on the ground and pegged down to prevent shrinkage. The flesh furnishes meat for the camp. Each man places his private mark upon his booty, and when they have 100 apiece they return back to civilization.

The Gun Charmers.

Among the more superstitiously inclined of the sporting Cingalese are gun charmers, who allege that a gun may be charmed in different ways and by different methods. An essential part of the process, however, appears to be the muttering of certain formulae.

A gun, the charmers say, may [illegible] charmed in any one of the following four ways: (1) So that it will wound the animal fired at, but will not kill outright; (2) so that he who carries it shall find nothing worth shooting; (3) so that it will not kill anything flying, but will kill animals that run, and (4) so that it will not kill anything that runs, but will kill anything flying.

No gun can be charmed at all if the owner takes the precaution of rubbing some pork fat on the barrel or attaches a piece of the outer skin of the rat snake to the stock in such a way that it cannot be seen.

How a Coal Fire Protects Itself.

A curious way in which a fire in the heart of a coal pile keeps itself from being put out is noted in a mining journal. Such fires often start in the interior of large piles of coal owing to heat developed by slow oxidation, which is prevented by the size of the pile from escaping into the air. Such fires are difficult to put out owing to the fact that the burning mass turns the coal around it into coke, which is nearly impervious to water. The pile may thus be thoroughly drenched without putting out the fire, which it never really reaches. The only way to deal with the situation is to drive into the pile a sharpened iron pipe, long enough to reach the burning coal, and then to couple a hose to the upper end and turn on the water.

The Cocoa Plantation.

A traveler in South America, where the cocoa tree is largely cultivated, speaks of the great care with which the young plants have to be protected from the sun, which if very strong is fatal to them. To secure this protection the planters shield them by banana trees and plaintain trees, the broad leaves of which give them the needed shade. And even when they are fully grown they need protection, which is given by trees known as "immortels," or, as the planters call them, "the mother of the cocoa." Thus the whole cocoa plantation has a sort of canopy.

A Startler.

A gentleman whose hearing is defective is the owner of a dog that is the terror of the neighborhood in which he lives.

The other day he was accosted by a friend, who said:

"Good morning, Mr. H. Your wife made a very pleasant call on us last evening."

"I'm very sorry," came the startling reply. "I'll see that it don't occur again, for I'm going to chain her up in future."—London Telegraph.

Not Comforting.

"Did the minister say anything comforting?" asked the neighbor of the widow recently bereaved.

"Indeed, he didn't!" was the quick reply. "He said my husband was better off."—London Telegraph.

The local saloons have not received any official notice of the order as yet but will very likely soon do so. Like in his previous order Mr. Johnson has made some exceptions again in favor of the larger places In Backus one saloon will be allowed to continue in business, in Cass Lake three, in Detroit two and in Walker two.

The territory in which Mr. Johnson states that after May 10th he will enforce the treaty includes all of Becker Hubbard and Mahnomen counties the portion of Cass county lying north of township 136, of Clay county lying north of township 139 east of range 46 of Clearwater county lying south of township 148, of Crow Wing county north of township 136, of Itasca south of T. 146 west of R. 26 W. of 4th P.M. of Norman county south of township 146 E. of R. 45., of Otter Tail north of township 136, of Wadena north of township 136.

He also states that he will make the following exceptions to the clause governing the introduction of liquor into the closed territory:- Shipments to one saloon in Backus to three in Cass Lake, to two in Detroit and to two in Walker. Shipments of wine to clergymen only for sacramental purposes. Shipments to druggists provided their business is conducted in such a manner that they are not liable to the payment of the internal revenue tax as retail liquor dealers.

Make Strange Find.

--Thief River Press.

While playing along the track of Great Northern Railway Company Robert the seven year old son of Section Foreman Moran found a suit case which judging by its contents had been carried thus far with some evil intent. The contents were two large 44 caliber rifles, several knives of various shapes and sizes, nitro-glycerine, fuses and caps and other instruments that would suggest that some dastardly deed had been planned but for some unknown reason had not matured.

The guns, shells, and all other material in the case were without marks of any kind even a manufacturers trade mark was missing. The instruments were all unlike anything ever sold by any of the local dealers so that it might well be concluded that the owners of this outfit were no amateurs but men who were well aware of the hazardous business they were in.

The Instruments showed no signs of usage and in all probability had been left where now found, some time before the snow fell last fall and been buried under the snow all winter. It was quite fortunate that this material was discovered by some one who knew better than to play with the contents.

Meet to Discuss New Name Proposition.

A meeting of the business men of Plummer was called for last Saturday evening to discuss the proposition of renaming the town, which was brought up by the railroad company. Not enough of the business men found it convenient to attend the meeting Saturday evening so it was postponed till Tuesday evening, at which time after discussing the matter it was decided to appoint a committee to take the matter up with the railroad officials and see if the name of the Wisconsin town could not be changed with out causing as much trouble and confusion as would be caused here. The Wisconsin town it is understood is an unimportant little place the post-office not even being a money order office while Plummer has been advertised to a considerable extent and is now well known thruout the country as a good business town situated in a most execellent farming country. Beside the loss of the greater part of this advertising there would be the trouble and confusion the change would cause. President Finrow who was acting as chairman of the meeting appointed a committee of three to act, consisting of H. J. Enderle, Dr Clark, and Postmaster Johnson.

In case it was found neccessary to make a change, Dr. Clark proposed, that in view of the extensive advertising that Mr. Pleth had done thru out the country making thereby the names of Plummer and Pleth synonymous to a majority of the people, that the new name be Pleth. This seemed to meet with general favor but action was deferred until the committee had reported.

Mr. Enderle then took advantage of the occasion to call attention to the fact that the town was then without any organization for fire protection and a meeting will be called for tonight when a organization will be effected after which the council will be requested to loosen up on the purse strings that some neccessary paraphernalia may be procured.

To Locate Here.

G. E. Pladsen of Fosston, spent the first of the week here looking over the situation with a view to locating in business here if things looked favorable. Liking the business outlook here, better than any of the other towns he had visited, he made a deal with Mr. Carlson to rent the front half of his building where he will open a clothing store handling a complete line of mens and boys clothing He is also an experienced photographer and will run a photograph gallery in connection with his clothing business. Mr. Pladsen expects to open ready for business Monday, April 25th.

To Straighten River.

Engineer Hoag, who has charge of the 500-mile ditching project in eastern Marshall county, is organizing a crew of surveyors to complete the survey of the Thief river, a stream which rises in Roseau county and running south, empties into the Red Lake river in this city.

This river is the natural outlet of all the great ditches which are projected in the Marshall and Beltrami county ditching areas and is noted as being the most crooked stream in this section. Under natural conditions it cannot carry off the water which will find its way into it when the main ditches are completed and emptying into it, so the engineers are planning to cut down its curves and deeden its channel.

The real estate business in the territory is affected by the drainage propositions in Roseau, Marshall and Beltrami counties and in a part of Red Lake county is receiving a great boost since the beginning of the work on the ditches. Men are roaming over the vast level stretches of drained lands seeking the best, or what will be the best, when drained, and homesteads are being entered at the land office at Crookston at the rate of five a day. When it is considered that over 450,000 acres of lands will be redeemed for cultivation when these ditches are completed, it is easily seen that a land boom is due. Thief River Falls is the natural gateway to all this section.

Dairying.

The paying production of milk is what determines the value of the dairy cow and in order to obtain good paying results, proper care and attention must be given the cow which supplies the milk. Cleanliness is perhaps first important factor to be considered and should be considered from all standpoints. The stables wherein the animals are housed should be well taken care of, in fact so well taken care of that the attendant who enters at time of milking shall find no disagreeable oder, no damp floors, no dusty feed, as all feed having a tendency to give rise to dust should be carefully sprinkled before feeding the animal; allowing the animal plenty of fresh air and sunlight.

The cleanliness should not be limited to any one source but should be an important factor from all standpoints The milker seould use the utmost care, seeing that the garments as well as the hands are in a nice clean condition and exercising judgment in the care of the animal to be milked, seeing that all milking utensils are well taken care of and the milk placed where it will have access to proper cooling conditions and in this way add to the profit of the product.

The dairy cow is either a money maker or a money loser. If she is in a good healthy condition and her milk supply profits counteracts her actual expense of keeping, she is worth the time and trouble of keeping, but, on the other hand should she consume more feed than her profits warrant, get rid of her as there are too many profit producers to be obtained to waste time experimenting, never the less it should be remembered that when an animal supplies products beyond the neccessary amount for sustaining life, it should be fed accordingly, thus preparing the animal to create vitality in order that it may give in return the profits due the owner. —Dr. David Roberts.

Seed Corn and The Pulpit.

Iowa, like Nebraska, is having trouble with her seed corn, and so serious has the problem become that outlines of sermons to be preached from the pulpits in Iowa have been sent to the preachers with the request that sermons be preached on the subject, so that the importance of procuring absolutely reliable seed can be brought to the attention of as many farmers as possible. These sermon outlines give suggestions for testing the germinating power of seed corn. Iowa holds that no other subject is of so much importance to the state as this. With so serious a condition prevailing in the older corn states, the warning the Minnesota Experiment Strtion is giving to our own country is timely. For some weeks the Department of Agriculture of this state has been sending information about seed corn testing to the farmers, and is now forwarding posters, newspapers and letters to all parts of the state showing with photographs of the apparatus needed for testing, the method of testing, together with detailed information about the use of germinators. If any farmer has failed to receive this literature let him write to the Department of Agriculture, University farm St Paul and he will be fully advised.

All opposition to Governor Eberhart in the Republican camp seems to have been given its quictus by the mutual consent of the "big uns". 'Tis a case of "united we stand", maybe; "divided we fall", sure.

Two brothers by the name of Bouck of Royalton will contest each other for a, seat in the legislature. Their ancestors will undoubtedly rest in peace and not be brought into the scrap at least.

J. Adam Bede, tis said will make a running for the legislature in his district. He says he' cannot afford a seat in the national lawmaking body at Washington. That is undoubtedly the reason he was relieved of the job.

The socialists are in control at Milwaukee having last week elected a majority of the city council and the mayor. Milwaukee is the tenth city in size in the United States and the socialists have the best chance that has yet been offered them to show the people what there is to practical common sense socialism.

"Roosevelt and Pinchot", would make quite a strong battle cry for the insurgent Republicans in 1912; but our mind wanders; what we would like to tell you is what they said to each other when they met in Europe the first of the week. Those who know are evidently not going to tell.

Wonder which would take the most nerve on the part of the investigation committee; to give Ballinger a fine coat of white-wash making him white as snow, so to speak; or to give him a coat of tar, or, in other words, tell him he wasn't wanted around the marble palace any more.

The value of a name seems to have changed to a considerable extent since the time of Shakespere. A few foreign bandbox gentlemen have managed to acquire millions of American money on these high sounding names, while here the local business men have decided that their present town name is worth a few thousand more or less to them.

The Minneapolis Tribune makes a "speel" about the patriotism Kellogg is showing in deciding not to contest Clapp for his reelection to the U. S. Senate. Why not give him credit for a little common sense and let it go at that. While Kellogg is undoubtedly one of the best men Minnesota could have to represent her in the senate, his time has not come as yet, the people refuse to consider him as yet while at present Clapp stands stronger than he has at any time before, with them owing to the peculiar political situation. Let Kellogg keep on the way he is at present, his time will come.

In all seriousness, and with his usual picturesque vigor, Henry Watterson bids us reflect upon the approaching triumphal return of Theodore Roosevelt, and to contemplate the possibility that representative government is a failure, and that the time has come when a benevolent despot is needed to put our house in order. He says that whatever we may think about it, the return of Roosevelt to power would be so construed by Europe.

History has agreed," says Mr. Watterson, "that the best of all governments is a wise and benevolent despotism." Of course no despotism can be either wise or benevolent. Despots may be both; but the trouble is that even despots must die, and the successor of a wise and benev olent one may be unwise and cruel.

This country is not looking for a benevolent despotism, or for a despot. In the financial feudalism that has grown up in this country we have all the despotism we need, and it is neither wise nor benevolent. Just now this nation is struggling to escape that despotism, and the reason it admires Roosevelt, and scatters laurels in his path, is that he seems to represent, better than any other, the spirit of revolt against tyranny anp the aspiration of the people to a government for and by themselves.—Duluth Herald.

The rural routes were established for the benefit of rural homes, or in other words the farmers. They have proven a greater benefit and blessing to the farmers than was anticipated by the most sanguine. A farmer who has once enjoyed the advantages of the rural mail service would hardly know how, to live without it. It did not come to the farmer, however, until he had many times earned it. The farmers are our heaviest taxpayers. What property they have is in plain sight and is taxed, while the city gent, at least many of them, who deals in note and bonds is enabled to hide his wealth from the assessor. For a quarter of a century the mail has been carried to the city, not once, but many times each day. Finally the big heart of Uncle Sam has reached out to the men who feed the world.

Where is the man so happy as the one who applies himself to manual labor? Where is the home so happy as the one where each member of the household feels, at the close of the day, that they have performed some at least of the many duties devolving upon them? There may be a clash some day between capital and labor. Should this period ever come the hope is that labor, with the conquering tread of a hero, will trample beneath its heel the power that has to a considerable extent, made labor laborious. We are all laborers in our little city.

WINNEPEG IDEA OF CANADA

While returning from the cities yesterday morning the editor fell in with four of our Canadian neighbors. One of these was a grain merchant and the other three were teamsters who owned their own teams and workod in that territory during the summers.

The grain merchant expressed his opinion on the overrated values of city property in Winnepeg and said that ordinarily they were at least 25 per cent too high. He further stated that his observation was to the effect that there were just as many people going either East or back to the states as there were at present pushing out to the wilds of Northern Canada. This sounded rather queer to your humble servant and he began to inquire with more persistance than ever and he soon learned that the other three were also on their return to Canada, having been down to Illinois to visit thier parents, were just as much disappointed with conditions out there as the other man. They said that unless a man desired to take up a homestead, there was absolutely no good excuse for any one to go north to get a bargain in lands.

"While we are getting better wages for ourselves and our teams up there than we could get in the states yet we would never consider any proposition of buying lands up there in preference to some of these fine lands in Minnesota that can be had for just the same price and just as soon as we consider our steak big enough we are coming back to Minnesota to buy a farm for each of us," said the spokesman.

Wickersham Says Insurgents Are Not Republicans.

DEFENDS PAYNE TARIFF BILL

Asserts Measure Is Not Cause of High Cost of Living.

Chicago, April 9.—Defending the Payne-Aldrich tariff law as a measure obtaining for the United States unprecedented trade privileges, contending that no other factor has less to do with the high cost of living and vigorously upholding President Taft's whole administration Attorney General Wickersham, in a distinctly anti-insurgent speech at the Hamilton club's Appomattox day banquet here tonight, urged the complete exclusion of the "insurgents" from the Republican party. Mr. Wickersham replied to the toast, "The Administration." He declared that the single issue now in the Republican party is the undivided support of the chief executive. Senators and representatives in congress who are openly unsympathetic with the Taft administration have reached the proper time, he said, for their withdrawal from the party which stands back of the 1910 tariff law as at least a measure in the right direction.

Mr. Wickersham spent a large part of his day being interviewed and he gave out a long statement in defense of President Taft's administration—what it has done and expects to do.

Endorses J. J. Hill's Views.

"It is convenient and we like to find some one cause upon which to place the blame for the high cost of living," he said. "I believe there is much truth in James J. Hill's view that the high cost of living is the cost of high living. We have become accustomed to a scale of living which is higher than the scale was in former years. The problem with many now is how to keep up to that scale.

"I don't believe that the onus of high prices should be placed on the tariff and I don't think tne tariff has so much to do with it. In fact, the tariff has far less to do with it than many other causes, for without the tariff it would be difficult to maintain the scale of wages at its present height.

"Now, like President Taft, I do not contend that the tariff is a model of perfection, but I do maintain, and all who look upon it must admit, that it marks a distinct progress and is a distinct improvement over previous tariff laws. The new tariff law fulfills the pledges of the Republican party and platform."

Abolition of the Ducking Stool.

The most noteworthy of all the instruments designed for the correction of Eve's offending daughters was the ducking stool, known as the tumbrel and the trebuchet. A post, across which was a transverse beam turning on a swivel and with a chair at one end, was set up on the edge of a pond. Into the chair the woman was chained, turned toward the water—a muddy or filthy pond was usually chosen for this purpose when available—and ducked half a dozen times, or if the water inflamed her instead of acting as a damper she was let down times innumerable until she was exhausted and well nigh drowned. From the frequency with which we find it mentioned in old local and county histories, in church wardens' and chamberlains' accounts and by the poets (Gay, for one, has a description of the process in his third pastoral, "The Shepherd's Week") we shall probably not be wrong in concluding that at one time this institution was kept up all over England. In Liverpool it was not formally abolished until 1770.—London Graphic.

GIFFORD PINCHOT.

Deposed Forester Meets Former President Roosevelt in Italy.

NO DETAILS LEAK OUT

Pinchot Has Long Conference With Roosevelt.

Porto Maurizio, April 12.—Gifford Pinchot, the former chief forester of the United States department of agriculture, whose interview with the ex-president has been looked forward to with great interest, spent the entire day with Mr. Roosevelt, but what passed between them is a secret.

Mr. Pinchot arrived at the Carew villa before 9 o'clock in the morning. He remained for lunch and accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Carew on a five-hour excursion into the mountains. They had dinner together also and the former forester did not return to his hotel until shortly before midnight. Mr. Pinchot, when seen at the villa just before dinner, declined to say what he had communicated to the ex-president and Mr. Roosevelt's prediction a few days ago that neither would have anything to give out concerning the meeting proved to be entirely correct.

FOURTEEN BLOWN TO ATOMS

Premature Explosion of Dynamite in Texas.

Novite, Tex., April 12.—Fourteen men were instantly killed and another fatally injured by a premature explosion of a heavy charge of dynamite at a construction camp on the Texco extension of the Santa Fe road.

Only three of the dead men have been identified, owing to the fact that the bodies of the men were torn almost into pieces by the force of the explosion.

The men were at work in a rocky cut and a heavy charge of dynamite had been arranged to be set off by electric batteries from the camp proper, which is some distance from the cut. Through a mistake in signals a heavy blasting charge was set off while fifteen or twenty men were in the cut and these were hurled skyward by the force of the explosion.

FRANK N. HOFFSTOT.

Alleged to Be the "Man Higher Up" in Pittsburg Graft Cases.

MAN HIGHER UP NAMED

Climax Comes in the Graft Exposures at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, April 7.—The climax in the Pittsburg graft exposures came with the presentment by the grand jury of a long report in which is recommended the indictment of Frank N. Hoffstot, president of the Pressed Steel Car company, and one of the most prominent business men in the country.

The grand jury's report charges that Hoffstot, president of the German National bank of Allegheny and prominently identified with other banks, paid to Charles Stewart, a former select councilman, the sum of $52,500, the money to be used in influencing the votes of councilmen to pass an ordinance naming three banks in which Hoffstot was interested as official depositories of the city's millions.

Simultaneously in open court came a plea of Emil Winter, president of the Workingmen's Savings and Trust company, that he had no defense to make to the charge that he gave a $20,000 bribe to Councilman Morris Einstein.

Frank N. Hoffstot, as president of the Pressed Steel Car company, one of the largest industries of its kind in the country, recently figured prominently in the public eye while a strike was on at his plant in McKees Rocks. During the long months' suspension there were many fatal riots.

OPENS HIS ARMS TO ALL

President Taft Would Welcome Insurgents to Fold.

Washington, April 9.—Holding out welcoming arms to such insurgents as may be induced to return to the regular Republican fold President Taft declined tonight to strike the keynote for the coming congressional campaign or to read the dissenting members out of the party.

Instead of delivering the expected keynote speech he pleaded with "every Republican" in the national legislature to rally behind the Taft policies and redeem the platform pledges of the party.

"Tonight we read nobody out of the Republican party," he said. "We want them all in the ranks and they have an opportunity to establish themselves as Republicans by helping to enact legislation to which the Republican party is pledged and which the Republican party stands for.

"'By their fruits ye shall know them.' And those men who with their votes stand behind the measures of the party and help redeem the pledges of the party, stand with the party. If they don't want to get behind these party measures, well, we won't quarrel with them. It is their privilege to use their votes as they see fit. I don't wish to say anything tonight that will seem to indicate that I feel that those men are not as sincere in their Republicanism as I am."

SENTIMENTAL JOURNEY ENDS

Crowds Become Too Numerous for the Roosevelts.

Genoa, April 9.—The sentimental pilgrimage of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and his wife, on which it had been the intention of the couple to retrace by easy stages their honeymoon trip from Spezia to Genoa, ended here abruptly twenty-four hours ahead of the schedule that had been planned.

The change in plans was made in order to avoid the increasing demonstrations Colonel Roosevelt and his wife were encountering along the road. At every little village or crossroads they were met by men, women and children, the former with flags and the latter with bouquets.

As an instance of the demonstrations accorded them 600 persons, many of them Americans, acclaimed Colonel Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt with vivas and hurrahs as they left Rapallo, where they had luncheon. This was the climax of their embarrassments and Colonel Roosevelt gave orders to be driven direct to Genoa.

WILL BE REHEARD

Standard Oil and Tobacco Cases to Come Up Again.

RESULT OF BREWER'S DEATH

Decision to Await Filling of Vacancy on Bench.

Washington, April 12.—The Standard Oil and tobacco cases have been reassigned for argument by the supreme court.

The reargument of these cases comes as the direct result of the death of Justice Brewer. This noted jurist died just a few days after the Standard Oil case had been argued.

As Justice Moody was unable to participate in the consideration of these cases only seven justices were left to give a decision in these cases.

The fact that the corporation tax cases were not set for reargument is taken to mean that a decision will be announced in regard to the constitutionality of the law authorising it within a short time.

The reassignment of the big suits came as a complete surprise. Such a reassignment was anticipated by some last Monday, when the court first met after the death of Justice Brewer. When it was not forthcoming at that time it was generally believed that decisions of the cases would be announced soon.

Attorney General Surprised.

Attorney General Wickersham was as much surprised as any one at the sudden turn in the fight against these corporations. He expressed his utter ignorance of any further knowledge of the action of the court other than the announcement of Chief Justice Fuller that "Numbers 316 and 317, the American Tobacco company vs. the United States and the United States vs. the American Tobacco company, and No. 725, the Standard Oil company of New Jersey vs. the United States, are restored to their places on the docket for reargument."

Unless a motion to advance the cases is made they will not come up in the regular order of business for nearly a year. It is regarded as improbable that such motion for reargument before next term will be made. Only three more weeks of this term remain for hearing the argument of cases, although the court has come in before its adjournment, about June 1, to hear arguments in a particular case.

The effect of the reargument will doubtless be to have the successor of Justice Brewer, whosoever he may be, participate in consideration of the cases. The choice of the successor may be made more difficult on account of the day's complication.

WARSHIPS START FOR SCENE

Will Assist in Suppressing Rebellion in Albania.

Constantinople, April 12.—Four Turkish cruisers and eight torpedo boats steamed for the Adriatic to assist in suppressing the rebellion that is now sweeping practically all of Albania.

The entire army corps is also hastening to the scene.

The cabinet decided that the preservation of the present regime rests upon the prompt quelling of the insurrectionary movement and the entire military and naval strength of Turkey may be employed before the week is over.

SIX MEN ARE UNDER ARREST

Stenographer Betrays Coal Swindle in Indiana.

As a result six men, two of them her employers and three of the others engineers of the institutions which suffered, were arrested on charges of grand larceny and confessed.

MANY PEOPLE ARE INJURED

Waterloo, Ia., April 12.—D. B. Misner of Minneapolis was seriously injured in a head on collision between a Rock Island passenger and freight near Garrison, Ia. His injuries were to the back and face, and he was taken to a Cedar Rapids hospital for treatment.

The accident was due to a misunderstanding of train orders, and thirty-one people were injured.

THE BRIEF DEBUT OF TILDY.

How an Apology Ended a Restaurant Romance.

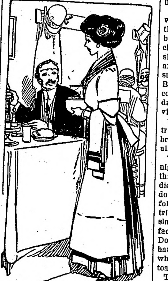
By O. HENRY.

[Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.]

If you do not know Bogle's chophouse and family restaurant it is your loss, for if you are one of the fortunate ones who dine expensively you should be interested to know how the other half consumes provisions. And if you belong to the half to whom waiters' checks are things of moment you should know Bogle's, for there you get your money's worth—in quantity at least.

Bogle's is situated in that highway of bourgeoisie, that boulevard of Brown-Jones-and-Robinson, Eighth avenue. There are two rows of tables in the room, six in each row. On each table is a caster stand containing cruets of condiments and seasons. From the pepper cruet you may shake a cloud of something tasteless and melancholy, like volcanic dust. From the salt cruet you may expect nothing.

At the cashier's desk sits Bogle, cold, sordid, slow, smoldering, and takes your money. Behind a mountain of toothpicks he makes your change, files your check and ejects at you, like a toad, a word about the weather. Beyond a corroboration of his meteorological statement you would better not venture. You are not Bogle's friend; you are a fed transient customer, and you and he may not meet again until the blowing of Gabriel's dinner horn. So take your change and go—to the devil if you like. There you have Bogle's sentiments.



ASKED HER TO GO TO "PARSIFAL" WITH HIM.

The needs of Bogle's customers were supplied by two waitresses and a voice. One of the waitresses was named Aileen. She was tall, beautiful, lively, gracious and learned in persiflage. Her other name? There was no more necessity for another name at Bogle's than there was for finger bowls.

The name of the other waitress was Tildy. Why do you suggest Matilda? Please listen this time—Tildy, Tildy! Tildy was dumpy, plain faced and too anxious to please to please. Repeat the last clause to yourself once or twice and make the acquaintance of the duplicate infinite.

The voice at Bogle's was invisible. It came from the kitchen and did not shine in the way of originality. It was a heathen voice and contented itself with vain repetitions of exclamations emitted by the waitress concerning food.

Will it tire you to be told again that Aileen was beautiful? Had she donned a few hundred dollars' worth of clothes and joined the Easter parade and had you seen her you would have hastened to say so yourself.

The customers at Bogle's were her slaves. Six tables full she could wait upon at once. They who were in a hurry restrained their impatience for the joy of merely gazing upon her swiftly moving, graceful figure. They who had finished eating ate more that they might continue in the light of her smiles. Every man there—and they were mostly men—tried to make his impression upon her.

Aileen could successfully exchange repartee against a dozen at once. And every smile that she sent forth lodged, like pellets from a scatter gun, in as many hearts, and all this while she would be performing astounding feats with orders of pork and beans, pot roasts, ham and sausage and the wheats and any quantity of things on the iron and in the pan and straight up and on the side. With all this feasting and flirting and merry exchange of wit Bogle's came mighty near being a salon, with Aileen for its Mme. Recamier.

If the transients were entranced by the fascinating Aileen the regulars were her adorers. There was much rivalry among many of the steady customers. Aileen could have had an engagement every evening. At least twice a week some one took her to a theater or to a dance. One stout gentleman whom she and Tildy had privately christened "the hog" presented her with a turquoise ring. Another one known as "fresby," who rode on the traction company's repair wagon, was going to give her a poodle as soon as his brother got the hauling contract in the Ninth. And the man who always ate spareribs and spinach and said he was a stockbroker asked her to go to "Parsifal" with him.

"I don't know where this place is," said Aileen while talking it over with Tildy, "but the wedding ring's got to be on before I put a stitch into a traveling dress. Ain't that right? Well, I guess!"

But, Tildy!

In steaming, chattering, cabbage scented Bogle's there was almost a heart tragedy. Tildy, with the blunt nose, the hay colored hair, the freckled skin, the bag o' meal figure, had never had an admirer. Not a man followed her with his eyes when she went to and fro in the restaurant save now and then when men glared with the beast hunger for food. None of them bantered her gayly to coquettish interchanges of wit. None of them loudly jollied her of mornings as they did Aileen, accusing her, when the eggs were slow in coming, of late hours in the company of envied swains. No one had ever given her a turquoise ring or invited her upon a voyage to mysterious, distant "Parsifal."

Tildy was a good waitress, and the men tolerated her. They who sat at her tables spoke to her briefly with quotations from the bill of fare and then raised their voices in honeyed and otherwise flavored accents eloquently addressed to the fair Aileen. They writhed in their chairs to gaze around and over the impeding form of Tildy, that Aileen's pulchritude might season and make ambrosia of their bacon and eggs.

And Tildy was content to be the unwooed drudge if Aileen could receive the flattery and the homage. The blunt nose was loyal to the short Grecian. She was Aileen's friend, and she was glad to see her rule hearts and wean the attention of men from smoking potpie and lemon meringue. But deep below our freckles and hay colored hair the unhandsomest of us dream of a prince or a princess, not vicarious, but coming to us alone.

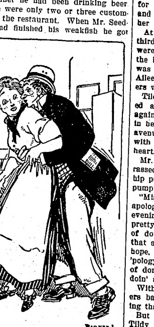
There was a morning when Aileen tripped in to work with a slightly bruised eye, and Tildy's solicitude was almost enough to heal any optic.

"Fresh guy," explained Aileen, "last night as I was going home at Twenty-third and Sixth, sashayed up, so he did, and made a break. I turned him down cold, and he made a sneak, but followed me down to Eighteenth and tried his hot air again. Gee, but I slapped him a good one side of the face! Then he give me that eye. Does it look real awful, Til? I should hate that Mr. Nicholson should see it when he comes in for his tea and toast at 10."

Tildy listened to the adventure with breathless admiration. No man had ever tried to follow her. She was safe abroad at any hour of the twenty-four. What bliss it must have been to have had a man follow one and black one's eye for love!

Among the customers at Bogle's was a young man named Seeders, who worked in a laundry office. Mr. Seeders was thin and had light hair and appeared to have been recently rough dried and starched. He was too diffident to aspire to Aileen's notice, so he usually sat at one of Tildy's tables, where he devoted himself to silence and boiled weakfish.

One day when Mr. Seeders came in to dinner he had been drinking beer. There were only two or three customers in the restaurant. When Mr. Seeders had finished his weakfish he got up, put his arm around Tildy's waist, kissed her loudly and impudently, walked out upon the street, snapped his fingers in the direction of the laundry and hied himself to play pennies in the slot machines at the amusement arcade.



KISSED HER LOUDLY AND IMPUDENTLY.

For a few moments Tildy stood petrified. Then she was aware of Aileen shaking at her an arch forefinger and saying:

"Why, Til, you naughty girl! Ain't you getting to be awful, Miss Slyboots! First thing I know you'll be stealing some of my fellows. I must keep an eye on you, my lady."

Another thing dawned upon Tildy's recovering wits. In a moment she had advanced from a hopeless, lowly admirer to be an Eve sister of the potent Aileen. She herself was now a man charmer, a mark for Cupid, a Sabine who must be coy when the Romans were at their banquet boards. Man had found her waist achievable and her lips desirable. The sudd amatory Seeders had, as it we formed for her a miraculous p one day laundry work. He had the sackcloth of her uncomeline washed, dried, starched and ir and returned it to her sheer e ered lawn—the robe of Venus

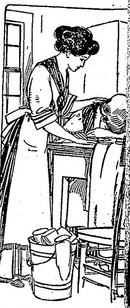
The freckles on Tildy's cheeks ed into a rosy flush. Now bot and Psyche peeped from her ened eyes. Not even Aileen had been publicly embraced and in the restaurant.

Tildy could not keep the del secret. When trade was sla went and stood at Bogle's desk eyes were shining. She tried let her words sound proud and ful.

"A gentleman insulted me t she said. "He hugged me arou waist and kissed me."

"That so?" said Bogle, crackin his business armor. "After this you get a dollar a week more."

At the next regular meal when set food before customers with



"DON'T YOU FRET, TIL," SAID AI

"A gentleman insulted me tod the restaurant. He put his arm a my waist and kissed me."

The diners accepted the revel in various ways, some incredul some with congratulations. O turned upon her the stream of nage that had hitherto been di at Aileen alone. And Tildy's swelled in her bosom, for she sa last the towers of romance rise the horizon of the gray plain in she had for so long traveled.

For two days Mr. Seeders cam again. During that time Tildy e lished herself firmly as a woma be wooed. She bought ribbons an ranged her hair like Aileen's and t ened her waist two inches. She a thrilling but delightful fear Mr. Seeders would rush in sudd and shoot her with a pistol. He have loved her desperately, and pulsive lovers are always blindly ous.

Even Aileen had not been sho with a pistol. And then Tildy ra hoped that he would not shoot at for she was always loyal to Ai and she did not want to oversha her friend.

At 4 o'clock on the afternoon o third day Mr. Seeders came in. T were no customers at the tables. the back end of the restaurant T was refilling the mustard pots Aileen was quartering pies. Mr. S ers walked back to where they st

Tildy looked up and saw him, g ed and pressed the mustard s against her heart. A red hair bow in her hair. She wore Venus' Ei avenue badge, the blue bead neck with the swinging silver sym heart.

Mr. Seeders was flushed and em rassed. He plunged one hand into hip pocket and the other into a f pumpkin pie.

"Miss Tildy," said he, "I want apologize for what I done the o evenin'. Tell you the truth, I pretty well tanked up or I woul of done it. I wouldn't do no that a-way when I was sober. S hope, Miss Tildy, you'll accept 'pology and believe that I woul of done it if I'd known what I doin' and hadn't of been drunk."

With this handsome plea Mr. S ers backed away and departed, ing that reparation had been made

But behind the convenient sc Tildy had thrown herself flat upo table among the butter chips and coffeecups and was sobbing her h out—out and back again to the g plain wherein travel they with b noses and hay colored hair. From knot she had torn the red hair and cast it upon the floor. Seed she despised utterly. She had but en his kiss as that of a pioneer prophetic prince who might have the clocks going and the pages running in fairyland. But the had been maudlin and unmeant; court had not stirred at the f alarm; she must forevermore rem the "sleeping beauty."

Yet not all was lost. Aileen's a was around her, and Tildy's red h groped among the butter chips ti found the warm clasp of her frien

"Don't you fret, Til," said Aile who did not understand entir "That turnip faced little clothes of a Seeders ain't worth it. He a anything of a gentleman or he would ever of apologized."

Minnesotan Does Not Mince Words In His Address In the Senate on the Railroad Bill—Generally Conceded That His Speech Will Add Strength to the Opposition.

Washington, April 12.—Senator Nelson made a powerful assault upon the administration railroad bill in the senate. Mr. Nelson spoke for an hour. and he was given the closest attention by administration and progressive senators. His speech is regarded as the frankest discussion of the measure that has been heard in the senate. That it will add strength to the opposition is generally conceded.

"Mr. president, my opinion of this bill, as it came here, is that in its essence its chief aim was to protect the railroads against the anti-trust law," declared Senator Nelson during the course of his speech. "I can come to no other conclusion."

At another stage Senator Nelson said:

"In regard to the anti-trust law, next to the Constitution of the United States, is the most important on the statute books, and the one that the people of the country stand in most need of. It is the only protection they have against the aggression and the wrongs of trusts, monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade. In fact, it is the only legislative shield they have against such evils."

Without mincing words Senator Nelson declared that the administration bill was designed to except railroads from the application of the anti-trust law. This was sought to be accomplished, he said, through Sections 7 and 12 of the measure. Section 7 of the bill, as it came from the attorney general, he pointed out, legalized traffic agreements such as had been declared unlawful on decisions of the United States supreme court. Section 12, he asserted, proposed to legalize railroad consolidations such as was attempted in the case of the Northern Securities company.

Predicts a Revolution.

Senator Nelson predicted that if the people were denied protection against the rapacity of monopolies and trusts that some day they would rise in their might and crush the captains of industry.

"What makes socialism in this country?" he asked.

"What makes the labor organizations restless and nervous?"

He answered the questions in this wise:

"It is because they feel that that which we measure out to the strong and the rich we do not measure out to the poor and the lowly, to the laboring and the struggling classes. If you are going to grant immunity to the railroad companies from the provisions of the anti-trust law why not grant immunity to labor organizations and be done with it and, what is still more wrong—not by any insidious attempt as in this bill—repeal the anti-trust law altogether."

Continuing, Senator Nelson said:

"Trusts and combinations have been forming at a rapid rate. If you leave the door open they will continue to grow at a more rapid rate. If you leave the gate ajar they will grow and grow apace, and by and by the day will come when the American people will be in the fangs of these trusts just as the poor French people were in the hands of their nobility prior to the great French revolution, when all of the lands of that country were owned by a few and the people generally were utterly helpless.

"If we are no wiser than the French were in the days of Louis XV. and Louis XVI., and allow these combinations to grow and grow, the day will come when the American people will have to resort to revolution as the people of France had to do."

KILLED BY BLOW ON THE JAW

Duluth Man Meets Death in a Fist Fight.

Duluth, April 12.—Matt Krznaizs, a saloonkeeper, was killed in the Oregon restaurant on West Superior street and three men are under arrest, suspected of the killing.

Krznaizs went into the restaurant, which is run by Chinamen, and ordered a meal, and after eating it he had some words with the girl cashier over the price. It is said that he became angry and tried to strike the girl with a ketchup bottle. A number of men in the restaurant, patrons of the place, interfered, and one of them struck Krznaizs a blow on the jaw that crumpled him up and he died from the effects of it.

Accused of Starting Prairie Fires.

Pierre, S. D., April 12.—David Moyes, who lives on a homestead near Midland, has been arrested and placed under bonds for his appearance in circuit court charged with starting a prairie fire. It is the first arrest in that county following the many fires since the settlement of the county.

An Ancient Problem That Has Turned Many Brains Dizzy.

The oldest of problems is that of squaring the circle—i. e., of telling the precise length of the side of a square whose area will equal the area of a given circle.

The first attempt we know of was made 500 years before the exodus of the Jews. Since at least 1300 B. C. Chinese brains have turned dizzy over it. The oldest mathematical book in the world—written about 2000 B. C., by Ahmes, scribe to an Egyptian king, and now resting in the British museum—pretends to solve it, but it doesn't. Our old friend Euclid prudently avoids the subject.

Books have been written to prove that it is impossible, others to prove the impossibility of proving its impossibility, others again to prove the impossibility of proving its possibility.

One scientist, a professor of Zurich, adopted some fifty years ago a rather original method of tackling the problem. He divided the floor of a great loft into thousands of small squares and spent his days in solemnly throwing needles about and noting the number of times they fell clear of the chalk lines, but it did not help him much.

The important ratio which would settle the question has been carried to 500 places of decimals. And still it is not exact. If you have a taste for sums you can start and carry it to 600 and see what happens.

At any rate, you will soon find your hair getting grayer.—London Answers.

Planting Corn.

There is no fixed or best time to plant corn, other than that it is usually planted in May and generally from the 10th to the 20th. Under no condition should corn be planted unless the seed bed has undergone proper preperation. It is much better to keep the seed in the sack than to plant it in a heavy, cold soil. Early working of the soil with the disc and the harrow is essential, as it assists in warming it.

There are advantages in planting corn in drills, and likewise in the check system; and many advocates of either method are easily found. One of the objects of growing corn, and one of its advantages over small grain crops, is the fact that it is a cultivated crop, and if well cultivated will tend to clean the land of foul weeds. This object is more thoroughly accomplished if the corn is planted in check-rows and cultivated both ways.

On the other hand, on rich, reasonably clean land, larger yields are sometimes secured by planting in drills. It is our juogment, however, that for average Minnesota conditions the check row is to be preferred.

It is not wise to plant corn more than two inches deep; and if the soil is heavy, not more than one inch deep is preferable, as it will start more quickly near the surface; and if heavy rains should come and pack down the soil, the young plants stand a much better show of getting thru than when planted too deep. When properly prepared, the soil near the surface is warmer and contains moisture enough to germinate the seed. If the seed has been properly graded, it is no great task to secure a reasonably uniform drop of kernels per bill. No less than three nor no more than foor kernels per hill will bring best results, if the seed be of good vitality.

"Some men are born great, and others have greatness thrust upon them," and such seems to be the case for we have noticed that a man now and then will ride on the wave of popularity and the whole people strain every nerve to do him homage, while another, his peer in every respect, will hurl the logic of reason at them and while he succeeds in convincing some, the argument does not take root and beer fruit as it would if the man who is his superior in individuality had said the same thning at the same time. It make all the difference in the world who does the talking.—Ex.

WOULD REMOVE LAND OFFICE

Warroad Man Wants to Remove it to Thief River Falls.

Attorney Guy H. Powell, of Warroad, who is president of the commercial club of that place, spent Sunday in the city. He, with others in that section of the state, are starting a movement to have the U. S. land office removed from Crookston to Thief River Falls.

One of their principal arguments is that the Tri-State Telephone company, which has connections there, has none in Crookston, though their tow line skirts Crookston, a franchise having been refused the Tri-State company here twice because they refuse to accept a franchise granting them a limited number of long distance stations in the hotels, and wholesale houses here, insisting upon a franchise giving them the right to use all the streets and alleys for poles to install long distance phones in any of the residences desiring them though they agree not to go into the local exchange business.

The Northwestern has no toll line beyond Roseau, though one is being constructed to Warroad at the present time from Roseau. The matter will be taken up by the Crookston commercial club immediately regarding telephone connections, as commercial travelers, wholesalers and other business and professional men realize the necessity of as good telephone connections as possible throughout this entire section with Crookston.

This is especially true with the vast territory north and east of Crookston which is being developed so rapidly, and which is tributary to Crookston in every way.—Crookston Times.

When the editor of this sheet visited Crookston and Thief River Falls for the first time in 1901 the first thot that came to him in a comparison of the two cities was the fact that Crookston just because it was a little the larger place should be the location of the United States Land Office while even at that time it was evident to every fair minded man that if it were located at Thief River Falls it would be far more con venient for the people who really had business with the office.

Since that time we have seen wonderful changes in this Land Office district.

The Soo Line has built a main line directly thru the district and two branch lines, all making direct connections with Thief River Falls possible from any point.

The Great Northern has extended its line from here to Warroad directly connecting this city with that section in which most of the government land is now situated.

In addition to this Thief River Falls has the advantage of having direct connections with both the Northwestern and the Tri-State telephone lines and hence has by far the better facilities for wire communications.

So long as the trains run as they do now it is a safe proposition that every man living north of this city in such a position as to go to the land office by G. N. rail would be benefited to the extent of $4.00 in cash and one days time for every time he has business at the land office. This would also be true of every man living along either of the Soo Line roads.

Studying the matter carefully with a good railway map before you, it can be easily seen how at least 99 per cent of all the people in this land office district would be benefited by having that office located here in preference to Crookston while the remaining 1 per cent would be as well served as they are now.

If anyone doubts these statements all he needs to become convinced is to study the situation a little for that will convince even a fairminded Crookstonite that Thief River Falls is the logical place for the Land Office. Now let us get to work and with the assistance of the villages up the line it is absolutely certain that we may land this plum in the near future.

Judge J. M. Bishop is busy preparing proper petitions to the department of the interior requesting this removal and these petitions will be furnished to persons interested in their circulation and there is no doubt whatever that one of the largest petitions ever sent to the department for years will be ready within the next couple of weeks.

GRADING NEARING COMPLETION

June Will Likely See Grading on new Plummer-Duluth Line Finished.

Work on Yards has Started. Material Begining To Arrive.

According to the present outlook the greater part of the grading on the new Plummer—Duluth line of the Soo will be finished by June. There was no let up on the work thru out the winter the contractors being on the job all the time, but the wet spring has retarded the work to some extent. The comming week will see several of the contractors on this end finishing up their work and the end of the week the first twenty-five miles of the grade on this end will be ready for the "steel gang." It is feared, however that the construction work will be delayed somewhat by the inbility of the bridge and culvert contractors, to complete their work the unexpected early spring catching them before they had completed the hauling of their timber. It is expected tho that the new line will be ready to open to traffic sometime in August.

The contract for clearing and grading for the material yards was let last week to Leon Wichterman, Lars Clove and P. Johnson and they started work with a crew of men the first of the week. This work will have to be rushed as material has already begun to arrive. The yard will cover ten or twelve acres reaching from the Garnes road north to the depot.

None of the towns this side of the goverment dam have yet been platted but they have been advertising those between the dam and Moose Lake. The chances seem very favorable for Plummer being made a freight division as Leech Lake Dam has been announced as one division and this is just about half way between Plummer and Moose Lake.

March Statement.

Statement of the business of the Plummer Creamery for the month of March. While the number of patrons has increased, there now being a hundred and six, the cream receipts have not yet increased proportionally on account of the scarcity of cows, good scrub dairy cows bringing as high as fourty-five and fifty dollars this spring The material increase in the number of patrons argues well for the future and will result in a substantial increase in cream receipts as soon as the scarcity of cows can be overcome. It now remains for some of the more progressive ones to take the lead, as they first did in establishing the creamery, and raise the atandard of the local dairy cattle by introducing community breeding.

Special Agent Johnson To President Finrow.

Mr. H. H. Finrow
Plummer; Minnesota.

Sir:- Reference ir hereby made to your letter dated April 13th 1910, in which you request that the saloons be permitted to continue in Plummer in violation of the provisions of the Treaty with the Chippewa Indians of 1863.

The facts in this matter so far as Plummer is concerned are these:

After we issued the first order closing the Mohnomen country the bootleggers and Indians began going up to Plummer on the evening train and returning on the midnight train with grips full of liquor which they secured in your two saloons. Both of those saloons catered to this illegal trade. I took the pains at the time to send one of my officers to follow a bunch of Indians to Plummer on one of these trips. He caught them in the act of buying liquor in your saloons. Instead of making arrests the officer warned both of these saloon keepers. For a short time things were a little better but I soon began getting complaints from your citizens that this traffic with Indians and bootleggers was being resumed. I sent officers to Plummer to investigate. The complaints were well founded. Half a dozen sales were made in both of your saloons to Indians in the presence of my men.

If, as you fear, an attempt is made to sell liquor just north of the south boundry of town 152, I shall issue another order extending the boundry line of the closed district.

It miget as well be understood now that these boundry lines will be extended from time to time as may be necessary. It is for the liquor dealers themselves to determine how far they will compell me to go in this respect.

Very Respectfully,
William E. Johnson
Chief Special Officer

Bagley Man Killed.

John Torkelson, an ex-saloon keeper of Bagley, while enroute to Montana with a car of stock and immigrant goods, was chrushed to death in his car Tuesday evening, when a west bound frieght on the Great Northern railroad ran into it at the junction of the N. P. and G. N. tracks three miles east of Crookston. The corners jury returned a verdict of death caused by the negligence on the part of the Great Northern railroad in having in its employ an enexperienced man to attend to the duties of tower man at the junction. This means that the widow will have a good case on which to base a suit for damages against the company. Altho the car turned over on its side, neither the other man in the car or any of the stock was injured. The engineer and fireman of the frieght both saved themselves by jumbing.

Profitable Stock.

We are daily coming in contact with the products of the dairy cow in one form or another, thus it is to the interest of the owner of the dairy breed of cattle to carefully select animals will yield him the best profit, not only selecting animals which are from a good healthy stock but animals which are good profit producers or in other words, that yield a flow of milk, containing sufficient butter fat, to warrent the animal worth the while of keeping upon the premises.

While it is always essential that animals be well fed and cared for, it is oftentimes found that the animal producing the largest amount of milk is not necessarily the animal which devours the most feed and for this reason the owner should learn the temperament of each individual animal and feed it accordingly, in this way realizing profits which might otherwise be wasted.

Must be nea.ly time for talk of another scandal in the Panama canal zone.

The weather conditions appear to be very favorable for the sprouting of candidates in the northern part of the state.

From all current reports it seems that if Taft gets his present railroad bill passed and enacted into a law, he will have done sufficient to satisfy the moneyed interests with the work of the present session.

Has the enumerator called yet? When he does, treat him kindly; it will surprise him, do not get exhasperated and out of patience with him; tell him all the family troubles and then those of your neighbors, invite him to lunch; he won't stay as he is too busy; in fact treat him so that he will leave with the feeling that he has run across an oasis in the desert of human nature that he has forcing his way thru.

With Aldrich and Hale announcing their intentions to resign, Ballinger standing a good chance of joining the down-and-out club, Taft finding his perch uncomfortable and unstable, the "grafters" or "financier's pawns" being uncovered and put in peril of their liberty, and Roosevelt on the way home in good health, the gentlemen who own the majority of stock in all the big trust companies, banks, and industrial combinations very likely think that the country is going to the dogs.

The socialists assumed control of the city government of Milwaukee last Tuesday. They have given out their idea of good socialistic government as follows:

Drive out grafters and contractors rings; thorough investigation to be first step.

Push public works, especially in winter, to give employment to as many as possible.

Pay union wages, although the law prohibits discrimination between union and non-union labor.

Readjust taxes so that their burden will fall in a less degree upon the poor.

Require street railway and other public utility corporations to give better service.

Drop several hundred superfluous city employes from the pay rolls.

Fill positions requiring technical or scientific skill with men of that knowledge, even if it be necessary to go outside Milwaukee.

Name Socialists to fill places where questions of policy are determined.

They do not intend, as some people have an idea of the meaning of the term, to

Fill offices with political henchmen.

Allow loafers to retain office.

Attempt more than the state law authorizes; for instance, institute the initiative and referendum, which must wait on state legislation.

Before listening to the complaint of your children about the general fiendishness of the teachers, and getting all worked up and excited over it is better to reflect a little. Remember your one or a half dozen cherubs drive you crazy about half the time, and bear with the the teacher who is making for you intelligent men and women out of an unpromising raw material as you were twenty or thirty years ago. Remember that besides your boy, who, of course, every body knows is an angel, she has to contend with that awful boy of your neighbor's and you know full well what a terror he is.

A WINTER TRIP TO PHOENIX

The South Compared with the North After a Five Month's Stay in Arizona.

Arriving in the city of Phoenix the first week in November, the weather there was warm and dry, the sun beating down day after day without a cloud to interfere.

Their Territorial Fair was held the first week and I spent a couple of days at the Fair examining their exhibits to learn something of the Country in which I expected to spend the following few months. A couple of the counties had very good fruit, vegetable, alfalfa and rose exhibits and some of the cereals. The mineral exhibits were also very good, and some of their schools had very good exhibits especially in the line of manual Training and Domestic Science.

There were two firms exhibiting machinery, one of which had a large stock showing wagons and farm machinery etc manufactured at Winona, Minn.

Even Dan Patch and Minor Heir were brought there to make this fair a success.

Phoenix is located in the rich Salt River valley. It seldom rains in the valley and the valley is naturally a vast desert; however we had three or four little rains during December and another the 4th of Jan. and then never a drop till the 25th of March. The Government is building a dam about 80 miles up the river above Phoenix, making a reservoier large enough to supply the whole valley with irrigating water. It is not completed, but so much is done that the valley is practically ensured from any more draughts or at least so they claim. The building of the dam will cost the land owners some $50 to $75 an acre, and then of course they pay their annual water-right besides.

How thankful the Minn. farmer can be when the rain falls in sufficient quantities and they can sit in their rockers and read their papers.

Not so in the Salt River Valley—There they put on their rubber boots when they know their irrigating day or night is at hand and go out and work with the spade till all their land is flooded.

The valley is said to be rich but I noticed a number of plants that do well in our soil that did nothing in that soil, but certian things did grow nicely and their season is long so they raise two or three crops.

Some fruits did very well. Their orange crop was good last fall but some of the late fruit was destroyed by frost. They claimed last winter was the coldest for years. We had a number of cold frosty nights, cold enough to freeze the water pipes and pumps. To me it seemed colder than in Minn. as we seldom had a fire to warm by. Wood sold at about the rate of $1.00 an armful.

The first crop of hay was being cut when I left and the harvesting of grains would begin in about three week they thot. Each rancher has but a few acres, a 20 or 30 acre ranch is a large one and many of the ranchers have no farm machinery. They either do their work by hand or hire a neighbor who has a machine.

The Salt River Valley was a little Paradise as compared with anything we saw along the road any place in either New Mexico or Arizona. For a couple of days we saw nothing but mountians and desert with a few cattle scattered here there.

But there are little settlements and villages here and there in the little valley between the Mts. ranges aways from the railroads some as far as a hundred miles some of which can only be reached by burrows others have driveroads to the rail road station so that stage wagons can be used.

Indeed I think it would do any, either pleased or displeased Minnesotan good to go thru this part of the country and see for them selves what advantages they have in Minnesota.

Very few of them will choose to live in the desert if their healths will allow them to live any place else, I for one am glad to get back to the country where the grass grows by the roadside.

—Edith E. Quist.

THE WORLD LIVE-STOCK MARKET.

Mr. Ramstad Believes that the Prices of Horses will go Even Higher.

Olaf Ramstad, who has spent much of his time during the last ten years in handling horses at various places and who has during the last few years shipped horses to this city from Montana, is authority for the statement that horses and cattle of all grades and even sheep and hogs are destined to go even higher in price than they are at present. He baises his ideas on the following substancial facts and figures.

1st. There are more people pushing out from the cities and densely populated country districts to the praire lands of the northwest than every before and each family that betakes itself to one of these prairie farms will need four horses with which to do their work of reclaiming the vast prairies from their original use as stomping grounds for the roaving herds of buffaloes and turning them into veritable gardens for the white man.

2nd. There are more horses exported from the United States at the present time than our total increase, and hence so long as it is found profitable to purchase our horses and than pay a heavy tariff on them for exportation we may well expect to see prices continue to rise.

3rd. The state of Montana which has been the horse exporting state in the union during the past two decades has settled up so rapidly of late that they have already begun to import horses and it is safe to say that Montana does not have more than ten percent of the horses that will be needed there this year. Instead of having horses roaming over its vast plains by the hundreds and thousands Montana's present at actually importing horses by the scores of carloads in addition to those brought there by the settlers. And what is true of Montana is also true of other western states. And all this in spite of the fact that the fleet automobile is taking the place of many a swift and trusty driving horse and the powerful steam and gasoline engines are doing the work of many faithful farm horses.

4th. He states it as a fact that a large majority of the breeders have reduced their numbers to such an extent that they are not now, nor will for some years not be in a position to supply the demand that they have filled in the past and thus the present high prices will necessarily go even higher before the demand is filled.

What is true of horses is true also of beef cattle particularly for never in my memory has the breeding stock in this particular line been so obsolutely reduced to a stage of incompetency to fill the demand.

"Sheep and hogs naturally can be supplied sooner to a depleted market but so long as feed remains up where it is at present there is absolutely no reason to look for a decrease in the price of either pork or mutton and unless the American people can be induced to eat something to take place of the meats, they have taken such a fancy to in the last generations, the prices of all meats will advance rather than become lower.

In view of these facts and in view of the fact that the lands in this particular locality are lower than almost anywhere else for the same quality of lands and even inferior qualities of lands it is my candidate opinion that particularly good grade horses can be raised in this section with great profit to the farmer," said Mr. Ramstad, "and the raising of cattle for beef as well as sheep and hogs should also be very profitable".

WITH HIGH HONORS

Colonel Roosevelt Received by Austrian Emperor.

BRANDS STORY AS FALSEHOOD

Denies Stating Ha Would Again Run for Presidency.

Vienna, April 16.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was received at the Austrian capital in manner almost like that accorded a reigning sovereign. The punctilious Austrian court, the most ceremonial of those of Europe, had arranged the programme and it left nothing undone which would emphasize the unprecedented honor that was being paid the visiting American.

As a special mark of his personal esteem the aged emperor-king, Francis Joseph, received Colonel Roosevelt in his private apartments at the imposing Hofburg palace instead of in the regular audience chamber. The monarch, who was attired in an imperial uniform, was extremely gracious to the American and kept him in conversation for thirty-five minutes. What interesting subjects they found to discuss has not transpired, as they were alone, and Colonel Roosevelt naturally has declined to reveal the slightest detail of the conversation.

Emperor Francis Joseph intended personally to return Colonel Roosevelt's call on his way out to the Schoenbrunn castle, where the monarch usually passes the night, but was deterred from so doing by a sudden storm.

Therefore, he was compelled to send his aide-decamp. Such an honor as a return visit from the emperor is only extended to reigning sovereigns.

Brands Story as Falsehood.

One of the first things Roosevelt did on arriving here was to again brand as a fake a statement that he had consented to be a candidate for the presidency again. The statement this time was contained in the Paris Herald, which quoted one of its Italian correspondents.

The colonel positively asserted that the story was a pure fake, that neither he nor Gifford Pinchot had said anything that could possibly warrant such a statement.

In this connection Roosevelt said his meeting with Pinchot was not to be interpreted as a desire to hear only one side of the conservation controversy.

"I want to hear all sides on all questions," the colonel said, "and I shall be glad to see any one who can enlighten me on political conditions. I am sorry Senator Root could not come to Europe."

The colonel made it plain that he would stand for principles upon his return to America, regardless of parties or persons. In concluding his remarks regarding the Paris Herald the colonel said:

"As this is the third false statement in the Herald of a similar character I might further decline to see the representatives of that paper."

CHIEF OF POLICE INJURED

One Result of Roosevelt's Visit to Budapest.

Budapest, April 19.—Colonel Roosevelt's visit to Budapest has already cost the chief of police a broken leg and if the enthusiasm of the Hungarian populace continues throughout his stay there is no telling what the final count will be.

The chief of police was caught in the crush at the railway station, knocked down and trampled on. He tried his best to save himself by telling the people who he was, but the great throng was bent on just one thing—getting just as near Roosevelt as possible—and had the chief been emperor it is probable the result would have been the same.

Roosevelt said the struggle at the station reminded him of a New York department store bargain day rush. He was literally raised off the ground and carried forty feet by the enthusiastic mob, but emerged without a scratch.

IOWA'S LOSS IS VERY HEAVY

Freezing Weather Costs State More Than Five Millions.

Des Moines, April 19.—Secretary Wesley Green of the Iowa state horticultural department estimated that the loss of Iowa's fruit and vegetable crop from the freezing weather will be far in excess of $5,000,000. He asserts that early fruit, cherries and plums in particular, have been totally destroyed, while vegetables may be replanted, thus regaining a portion of the loss.

St. Paul, April 19.—The plum crop has been ruined by the recent snow and freezing temperatures, the crab apple crop has been seriously affected and the gooseberry and currant crops are practically ruined. The cold and snow have not affected the grains. On the other hand the snow was a good thing for them and for garden truck. Only the hardier vegetables have been planted and these were not hurt by the drop in temperature.

CONGRESSMAN MANN.

Cast Only Vote Against the Publicity Measure.

ONE NEGATIVE VOTE

Campaign Publicity Bill Passed by the House.

Washington, April 19.—Full publicity of all contributions made to further national and congressional campaigns is assured in the future as a result of the passage by the house of the McCall bill. This measure provides that the managers of committees conducting campaigns in two or more states shall file with the clerk of the house a statement of receipts and expenditures. Representative McCall, author of the bill, and Perry Belmont of New York, who is here for the Campaign Publicity association, aver that the measure will be enacted into law.

Certain senate leaders are opposed to the bill, but for political reasons they will not attempt to prevent its passage by the senate.

Representative Mann of Illinois, the "great objector," cast the only negative vote against the McCall bill in the house. He protested against the bill as being so loosely drawn that it would compel not only the Republican and Democratic national congressional committees to file statements of their receipts and expenditures between ten and fifteen days before an election, but also would make it obligatory on the Federation of Labor, the National Civic Federation, the National Conservation congress and all similar organizations, as well as all newspapers publishing political editorials, to do the same thing.

Truthfulness consists less in stating true facts than in conveying a true impression.—Stevenson.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN IN NEW YORK CITY

Returns From His Trip to South America.

New York, April 19.—William J. Bryan is home. He reached New York full of enthusiasm about the wonders of South America, and with absolutely no ideas, so far as he was willing to admit, about the state of affairs political in this country.

The steamship Caracas, on which Mr. Bryan came from San Juan, P. R., was held up outside Sandy Hook by a heavy fog. At the quarantine station a tug, with a reception committee composed of six men, awaited his coming. They were members of the Circum-Navigators' club, of which Mr. Bryan is a member. There was not a politician on hand to greet him.

The fog thinned out sufficiently to allow the Caracas to come up the bay.

Mr. Bryan left Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 13, spending some time in the Southern states. On Dec. 26 he left Key West for Havana. Thence he went to Jamaica, Panama, Peru, Bolivia, Chile, Argentina and Brazil, returning by way of Porto Rico.

"The object of my trip," he said, "was the study of economic and sociological conditions in South America."

"What are the chances of the Democratic party," he was asked.

"Good. Always good," was the noncommittal reply.

He was asked if he would consider another candidacy for the presidency.

"I have said all I am going to say on that subject," he replied emphatically. "I think my position is understood perfectly."

ROOSEVELT HAD AUTHORITY

Garfield Defends Conservation Policy of Former President.

Denver, April 19.—In a lengthy address, delivered before the Colorado state conservation commission, James R. Garfield, former secretary of the interior, spoke on the subject of conservation of water rights, the state and federal control of water power sites and the general principles of conservation.

Mr. Garfield pointed out the dangers of monopolization of the water power sites of the country and declared that if a "water power trust" was not already in actual existence all of the elements that go to make up such a trust are present and the tendency towards such centralization is growing stronger every day.

He defended the course of former President Roosevelt in making use of a broad executive authority in withdrawing water power sites and sought to show by quotations from the Constitution and from the decisions of Chief Justice Marshall that the chief executive of the nation was fully empowered to conserve such public interests under the broad rule of the "general welfare."

New York, April 19.—After eight years of government service as surveyor of the port of New York, General James S. Clarkson, formerly chairman of the Republican national committee, retired from office and was temporarily superseded by Chief Deputy Surveyor George J. Smyth. General Clarkson was presented with a huge silver loving cup and a gold watch and chain as tokens of affection and esteem from the employes of the surveyor's department who served under him.

General Clarkson's successor has not been named.

ALARMS THE MILL OWNERS

Action Instituted by the Federal Authorities.

Atlanta, Ga., April 19.—Cotton mill operators here are alarmed over the action instituted by the federal authorities against the leaders of the bull campaign and profess to see in it a covert effort on the part of certain New York cotton brokers to get relief from contracts with mills. They assert that the government unwittingly is co-operating with the bears in another and what they fear will prove a most disastrous raid.

Many mill owners in this section wired congressmen and others appealing to them to institute an investigation with a view to uncovering the "conspiracy" which they declare appears to exist.

TALKS TO WOMEN

President Taft Addresses Suffrage Convention.

DISAPPROVE OF HIS ADDRESS

Delegates Hiss Chief Executive's Welcoming Remarks.

Washington, April 15.—President Taft was hissed at the convention of the National Woman Suffrage association here. The disapproval came during his speech of welcome, and was most pronounced. He had to wait several seconds until order was restored.

The criticism was due to a misunderstanding of the president's words. Where it occurred the president did not express an opinion to which even the most advanced suffragette could not subscribe. The speech was extremely conservative.

The president frankly stated in his opening remarks that he has hesitated over the invitation to address the convention and had yielded to the solicitation of those enthusiastically interested in the welfare of the movement.

The large banquet room in the Arlington hotel, where the session of the convention was being held, was crowded to the doors. The audience was composed almost exclusively of women. For some reason the president was not enthusiastically received. It may have been because of a rumor that he would not unreservedly indorse woman suffrage. The president was at once introduced and spoke for about ten minutes. He told how as a boy of sixteen upon graduation he had chosen for his subject woman suffrage, and said that at that time he was as strong as any woman for woman suffrage.

In the course of his political experience he said he had modified his views somewhat. The president declared that every set of individuals in a community who are intelligent enough to know their own interests are better qualified to determine how those interests should be cared for and preserved than any other class, however altruistic.

Describes His Conditions.

He described the two conditions he would impose in granting suffrage. One is that the class should be intelligent enough to know its own interests. Said the president:

"The theory that Hottentots or any uneducated, altogether unintelligent class is prepared for self-government at once, or should immediately take part in self-government, is a theory I wholly dissent from. But that is not applicable to the present situation. The other qualification is that the class should care enough for its own interests to take part in the exercise of political power if it is conferred upon it. If it does not then it seems to me that there is danger that the power conferred may be exercised by that part of the class least desirable."

It was at this point that the president was hissed. The interruption did not disconcert him.

The president proceeded to welcome the convention to Washington. He congratulated he delegates upon their earnestness and highmindedness and asked indulgence if he "disagreed not in principle but in the application of it to the present situation."

When the president had concluded he shook hands with Rev. Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the association, and other leaders. He then left, accompanied by his military aide, Captain Archibald Butt. The delegates rose as the president was escorted from the hall. At the conclusion of the session many of the delegates expressed themselves as humiliated over the hissing incident.

GET SUSPENDED SENTENCES

Three More Ex-Councilmen Plead Guilty at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, April 14.—Three former councilmen appeared before Judge Josiah Cohen in the criminal courts and entered pleas of nolo contendre to charges of bribery against them. They were given suspended sentences.

Attorney Wakefield, of counsel for several indicted men, presented Judge Cohen with a petition similar to that overruled by Judge Frazer, asking the court to show reason why Harrison Nesbit, the grand jury foreman, should not be disqualified as a juror. Judge Cohen promptly overruled the petition.

COLONEL D. B. COOPER.

PARDON FOR D. B. COOPER

Slayer of Carmack Freed by Governor of Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., April 14.—In the case of Colonel Duncan B. Cooper and Robin J. Cooper, father and son, convicted of killing former Senator E. W. Carmack on the street here Nov. 9, 1908, and sentenced to twenty years each in the state penitentiary, the supreme court by a divided vote affirmed the sentence as to D. B. Cooper. As to Robin Cooper the case, also by a divided vote, is reversed and remanded to the lower court for a new trial.

While Chief Justice Beard was reading a dissenting opinion in the case of Duncan B. Cooper, Governor Patterson wrote a full pardon for the defendant, in which he declares:

"In my opinion neither of the defendants is guilty and they have not had a fair and impartial trial, but were convicted contrary to the law and evidence."

HILL LINE TO FRISCO

Long Fight Ends in a Victory Over Harriman Interests.

St. Paul, April 18.—At a conference of railroad officials held at Denver, according to a dispatch received here, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad and the Denver and Rio Grande and Western Pacific lines concluded traffic agreements whereby these systems will interchance business in Denver and the Gould lines will become the outlet to California for the Hill lines. This is looked upon as a great achievement by the St. Paul magnate and a triumph over the Harriman lines.

President Darius Miller of the Burlington road said after the conference that through passenger trains probably would be operated from Chicago by way of Denver to San Francisco.

The new agreement between the Hill and Gould lines marks a victory for the Hill interests over the Harriman cohorts and practically gives them an entrance into San Francisco, something that the Hills have fought for ten years.

Seed Potatoes.

It is nearly potato planting time Select your seed now, quick. Don't use the long, rough stock of round or oval variets. Its vitality is diminishing, and it will be disappointing at digging time. Avoid the small slender taping stock of longer varieties. Use as intelligent care in selecting seed potatoes as any sensible farmer will use in selecting breeding animals, for the better and stronger the parent the better and stronger the offspring. The same rule applies to vegetables and animals. The short thick pototo, compared with the lo. in the bin is the vigorous, hardy seed. Medium sized potatoes give best results. Potatoes with deep eyes are harder to peel than shallow eyed. In peeling much of the nutritive value is lost. Avoid irregular surfaces and small tubers. The small individuals indicate run out vitality. They will do to feed stock or poultry.

Government Will Investigate Alleged Cotton Pool.

WILL BE MADE IN NEW YORK

Attorney General Wickersham Orders Inquiry Into Gigantic Bull Movement in Cotton With Which the Names of Patten, Hayne, Brown and Scales Have Been Popularly Connected.

New York, April 19.—There will be started in New York at once a federal investigation without precedent in this country. The attorney general of the United States has ordered an inquiry into the gigantic bull movement in cotton with which the names of James A. Patten of Chicago, Frank B. Hayne and William P. Brown of New Orleans and Eugene Scales of Texas have been popularly connected.

Hayne and Brown both appear as defendants in the proceedings, but it could not be learned whether Mr. Patten will be subpoenaed at Chicago to come here and testify. He has been generally credited, however, with being the financial genius of the pool and in recent interviews he has outlined his bullish position and his determination to fight the supposed bear clique which has been reshipping cotton to this country from England in an endeavor to break the market. The bull movement has reached such a stage, however, that there are rumors of a possible May corner in the New York market.

Never before has the government brought similar action against any pool operating in the market on either the long or the short side. Meager are the details of the proposed inquiry available. Subpoenas were issued at the direction of Mr. Wickersham commanding a dozen or more prominent New York cotton brokers to appear before a special grand jury to testify in the matter of the "United States against Frank B. Hayne and William P. Brown."

Announcement of the government's action was followed by a very excited break in prices on the New York Cotton Exchange, which at one time bid fair to result in almost as great a demoralization as that noted last January.

RESOLUTIONS ARE PASSED

Commons Votes to Abolish Veto Power of House of Lords.

London, April 15.—Amid scenes of intense excitement hardly paralleled since the Gladstonian home rule debates, the house of commons by majorities of 103 recorded its approval of Premier Asquith's resolutions dealing with the veto power of the house of lords and heard the premier's declaration of policy for carrying them into statutory effect.

Having formally introduced, amid loud cheers, his supporter bill embodying the resolutions, Mr. Asquith said the government's effective existence depended upon the passing of the resolutions into law. If the house of lords failed to accept or declined to consider their policy the government would feel it their duty to advise the crown as to what steps were necessary to insure their policy receiving statutory effect. It would not be right, he continued, for him to disclose the terms of that advice, but unless the government found themselves in a position to give their policy statutory effect they would either resign office or recommend dissolution of parliament.

Bryan Reaches New York.

A Reluctant Candidate.

During a local election in a German town only one man appeared at the nomination desk.

"Whom do you nominate?" inquired the official.

"Myself," was the answer.

"Do you accept the nomination?"

"Well, no."

The officer laughed and said:

"Then we must try again. Whom do you nominate?"

"Myself."

"You accept the nomination?"

"No."

A subdued "Donnerwetter!" escaped the lips of the perplexed official, but he went on:

"For the third time, whom do you nominate?"

"Myself," came the invariable reply.

"Do you accept the nomination?"

The man rose up, and a smile of satisfaction spread over his face as he answered proudly:

"Having been three times solicited by my fellow citizens to accept the nomination, I can no longer decline to accede to their wishes." He then retired.

The Opal.

In judging an opal color is of the greatest importance. Red fire or red in combination with yellow, blue and green is the best. Blue by itself is quite valueless, and the green opal is not of great value unless the color is very vivid and the pattern very good. The color must be true—that is to say, it must not run in streaks or patches, alternating with a colorless or inferior quality. Pattern is an important factor, the several varieties being known as "pin fire" when the grain is very small, "harlequin" when the color is in small squares, the more regular the better, and the "flash fire," or "flash opal," when the color shows as a single flash or in very large pattern. Harlequin is the most common and is also popularly considered the most beautiful. When the squares of color are regular and show as distinct minute checks of red, yellow, blue and green it is considered magnificent. Some stones show better on edge than on top.—Exchange.

Kept Them Dancing.

A Washington official, speaking of blunders in the diplomatic service, told of a mistake committed by an American in Afghanistan. He said:

"This American entertained the shahzada for three days, giving him a very handsome suit of rooms in his house. The morning of the shahzada's arrival the American host visited him in his apartment and was amazed to see the royal guest and his entire staff hopping about the floor in the oddest way. They conversed politely and gravely; but, instead of walking, they hopped, taking great leaps of eight or nine feet. The host ventured to ask the reason of this hopping. The shahzada politely replied:

"'You see, this carpet is green, with pink roses here and there. Green is a sacred color with us, so we are obliged to hop from rose to rose. It is good exercise, but rather fatiguing, I confess.'"

LARGE NUMBER FAVOR REMOVAL

Moving of Land Office to Thief River Falls would benefit all Homesteaders.

There is no doubt but that the removal of the United States Land office from Crookston to Thief River Falls would be a great benefit to all those who will in the future have business at the office as, the public land remaining, not yet proved up or what has not as yet been thrown open to settlement all lies handier to Thief River Falls thus saving the home steader both time and money.

The Warroad Plaindealer says; "A movement is on foot to get the U. S. Land office moved from Crookston to Thief River Falls. That would bring it about fifty miles closer to most of the homesteads.

Thief River Press;—

The movement started by Guy H. Powell of Warroad last week for the removal of the United States Land Office from Crookston to Thief River Falls seems to have struck a responsive cord. Every newspaper in the district where its patrons would be affected by such a move have responded strongly favoring this movement and the settlers in that part of the district where there are still unproved lands are aglow with intense interest in the project of moving the land office to a more convenient location than it has been at here-to-fore.

The law providing for the removal of the land office is very simple and reads as follows:

Sec. 2251, Vol. 6, Federal Statutes Annotated.

The President is authorized to change the location of the land-offices in the several land districts established by law, and to locate the same from time to time at such point in the district as he deems expedient.

Judging from the langauge of this law it is very evident that the intention is not that this land office shall be maintained to favor any particular city or locality but tha it be so located as to best serve the settlers who have business functions therewith.

That there has been a long felt need for the removal of the land office of this district to a more convenient point needs no proof. Time and again settlers have come here and protested against going to Crookston and yet unless they were willing to be heard before the United States Commissioners they had absolutely no alternative. Now that they see a possibility of having the land office removed to where it would serve them better they are rejoicing over the prospects of a better state of affairs.

Petitions will be sent to the President urging this removal and setting forth wherein the new location will be preferable. On this latter point there is no lack of material in as much as every particle of unproved grounds is more closely connected with Thief River Falls than it is with Crookston and since we have not only the direct and most convenient connections by rail but as we have in addition to that the best telephone connections of any city in the Land Office district.

JUDGE OF PROBATE SWANSON DEAD

Died Very Suddenly Sunday Morning From a Stroke of Paralysis.

Ira C. Richardson of Thief River Falls is His Successor.

S. A. Swanson, Judge of Probate of Red Lake County, died early Sunday morning at his home at Red Lake Falls after being ill but a few days. Death was caused by a stroke of paralpsis. Funeral services were held in the Presbyterian church at Red Lake Falls Tuesday, in the forenoon, and in the afternoon in the Swedish Luthern church at Black River where his parents resided.

Judge Swanson is an old resident of Red Lake county and has been prominent in its politics since it was first organized he being the first register of deeds of the county. He was candidate for the offices of both state senator and representative but was defeated for both. He was elected Judge of Probate in the fall of 1908 which office he held when he died.

Thief River Press:— "As is usual it the case of vacancies of this kind there was a scramble for the office of Probate Judge. This appointment was made by the Governor and there was no lack of candidates."

"Among those who spoke up for the place were M. O. Sortedahl, Fred L. Farley, Joseph Perrault and Ernest G. Buse all of Red Lake Falls, and Ira C. Richardson of this city. The latter being an attorney and having the united support of this city won in a walk. It seems that out side people can see the just claims of our city but it is never recognized by our county board.

General Roadmaster Here.

General roadmaster of the Soo Line J. OConnors spent Wednesday here making arrangements in regard to the handling of the material, for the new line, which has already began to arrive. He said that the work of handling the material in the yards would employ a crew of from fourty to fifty men thru the greater part of the summer. There will be 20,000 rails and 210,000 ties unloaded here which together with spikes, switch supplies etc will make 15,000 car-loads of material that will be handled here this summer. This will be sufficient to lay the first sixty-two miles of this end of the line, from Plummer to the goverment dam. It will be a week or more before the tracks will be laid in the yards so the material can be unloaded and in the meantime the company will be forced to fill up all the sidings at the near by small towns.

Will Retain the Old.

Local agent, Suprey, has received a letter from superintendent Michels informing him that he has been advised by the president of the road that the company has decided not to change the name of the station here. This is good news to the local business men. What arrangements the road has made to do away with the confusion of freight and express that is continually occuring he did not state but it is likely that the name of the Wisconsin town will be changed

A merchant in a small town who saw a farmer receive goods at a railroad station from a mail-order house told him he could have sold the same goods for less money and saved the freight besides. The farmer asked why he didn't let people know. Though he had taken the home paper regularly for years, he never saw a line in it that such goods were to be had. The mail-order house came after the trade and got it. Merchant and manufacturers who fail to advertise what they have should not expect to compete with those who do. The very best articles at the lowest prices will be passed by when people are unaware of their existence. Probably if the merchant had advertised and the farmer had bought from him he wouldn't have know that his advertisement had brought the business, anyway, and so wouldn't have given it credit. Publicity often reaches much further than outwardly perceptible. —Exchange.

STAR CORRESPONDANCE.

The snow storm stopped seeding operations for some time. The meadows are flooded again. So thanks to the social spirit of the beavers; their grades are kind of crooked; yet we go there just the same.

Hope the water will soon recede. Then if we can safely burn the meadows, is there any law against that? The "skeeters" will "get" youse if you don,t loog oud a leedle.

The Socialists have now captured Milwaukee by a large majority. Here is hope that they will soon be able to elect enough state and national representatives so that part will not interfere to much with their progress.

The ditch dredge should soon be on the job. Present conditions of the roads and fields show that the work can't be done any too soon. Sanitary wells and lighter air also result from reasonable drainage. So, "on with the dance."

All seeding done by the middle of May ought to go some; since they say Halley is a shakey one; but fear not; 'spose it's only strong spirits. The Rural Weekly says: "During last part of April and early part of May the comet will be visible in the east just before sunrise a few degrees north of northeast. From May 17, it will appear in the west in the evening soon as darkness comes on."

The recent conservation Congress held at St. Paul was also one of conversation. Verily Minnesota has a goodly share of natural resourses; Air, water, soil, stone, iron ore, timber and what not, which if saved for real public use would be a blessing, but if reserved for the sharks will be a curse. Sela? —Sub Urban.

The most economic way of securing a permanent road bed is through drainage. It solves much of the good roads problem.

Isolation, hard work and small compensation is too often the lot of the farmers' wives. These are burdens that need lifting.

The most valuable farms were at one time sloughs and swamps and considered worthless. Drainage has made them valuable.

A short course for steam and gasoline engineering will begin at University Farm on May 4th and continue until the 17th of June. Tuition $15.00, board, $3.50 a week.

The average farm in Minnesota is yielding only about four percent profit on the investment. This suggests the need of a better method of handling business on the farm and a better farm management.

There is always a best way of doing things, on a farm or elsewhere but it often takes study to find it. The result is worth the effort. If some one else is getting better results than you are find the reason.

Sow fodder corn thickly, either with a grain drill or corn planter, at the rate of 30 to 50 pounds per acre, cultivate one way, cut with a corn binder, shock in the field and allow to stand until fed or hauled to the barn.

The Minnesota Farmers Institute has a number of little booklets full of handy references for farmers, containing formulas, treatment of animal diseases, statistics and hints of value, which any farmer can have free of cost by writing to A. D. Wilson superintendent, University Farm, St. Paul.

Cultivated crops include corn, potatoes, mangles, and all root crops that are planted in rows and cultivated during growth. Such crops have been regarded as beneficial to soil fertility but investigation at the experiment station showed that continuous growing of cultivated crops depletes the soil more rapidly than does the growing of grain continuously.

Manures and roots of plants are especially useful in controlling soil moisture. Hence crops grow better where manures and grasses are largely used. A heavy coating of course manure plowed under in the spring may result unfavorably by seperating the furrow slice and subsoil and causing the surface to become to dry. It is often better to make lighter applications of manure and to disc it in rather than plow it under.

That seed doesn't run out because it is grown on one farm a long time is shown by the experiments at the Minnesota University Farm and at experiment stations of other states. Experiments comparing home grown seed with that brought from a distance have resulted in every case in favor of the home grown seed when the stations have used the proper care in seed selection. The Minnesota Experiment Station will tell you how to select seed if you ask for the method.

The entire breakdown of the Ballinger witnesses was entertaining and instructive, but not surprising, as it is difficult to conduct successfully a case built from beginning to end upon false ground.

Some of the witnesses endeavored to prove Glavis stole and secreted letters, and the result on cross-examination was to exonorate Glavis beyond a doubt, and to justify the surprise and rage he showed on the stand when he first denounced the "frame-up."

These witnesses were the means of still further discrediting, on every controverted issue, the reports of the Secretary of the Interior and the Attorney-General, and the letter of the President. Of this more in a later issue.

They made the proof of fraud more certain.

They made Ballinger's complete knowledge of fraud more certain.

They made Ballinger's hostility to the Roosevelt policies of conservation look even more bitter.

The Guggenheim-Morgan attempt to monopolize Alaska stands as unshaken as to do the subserviency knowledge of Ballinger; the fraudulency of the blaims; Ballinger's attempts to put them thru; the falsity of the Cunningham affidavit drawn and presented by Ballinger; the disclosure to the Cunninghams of the Government's confidential information; participation in the fraudulent Wilson coal cases; the attempt to give away the water-power, and his lies with which the Secretary endeavored to cover up this deed: the assault on the Reclamation Service and the lies with which that also was vainly covered; the reprimand of Newell for attempting to punish a man for being secretly in railroad pay. Of course, Newell will have to go, and Hoyt, and probably Davis. More than ever is it clear now why Garfield was dropped against the special wish of Mr. Roosevelt; why Gifford Pinchot could not submit silently to the gigantic treachery that was still at work; why the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate would own the Cunningham coal to day if Glavis not been insubordinate.

Messrs. GUGGENHEIM and MORGAN own enough of the earth already, Goodness knows. The GUGGENHEIMS constitute a world-trust. Morgan. to a very large degree, rules the universe of life insurance, banks, trust companies, steel, railways, the whole constituting a set of interests estimated by intelligent authority as valued at six thousand million dollars. or with its affiliated interests, ten million dollars. The political power of these two mighty forces combined is already too great for freedom, and we hold it to beevident that the President of the United States ought not to retain in his employ a man pressed upon him by these interests, a pawn of theirs, so docile that fraud in their service looks to him like virtue.

DAMAGE IMMENSE

Cold Wave Destroys Vegetation in the Northwest.

LARGE SECTION IS AFFECTED

Loss in Crops Estimated a Twenty-five Millions.

St. Paul, April 25.—Bearing down from Northeast Canada, lashing the Great Lakes to fury and crossing the Northwest states into the Central Mississippi valley with destruction to early vegetation, the storm that began Friday increased in violence on Saturday and continued until Sunday morning, when it began to abate. Estimates of damage running into many millions are reported from the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and the states further south. The early fruit crop has been badly injured and in many places is a total loss.

Losses aggregating $25,000,000 are probable in Minnesota and the Dakotas, Iowa, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas as a result of the blizzard. The situation in the Northwest states may be summarized as follows:

MINNESOTA — Probable damage close to $5,000,000 from injury to early blossoming fruit trees. Possible damage much greater, depending upon extent of injury to potatoes and corn that was seeded early in some portions of Southern Minnesota. Reseeding probably necessary in many cases.

Iowa's Loss Very Heavy.

IOWA—Damage estimated between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000. Cherry, plum and apple trees in blossom badly injured and the crop a total loss in many places. Early vegetables frozen in some localities.

KANSAS—Estimated losses to early fruits and vegetables $50,000,000. Winter wheat damage uncertain.

NORTH AND SOUTH DAKOTA—Damage to fruits and vegetables probably $1,000,000. Spring wheat and early sown oats, barley and winter rye crop affected, but not believed to have been injured beyond possibility of recovery.

WISCONSIN—The cranberry crop has probably escaped serious damage, but losses in the state are placed at more than $1,000,000 to small fruits. Early vegetables have been killed in many portions of the state.

ILLINOIS, MISSOURI AND NEBRASKA—Probable damage $5,000,000.

TWO TOWNS SWEPT BY FIRE

Flames Do Immense Damage at Lake Charles, La., and Salem, Neb.

Lake Charles, La., April 25.—Five thousand persons are homeless, several are missing, scores are injured and property damage to the extent of $4,000,000 has resulted here from a fire which, starting in an old opera house near the center of the town, wiped out thirty business blocks and then burned a path through the residence section of the city.

Salem, Neb., April 25.—Salem is in ruins. Fire starting from the overheated oven of Mrs. C. M. Coffee's kitchen swept over the village and in six hours the entire business district and a large portion of the residence section had been destroyed. The loss is estimated at between $250,000 and $300,000.

HUNDREDS DIE IN BATTLE

Severe Fighting Said to Have Occurred in Albania.

Constantinople, April 26.—The Albanian revolt in the sanjak of Prestina has broken out again with redoubled fury, according to admissions made by the war department.

The fighting has been the heaviest yet reported, with approximately 10,000 Albanians and 8,000 Turkish troops engaged. Hundreds have been killed. The government is now rushing reinforcements to the scene.

MARK TWAIN DEAD

Famous Humorist Passes Away at Redding, Conn.

VICTIM OF ANGINA PECTORIS

End Is Hastened by Grief and Great Agony of Body.

Redding, Conn., April 22.—Samuel Langhorne Clemens ("Mark Twain") died painlessly of angina pectoris. He lapsed into coma at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and never recovered consciousness. It was the end of a man outworn by grief and acute agony of body.

Wednesday was a bad day for the little knot of anxious watchers at the bedside. For long hours the gray, aquiline features lay molded in the inertia of death, while the pulse sank lower and lower, but late at night Mark Twain passed from stupor into the first natural sleep he had known since he returned from Bermuda and in the morning he woke refreshed, even faintly cheerful, and in full possession of all his faculties.

He recognized his daughter Clara, Mrs. Ossip Gabrilovitch, spoke a rational word or two and, feeling himself unequal to conversation, wrote out in pencil: "Give me my glasses."

They were his last words. Laying them aside he sank first into reverie and later into final unconsciousness.

At the deathbed were only Mrs. Gabrilovitch, her husband, Ossip Gabrilovitch, Dr. Robert Halsey, Dr. Quintard, Albert Bigelow Paine, who will write Mark Twain's biography, and the two trained nurses. Restoratives—digitalis, strychnine and camphor—were administered, but the patient failed to respond.

Was a Native of Missouri.

Mr. Clemens first saw the light in the little town of Florida, Mo., Nov. 30, 1835.

His boyhood was not unlike that of Tom Sawyer, the character he created to become the hero of other American boys for generations to follow. Young Clemens received but a scanty school education; in fact, it is suspected that Mark Twain and Tom Sawyer were one.

Samuel L. Clemens was a man who saw only the best in life; he ever refused to see anything else.

In grinding poverty, in affluence, surrounded by a happy family, or standing at the bier of a loved one, Mark Twain never gave up to despair. Few among us have known grief as bitter as he. Few men still have contributed as much to the joy of the world.

Frontier reporter, miner, steamboat pilot, captain of finance, bankrupt, successful author, no matter what his station in life for the moment, Mark Twain was always the same genial friend and companion.

Simple funeral sservices over the remains of Mr. Clemens were held in New York city and the body was interred in the family plot at Elmira beside those of his wife, two daughters and an infant son.

ONLY SEVEN ESCAPE ALIVE

Explosion Kills Eighteen Miners at Amsterdam, O.

Steubenville, O., April 23.—The lives of eighteen miners were snuffed out in an explosion in the Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal company's mine at Amsterdam.

Seven men, bruised and burned, were rescued from the mine, and their escape from death is regarded as miraculous. The interior of the mine was wrecked and all ventilation shut off. The cause has not been determined by the state mine inspectors and mining experts, who are conducting the search of the wrecked workings for the bodies of twelve victims who have not yet been located.

The mine had been inspected but two days before the explosion by Deputy Inspector Thomas Morrison.

Congressman Fowler Would Have House Elect All Committees.

Washington, April 22.—A further change in the rules of the house was proposed by Representative Fowler of New Jersey, one of the progressives, who introduced a resolution providing for the selection of committees of the house by election. It was referred to the rules committee without the fight which was expected when Representative Hardwick of Georgia called for a quorum in view of the importance of the subject.

NATIVE MOBS BURN VILLAGES

Situation in Hunan Province, China, Reported Critical.

Hankow, April 23.—The situation in Hunan province is reported as critical. Women and children are fleeing for their lives from Changsha, the capital. A number of villages near that city have been reduced to ashes by native mobs. The country is placarded with threats to kill all foreigners.

Many Chinese have been killed. In one instance a technical school was set afire and thirty students were burned to death.

The Reward.

READY TO FIGHT THE PROPOSITION

Volstead Opposed to Reciprocity With Canada.

WHAT CANADA HAS TO OFFER

Minnesota Congressman Declares That the Dominion Can Only Tender Raw Material in Exchange for the Benefits to Be Derived From Reciprocity Treaty With the United States. American Farmers Would Suffer.

Washington, April 26.—Representative Volstead of Minnesota is preparing to fight the proposition being urged by Representative Butler Ames and the New England delegation in congress asking for an expression by the house favorable to reciprocity with Canada. To bring about this commercial arrangement there will have to be passed a bill exempting Canada from the effects of the maximum and minimum provisions of the Payne tariff law.

"Canada has nothing to offer this country but raw material," said Mr. Volstead. "My district is purely agricultural. With full reciprocity with Canada the farmers of my section will have all their agricultural products thrown into competition with the products of the farms of Canada. Vast areas of Canadian agricultural lands are virgin. All that is necessary is to turn the soil, sow and reap the harvests. This was the condition in our Middle West a few years ago and the tilled farms of the East, where fertilizers and more careful cultivation were needed, suffered. The complaint of the East now is that farm lands are deserted.

Would Go to Canada.

"With Canadian reciprocity it would not be long before the same complaint would come from all our Canadian border states. Our farmers would leave their farms to seek the virgin agricultural lands in Canada, safe in the knowledge they had a free market in this country for their product. The protective tariff on American agricultural products equalizes this difference in cost of production and gives our border farms their value.

"We have no need for Canadian manufactures," said Mr. Volstead. "Canada is a customer of this country for manufactured articles. For this reason the factories of New England, New York and Pennsylvania may and do desire reciprocity with Canada, but our agricultural people do not want it. Reciprocity would be against their best interests. It is possible that Mr. Ames may get fifty representatives to sign his petition favoring reciprocity. This would be sufficient to get a Republican caucus on reciprocity, but I do not think such a measure could pass the house. The interior Republican agricultural states and the Southern states, the producers of free raw material, will be against it."

COLD SPELL IS DISASTROUS

Atlanta, Ga., April 26.—With millions of acres of young cotton destroyed by the cold weather which overspread the entire cotton belt, with the unusual accompaniment in many sections of snow and sleet, the South has suffered its most disastrous financial setback perhaps since the Civil war.

Reports indicate that the cold snap has not abated in Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee, Northern Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and even further west, and for much of this territory a heavy frost and freezing temperatures are predicted. In Atlanta and throughout the northern half of Georgia, except near the Atlantic, the thermometer has been below 40 degrees above zero all day, with falling temperatures recorded.

Snow fell as far south as Selma, Ala.; Columbus, Miss., and Columbus, Ga., and in North Georgia, Tennessee and parts of North Alabama and Mississippi the fall ranged from one to four inches.

Cottonseed oil mills in this state and Alabama were appealed to for seed for replanting purposes and state officials implored the mills to crush no more seed until the farmers have been supplied. It is doubtful, however, if there is sufficient seed to replant one-half of the area of young cotton destroyed by the cold.

Insists Upon Disagreement.

Washington, April 26.—The house voted to insist further upon its disagreement with the senate amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill increasing from 25 to 35 per cent the amount paid to states from the income of national forests within the boundaries. With this insistence the bill was again sent to conference.

Lake Steamer Safe.

Houghton, Mich., April 26.—The steamer Northern King, which had not been reported since leaving the Soo Friday, and for whose safety some apprehension was felt, is safe in shelter at this port.

LIVELY SESSION OF COMMITTEE

Attack on Wisconsin Congressman Renewed.

PENTON SCORES STEENERSON

Secretary of the Merchant Marine League Declares That the Minnesota Congressman Is a Menace to American Progress—Chaotic Bookkeeping System of the League Revealed by Investigation.

Washington, April 26.—A renewal of the attack on Representative Kusterman of Wisconsin injected a bit of life into the session of the house ship subsidy investigation committee. Secretary Penton of the Merchant Marine league was being asked about the virulent criticisms of members of congress in the league's organ, the American Flag. Attorney Ralston, counsel for Representative Steenerson, asked Penton how he knew that Kusterman represented the foreign shipping interests in congress, that being an accusation made by the league.

"That's easily proved," said Penton.

"Prove it," roared Ralston.

"Mr. Kusterman proved it by a speech on the floor of the house on Jan. 8 last," retorted the witness. Kusterman had advocated rebuilding the merchant marine without subsidies and quoted Frank Waterhouse of Seattle, Fred W. Taylor of Philadelphia, Robert Dollar of San Francisco and others interested in the ocean traffic. Kusterman interjected that all these quotations were from the government merchant marine commission's report.

Represented Foreign Interests.

Penton asserted that these men, unable to voice their utterances on the floor of the house, got Mr. Kusterman to speak for them, that though American citizens they represented foreign interests.

Penton said he was the source of information on which John M. Maxwell, the Indianapolis editor, based his charge in the American Flag that a clause of the Kusterman shipping bill was dictated by a representative of the foreign shipping interests, about which Maxwell's testimony was hazy. Penton testified that he was so told by a gentleman in New Orleans whose name he does not know.

"You say Mr. Steenerson is dishonest and a menace?"

"I consider that such men are a constant menace to American progress, especially a member of congress who would say what Mr. Steenerson has said."

The examination as to the income and outgo of the league revealed not only a rather chaotic bookkeeping system at times, but payments aggregating $2,000 to ex-Congressman Charles B. Landis of Indiana, for nine weeks speaking service in connection with the Landis chautauqua circuit and numerous checks ranging from $500 to $5,000, a check for the latter account being credited "through Myron T. Herrick," former governor of Ohio. The hearing will be resumed.

TRUTH OF HIS STATEMENTS

Congressman Steenerson Believes It Has Been Established.

Washington, April 26.—Representative Steenerson believes that with the testimony introduced at the ship subsidy hearing Saturday he has established the truth of the statements he made in the letter to E. A. Force of Minneapolis, which resulted in the attack on him in the December issue of the organ of the Merchant Marine league. In that letter Steenerson stated that the officers of the league were promoting subsidy legislation because they expected to get big contracts and make money at shipbuilding and other enterprises stimulated by the proposed subsidy. While John A. Penton was on the stand, Mr. Steenerson's counsel introduced part of the hearings on the tariff bill showing that J. G. Butler, president of the league, had advocated a high duty on steel and on iron ore, in the production of which Mr. Butler is interested.

Acquitted of Manslaughter.

Minneapolis, April 26.—Frederick H. Camp of St. Paul, manager of Twin City Wonderland, was acquitted of a charge of manslaughter in the second degree by a jury in the Hennepin county district court. Camp was placed on trial a week ago. He was accused of negligence while driving his automobile in North Minneapolis on the evening of Sept. 20 last, causing the death of Mrs. D. R. Thompson of Rockford, Minn., who lived in Minneapolis temporarily while her children attended school.

Wolf Den a Bonanza.

Lead, S D., April 26.—James Kuester, formerly a resident of this city, who now has a ranch in Custer county Mont., was out hunting last week and came across a cave where he knew some gray wolves had a den. He ventured in and found a lair of ten wolf pups, the older animals being absent. Kuester dispatched them all. The next day he trapped the mother near the cave and later received $165 bounty for the eleven animals, besides selling the hides.

CHARLES E. HUGHES.

New York's Governor to Be Member of Supreme Court.

HUGHES GOES ON BENCH

Named as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

Washington, April 26.—President Taft has received from Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York a letter accepting a tendered appointment as an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States. Five minutes after the letter was handed to the president the nomination of Governor Hughes was on its way to the senate. That body had adjourned for the day, however, when the papers reached the Capitol, and so the senate did not hear officially of the designation of Governor Hughes to succeed the late Justice David J. Brewer.

While it is expected that Governor Hughes will be confirmed with little or no delay, it is understood here he will remain as the chief executive of the state of New York until next October and will not take the oath of his new office until the fall term of the supreme court opens the second Monday of that month.

There has been much speculation ever since it was first intimated that Governor Hughes would be tendered a place on the supreme court bench as to whether or not his appointment would take him out of the fall campaign in the state of New York, where all the Republican leaders admit he is sorely needed.

VESSELS CRASH IN DARKNESS

One Goes to Bottom, but All on Board Are Saved.

North Sydney, N. S., April 26.—A collision off Fortune Bay, N F., of two Newfoundland schooners, the Edna Carter and the Victoria, by which the former vessel was sunk, is reported.

The two vessels crashed in the darkness five miles off Brunette island. For two hours they hung together with their rigging entangled and, in the heavy sea which was running, it was feared both would founder.

After they were cut apart the Edna Carter went down. Her crew escaped to the Victoria, but lost all their effects.

THE RANSOM OF MACK.

A Kind Hearted Meddler and the Mistake He Made.

By O. HENRY.

[Copyright, 1907, by the McClure Company.]

Me and old Mack Lonsbury, we got out of that Little Hide and Seek gold mine affair with about $40,000 apiece. I say "old" Mack, but he wasn't old. Forty-one, I should say, but he always seemed old.

"Andy," he says to me, "I'm tired of hustling. You and me have been working hard together for three years. Say we knock off for awhile and spend some of this idle money we've coaxed our way."

"The proposition hits me just right," says I. "Let's be nabobs awhile and see how it feels. What'll we do, take in the Niagara falls or buck a faro?"

"For a good many years," says Mack, "I've thought that if I ever had extravagant money I'd rent a two room cabin somewhere, hire a Chinaman to cook and sit in my stocking feet and read Buckle's 'History of Civilization.'"

"That sounds self indulgent and gratifying without vulgar ostentation," says I, "and I don't see how money could be better invested. Give me a cuckoo clock and a 'Sep Winner's Self Instructor For the Banjo' and I'll join you."

A week afterward me and Mack hits this small town of Pina, about thirty miles out from Denver, and finds an elegant two room house that just suits us. We deposited half a peck of money in the Pina bank and shook hands with every one of the 340 citizens in the town. We brought along the Chinaman and the cuckoo clock and Buckle and the Instructor with us from Denver, and they made the cabin seem like home at once.

Never believe it when they tell you riches don't bring happiness. If you could have seen old Mack sitting in his rocking chair with his blue yarn sock feet up in the window and absorbing in that Buckle stuff through his specs you'd have seen a picture of content that would have made Rockefeller jealous. And I was learning to pick out "Old Zip Coon" on the banjo, and the cuckoo was on time with his remarks, and Ah Sing was messing up the atmosphere with the handsomest smell of ham and eggs that ever laid the honeysuckle in the shade. When it got too dark to make out Buckle's nonsense and the notes in the Instructor me and Mack would light our pipes and talk.

One evening Mack spoke up and asked me if I was much apprised in the habits and policies of women folks.

"Why, yes," says I in a tone of voice. "I know 'em from Alfred to Omaha. The feminine nature and similitude," says I, "is as plain to my sight as the Rocky mountains is to a blue eyed burro. I'm on to all their little sidesteps and punctual discrepancies."

"I tell you, Andy," says Mack, with a kind of sigh, "I never had the least amount of intersection with their predispositions. Maybe I might have had a proneness in respect to their vicinity, but I never took the time. I made my own living since I was fourteen, and I never seemed to get my ratiocinations equipped with the sentiments usually depicted toward the sect. I sometimes wish I had," says old Mack.

"They're an adverse study," says I, "and adapted to points of view. Although they vary in rationale, I have found 'em quite often obviously differing from each other in divergences of contrast."

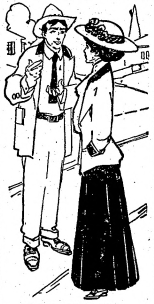
"It seems to me," goes on Mack, "that a man had better take 'em in and secure his inspirations of the sect when he's young and so preordained. I let my chance go by, and I guess I'm too old now to go hopping into the curriculum."

"Oh, I don't know," I tells him. "Maybe you better credit yourself with a barrel of money and a lot of emancipation from a quantity of uncontent. Still, I don't regret my knowledge of 'em," I says. "It takes a man who understands the symptoms and byplays of women folks to take care of himself in this world."

We stayed on in Pina because we liked the place. Some folks might enjoy their money with noise and rapture and locomotion, but me and Mack we had had plenty of turmoils and hotel towels. The people were friendly; Ah Sing got the swing of the grub we liked; Mack and Buckle were as thick as two body snatchers, and I was hitting out a cordial resemblance to "Buffalo Gals, Can't You Come Out Tonight?" on the banjo.

One day I got a telegram from Speight, the man that was working a mine I had an interest in out in New Mexico. I had to go out there, and I was gone two months.

When I struck the cabin I nearly fainted. Mack was standing in the door, and if angels ever wept I saw no reason why they should be smiling then.



"LISTEN, SISSY," I BEGINS.

That man was a spectacle. Yes; he was worse. He was a spyglass. He was the great telescope in the Lick observatory. He had on a coat and shiny shoes and a white vest and a high silk hat, and a geranium as big as an order of spinach was spiked on to his front. And he was smirking and warping his face like an infernal storekeeper or a kid with colic.

"Hello, Andy," says Mack out of his face. "Glad to see you back. Things have happened since you went away."

"I know it," says I, "and a sacrilegious sight it is. God never made you that way, Mack Lonsbury. Why do you scarify his works with this presumptious kind of ribaldry?"

"Why, Andy," says he, "they've elected me justice of the peace since you left."

I looked at Mack close. He was restless and inspired. A justice of the peace ought to be disconsolate and assuaged.

Just then a young woman passed on the sidewalk, and I saw Mack kind of half snicker and blush, and then he raised up his hat and smiled and bowed, and she smiled and bowed and went on by.

"No hope for you," says I, "if you've got the Mary Jane infirmity at your age. I thought it wasn't going to take on you. And patent leather shoes! All this in two little short months!"

"I'm going to marry the young lady who just passed tonight," says Mack in a kind of a flutter.

"I forgot something at the postoffice," says I and walked away quick.

I overtook that young woman a hundred yards away. I raised my hat and told her my name. She was about nineteen and young for her age. She blushed and then looked at me cool, like I was the snow scene from the "Two Orphans."

"I understand you are to be married tonight," I said.

"Correct," says she. "You got any objections?"

"Listen, sissy," I begins.

"My name is Miss Rebosa Redd," says she in a pained way.

"I know it," says I. "Now, Rebosa, I'm old enough to have owed money to your father. And that old, specious, dressed up, garbled, seasick ptomaine prancing around avidiously like an irremediable turkey gobbler with patent leather shoes on is my best friend. Why did you go and get him invested in this marriage business?"

"Why, he was the only chance there was," answers Miss Rebosa.

"Nay," says I, giving a sickening look of admiration at her complexion and style of features. "With your beauty you might pick any kind of a man. Listen, Rebosa. Old Mack ain't the man you want. He was twenty-two when you was nee Reed, as the papers say. This bursting into bloom won't last with him. He's all ventilated with oldness and rectitude and decay. Old Mack's down with a case of Indian summer. He overlooked his bet when he was young, and now he's suing nature for the interest on the promissory note he took from Cupid instead of the cash. Rebosa, are you bent on having this marriage occur?"

"Why, sure I am," says she, oscillating the pansies on her hat, "and so is somebody else, I reckon."

"What time is it to take place?" I asks.

"At 6 o'clock," says she.

I made up my mind right away what to do. I'd save old Mack if I could. To have a good, seasoned, ineligible man like that turn chicken for a girl that hadn't quit eating slate pencils and buttoning in the back was more than I could look on with easiness.

"Rebosa," says I, earnest, drawing upon my display of knowledge concerning the feminine intuitions of reason, "ain't there a young man in Pina—a nice young man that you think a heap of?"

"Yep," said Rebosa, nodding her pansies. "Sure there is. What do you think? Gracious!"

"Does he like you?" I asks. "How does he stand in the matter?"

"Crazy," says Rebosa. "Ma has to wet down the front steps to keep him from sitting there all the time. But I guess that'll be all over after tonight," she winds up, with a sigh.

"Rebosa," says I, "you don't really experience any of this adoration called love for old Mack, do you?"

"Lord, no!" says the girl, shaking her head. "I think he's as dry as a lava bed. The idea!"

"Who is this young man that you like, Rebosa?" I inquires.

"It's Eddie Bayles," says she. "He clerks in Crosby's grocery. But he don't make but thirty-five a month. Ella Noakes was wild about him once."

"Old Mack tells me," I says, "that he's going to marry you at 6 o'clock this evening."

"That's the time," says she. "It's to be at our house."

"Rebosa," says I, "listen to me. If Eddie Bayles had a thousand dollars cash—a thousand dollars, mind you, would buy him a store of his own—if you and Eddie had that much to excuse matrimony on, would you consent to marry him this evening at 5 o'clock?"

The girl looks at me a minute, and I can see these inaudible cogitations going on inside of her, as women will.

"A thousand dollars?" says she. "Of course I would."

"Come on," says I. "We'll go and see Eddie."

We went up to Crosby's store and called Eddie outside. He looked to be estimable and freckled, and he had chills and fever when I made my proposition.

"At 5 o'clock," says he, "for a thousand dollars? Please don't wake me up! Well, you are the rich uncle retired from the spice business in India! I'll buy out old Crosby and run the store myself."

We went inside and got old man Crosby apart and explained it. I wrote my check for a thousand dollars and handed it to him. If Eddie and Rebosa married each other at 5 he was to turn the money over to them.

And then I gave 'em my blessing and went to wander in the wildwood for a season. I sat on a log and made cogitations on life and old age and the zodiac and the ways of women and all the disorder that goes with a lifetime. I passed myself congratulations that I had probably saved my old friend Mack from his attack of Indian summer. I knew when he got well of it and shed his infatuation and his patent leather shoes he would feel grateful. "To keep old Mack disinvolved," thinks I, "from relapses like this is worth more than a thousand dollars." And most of all I was glad that I'd made a study of women and wasn't to be deceived any by their means of conceit and evolution.

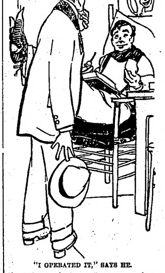
It must have been half past 5 when I got back home. I stepped in, and there sat old Mack on the back of his neck in his old clothes, with his blue socks on the window and the "History of Civilization" propped up on his knees.

"This don't look like getting ready for a wedding at 6," I says, to seem innocent.

"Oh," says Mack, reaching for his tobacco, "that was postponed back to 5 o'clock. They sent me a note saying the hour had been changed. It's all over now. What made you stay away so long, Andy?"

"You heard about the wedding?" I asks.

"I operated it," says he. "I told you I was justice of the peace. The preacher is off east to visit his folks, and I'm the only one in town that can perform the dispensations of marriage. I promised Eddie and Rebosa a month ago I'd marry 'em. He's a busy lad, and he'll have a grocery of his own some day."



"I OPERATED IT," SAYS HE.

"He will," says I.

"There was lots of women at the wedding," says Mack, smoking up. "But I didn't seem to get any ideas from 'em. I wish I was informed in the structure of their attainments like you said you was."

"That was two months ago," says I, reaching up for the banjo.

HEARST COMES OUT FOR TAFT

New York Editor Issues Remarkable Statement.

Washington, April 21.—William Randolph Hearst, former aspirant for the Democratic nomination for the presidency, issued a remarkable statement over his own signature, in which he unqualifiedly indorses Mr. Taft. In doing so he also criticises in the severest terms the administration of President Roosevelt and in so many words warns the American nation against a renewal of the political domination of the former president.

Mr. Hearst called at the White House. He spent a half hour with the president in the executive offices. Upon leaving Mr. Hearst said he had called merely to pay his respects to Mr. Taft, whom he said he admired. Later he issued his indorsement of the Taft administration.

ROOSEVELT IN PARIS

Ex-President Given Most Enthusiastic Welcome.

Paris, April 22.—No reigning sovereign ever received a more enthusiastic welcome to Paris than did Theodore Roosevelt, the former president of the United States. He reached here at 7:30 o'clock in the morning and was greeted by the representatives of the president of the republic and the cabinet, American Ambassador Bacon, M. Jusserand, the French ambassador at Washington, and a great concourse of people, which the cordon of troops surrounding the railway station had difficulty in holding in check.

After luncheon at the American embassy, Colonel Roosevelt called upon President Fallieres and Foreign Minister Pinchon, who immediately afterwards paid return visits to the embassy.

In the evening Mr. Roosevelt was given an ovation at the Comedie Francaise, where he made his first real public appearance in Paris, occupying the presidential box.

When Colonel Roosevelt entered the theater between acts, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel, Kermit and Ambassador and Mrs. Bacon, the house literally rose to its feet, volleys of applause bursting from the boxes, pit and galleries. For a full minute the colonel made no response, but as the demonstration continued he came forward and bowed his acknowledgments.

Famous Humorist Dies in His Home in Connecticut.

An Easy Grade.

Patronage, political, religious and social, has seen its best days in England, and it is becoming more and more difficult, St. James' Budget opines, to find material for such a story as follows:

At the end of a political campaign many years ago a young man who had worked valiantly for the successful candidate claimed a reward. The prize promised was a sergeantcy in the artillery. But the candidate found that he was unable to carry out his promise, inasmuch as it required six years' service to qualify a man for the rank. He became thoughtful, but finally saw light.

"Does it require six years to qualify a man for a lieutenancy?" he asked one who knew.

"Certainly not," was the reply.

"Well, make young Blank a lieutenant, then," said the candidate, with a sigh of relief.

Blank was thus made a lieutenant for no other reason than that he was not fit to be a sergeant.

Jones had just trod on the toe of an old gentleman while getting into the train car.

"I beg your pardon," he said.

"Hey? Speak louder. I'm a trifle deaf."

"I beg your pardon," repeated Jones.

"H'm! Peggy starving? Well, I'm sorry. Who's Peggy?"

Jones was red in the face now.

"You misunderstand, sir!" he shouted.

"Hey?"

"You misunderstood!"

Well?"

"I didn't say anything about Miss Underwood!" screamed Jones. "I begged your pardon, and you misunderstood."

"Oh, now I see!" said the old man sympathetically. "It is your Aunt Peggy who is starving Miss Underwood. Well, why don't you report the case to the police?"—Pearson's.

Not In Her Class.

While delivering an address at a woman's club an actress told the story of a young woman prominent in New York society who desired to achieve histrionic honors.

The manager to whom she confided her desire pointed out the inadvisability of the step she contemplated and added that even were he disposed to give her the chance she coveted he would still be in doubt whether her talents were such as to justify such action on his part.

"What is particularly desired by us at the present time," he said, "is the service of people who know the mechanics of the stage."

"Merciful heavens!" exclaimed the young woman, throwing up her hands. "You don't mean to tell me that it is necessary I should be on terms of intimacy with those dreadful stage hands?"—Lippincott's.

Proud of His Prospects.

Louis Pierre was one of a number of Canadian immigrants who settled at Fitzgerald, Ga. As he spoke both French and English he rapidly became a man of importance and was successively elected to the offices of city marshal, coroner and justice of the peace. A dispute arose between the French and English settlers as to the superiority of the United States over the Canadian provinces. They finally agreed to leave the decision to Judge Pierre, who handed down this decision:

"Yoost tage a loog at me. Ferst dey mage me constabul, den coroner, und now joostis of de pees. Soon I be ze governair, den senator, den president. I would be ze long time in Canadaire 'fore dey mage me queen."—Circle Magazine.

Wild honey as a change is an agreeable sweetmeat, but after a few days constantly partaking of it the European palate rejects it as nauseous and almost disgusting. Washington, March 15.—"I would diagnose Mr. Hill's present state of mind as what is popularly known as a 'grouch,'" said Director Newell of the reclamation service in commenting upon the Los Angeles interview of Louis W. ## Is St. Paul entitled to it?

Dar Reese, general manager of the political department of the Brewers' association, announces that he is going to beat the present clerk of the supreme court, and hand the place to one of his St. Paul henchmen Let us see if St. Paul really has not more coming from the state in the matter of political plums. Leaving out of account the big appropriations that it has had for the capital and the state fair and what it is to ask for approaches and public parks to be supported by the state, reliable information is to the effec that at present it has as favors from the state:

1 out of two U. S. senators.

2 out of five supreme court justices.

The supreme court reporter.

5 out of 5 secretaries to supreme court justices.

3 out of 6 places in the governor's office.

3 out of 9 places in secretary of state's office.

2 out of 8 places in treasurer's office.

5 out of 20 places in auditor's office

2 out of 2 places in forestry commissioner's office.

2 out of 6 places in attorney general's office.

3 out of 4 places with railroad and warehouse commission.

3 out of 8 places with grain inspection department.

3 out of 5 places with adjutant general.

15 out of 21 places with bank examiner.

8 out of 9 places with insurance commissioner.

3 out of 7 places with superintendent of public instruction.

8 out of 31 places in dairy and food department.

1 out of 4 places with librarian.

45 out of 50 places as caretakers at new capitol.

6 out of 12 places with tax commission.

It will be seen from these figures that while St. Paul has less than 10 per cent of the population of the state it has about 54 per cent of the offices listed in the blue book, and these offices include the best in the gift of the people. Perhaps when the delegates to the state convention are asked to endorse the plan of our friend Dar they will decide that the fact that he wants the place for a St. Paul man will hardly be a sufficient reason why a competent public servant like our neighbor Caswell should be singled out for defeat.

Flax not hard on Land if Grown in Rotation.

There is an opinion among farmers that flax is a hard crop on the soil and that it cannot profitably be grown on old land. Investigations in this line do not seem to bear out the opinion. Flax removes from the soil more nitrogen than the grain crops owing to the fact that it is rich in this element. It does not remove so much phosphoric acid and potash, however, and unless grown too fequently will not seriously deplete the fertility of any soil. At University Farm flax is used as a grain crop in a five year rotation; thus raising flax on the land once in five years, and seeding down to clover and timothy with the flax. The clover being a nitrogen gatherer replaces the nitrogen taken from the soil in the flax crop and eventually leaves the land as rich as in the begining. While the yields of flax in this particular rotation have not been large the crop is quite satisfactorily grown and with no apparent bad effects on the soil so far as the growth of other crops is concerned. This investigation warrants the statement that flax properly arranged in a five six or seven year rotation can be grown as safely as any other grain and where market conditions indicate that the flax crop will be profitable it can safely be included in the grain crops grown on our Minnesota farms.

St. Paul at the convention at which Dar plans his coup will ask for the nomination of a St. Paul man for United States senator (either Clapp or Kellogg), and a so for the nomination of Justice Jaggard of the supreme court; and perhaps for the endorsment of Justice O'Brien of the same body. If in addition to these demands it asks for the office of clerk of the supreme court to please Salome Dar, the country people may come to the conclusion that the bristles or the saint have crowded off his halo—Cambridge Independent.

Several of the Gary people have been to Canada and returned the first of the week, satisfied with the States The first party that went consisted of P. P. Overgaard, Knut Dekko and Jacob Hanson. They returned after traveling over a great part of western Canada and mostly where there was supposed but government land but could not find any thing they wanted Anton Hanson and Wm. Ostenvik were the others but they also returned a whole lot wiser. This is the same story over and over again. People will learn to see a good thing after they have seen the inferior and it might be a good thing for others who are not satisfied where they are, to see something else, and they would soon learn to know a good thing when they see it. —Gary Graphic.

Fertile Journal: The season for the advocating the timely use of the split log drag has again arrived. We note that a few of the farmers have been out already and the benefit resulting thereby is proof conclusive. It has been suggested, and believe the idea is a good one, that roadmasters allow the sum of seventy five cents, each time that the log drag is used on a mile or more of the road with the under standing that it is imperitive on the part of those so doing to perform the work whenever the highway requires it. Such a custom was established in a number of the road districts last year and good roads the whole season was the result. Where grades are established nothing more is required than the timely use of the log drag, and if every farmer would keep the highway along his farm property attended to, the good roads question would not require good roads conventions nor commercial clubs to instrumental in solving the problem.

Foundation of Successful Dairying.

Perhaps the first important factor to consider in dairying is the stable wherein the cattle are to be housed. Ecomony should first be considered, nevertheless this should not deprive the owner from establishing the proper conditions for the betterment of the herd to be housed there in, keeping in mind the necessity of plenty of sunlight, proper ventilation, cement floors, proper drainage, comortable ties etc.

As to the breed of cattle, this can best be determined by the contemplating purchaser, which fact he alone can determine from the standpoint of quanity or quality of milk reqnired by his market; some dairy breeds giving large quanities of milk with little butter fat, while others give less quanities of milk with more butter fat, but regardless of this point in view he should first consider the animal from the standpoint of health, ascertaining as to whether or not it is free from tuberculosis etc, and under no condition should any animal be introduced that is not in a perfectly healthy condition.

A very important part of dairying is to make it profitable all the year around. In order to be successful you must imitate in winter what nature provides in summer, such as permitting plenty of sunlight to enter the stables, as sunlight destroys germs warm quarters with plenty of fresh air, clean water with the chill taken from it; succulent feed, such as ensilage, clover or alfalfa hay, and a reasonable amount of other grains such as any farmer can raise on his farm.

In selecting and buying cattle select the most healthy looking animals and then dertermine postively with the tuberculin test as to whether or not they are free from tuberculosis. Select dairy cows that have every indication of milk producers but determine this postively by the use of the Babcock test and scale. Select a dairy breed of cattle whose product and offspring will bring the highest possible price in any market and you will surley be successful in dairying.

Are YouA Booster?

Says He is not a Banker.

Senator Ole O. Segeng of Otter Tail county, who made a sensational run for congress against Halvor Steerson two years ago, may try again to land a seat a seat in the national house. He is in Minneapolis today, and says it is not settled yet whether he will run for another term in the senate or for congress.

Senator Sageng also denied the rumor that he has left the ranks of the farmers to become president of a bank at Dalton. He is a stockholder in the state bank there, and there was talk of making him president of a new bank organized by farmers, but it has been decided not to start the new bank. So there is nothing to prevent the Sageng boomers in the fall campaign from singing their same old campaign song, "When Ole gets thru plowing." Insurgent and independent sentiment is stronger than ever in the Ninth district, Senator Sageng says.—Minneapolis Tribune.

COUNTY FAIR TO BE IMPROVED

Great Feature of the Northwestern Part of the State.

The Red Lake County Fair Association has decided to hold the next annual County Fair at Thief River Falls sometime in August. Arrangements are being made to secure many new and improved features and the Association promises to be the greatest success ever pulled off in the county.

Reports say that other fair associations of Northwestern Minnesota are not contemplating holding any fair this season so it is safe to say that our fair will be the Star Attraction in this part of the State and that it will be attended by a large number from distant points, and no pains or expense will be spared to make it surpass anything of its kind ever attempted in this section.

Watch for dates and posters later on. —Thief River Press.

REACHES CRISIS IN THE SENATE

Situation in Regard to Administration's Railroad Bill

FORCED TO ABANDON THEM

Regular Leaders Compelled to Drop Two Important Features of the Measure—Elimination of Section Seven Is a Victory for the Progressives, but Chief Credit Is Given to Senator Nelson.

Washington, May 3.—The situation in regard to the administration railway bill in the senate has reached a crisis and President Taft and the regular leaders have been obliged to abandon two important features of the measure. The sections to be dropped overboard are numbers 7 and 12, the former opening the way for traffic agreements between the roads and the latter legalizing mergers in cases where one road owns at least 50 per cent of the stock of another road.

Authorizing traffic agreements, the elimination of section 7, is a victory for the progressives, but chief credit is given Senator Nelson, who made a powerful argument against this provision, contending that if the item became a law it would break down the Sherman anti-trust act. A canvass of the senate had disclosed that the lines were tightly drawn and that section 7 could not be passed without the support of Senator Nelson. As Senator Nelson could not be won over to this proposition, it was decided to strike out sections 7 and 12.

The decision was not reached by the senate leaders until they had got President Taft on the long distance telephone at Pittsburg and informed him of the seriousness of the situation. It is understood that they told the president plainly that it was doubtful if the organization could muster the votes to carry these sections of the bill.

Later the Republican leaders called representatives of the progressive gentlemen into conference and asked if they had any proposition to offer on which the two factions might get together.

Declined to Concede Anything.

The progressives declined to concede anything, contending that they would have the votes to carry the proposed Cummins amendment to the bill. It was after this that the conservative leaders decided that sections 7 and 12 would have to be stricken from the bill.

It is likely that the elimination of these two sections will be followed by the dropping of sections 13, 14 and 15, which provided a plan for the regulation of the capitalization of railroad corporations. In regard to the three last named sections, however, the understanding is only tentative and nothing definite will be determined until the former sections have been disposed of.

The elimination of these five sections will do away with practically all of the features that have aroused the progressive opposition in the senate. Practically all that will be left of the bill will be the provision establishing an interstate commerce court, the section making it obligatory upon railroads to quote rates correctly to shippers, giving the interstate commerce commission power to initiate investigations on its own complaints and the section providing for a sixty-day suspension of rates pending an investigation by the commission into their reliability. Administration leaders contend that the features that will be left will greatly strengthen the present interstate commerce law and will, if enacted into a law, alone reflect considerable credit upon the Taft administration.

The elimination of the five sections will certainly clear the atmosphere in the senate considerably, and will increase the chances for reasonably early adjournment of congress.

ON FLATHEAD RESERVATION

Minnesota Man First to Draw a Claim.

Kalispell, Mont., May 3.—Patrick Quigley of Rosemount, Minn., was the first man to draw a claim on the Flathead Indian reservation at the opening here. His name was third, but owing to the absence of one and two, he got first choice and selected a quarter section near the government town of Big Arm, on the long bay that runs west of Wild Horse island.

The first half dozen locations were in the same vicinity, and all of those taken were in the region southwest of the lake, with the exception of one, which was in sage brush land, many miles west of the Pend Oreille river.

Woman Hangs Herself.

La Moure, N. D., May 3.—Using a large handkerchief, which she knotted about her neck and with one corner tied to a bedpost, Mrs. Augusta Schwarts, residing near Oaks Junction, committed suicide. She was mentally unbalanced, her condition being brought on by worry and physical exhaustion.

Why the Vases Were Valuable.

There's a china expert in one of the large department stores here who has an amusing little trade of his own on the side. It is nothing more or less than deciding the value of rare china or glass ware broken by careless servants or packing houses.

"It requires a lot of diplomacy, too," he said, with a laugh. "Not so very long ago I was called in to arbitrate between an irate householder and one of the big moving firms. She said with sobs that the movers had broken a pair of vases which she valued at $100. The movers, although willing to make restitution, considered the sum exorbitant. Well, I looked at the pieces and found the value about $25. I told the woman so quietly. 'I know that,' she sobbed, 'but they belonged to my mother-in-law, and my husband will think I made the men do it purposely unless I get a lot for them.'

"And it was not until the men had promised to prove they had done it accidentally that the lady was content to accept the $25."—Philadelphia Times.

Too Much For Her.

"The newest laws of hygiene," said a medical man, "can't be inculcated save among those who thoroughly understand them. Take the case of Dash.

"Dash, a rich country scientist, decided to encourage cremation among the villagers. So when the old ash man died Dash urged his widow to have the corpse cremated.

"'No, sir,' said the old woman, 'I'll not cremate him. I'll put him under the sod.'

"'But the cremation won't cost you a cent,' said Dash. 'I'll pay all the expenses if you'll let me have him cremated.'

"'Well, I agree,' said the old woman in a hesitating voice. 'I'm too poor not to agree, sir.' Then she gave Dash a puzzled look, half of pity, half of contempt.

"'But why do you do it, sir?' she said. 'Is it a hobby like golf or stamp collectin'?'"—Washington Star.

The Author's Grievance.

The magazine editor looked up.

"I want to protest, sir," said the caller, "against the way in which one of your reckless proofreaders mangled my copy. See here. The judge in the story looks down at the detective. 'Are you Pendleton King?' he asks, and the detective, removing his beard, replies, 'I am.' Now, just see what your proofreader made him say."

"The detective, removing his beard, replies, '1 a. m.'"

The unhappy author groaned.

"Where does that leave the readers?" he demanded.

The editor slowly smiled.

"At 1 a. m. they are naturally left in the dark," he replied. "Take an extra chapter and get them out of it."

The author suddenly laughed.

"Happy thought!" he cried. "I will."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Why They Smiled.

It was the Sabbath day, and the elder was shaving himself prior to church time when he made a slight cut with the razor on the extreme end of his nose. Calling his wife, he asked her if she had any court plaster.

"You will find some in my sewing basket," she said.

The elder soon had the cut covered. At church in assisting with the collection he noticed every one smile as he passed the plate. Very much annoyed, he asked one of his assistants if there was anything wrong with his appearance.

"I should say there was," answered the assistant. "What is that upon your nose?"

"Court plaster."

"No," said his friend; "it is the label from a reel of cotton. It says, 'Warranted 200 yards.'"—Pearson's.

Circus In Paris Streets.

Writing of street life in Paris, Wilhelm Feldmann says in the Welt Spiegel that the unique features are the gymnastic and acrobatic performances which one sees there. Wherever traffic will permit one may expect to see the street acrobats, men, women and children, spread their carpet, erect their apparatus and, to the accompaniment of a few instruments, sometimes only a drum, give their performances. Feats of strength, balancing and pyramid building are performed, and then one of the youngsters in tights collects the coppers from the crowd which usually congregates. This done, the performers throw long cloaks over their tights and move on with their wagon to the next halting place.

Maidens Sold by Auction.

A singular custom obtains to this day in some of the towns on the lower Rhine—namely, that of "selling" maidens at public auction. For nearly four centuries on Easter Monday—auction day—the town crier or clerk of St. Goar has called all the young people together and to the highest bidder sold the privilege of dancing with the chosen girl and her only during the entire year. The fees are put into the public poor box.

Legislator Accuses Senator Lorimer of Bribery.

Chicago, May 1.—According to a copyrighted story printed in the Chicago Tribune that newspaper has in its possession a sworn statement by Charles A. White, a member of the lower house of the Illinois legislature from the Forty-ninth district, charging that William Lorimer was elected to the United States senate last May by bribery and corruption.

White, who is a Democrat, in his statement says he received $1,000 for voting for Lorimer. This money, he alleges, was paid him by Lee O'Neil Browne, Democratic leader of the last legislature.

White also says that he received $900 more from the "jackpot," a term applied to an alleged general corruption fund distributed at the close of each session of the legislature. The $900, White alleges, was paid him by Robert E. Wilson, also a member of the legislature, in St. Louis.

SAYS GLAVIS LIED

Secretary Ballinger Contradicts Testimony of Accuser.

NOT GUILTY OF WRONGDOING

Defends His Action in Cunningham Coal Land Cases.

Washington, April 30.—Indignantly denying that he had been guilty of any wrongdoing, Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, made a bitter attack upon his critics while a witness before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee and characterized many of the sworn statements of his principal accuser, L. R. Glavis, as "willful and deliberate lies."

Led on by his attorney, Mr. Vertrees, the cabinet officer answered charges of those who would destroy him. He referred with apparent pride to Theodore Roosevelt's oft expressed high estimate of him, particularly the former president's statement when he was commissioner of the land office, that he had "secured a $25,000 man for $5,000."

He defended his conduct in connection with the Cunningham coal cases and stated he would take the same action today if he had the same record before him. After leaving the land office Mr. Ballinger said his only connection with the Cunningham case was in bringing East from Seattle an affidavit of Clarence Cunningham and presenting it to Secretary Garfield. For this service he said he had received $200 or $250, which he regarded as traveling expenses. He said that when he became secretary of the interior he refused to pass upon the claims in any way.

Attorney Vertrees still has to examine Mr. Ballinger on the subject of water power sites before turning him over to Mr. Brandeis, counsel for Glavis, and Mr. Pepper, attorney for Pinchot, for cross-examination.

The secretary's testimony dealt almost exclusively with the Glavis charges. At the next session it will embrace his attitude toward conservation and the beginning of the controversy with Forester Pinchot.

FEAT WITHOUT A PARALLEL

Weston's Wonderful Record In Walk Across the Continent.

New York, May 3.—Edward Payson Weston brought to a triumphant end his ocean to ocean walk. Cheered by thousands of enthusiastic New Yorkers he ascended the steps of the city hall, completing the transcontinental journey of 3,483 miles in seventy-seven walking days, a feat without parallel in the annals of pedestrianism.

The grizzled athlete was welcomed to his home city by Mayor Gaynor, who presented him with a purse of $400 hurriedly raised by a handful of his admirers in the last hours of his spectacular walk. This and the admiration and applause of the thousands who have followed his tramp since the day of its inception at Los Angeles on Feb. 1 last is all the reward that comes to the intrepid septagenarian after his two months and more of trudging through heat and cold across the continent.

The prince, presiding at a dinner as the king's representative, thanked Mr. Roosevelt for coming to their court and proposed his health, which was heartily responded to by those around the table, who included the leading personages in the kingdom, in court, parliamentary and scholarly life.

The colonel, in reply, said that he had received a cordial message from the king and thanked the prince for his hospitality. He then proposed a toast to the king and the royal family of Denmark.

ARTILLERY FOR PHILIPPINES

Twenty Companies to Be Sent to Man Fortifications.

New York, May 3.—The Eleventh and Eighteenth companies of coast artillery, now stationed at the coast defense forts in New York harbor, have been ordered to Manila, where they are to become a part of the Corregidor island fortifications. The men of the companies are known as the best coast artillerymen on the Atlantic and stand high among the crack marksmen of the world.

Twenty picked companies of coast artillery are to be sent to the Far East by the war department in pursuance of its determination to make the Corregidor fortifications as powerful as any in that section of the world. The New York men will be the first to go.

DR. HYDE SENT TO JAIL

Judge Latshaw Revokes Bond of Accused Man.

Kansas City, April 28.—Dr. B. C. Hyde's bond of $100,000 was revoked and he was placed in the county jail by the order of Judge Latshaw at the close of the criminal court session. This action means Dr. Hyde must remain in prison until he is declared innocent by a jury or is permitted by the court to furnish a new bond.

The action of the court was due to the nature of the evidence presented by the state against Dr. Hyde. Without notifying any one of his intention Judge Latshaw summoned County Marshal Joel B. Mayes into the courtroom after the jury had been removed and said:

"In view of the testimony thus far given in the trial the court is constrained to say that it amounts to a presumption that, under the law, deprives the defendant of the right to go on bond and he is hereby remanded to the custody of the marshal."

Four people testified that in September and December of last year Dr. Hyde purchased at Hugo Brecklein's drug store here twenty five-grain capsules of cyanide of potassium. When warned against using the poison Dr. Hyde said he wanted to kill dogs with it.

CAUSES HALF MILLION LOSS

Fire in Anheuser-Busch Brewing Plant at St. Louis.

St. Louis, April 28.—Fire of unknown origin caused a loss estimated at $530,000 in the mammoth plant of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing association and for a time threatened the entire establishment with destruction.

The bottling and storage houses were completely destroyed, together with some valuable paintings stored in the buildings.

BRITISH BUDGET NOW A LAW

Measure Which Caused Turmoil Receives Royal Assent.

London, April 30.—The budget, which has kept politics in a turmoil during the past year, has received the royal assent, thus becoming a law on the anniversary of its introduction.

The house of lords and the house of commons met in formal session, not more than a dozen members being present, to hear the royal assent read.

HIS INJURIES NOT SERIOUS

General Miles Sustains Broken Rib and Scalp Wound.

Washington, April 29.—General Nelson A Miles, U. S. A., retired, was thrown from a horse in Potomac park. One rib was broken, he received a slight scalp wound and was bruised somewhat on his shoulder and side.

It is not thought that he suffered any internal injuries or that the scalp wound will prove serious.

Causes Loss of $2,000,000.

Sand Point, Ida., April 30.—Fire entirely consumed the lumber yards of the Humbird Lumber company at this place. The loss aggregates $2,000,000 mostly covered by insurance.

STORY PROVES TO BE UNTRUE

Roosevelt Has Not Endorsed Taft Administration.

NOR HAS HE CONDEMNED IT

But It Is Said That He Will Endorse It After His Return Home and He Has Finished Taking Stock of Matters Politically—Former President Is Not a Candidate for Any Office.

Washington, May 3.—Publication of a story to the effect that President Taft had received several letters from former President Roosevelt, that he approved and would publicly endorse the Taft administration, that William Loeb, Jr., was to be the Roosevelt candidate for governor of New York, and that Roosevelt would not be a candidate for president in 1912, or for governor of New York, or for senator from New York, to succeed Senator Depew, shook up the political dry bones and had the effect, at least, of bringing out some reliable information regarding Roosevelt and his relations with Taft.

First of all it may be stated that President Taft has received no letters from Colonel Roosevelt. When those two notables parted prior to the Rooseveltian invasion of Darkest Africa it was with the distinct understanding that there would be no correspondence between them. There has been none.

Second, Roosevelt has not endorsed the Taft administration, nor has he condemned it. He will endorse it after his return home and he has finished taking stock of matters politically.

Third, William Loeb will have Colonel Roosevelt's earnest support in anything he may seek, and there is a fair probability that Loeb will seek the gubernatorial prize. Roosevelt wanted Loeb made secretary of the navy in the Taft cabinet, and he would go far and do much for his former secretary.

Not a Candidate for Any Office.

Fourth, Colonel Roosevelt is not a candidate for any office. It is his "earnest wish" not to be a candidate for the presidency two years hence. He has given no thought to the governorship and little to the senatorship so far as he himself is concerned. Political developments and exigencies may make him a presidential candidate in 1912, but he is not seeking to bring that about. There will be no fight between him and President Taft unless something unexpected happens. Colonel Roosevelt expects to continue an active force in public affairs and during the summer and fall he will make a number of speeches that will tend to demonstrate his interest in national issues. Notable among his speeches will be one at the conservation congress in St. Paul. He is now endeavoring to inform himself thoroughly as to what has transpired in the United States during his absence and he does not expect to have all the information he desires until some weeks after his return. Anybody with real information about what is going on will be a welcome visitor at Oyster Bay during the summer, for the former president is said to have a positive thirst for news and to be anxious to talk with everybody who has live views.

None of this information as to the former president's attitude has come in the form of letters, but men who have seen him in Europe have been in close touch with friends here and it may be taken as authentic.

MAKES PLEA FOR A UNION

Gompers Would Unite Farmers and Organized Labor.

St. Louis, May 3.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, made a strong plea for a union of farmers and organized labor in an address before the joint convention of farmers' unions.

He denied the report that he came here to organize a new political party, but declared that "when organized industrial workers and organized farmers will stand shoulder to shoulder in fighting for equality and justice, then will come a new dispensation and a new order of things.

"We will fight our battles together, the farmer and the laboring man, buying each other's products that bear the union label. I want to cement the unity between the wealth producers of the country, so that in the battle for justice, peace and equality before the law the farmer and the wage earner will be found shoulder to shoulder."

Dr. John Long of Madison, Wis., in an address urged that farmers store their goods and sell at a fixed price.

New Trial Denied.

Bismarck, N. D., May 3.—Peter Ildvedson, despite the fact that he appealed to the supreme court, will have to serve time in the county jail for violating the prohibition law in Minot. A decision has been handed down by that court denying his motion for a new trial. Ildvedson, according to the court's findings, conducted the blind pig in the basement of his hotel in Minot.

A PERFECTLY HARMLESS MAN.

How Honest Courage Forced Truth From a Liar.

By HOWARD FIELDING.

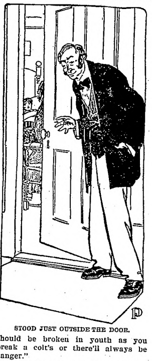
[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Rufus Burrell was a "poor relation" of the Wrights, and he and his wife were permanent, uninvited guests in the household.

"Rufus will never set the river afire," was Mr. Wright's only recorded criticism of his dependent cousin, "but there's no harm in him."

Although this pronouncement came to the ears of Rufus and excited his resentment, he was not in a position to dissect the character of his benefactor for the edification of the general public, but he would often shake his head over the case of Frank, the Wrights' only son and heir.

"Untamed, untamed!" he would say. "It's partly in the blood and partly in the bringing up. The human will should be broken in youth as you break a colt's or there'll always be danger."



STOOD JUST OUTSIDE THE DOOR.

It came to pass that Frank broke his leg while fishing a trout stream that ran among gigantic bowlders. The injury was so serious that at the first sight of it old Dr. Stevens, the family physician, was in two minds about an amputation. To make matters worse, Frank's father had not yet returned from a trip abroad, and his mother had been ill and was still a prisoner within the four corners of a bed.

Frank was carried to his room in the turret chamber, and there he remained some days, the prey of bodily pain and increasing mental distress.

Early of an afternoon Dr. Stevens came to Mrs. Wright's room. She knew that he had just seen her son, and her eyes spoke unutterable questions. They were steel gray eyes, softened with a touch of violet.

"Frank is doing very well," said the doctor and sat down beside the bed.

There was a brief silence. Mrs. Wright turned her head upon the pillow and glanced at Cousin Rufus, who had glided in at the heels of the doctor.

"Is Frank alone?" asked Mrs. Wright.

Rufus replied hastily:

"He wanted me to come straight down here so that I could tell him what the doctor says about you. He is anxious on your account, of course. He worries pretty near all the time"—

A warning glance from the doctor checked him, and he stopped so abruptly as to increase the effect of his indiscretion.

"I wish I might go to him," said Mrs. Wright. "It is very unfortunate."

"It's the strangest thing how bad luck follows that name in our family," said Mrs. Burrell, who had been uselessly and foolishly busy with medicine bottles that were on a table at the far side of the bed. "You know, doctor, we've had two Franks in the family."

"Yes," said the doctor. "I know all about it."

"I said over and over again when it was a question of picking a name for the boy that we ought not to call him Frank," she persisted. "Rufus was my choice."

"Well, there isn't much luck in that either," rejoined her husband.

The physician's face was darkening with a frown despite his best efforts to control it. Mrs. Wright perceived his trouble and smiled sadly.

"I would like to speak with the doctor alone," said she.

"Why, certainly; of course," responded the Burrells, and they departed, with a conscious dignity superior to offense.

In the hall without Rufus whispered to his wife: "She's going to ask him about Frank, and I think it's just as well that I should hear what he says. He ain't over and above confidential with me."

He tiptoed back and stood just outside the door, which was a little open.

"Will my son be crippled?" said Mrs. Wright. "Tell me exactly what you think."

"Oh, no; not crippled," answered the doctor. "No, indeed."

"But he may be lame?"

Stevens looked into the calm gray eyes for perhaps five seconds.

"A very, very little perhaps," he said. "I hope not, of course. If the injury had been treated at once I should say positively no."

She suddenly put up her hands to her eyes.

"We must have a nurse," she said. "I dare not leave Frank to the care of the servants and"—

She waved her hand toward the door through which the Burrells had vanished. It was perhaps fortunate for Rufus Burrell's self esteem that he could not see that gesture.

The invalid relaxed weakly upon her pillows, and tears started from her eyes.

"I wish that woman had not mentioned the name," she cried.

"Oh, mamma, nonsense!" said the doctor gently. "That's the silliest superstition. If you were well you wouldn't think of it for an instant."

"Thank heaven that Frank does not know the story," said she. "He must not."

The doctor rose from his chair, and Rufus Burrell, fearing discovery, stole softly away. Presently he went up to the turret chamber where Frank lay propped up on pillows, his leg helplessly incased.

The boy was perfectly motionless, staring at nothing.

"Why, what's the matter, Frank?" he asked. "You look positively fierce."

The boy slowly turned his glance upon Burrell. There was no other creature on the earth whom he so heartily despised, knowing him for a coward of all kinds and a conscienceless feeder upon charity.

"I was thinking that this peg of mine is in a bad way," said Frank. "I do not relish the idea of being a cripple. It is mighty hard luck, Cousin Rufus."

"It might be a good deal worse," responded Rufus.

The boy spent some minutes in somber meditation and then spoke so suddenly that his companion jumped.

"What did Cousin Martha mean by saying that my name was unlucky?"

"Did Mrs. Burrell say that? Well, well! When was it?"

"The day I was brought in here she was in the hall. I heard her say it to somebody—one of the servants, I suppose."

Rufus strove to restrain himself, but he lacked any real faculty of that kind. Every temptation, however small, was to him what cheese is to a mouse, and he was drawn toward it with a tremulous eagerness.

"I've heard of a cousin of mine whose name was the same," continued the boy, "but I don't know anything about him except that he used to play the violin."

"He went west," said Rufus. "He's dead now; died before you were born."

"What did he die of?"

"Hard luck," said Rufus, with a nervous grin.

The boy regarded him keenly for some seconds.

"Did he kill himself?" he demanded.

Rufus was much distressed. He wet his lips as if they were feverish and remained silent.

"Was he the only one?" said Frank. "You might as well tell me. I'll find out anyway."

"There was your great-uncle," answered Rufus after exhausting his meager resolution. "His name was Frank. But—but a good many people thought it was an accident."

"Thought what was an accident? Not the man's name, surely."

"No, no; hardly that." And Rufus emitted a strange cackle of laughter. "He was fooling with a revolver. That is, nobody ever really knew what he was doing. He was alone at the time, and when they found him"—

"He was dead," said the boy, "and that was the end of his troubles. Was he a cripple?"

Rufus stared and choked upon his words.

"How in thunder did you guess that?" he finally managed to say.

A thrill passed through the boy, and then slowly a cold horror settled upon his vitals.

"Well," he said at last, "I guess that's all that I need to know. If my mother is afraid that I can't stand it it must be pretty bad. No wonder I haven't been able to nail Dr. Stevens to the point. Does he think he'll have to cut my leg off by and by?"

At this Rufus uttered a voluble and scarcely coherent protest. It was all a mistake, he declared. The doctor thought there was no danger at all. He had said that the leg would be as good as new.

The man had no sincerity in him. Though he was trying to tell the truth or something near it, every word seemed part of a monstrous lie. Frank looked at him with a sense of loathing and nausea and then turned his glance away.

"Cousin Rufus," said he at last in a tone of singular quietude and steadiness, "will you go and open that top drawer in the little stand in the corner and get me a box that you'll find there?"

Rufus complied with this request and held up a box of black wood.

"Is this the one?" said he. "What's in it? It's locked."

"The key is in the pocket of those trousers. Thank you," taking the box and the key from his cousin's hands. "And now will you oblige me by closing that door? Is the other one shut—at the head of the stairs?"

"Why, yes," stammered Burrell, shutting the door. "But what of it? What's all this about?"

Frank did not reply. He had opened the box and was looking down upon the revolver which it contained. The lid prevented Rufus from seeing the contents of the box from his position at the foot of the bed, and, drawn by curiosity, he came round to the side. The next instant he was looking into the muzzle of the weapon, and beyond it he saw two steady, determined gray eyes.

The man sprang back with a hoarse cry and struck a table, which seemed to have arms and to hold him fast.

"Cousin Rufus," said the boy, "you know me, and you know my people. We are all alike, except you. We mean what we say, and we don't care what we do. That's the way we're born."

"Frank, Frank!" the man gabbled in abject terror. "Don't! You frighten me! It might go off by accident."

"I want to know what the doctor says about me," continued Frank—"what he really says. Understand? And as sure as there's a heaven above us and another place below—for liars—I'll shoot you if you lie to me. I'm down and done for, and I might as well do one good deed before I die."

"Good deed! Shoot me? That ain't what I'd call good. And your mother"—

"Don't mention her name. You've come here against her express wishes and done your miserable best to fill my head full of suicide. Don't name my mother. Answer my question."

Burrell's lips were blue with terror, and his face was gray.

"Upon my most sacred word of honor," he stammered, "the doctor says you're going to get well—just as well as ever you was in your life. And that's the truth."

"It is not!" said Frank, and his tone froze the other's heart. "I'll give you one more chance. Am I to be lame?"

It now flashed across Rufus that the way of safety lay in the avoidance of contradiction. He had tried the other route, and it had failed.

"Well, a little—maybe a little—the least bit in the world."

"That wasn't what he said, and I know it. It's not a bit like him. Tell me the truth. I'm desperate. Neither your life nor mine cuts any figure with me now. Speak out! Am I crippled?"

Rufus was in agony. He knew not what to say. The facts were nothing to him; escape was all.

"Well, he said you might be. He said you might be. That's how I understood him."

"He told that to my mother?"

"Yes. I was listening outside the door. Maybe I didn't rightly hear. She sent Martha and me out."

"For fear you'd tell me. Yes, I understand." He lowered the revolver and then suddenly raised it again. "I'm to be a cripple? That was the word?"

The sudden alternation of relief and fear was too much for Rufus. He was beyond all considerations except his own personal safety.

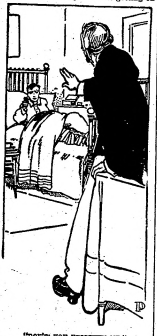
"Yes, a cripple. That's what he said."

"And my mother?"

"She burst right out crying," answered Rufus, with desperate invention.

Again the boy lowered the revolver, and this time he removed his eyes from Rufus.

"Well," said he, "if that's the fact I guess I can stand it. Better fellows than I am have had to and have lived their lives out bravely to the end, as I will. But this suspense was getting on my nerves, and I had to do something to come at the facts. You'll forgive me for frightening you, Cousin Rufus. The revolver is not loaded."



"DON'T; YOU FRIGHTEN ME."

He restored it to the box as he spoke.

"And you won't do a harm to yourself?" chattered Rufus.

"I? I die the death of a coward? No, sir! You risk me for that. When you're calm again, Cousin Rufus, go to my mother. Tell her I know the truth, but not how I found it out, and that I'm not in the slightest degree afraid or discouraged. I will do my work in the world with one leg just as well as I should have done it with two, and my father and my mother shall be proud of me."

Burrell fell on his knees beside the bed and burst into sobs.

"I was lying, Frank," he gulped. "I was—was just trying to say—anything that you'd believe. The doctor never told your mother that you'd be crippled."

"That's all right," said the boy cheerily. "I can stand it. So now if you'll put away the gun and give me a book I'll pass the time pleasantly enough till dinner."

Pasture for Hogs.

Growing pasture for hogs must be considered strictly as an investment for securing feed. Whether one puts $1.00 into the growing of pasture or whether he buys mill feeds with it, the object is the same.

At the Minnesota Experiment Station, it has been found that 1 acre of clover pasture will replace 1¼ to 1½ tons of shorts. Rape pastures did nearly as well. On this basis, no one can afford to get along without all the pasture that the hogs can possibly use It is safe to say that an acre of pasture can be had, fencing included, for from 5 to 7 dollars per acre, and it is easily worth from 20 to 30 dollars.

This does not represent all the difference. Hogs growing on pasture do very much better than when confined to a yard. undoubtedly the best pasture is clover. Other pastures that will do for summer use where clover cannot be had, are rape, rye, and various combinations of the spring cereals. Where possible, nothing is more satisfactory than to enclose from 5 to 10 acres that have been sown to clover; and pasture as much as possible to hogs and calves; early in June cut one-quarter or one-third of the area for hay, and at the regular haying time cut the balance. Immediately after cutting the first portion, the pigs will feed entirely on the green shoots that come up on it and will not disturb the balance, which may be made into hay. It is during the latter part of the summer that pastures for hogs usually run short and early in the summer that pastures are plentiful. In this scheme, all the extra pasture early in the summer is cut for hay, and the entire area later in the fall can be used for pasture, which brings about the required adjustment.

Moving Books.

Many persons complain that their books suffer in transit. The head of a moving company was interviewed on this subject, and he said: "After several years' experimenting with different things for the best conveyance of books I have found that the use of small boxes is by far the most advisable, the smaller the better. These boxes are easily secured for a few cents from your grocer. For storage purposes, where the matter is left to us, we move books in long, narrow boxes fitted with handles made especially for this purpose, but this is not necessary, of course, for the ordinary moving. Barrels simply ruin books, and large boxes filled with heavy volumes have caused more than one strike among our men. They are the clumsiest of all things to handle, as well as the heaviest."

Another mode of moving books is to tie them up in small bundles with stout wrapping paper and heavy twine, leaving enough of the twine to make a loop handle for lifting.—New Idea Woman's Magazine.

The Drummer's Sermon.

"Certainly I will make a few remarks," says the cigar salesman who, because of his solemn garb, has been mistaken for a man of the cloth. Ascending the platform, he says:

"Men are much like cigars. Often you cannot tell by the wrapper what the filler is. Sometimes a good old stogy is more popular than an imported celebrity. Some men are all right in the showcase on display, but are great disappointments when you get them home. No matter how fine a man is, eventually he meets his match. A two-fer often puts on as many airs as a fifty-center. Some men never get to the front at all except during campaigns. Some are very fancy outside and are selected for presents. Others have a rough exterior, but spread cheer and comfort about them because of what is inside. But all men, as all cigars, good or bad, two-fers, stogies or rich or poor, come to ashes at the last."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Origin of Commerce.

Commerce—the international traffic in goods as distinct from domestic traffic—was undoubtedly originated by the wonderful little people known in history as the Phoenicians. The "Yankees of antiquity," the Phoenicians, traded, with various peoples long before the other nations had crossed their respective frontiers. All along the shores of the Mediterranean and up the coast of the Atlantic as far north as the British isles their ships were to be found, leaving their manufactures and wonderful dyes and bringing back to Tyre tin, wool and such other articles as paid them to deal in. Creating the merchant marine so long ago that history gives us no account of it, the Phoenicians and their colonists, the Carthaginians, held it until it passed on to Greece and Rome and later along to the republics of modern Italy.—New York American.

STATE LAWS DECLARED VALID

Federal Supreme Court Rules Against Trusts.

Washington, May 3.—The hands of the states in their fight against "trusts" were upheld by the supreme court of the United States with telling effect.

The Association of Retail Lumber Dealers in Mississippi and Louisiana was disbanded by affirmance of the decree of the supreme court of Mississippi; the Standard Oil company of Kentucky was ousted from Tennessee by the approval of the decree of the supreme court of Tennessee. Both the state courts had held these combinations violated the anti-trust act of the respective states.

Immense Coal Yards Burn.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 3.—One hundred and fifty thousand tons of coal owned by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway company became ignited here through spontaneous combustion. The fuel was piled on wet ground in the company's yards and this is believed to have caused it to take fire. The loss is estimated at $500,000.

Orders Information Furnished.

Washington, May 3.—A resolution was introduced in the house by Representative Harrison (Dem., N. Y.) calling upon the president to furnish to the house the information bearing on the preparation of the attorney general's summary of the Glavis charges, which the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee refused to request from Mr. Wickersham

Our National Game.

"The raw American citizen," says Ellis Parker Butler in Success Magazine, "who takes his seat at a ball game for the first time feels as he would should he drop into the Metropolitan Opera House and find himself hearing Wagnerian opera from a seat in the midst of seasoned German opera goers. He hears a language that is new to him. The man at his right can tell more about the first baseman's peculiarities than he could tell about the manners of his own wife. The man at his left has trouble remembering the size collar he wears, but he can name every man in every club of both major leagues, tell the age of each, give the complete table of batting records offhand and recite, item by item, every feature of every game played on the home grounds during the last five years. That is why baseball is our national game. We love the game not because we are Chicagoans and the Chicago nine wins nor because we are Pittsburgers and the Pittsburg nine is winning, but because we are educated in baseball and like to see a good game played by the best men in their field that can be found in the world."

Her Father's Job.

The young daughter of a popular Chicago clergyman some time ago manifested a quick wit. Her father had gone on a brief holiday with a business parishioner and associate, and the talk of the children turned on the problem of which father needed the rare rest most sorely.

"Well, I think my father works the hardest," said little Miss Business, "and his work keeps him stirred up and anxious most of the time."

"Your father may work the hardest

Human Nature.

"Queer thing about men, isn't it?" remarked the thoughtful thinker.

"What's queer about 'em?" asked the innocent bystander.

"Why," rejoined the t. t., "a man will sit on a log half a day waiting for a fish to bite, but he won't wait three minutes for his wife to get ready for church."—Denver News.

Fifteen Hundred People Killed by Earthquake in Costa Rica.

IMMENSE NUMBER INJURED

Some of City's Most Imposing Buildings Destroyed.

San Jose, Costa Rica, May 9.—Up to noon Sunday 800 bodies had been taken from the ruins of the houses overthrown in the earthquake of last Wednesday evening at Cartago. The estimate of the dead places the number at 1,600, but it is possible this will be exceeded.

Large forces, which have gone to Cartago from San Jose and other points, are now engaged in the work of rescue, and even Sunday several living persons were taken from under the piles of stone and timbers where dwelling houses once stood.

The number of sick and injured cannot be counted, many of them having been removed to adjoining towns and villages, and since the disaster scores have died from their injuries.

Large fissures have opened up in Cartago province, which have given additional cause for alarm.

Ten thousand persons have been rendered homeless, and the severe rains and lack of food and drinking water are responsible for much suffering. It has been found impossible to provide shelter for the people, who are huddled together in a pitiable condition.

Nearly every public building in the city suffered. Those substantially constructed felt the force of the earthquake even more severely than the small residences. This was especially true of the magnificent court of justice, erected with funds contributed by Andrew Carnegie, and which was designed to be the home of a permanent tribunal where peaceful settlement of all disputes between Central and South American countries could be arranged.

PRESIDENT ON RAILROAD BILL

Says the Measure Retains Its Important Features.

Passaic, N. J., May 10.—In a speech before the Passaic board of trade here, in which he discussed the legislative situation at Washington, President Taft declared with a great deal of emphasis and amid an outburst of applause that the railroad bill has not been emasculated in any vital way and predicted that a satisfactory law could be passed.

"The bill," said the president, "still retains its important features and I am hopeful that within the next few weeks we shall see the passage of the bill in both houses, the adjustment of the differences between the two houses and its final enactment."

The president declared that the newspaper reports of the crippling of the railroad bill had been greatly exaggerated and he set out in detail the provisions of the measure as it now stands.

Going to Canada?

Mr. John Johnson returned yester from a trip through parts of Canada and northern Montana, and reports a general drought throughout that entire country, and the ground so dry and hard that it is impossible to do any breaking, which is no wonder when one stops to think that not a drop of rain has fallen there since last fall, and while we feel sorry for the thousands of new settlers that have flocked to that country within the last two years, yet they were going to a country where grain raising "to say the least" is most uncertain, due both to early forests, and drouht while it is true that north-west Minnesota, Red Lake County included has during the past five years experienced some very wet seasons that perhaps at times seemed discouraging which fact together with the glaring advertisements and misleading statements regarding Canada and Montana no doubt caused many to move without taking a second thought. Yet we predict that almost all would gladly return to good old Red Lake county, if they only could. In a colony like this, with the numbers of creameries we have, that last paid out nearly a half million dollars, where wild and tame grasses do well, to day nothing about all kinds of small grains. Any farmer that properly cultivates his land is certain of good returns. With roads properly worked as they should and will be, and the amount of drainage being done the time is not far distant when [illegible] upon return will find [illegible] they left and sold for 12 15.00 per acre, Lands in could [illegible] bought for less then from $30 00 to $50'00 per acre. Lands in central Northern Iowa that twenty years ago were called swamp have advanced from $10.00 to $125 per acre and remembering the old saying

"That history repeats itself it is well for any man contemplating moving to first sensible consider it" Any farmer, the owner of 160 acres will at the end of ten years, if any due to the natural advance in price of land, find himself as well to do man "A rolling stone gathers no moss".

Norman county farmers are naming their farms and having the names put on record with the register of deeds as provided by a law passed at the last session of the legislature. The following are some of the names that have been filed; River Side Farm, Sunny Side Farm, Eraas, Meadow Hill Farm, Fair View Farm, Hill Side Farm, Meadow Brook Farm etc. In our humble opioion 'tis a large improvement over the old form of R. D. no.s 1, 2, 3 etc.

WILL BE ALLOWED TO RUN

Local Saloons will sell Beer and wine. Treaty covers only Spiritious Liquors.

Sellers to Indians arrested in other states. Appeal to President.

The local saloon keepers will be allowed to sell malt liquors' wine and beer as long as no spiritious liquors are handled and no booze of any kind sold to indians. The following telegram was received here Monday forenoon from special agent Johnson;

Mr. H. J. Enderle; Your letter April. 21; All traffic in spiritious liquors in Plummer must cease on May tenth and all spiritious liquors must be removed outside the prohibited district Sales of wine and beer will not be interferred with except to Indians.

This was in answer to a letter asking if there was any provision in the treaty which prohibited the sale of nonspiritious liquors and if the term spiritiolls liquors included beer and wine as interpreted by law. Previous to this the following letter was received by Mr. Enderle.

Dear Sir: Your letter of April 21st 1910, reached this office during the absence of Chief Special Officer, William E. Johnson from the city. The receipt of the same has not been acknowledged earlier because he was expected back in the office before this date. I am enclosing herewith a copy of the closing order of April 9th, under the treaey of 1863, which relates to Plummer. As you will note the treaty mentioned covers only spiritious liquors, not malt liquors. All saloons, therefor, selling spiritious liquors should be closed and all such goods shipped out side of the closed territory by May 10. Your letter will come to the attention of Mr. Johnson upon his return. M. Russell, Financial clerk.

The order referred to contained the the following extract from the treaty called the treaty of 1863: "The laws of the United States now in force, or that may hereafter be enacted, prohibiting the introduction and sale of spiritious liqors in the Indian Country shall be in full force and effect thruout the country hereby ceded until other wise directed by Congress or the President of the United States.,.

The local saloon keepers as they were not sure just where they stood had shipped out all their stock- Johnson's telegram not being received until Monday, the day they were to close Mr. Suprey, the local depot agent had been notified by the company that no liquor shipments would be received, for Plummer after May 10 so the local thirst parlors were closed from Monday till Thursday when beer was hauled over from Red Lake Falls.

Word was received in Detroit the first of the week that the last order issued by Johnson, which included Plummer, had been stayed by the department of Indian Affairs at Washington and Johnson called in by the department when the whole matter will be thoroughly investigated. According to the reports the Detroit saloons did not therefor close but will await some further action by the department. The local places however intend to obey the order until the matter has been settled one way or the other, perfering not to take any risk so no spiritious liquors will be handled. Reports are that the liquor interests have hired attorneys to try and have the order vacated and are prepared to carry the matter to the U S. Supreme Court if necessary.

Since the enforcement of the law has been undertaken by the Interior Department arrests have been numerous in several states. In Dubuque Iowa, 11 saloon keepers were arrested and given jail sentences and have appealed their case to the President.

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the districts.

Ada, Minn., May 3rd., 1910.
A. L. Hanson.

If the present enthusiasm does not peter out before time, those not at Crookston the first of next month will likely feel. "kind-o-lonesome like".

There are many peculiar things in the world if we only had time to stop and think of them all. The price of rubbers and rubber boots, necessities of the "common people" keep going up because of the rubber used by the wealthier in their automobiles.

If John Lind is able to swing for W. S. Hammond all the votes that the papers, all over the state, Republicans included. give him credit for controling, Governor Eberhart had better let the fall campaign, "go hang", and take a trip to the south for his health.

If Taft succeeds in getteing his railroad bill passed he will evidently be handing the unappreciative dubbic an as large and unacceptable bouquet as the Tarriff Bill has proved to be. if the criticisms heard from svery side are just to look as if he eiruher 'dinen't five a dor' think that when the people can be easely controlled by a plentiful apprciation of hot air. His action in the Ballinger controverse would lead the thinking public to detter the fermer.

In Iowa they are just degining to learn the value of applying scentfic thought to journey becouse it has hitherto neglected to do so. The railroads offered to furnished a special train free, if the agriculture department would furnished speakers for them, to explain the most important points to the farmers. They did not think it would be of any use to do so on account of it being in the time of spring work but try it anyhow. The resuits were surprising to the most sanguine. The farmers left their work and flocked to the station to be there when the train pulled in. It was that way all over the state. They had just begun to relize tho rather late that scentific thought was necessary for successful farming in the future.

We regret that we have not as yet heard of any farmers club being organized in the vicinity of Plummer there is no man living, who is so brainy that he can not learn something from his neighbors. One brain cannot follow all different lines of thought, nor see all the ins and outs of a proposition that a hundred can.

Each and every one would be the gainer, from a few social gatherings now and then, and the discussion of questions of mutual interest. The agricultural department of the State University is going to furnish free to farmers clubs speakers on the different branches of farming. Men who have given a life time to the study of the sientific side of these questions It is not a thing to be taken advantage of.

Give the young and struggling a word of encouragement now and then. You would not leave those plants in your window boxes without water nor refuse to open the shutters that the sunlight may fall upon them, but you would leave some human flower to suffer from want of appreciation or the sunlight of encouragement. There are a few hardy souls that can struggle along on stony soil—shrubs that can wait for the dews and sunbeams, vines that climb without kindly training—but only a few. Utter the kind word when you can see that it is deserved.

The speech deilvered by our U. S. Senator Moses E. Clapp on the bill to create a court of Commerce was certainly an eye opener to a good many party leaders. We wish we could quote it in full but are obliged to give only the following fragments.

The Democratic party—and I say it in all kindness—was based upon the theory that leadership meant autocratic authority to dictate to the party itself. When the great crisis came in this country's history that party failed, not for want of ability not for want of patriotism, but because it was based upon a false theory namely, that the law of the government of party comes not from the people, but from so-called leadership. In that hour a party came into being, based upon the other doctrine, that leadership so called, simply reflects, represents, and responds to the will of that force in the background from which leadership springs. It was that principle that enabled the American people for a half a century to meet and fairly solve every problem in their history through the instrumentality of a party no wiser in its leadership, no more partriotic in its leadership than yours, but a party that in in the law of its autonomy recognized the relation of leadership and believed that leadership reflects and respondsto and is repsonsible to the force from which it springs. So long as the Repubiicans acted upon the principle, it fairly met and fairly solved the problems which confronted it. It was this relation which, coupled with their own great characters, made possible the achievements of a Lincoln and Roosevelt.———And I ask why is it that durnig fifty years in the history of a great Nation, with all the progress possible to a free people, one party has failed to contribute its policies, while the other party has succeeded. It is, as I have said in all fairness and candor, not for the want of ability in leadership, not for the want of integrity and patriotism in leadership, but the underlying difference in those fifty years between those two parties has been that the one party, true to the traditions of the preceding fifty years, insisted that the law of the party was the law of authority from leader to party, and the other party, was based upon and until last summer pursued the principle that leadership comes form the force that is to be led and is not autocratic power to be exercised by leadership.

In no other way can you explain the fact that in those fifty years, the momentous years in this world's history, save that era which gave to the world that great force in history, Christanity—that in those fifty momentous years one party was able fairy well to solve the Nation's problems, while the other failed in almost every attempt. If it is humor it is the grim humor of disaster, of defeat, of inefficiency to meet public questions in that period because of the false theory that leadership is autocratic authority to hand down its policies and its purposes to the forces which it leads.

Harmony will come to the Republican party not by the agreement of a few men in Congress. The Republican party does not and never reside in the White House, except in a representative capacity. The Republican party does not and never did reside in Congress, except in a representative capacity. It lives in the hearts and purposes of the American people, and harmony will come whenever we return to the old theory of recognizing the voice of the party.

You take this very bill, Mr. President, and if every Republican Senator in this Chamber had accepted that bill with his eyes shut and his voice silent, do you suppose it would have saved the party from the effects of the want of harmony? Mr. President we hear talk of harmony as though half a dozen men in this chamber were all there was of this situation. If that is true, then why in heaven's name must a great Cabinet officer go forth to deal with half a dozen Members of this Senate? It is not a half a dozen or a dozen Members of the Senate, but we are wasting our time if we are not here simply as reflecting the purpose and the will of our constituents. I need make no argument upon that question. The ominous mutterings from States supposed a few months ago to be removed fom the scenes of strife constitutes a warning that back of this movement there is the purpose and the thought of an intelligent, thinking public

Talk about harmonizing here? If ever man officially connected with this government to-day was to pass to his reward, the two forces that are contending here (and of which the men here are but representatives) would still contend, and they will contend until one force or the other shall triumph, until either that principle, which the American people stood for and of which Mr. Roosevelt was the accentuation, that this Government is greater than any creature under the government shall prevail or until the American people surrender to abject slavery the independence of the markt place.

FOREST FIRES IN MINNESOTA

Threaten Towns in Northern Part of State.

ONLY SAVED BY HARD WORK

Nickerson and Duquette in Danger of Destruction—Fires Are Raging in the Timber Between Two Harbors and the Vermillion Range—Large Tracts of Timber in Wisconsin Threatened by the Flames.

Duluth, May 10.—Dangerous forest fires are sweeping from the direction of Colbyville and Arnold towards the lake and the pumping station with alarming rapidity.

The situation became so alarming that calls for assistance were sent to the Duluth fire department from the pumping station, which was for a time in danger from the flames. The Lakeside department, being nearest to the conflagration, was immediately dispatched to the scene.

The pumping station was quite seriously threatened, as near as can be learned from the reports which have reached the city. It is of concrete and brick construction and a wide fire line was placed around it.

Huge volumes of heavy black smoke can be seen rolling over the lake in that vicinity from the city. The flames are not visible, but the seriousness of the fire is apparent to the observer.

The woods are dry as tinder, affording excellent fuel for the flames. The settlers and landholders are praying for rain, but the prospects are not very encouraging.

The Iron Range passenger train had difficulty in getting through. The flames were all about the train and the crew and passengers were doubtful if the train would be able to run the gauntlet in safety. During a lull in the wind they opened the throttle wide and made it without serious damage.

The superintendent at the pumping station stated over the telephone that the fire is all about them, being only a few hundred feet away. He said that the wind was very changeable, shifting constantly from one direction to another. The firemen are easily protecting the pumping station.

Assuming Alarming Proportions.

Forest fires on the range as assuming alarming proportions, and the gravest fears are entertained for the safety of settlers in isolated sections. In the vicinity of the Duluth and Iron Range road beyond French river the flames are making unopposed progress. There is practically no standing pine remaining in that section, but much valuable cedar and spruce is being destroyed. The fires are even worse between Two Harbors and the Vermillion range. Along the Gooseberry river, twelve miles from Two Harbors, the flames have done considerable damage. Fear is felt for the Hines tract of pine on the Gooseberry.

At Kerrick, Minn., forest fires are raging and have been spreading for the past week. Unless rain comes soon there is danger of much loss. Some of these fires are believed to have been started by locomotive sparks, while others were started by settlers to burn brush and down timber from their lands.

Nickerson and Duquette have been in danger, and it was only by hard work that the towns were saved. The strong northwest wind drove the flames upon Nickerson. A special call for help was promptly answered, and the village was saved.

The Lang dwelling and barn, a mile from Kerrick, and buildings on the Morris Peterson place were destroyed.

Forest fires now raging in Bayfield county, Wis., are threatening the large tracts of timber of the Edward Hines Lumber company. The fire is now into the timber, which is the largest tract of standing pine in the state.

Forest fires on the Upper Peninsula of Michigan are spreading, and the town of Alston, thirty miles from Houghton, is surrounded by fire and may be wiped out. The residents are all fighting the flames. Three houses have already burned.

Blow Proves Fatal.

Glasgow, Mont., May 10.—Charles Gunnsey, a steamboat engineer, died in this city as a result of a fight in Mondak a little over a month ago. While in Mondak March 24 he got into a row with Pete Cringewa, a Japanese storekeeper, and was hit on the head with a club and his skull crushed.

Boy Hunter Killed.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 10.—William Horner of Blanchardville, Wis., aged fourteen years, while creeping upon a flock of ducks, accidentally discharged the gun he was dragging and was killed. The boy had been working for an uncle near Ellendale, N. D., forty miles north of here.

Child Burned to Death.

Napoleon, N. D., May 10.—The charred remains of their seven-year old daughter were found by Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard Kasman in the ashes of a burned straw pile near their home in this county. The child had been out in the field taking lunch to her father.

Over One Hundred Trapped in Alabama Colliery.

Palos, Ala., May 7.—Eight bodies were removed from the ill fated mine No. 3 of the Palos Coal and Coke company, where between 100 and 150 miners were entrapped by an explosion. The condition of the bodies indicated that death was instantaneous.

Doubt is expressed of finding any of the others alive.

After the removal of the bodies it was found necessary to send a force of miners into the workings to strengthen the brattices and to prevent caveins, which were frequent during the night. This and the presence of after damp delayed the work of rescue for several hours.

In the meantime the dead had been removed to a temporary morgue near the workings and were slowly identified. Several of the bodies were lacerated and all were burned about the head and upper part of the body. Among those identified were C. H. Stansberry, assistant mine foreman.

EDWARD VII., LATE KING OF ENGLAND

Character Study of the Distinguished Sovereign Who Was Europe's First Diplomat and Head of the Greatest Empire In History of the World.

An Eminently Safe Man With Sound Principles and Attractive Human Qualities--Beloved by the British Masses--A Statesmanlike Peacemaker.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

PERHAPS the chief trait of King Edward VII. was tact. He was the master of form, of fashion, of etiquette. He was an embodiment of that much misused word "gentleman," an incarnation of the conventional and the correct. He was high priest of the gospel of custom. With him courtesy was a fine art and usage was the highest authority. While his life knew many scandals, they were so decorous that they were forgiven. He was the gentleman even in his vices. As Prince of Wales his role was a difficult one—difficult in the sense that, while he was next to the throne and often called upon to represent the throne, yet he must never overstep the bounds and assume any of the prerogatives of the crown. The universal testimony is that he was letter perfect in the role. As king he showed another aspect of the same quality. He was his own foreign minister, the first diplomat of Europe. Here he was in a larger field of form, the etiquette of nations. It was the one field which by habit and training he was best fitted to fill. His nice observance of the proprieties extended to internal affairs. While he was king in fact as well as name, he never went beyond the close limits that free England had set about his office. To put it in a word, he never made breaks.

Despite his punctilious regard for the formalities, it is said that the late king personally disliked fuss and feathers. If so he managed to conceal the fact most effectually. He probably had more fuss and feathers than any other man on earth, except the kaiser. If he did not enjoy that sort of thing he was both a great martyr and a great actor. It does seem rather amusing that modern up to date nations rig out their kings in plumes and glitter and ribbons like a schoolgirl or a butler, but perhaps it is no more amusing than the fact that they have kings at all. Maybe the two things go together and are in keeping. But it is not surprising that the gorge of a full grown man should rise at it. So if Edward did not like fuss and feathers the fact is much to his credit.

THE LATE KING EDWARD VII.

His Genial Popularity.

Another thing is to be said in his favor. Aside from his office, he was popular as a man. This was true when he was Prince of Wales and true when he was king. It was frequently stated that if Great Britain were a republic and plain Albert Edward Wettin offered himself as an independent candidate for the presidency he would have been elected by an immense majority. An amusing though touching illustration of his general popularity comes to mind. An Australian gentleman was once in London and, observing a carriage with two mounted policemen in front, asked his own bus driver as to what personage was inside the closed carriage.

"What! He?" was the reply. "Dontcher know? That's 'is most gryshus!"

"What! The king?"

"Yuss; that's 'im, right enough."

Surprise was expressed that the escort was so small. How were these two policemen to protect the king in case of a row? The driver laughed.

"Why, 'oo's goin' to 'urt 'im, mister? There ain't no one in London 'ud touch a 'air of 'is 'ead. 'E's a good bloke, 'e is."

This expressed the feeling of the man in the street, who in the case of danger [illegible] have been his sovereign's volunteer bodyguard. It was the conviction that Edward was "a good bloke," which was felt not only throughout Great Britain and her colonies, but in practically all lands, that gave him his hold on the heart of the world. His efforts to end the Boer war and magnanimous treatment of the burghers, his friendship for peace and diplomatic alliances with other European nations looking to a prevention of war, his aloofness from factionism and party, his personal leaning toward democracy, also toward advancement and humanitarian measures, his kindly attitude to Ireland and furtherance of liberal concessions in her behalf, his gentlemanly and considerate bearing, his exploits as a hunter of big game, his success as a farmer and raiser of prize stock, his popularity among the tenants on his estates, his social qualities and reputation as a good fellow and sport, his model qualities as a husband and father, his common sense and tactful deportment, the universal good will left him as a legacy by his mother—all these, coupled with the fact that he was head of the greatest empire in history, combined to give Edward VII. an enviable place in the world's esteem.

The World's First Gentleman.

He was not a great man perhaps, not a genius in any sense of the word, not a mighty captain, not a reformer or a leader of new departures, but an eminently safe man, with sound principles, good impulses and attractive human qualities. He will probably not occupy a large place in the world's history, but will be remembered as a likable man in spite of his crown. So long as there must be kings it is a pity there are not more of his type. Perhaps the best thing about him was that he could efface himself, knew his place and kept it, was never afflicted with that disease sometimes observed among rulers—a swelled head. He had enough poise to refrain from making himself a laughingstock. He never took himself too seriously. He was sane, wise and comfortable, an enlarged edition of a good natured English squire. While he was not a mere figurehead, neither did he make himself a nuisance. He did not meddle with things that did not concern him, avoided the ridiculous attitude of trying to pose as a universal overseer. Even before he became king he was generally acclaimed as the world's first gentleman, and it was his personal quality quite as much as his heirship to the throne that gave him this primacy.

Edward VII. was born in Buckingham palace Nov. 9, 1841. "Is it a boy?" asked the Duke of Wellington of the nurse. "It's a prince, your grace," answered the indignant woman. It was a distinction that would be appreciated by a toady. The world is thankful for the fact that it was a boy as well as a prince and that he grew up to be a man as well as a king.

In the home circle the future king was called Bertie. He showed no startling originality either in youth or afterward. In all his long life he said nothing that the world considered worth quoting or remembering. While he had titles, offices and distinctions by the score, the only things he ever actually achieved by his own efforts were the winning of the Derby and the many prizes he took for blooded stock reared on his estate at Sandringham. Measured from the intellectual side, his life was sufficiently commonplace. Yet he was finely educated, had the most distinguished private tutors and finished his university course at Oxford. He spoke several languages with ease and in his day was perhaps the best royal linguist in Europe. The gift of many tongues is a social accomplishment, and in anything that pertained to social life he was at home.

The first really important event in Edward's life was his visit to the United States and Canada in 1860. While in Washington he stayed with President Buchanan at the White House. On a visit to Mount Vernon he planted a chestnut tree by the side of the grave of Washington, the man who had whipped the prince's royal ancestor, George III. There is evidence that Albert Edward did not care much for King George, however, since he was inordinately fond of Thackeray, who lashed the four Georges with a whip as cutting as that of Junius. It is not on record that this trip to the United States had anything to do with Queen Victoria's friendship for the north during the civil war, yet it is by no means impossible that her mind was unconsciously influenced by talks with her eldest son and prospective successor. The very fact that he had been here and knew the situation at first hand would cause her to seek light from him. Americans may therefore owe the dead king more than they know.

Loyal to His Friends.

One of the most admirable traits of the king was his loyalty to his friends. It mattered not what fate overtook them, his hand was open to them still. There is the well known case of the officer in the Boer war who came home practically disgraced, but who found no change in his former crony and then royal master. As Prince of Wales Edward had not access to state secrets, but this was more than made up to him by his freedom to form friendships with leading men all over Europe. One of the strangest and closest of these associations was with Gambetta, the republican leader of France. It was one of the most conspicuous intimacies of the prince's life, but was by no means the only indication of his liberal tendencies.

There must have been a peculiar charm about the person and manners of this king that gave him such sustained popularity throughout life, a popularity that enabled him to set the fashions for the English speaking world. So universal was the liking for him that even the scandals blazoned abroad were unable to shake it. Today about all the world remembers of the most notorious one of these episodes is the phrase coined concerning his efforts to protect the name of a woman. "He perjured himself like a gentleman."

Another charming trait of his character was his loyalty to his mother. Before his accession he uniformly forbade the drinking of his health standing, remarking that he was only a subject. He went often to the theater, but refused to have his coming or going noticed or announced. He also insisted on paying for his boxes and ordered that if he were late the play should not wait for him. The same thoughtfulness for others was shown in other ways. Lord Savile, who often entertained the king, was once asked about his royal guest.

"My dear sir," he replied, "you would never know that he is other than an ordinary guest. He has the utmost consideration for every one, down to the servants, and nothing annoys him more than to think he has put any one out of the way. He falls in with any suggestions made for his entertainment, and I have in my time had many guests who occasioned me considerably more trouble."

His Marriage a Love Match.

The marriage of the Prince of Wales to Alexandra of Denmark was due to a love match. One of the incidents still remembered was the presentation of a ring to the bride, the setting of which was made of precious stones whose initial letters spelled his home name, "Bertie." They were a beryl, an emerald, a ruby, a turquoise, a jacinth and a second emerald. In his public treatment of his wife and sons the king always showed the same nice observance of the proprieties and conventions that marked all the other affairs of his life.

That this courtesy was natural and not assumed is revealed by an old story of a fire and a reporter. The Prince of Wales one day went to a fire with the Duke of Sutherland. Wanting to know the details, he asked them of a newspaper man. At the end of the interview he handed the scribe a cigar. Tearing a sheet out of his notebook, the reporter carefully wrapped this up and put it in his pocket. "Don't you smoke?" asked the prince. "Oh, yes, your royal highness," answered the reporter, "but I am not likely ever to get another cigar from the Prince of Wales." The prince laughed and, once more producing his cigar case, said, "You had better have another one—this time to smoke."

King Edward was about five feet eight inches tall and weighed in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. He was not especially devoted to athletics or exercise, but did more or less hunting and spent as much time as possible on his farm at Sandringham. He was an inveterate smoker, was fond of midnight dinners and liked the pleasures and comforts of life.

In the field of statesmanship his most conspicuous activity was in the line of composing difficulties. He was ever patching up quarrels among his friends and after he came to the throne enlarged his pacific efforts to the courts of Europe. In future, therefore, he will probably be best remembered as the peacemaker.

KING GEORGE THE FIFTH

Life Story of "the Sailor Prince" Who Has Become Monarch of the British Empire -- A Mischievous Lad and Great Lover of the Sea.

Devoted to All Outdoor Sports -- Exceptionally Able Business Man. Practical Expert on Airships--The Four Georges Who Preceded Him.

By WALTON WILLIAMS.

"THE king is dead! Long live the king!" The cry which has been heard at intervals in England for more than a thousand years, is heard once more. The kings come and go, but the kingship lives on. Of old it was a title of almost terrifying power, the complete sovereignty of a nation concentrated in one man. Now it is little more than a name. Yet tradition, social prestige and some vestiges of political power make it mighty even yet. The idea of royalty yet dominates the European mind. The king may be shorn of many of his prerogatives, but he is still the king.

Edward VII., kindly and tactful gentleman, fondly named "the first gentleman of Europe," was known of all men. George V. is scarcely known by his own subjects. He is forty-five years old and, as he comes of a long lived family, should have an extended reign. The title he takes is not particularly promising, as the other royal Georges were a trifle ill starred. Thackeray reviewed them with biting sarcasm, nor have other writers been more sparing. George I., commonplace in mind and appearance, touched by some scandals of bribery and mistresses, advised to abdicate at the bursting of the south sea bubble, which was laid at his door, reigned from 1714 to 1727. George II., even more mediocre and obstinate than his father and of equally licentious life, still knew enough to choose good ministers. He carried the reign forward to 1760. George III., on the throne for sixty years, of more ability but of more obstinacy than his grandfather, George III. is chiefly remembered as the king who lost America to England. George IV. reigned but ten years, yet had more matrimonial misfortunes than all the other Georges and gave England all of that royal name she could stomach. That was eighty years ago, and the world can forget much in eighty years. Let us hope that George V. will redeem the name. He certainly cannot make it worse, not only because of the supreme badness of the other Georges, but because the people of England now rule the realm and the king has little opportunity for evil even if he had the disposition to be bad.

KING GEORGE V.

A Second Son.

The new king, whose full name is George Frederick Ernest Albert, is the second son of King Edward and Queen Alexandra. Born on June 3, 1865, he came next in line of succession through the death on Jan. 14, 1892, of his elder brother, Albert Victor Christian Edward.

As a lad the king had a very mischievous disposition, and his many pranks led his father to send him to sea "to tone him down a bit." He spent some years before the mast, got into a troublesome love affair, but finally emerged with serious habits and a reputation that has since clung to him of "the sailor prince of the British isles."

The chief events of King George's life thus far have been his marriage and his trip around the world. On July 6, 1893, he was united to Princess Victoria Mary of Teck, popularly known as "Princess May," the granddaughter of the first Duke of Cambridge, Queen Victoria's uncle, a charming and cultured woman, who is none the less popular in England because she is the first English born wife of an English king since the time of James II.

They have six children, of whom the eldest, Prince Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, will some day, if he lives, be king of England.

As William Howard Taft is the greatest traveler among American presidents, so George V. is the greatest traveler among English sovereigns. His Bacchante cruise represented no fewer than 54,679 miles.

During his colonial tour six years ago he and the queen traveled over 45,000 miles, of which 33,000 were by sea, and in all those journeys, with the exception of Port Said, he never set foot on any land where the union jack did not fly.

Again, on his famous trip to India the prince traveled 8,807 miles by railway alone. He spent twenty-eight nights in the train and delivered fifty speeches and performed a multitude of ceremonies.

Canada is better acquainted with the personality of King George than she was with that of King Edward, who only once visited the Dominion.

In the seven months during which he was away from home in 1901 the new king traveled 40,000 miles by water and many hundreds of miles on land, a total distance of more than twice around the world.

He left the country on his long tour as the Duke of Cornwall and York. A few days after his return on Nov. 8, 1901, he was given the title of Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester. In 1905 he paid a brief visit to India.

The king is devoted to outdoor sports and is regarded as one of the best tennis players in England. He also likes to play whist with members of his family and intimate friends.

During the last ten or fifteen years he has spent most of his time at home, visiting his estates and superintending the education of his children.

A Sedentary Life.

For that time his life has been called most unexciting, in marked contrast to that of his father. The old king, said a recent correspondent, "weighted with the crown, rushes up and down the land in motorcars and special trains, attending christenings, race meetings, receptions, garden parties, semistate and state functions morning, noon and night.

"The son, whose only trouble seems to be the riddle of killing time, sits in his room at Marlborough House pasting stamps into an album or reading a book. He does absolutely nothing and does it with such a masterly inactivity as to rouse one almost to enthusiasm at the idea of how successfully this proud prince manages to while away his golden days.

"The prince, the princess and the rest of the family are up betimes, which means about 8 o'clock in the morning. There is the ordinary breakfast of a well to do English family, and the head of it beguiles the intervals between bacon and eggs with the morning papers. After breakfast there are charity letters to dictate to a secretary, for even the Prince of Wales is not exempt from the incessant stream of begging letters and appeals from charitable institutions which weight down the postman's bag at every delivery.

"Having completed this, the heaviest task of the day, the prince goes for a walk in St. James' park or Hyde park, accompanied by one of his equerries who live in Marlborough House, and when this constitutional is over it is time to go back and prepare for luncheon. Sometimes there is a guest, but more often the meal is taken only in the company of one of the equerries and a lady of the princess' household. Luncheon over, there must be some stamps to sort. The prince's stamp collection is the finest in the world and is said to be worth more than $500,000.

"Then comes another walk in the park and then a book to read until tea time, when there are generally one or two visitors. Dinner, at half past 8 o'clock p. m., is quite informal, with a guest or two only here and there. If the royal couple go to the theater, dinner is set for 7, but as they do not often go to the theater the evening is spent quietly at home, the prince reading a book and the princess doing some useful fancy work with the needle.

"Bed at half past 10 o'clock p. m. Is this not truly a picture of beautiful domestic bliss? Nevertheless I am quite certain that when the Prince of Wales comes into his own he will surprise the British people by his mental grasp of affairs, his wide sympathy with all classes of the people and his inherited capacity for governing."

Growth of Popularity.

Lately, however, the prince, at the express command of his father, had taken a more active part in public affairs. With this increased activity there came an increase—or perhaps a more correct word would be a growth—of popularity, which probably pleased no one more than King Edward.

Like his father, the new king is not a good speaker. But he can say what he wishes to say, and, if he speaks tersely, it is always to the point, while he is an exceptionally able man of business. So far as can be judged, the new king's sympathies are not so wide as those of his father, but his interests are multifarious.

He is a practical expert on airships, and, of course, his naval knowledge is profound. Probably no one knows as much about hospital management as he does, and his speech some years ago about the Brussels exhibition won marked notice not only in England, but on the continent.

By inclination King George's tastes are sedentary, except that he is fond of shooting, but almost daily he rides for an hour.

The Sailor King.

Since he was called "the sailor prince," George V. will doubtless become known as "the sailor king."

He is a great lover of the sea, and he has often said that had he not been of royal blood he would have entered the navy and by hook or by crook have risen to the post of admiral. When as a youngster in 1877, a few days short of twelve years of age, he stepped aboard the Britannia at Dartmouth for a naval training he undertook exactly the same work as his fellow cadets. And later, when he passed into the navy and served with various warships in the seven seas, he spared himself no task that fell to the lot of others. Indeed, he frequently undertook duties which did not come within his sphere. "I wanted to learn my profession," he said, "and one doesn't become a sailor by walking up and down deck."

VICTORIA MARY, THE NEW QUEEN.

An English critic writing for an American paper once penned a sketch of the new king.

"Intellectually," the critic said, "he is a typical Guelph. He has not inherited his father's quick moving mind. His speeches are rather terrible performances to read or listen to. He has never quite found his platform legs. To do him justice, he had no desire to find them: he would far rather be on a quarterdeck. But he cannot escape the penalties of his position. Hardly a week goes by without his being obliged to deliver a public speech on some subject of which he probably knows nothing—of which, at any rate, he cannot possibly know more than the alphabet. A clever man would get used to such ordeals, would even learn how to emerge from them triumphantly. But fifteen years at sea is not a good preparation for this kind of work, and the prince gets no further than a few amiable commonplaces, awkwardly expressed. Very possibly the English public would prefer not to have it otherwise. A brilliant prince would strike a great many Englishmen as improper."

Insists Upon a Denial.

There was a considerable stir when the newspapers appeared, quoting Mr. Roosevelt as a warm supporter of Knudson's policy. Mr. Roosevelt summoned Knudson and insisted emphatically that he issue a denial, and he himself wrote a letter to the same effect. The opposition papers are now attacking the ex-premier.

The Aftenposten says:

"From the denial which Mr. Gunnar Knudson was compelled by Mr. Roosevelt to make, it appears that at the conversation in question Mr. Roosevelt was thinking of his own American policy, while Mr. Knudson was speaking of his Norwegian policy. We will no dwell upon the want of discretion shown by Mr. Knudson in trying to involve a guest of the nation in our own internal political disputes and trying to turn him to political account. It is an absolutely unprecedented phenomenon that a man holding a position like Theodore Roosevelt should during the visit he paid us be compelled to issue a denial of what the late premier stated regarding his conversation with him."

The man was neither neatly nor well dressed. He was plainly a tramp, begging, and had just turned away from one passerby when he saw a young man walking briskly toward him. "Please, mister," said the tramp, "can you give me a dime to get something to eat?"

The young man stopped. "What's the matter?" he asked.

"Can't get work," said the other glibly. "I haven't had a bite to eat since yesterday morning. Pawned all my clothes 'cepting these. Slept under a wharf for a week, and I don't know anybody in the whole city—honest, I don't."

The young man looked at the tramp's smooth face, over which a razor had evidently passed very recently.

"Who shaved you this morning?" he asked, and as the beggar faded away the young man grinned and walked on down the street.—Youth's Companion

THREE ARE INDICTED

True Bills Returned Against Illinois Legislators.

Chicago, May 7.—Lee O'Neil Browne of Ottawa, Democratic leader of the Illinois house of representatives, was indicted on a charge of bribery and Representative Robert E. Wilson of Chicago and Representative Michael S. Link of Mitchell were indicted on charges of perjury by the special grand jury which for a week has been investigating the election on May 26, 1909, of William Lorimer of Chicago to the United States senate.

The evidence upon which the indictments were returned was supplied by Representative Charles A. White of O'Fallon and Representative H. J. C. Beckemeyer of Carlyle. Wilson and Link, as well as White and Beckemeyer, are Democratic members of the legislature.

Specifically, the bribery charge against Browne is based on the charge that he gave Representative White $850 at a hotel in Chicago late in May, 1909, as alleged compensation for White's vote for Lorimer for senator.

HE DENOUNCES BALLINGER

Glavis Witness Creates Scene at Congressional Investigation.

Washington, May 8.—The cross-examination of Secretary Ballinger by Attorney Louis D. Brandeis was proceeding with but momentary renewals of the frequent bitter clashes of the previous day before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee when there developed the most spectacular incident of the hearing.

Horace T. Jones, a special agent of the land office, who testified some time ago in support of Louis R. Glavis, arose in his place among the spectators and announced in a loud voice that he did not believe a statement made by Secretary Ballinger was true and that he desired that a witness be called to substantiate or deny what Mr. Ballinger had said.

The statement had to do with Jones' ability as an agent and was attributed by Secretary Ballinger to Special Agent E. W. Dixon.

When the commotion in the committee room following Jones' interruption had subsided Senator Root demanded that the witness be admonished that a repetition of his outburst would subject him to punishment for contempt.

Convicted of Killing Daughters.

Chicago, May 8.—William Muetsch, an aged wagon manufacturer, was found guilty of having murdered his two young daughters and was sentenced to be hanged. The verdict is the first of its kind in Cook county in a number of years

The Pip and the Slip.

Too much mince pie had done the trick.

Little Maimie got a pain in her sash and had to go to bed.

The family physician and his top hat called and prescribed a pill. Maimie's mother said very well, but the family physician did not know Maimie, and she was quite sure Maimie would not take the pill. The family physician said he would make it a sweet pill, but Maimie's mother replied that so long as it was a pill it would be no use.

Then the family physician was struck with a brilliant idea. The pill should be craftily concealed in the center of a preserved pear and sent up to little Maimie to eat.

An hour later Maimie's mother went to see how her sweetest dear was going on. She appeared to be going on excellently.

"And did my pet eat all her pear?" inquired the fond mother.

"Yes, mumsie," replied the little darling, "all but the nasty seed."

There's many a slip 'twixt the pear and the pip.—London Answers.

Bituminous Coal.

The first bituminous coal mined in the United States, states the United States geological survey, was taken from what is usually termed the Richmond basin, a small area in the southeastern portion of Virginia, near the city of Richmond. This basin is situated on the eastern margin of the Piedmont plateau, thirteen miles above tidewater, on the James river. It lies in Goochland, Henrico, Powhatan and Chesterfield counties. The coal beds are much distorted, and the coal is of rather low grade when compared with that from other districts with which it has to come into competition. The occurrence of coal was known in the Richmond basin as early as 1700, and in 1789 shipments were made to some of the northern states. At present what little coal is produced in this field is for local consumption only Scientific American.

A Gentle Hint.

Young Man – Your twin daughters seem absolutely inseparable. The Mother—Oh, I don't know. A young man with half a million, like yourself, ought to make good as a separator.—Chicago News.

A Clumsy Compliment.

She (to partner claiming first dance) —You are an early bird, Mr. Glossinest. He (gallantly)—Yes; and, by Jove, I've caught the worm!—London M. A. P.

This world is to the sharpest, heaven to the most worthy.—Cicero.

in one way," was little Miss Clergyman's answer, at once thoughtful and diplomatic, "but I think he gets more rest as he goes along. You see, he can let down a little evenings and Sundays, and if he gets cross and nervous nobody says anything. But my daddy has to be better than ever Sundays and evenings, because then everybody's taking notice and the whole lot of us children are around."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Shortened His Wait.

"Experience," said Mark Twain once, "makes us wise, but it also makes us hard. Consider the old, experienced man in the busy restaurant. He took a seat, looked round him and, pointing to a well dressed gentleman who had not yet been served, said to the waiter:

"'Waiter, how long has that gentleman been here?'

"'About twelve minutes, sir,' the waiter answered.

"'What's his order?'

"'Porterhouse and French fried, sir, with mince pie and coffee to come.'

"The old man, hardened by experience, slipped a quarter in the waiter's hand.

"'Waiter,' he said, 'I'm in a hurry. Put on another porterhouse and bring me his.'"

A Master Tactician.

"Why," expostulated the lady in the brown dress when the artist who had painted a portrait of her little daughter said the price of the picture was $100, "you charged Mrs. Crawford only $68 for the picture you painted of her Lucy."

"I am aware of that fact, my dear madam," the suave and politic artist hastened to explain, "but you must consider the great difference in the costs of the paints used for the hair of the two children. The scant, drab colored hair of the Crawford child required just a touch of the cheapest kind of pigment, but the wonderfully beautiful and luxuriant curls of your lovely daughter required a large quantity of the best paints on the market."

Then the lady in the brown dress smiled, took out her purse and begged the artist's pardon for having spoken rudely to him.—Chicago News.

Only Part of the Truth.

Ives—I saw Captain Deepeeres today. Beers—Well, what if you did? Ives—What if I did? Didn't you tell me that he was with his vessel when she went down last week with all on board? Beers—Yes, but I didn't tell you his vessel was a submarine.—Chicago News.

An Exception.

Binks—Here is somebody who says that no woman is a suffragist unless she has a grouch on some man. Sinks—That's queer. My wife isn't a suffragist.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Rich.

It is a great mistake to believe that the rich are holding us down. As a matter of fact, they are pulling us up. If there were no rich people to keep our eyes glued upon the great gulf between having and not having none of us would hustle. We have to have the rich man's mansions prodding us, his power scourging us and his automobile butting us to get anywhere at all. We have to see his wife and daughters in silks and jewels and realize what our own wives and daughters without these things think of us as providers to peel our coats off and get into the game. None of us can go out driving with such as we have and suffer the rich man to whiz past us in prism glass and burnished brass, throwing dust in our eyes and gasoline in our hair, without doing better in the great area of human endeavor for the next two or three days anyway. Blessed are the rich, for they fill us with shame and new resolve and make us to wonder what in the Sam Hill we have been doing all these years.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Byron's "Bride of Abydos."

It was after Lord Byron arrived in Greece that he wrote that beautiful poem "The Bride of Abydos" and that exquisite song the "Maid of Athens," which, says a Paris contemporary, every Englishman of culture knows by heart. Documents enable us to establish the true identity of the heroine of this poem. She was one of the three daughters of Mr. Black, English vice consul at Athens, at whose house Byron for some time lived. After the departure of the poet Theresa Black married an archaeologist, M. Pittakis, whose widow she became several years later. Her beauty, her charm, her elegance, conquered every heart, including Byron's. In 1873 the heroine of the poet was an old woman of upright figure and still showing signs of her former beauty. With age had come poverty. The London Times, moved by her distress, opened at this epoch a subscription in her favor. She died in 1875.—London Globe.

TO SPEAK AT THIEF RIVER FALLS

Prof. B. Boeggild of Denmark to speak on dairying.

Is noted authority on subject. Large crowd expected.

The following letter was received at Thief River Falls from Dairy Inspector Storvig in regard to the visit of Prof. B. Boeggild, of the Royal Danish Agricultural College, of Copenhagen, Denmark, to that place June 1st. There will with out doubt be a large attendance from Plummer and vicinity as a chance like this is too good to pass up.

"You have no doubt learned thru the Creamery Journals of the lecture tour being made this summer in this country by Prof. B. Boeggild, of the Royal Danish Agricultnral College of Copenhagen, Denmark.

Through the courtesy of Prof. T. L. Haecker, who will accompany the lecturer on his tour in Minnesota, have we been able to secure on of these lecture dates up here in the Red River Valley.

We are fortunate indeed in securing one of these lectures given by Prof. Boeggid, who is recogonized as perhaps the greatest living authority on dairying in Europe, and has since early in the 80's beed the leading spirit in the cooperative dairy movement in his native country and has lately been secured to give lecture tour in America, in cities and at our Agricultural Colleges.

The City of Thief River Falls, having offered us free use of their fine new Auditorium for this ocasion, besides being a good railroad center and in the midst of one of our best dairy sections has been selected as the most centrally and easily reach by our dairymen.

You will kindly take this matter up with the officers of your respective creameries and secure a large delegation from amongst your patrons to hear this lecture given at Thief River Fall Wednesday, June 1st between the hour of 11 A.M and 3:50 P.M

Trusting that you will co-operate with us in making this one of the largest gatherings of dairymen ever held in the "North West.

LAYING OF STEEL STARTED

Steel gang starts work west of Mcgregor first of week.

Laying of steel will soon start on this end of line.

According to reports received from Moose Lake the east end of the steel gang started laying rails on the east end of the new Moose Lake, Plummer Soo line, just out of Mcgregor on the N. P., the first of the week. The steel had been laid from Moose Lake to Mcgregor last fall. The work will be delayed somewhat when the Miss. River is reached as a steel bridge will have to be put in there. Laying of the rails is expected to begid at this end of the line the first of next month and with the work being done at both ends it will soon be complete. The work of laying tee tracks in the material yards here has been completed and the material will now be rushed in as fast as possible.

The work of grading an the Medford-Drake, N. D. line is also being rushed. More cantractors and laborers are arriving daily and it is said that the ground is fairly alive with men teams and machiuery. It is expected that this branch line will be completed in time to carry the sersons crop.

This will make the hiece of track between here and Thief River Falls a very busy ond and it will very likely be doubld tracked.

Attempt to wreck Winnipeg Flyer.

—In must have been either a crank or a lunatic that attempted to wreck the Soo flyer going south last Saturday night. A paruy of young people on the way to a Wedding party in Halma were passing the crossing that evening about ten minutes before the passenger was due when one of them noticee a heap of white material laying on the track. Immediatly they stopped the team and upon investigation found that a rock had been laid on the track and so firmly wedged in place with other rocks that the train would have been derailed had the ogstruction not been removed. At this point the river comes up close to the track and is very steep and high. The train might have plunged this embankment into the river with what results can only be imagined. The Halma section crew visited the place for several days at the train time but the attempt was not repeated. The ground was soft from the rain that fell that day and the fresh tracks of a man were traced from Halma to Bronson and back to that pile of stone laid on the track. —Bronson Budget.

Remedies for some common troublesome insects.

Cabbage worm. This is the green worm which works on cabbage and cauliflower, and which is produced from the eggs of the white butterfly. Use Paris green and arsenate of lead in water during the season as fequently as the occasion demands on the cabbage. Cauliflower cannot be sprayed after the heads begin to form. Dry hellebore, which is harmless to man, can be used on cauliflower heads if they are eaten by insects. Some growers use Paris green on cabbage as strong as three pounds in fifty gallons of water, since they seem to be resistent to injury. A quart of soft soap or eight guarts of very strong soap suds should be used in every fifty gallons to insure the liquid spreading over the leaf. Any liquid which contains Paris green should be kept constantly stirred during the spraying to prevent it from settling to the bottom. Cabbages can be sprayed with this mixture up to with in a few weeks of gathering. Pay the childern a little to catch and kill the white butterflies which lay the eggs.

Currant Worm. This greenish caterpillar frequently begins its work on the inside of the currant or gooseberry bush, and hence it is generally not noticed until it has nearly stripped the bush of its leaves. Keep a sharp lookout for them, and upon their first appearance spray or sprinkle bushes with arsenate of lead (one pound in ten gallons of water); or Paris green (one pound in twenty-five of air slaked lime) used while fruit is small. Afterwards use white hellebore as a dry dust when the leaves are wet with dew, or one ounce in one gallon of water sprayed, or showered on with small broom.

Clothes Moth. To find relief from these pests, which eat furs and woolens, by having a perfectly tight box sufficiently large to enclose all the goods that need protection, and every two weeks after putting them away putting four tablespoonfuls of bisulphide of carbon in a shallow dish on top of the clothes, shutting the box up tightly afterward. The above proportions of bisulphide of carbon apply to an enclosed space of about sixteen cubic feet.

First class attractions, to open new auditorium.

Thief River Falls has secured two first class plays with which to open their new auditorium next Monday and Tuesday. They are musical comedies, which have always been the favorite of the American people. The "Royal Chef" will be presented Monday evening and at a matinee Tuesday afternoon. "A Knight for a Day" will pe given Tuesday evening. These are plays such as are seldom seen outside of the larger cities and will be gresented by a first class company just returning from a western tour. As this is the first time a play of this kind has been given in this section a large number of people from neighboring towns will without doubt journey to the county,s mearopolis to take it in.

Forged Five Dollar Check.

Last Tuesday Sheriff Nelson arrested Carl Swanson of the town of Rocksburg for having forged three checks for $5. each. The young man plead guilty before the court and Judge Bishop sent him on to Judge Watts where he will no doubt recieve a reformatory sentence.

F. E. Nelson returned yesterday noon from Montana where he went to file on his claim. Hh discovered that after the government had made certain reservations from the good land, that all those who had drawn numbers over 100 had spent their money for nothing. With a party of ten others he looked over what was left after the first 100 men had selected their farmsteads and the entire party decided they wanted none of it in theirs. Hundreds of people who flock to Montana for the land drawings, as well as those who flock to South Dakota, are a few hundred dollars shy in cash, but richer by far in experience, as a result of their trip.—Crookston times.

Who's a Fool?

A representative of the Crookston creamery, a centralixing concern, was in town Monday. He drove across from Middle River' where he had established a cream station. He also stated that he had just established stations at Greenbush, Fox, Roseau and several other places in Roseau and Beltrami counties. He made no effort to put in a station at this place and after sizing up the situation in town stated that a man would be a fool to patronize a station even if he did put in a station at New Folden. Some of those that have been shipping cream from here at the peril of the local creamry should do a little thinking.—Newfolden Review.

The above pervision of the facts appeared in last week's Review. While the Writer's stand in favor of the local creanery of his town is commendable, we fail to see how he helps matters any by misrepresenting affairs at Middle River. There was no cream station established here nor within miles of Middle River that we have heardof. Neither did the man represent a Crookston Creamery.—Middle River Pioneer.

Political Announcement

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the district.

Ada, Minn., May 3rd., 1910.
A. L. Hanson.

With Walter J. Smith, mayor of Everleth, in the race for the state treasureship the contest bids fair to be the warmest in the bunch.

Ii the manager of some Chautauqua circuit would be able to book Roosevelt for the season; Wake up and go out and look for the comet.

Emperor William presented Roosevelt with a vase with his majesty's portrait on it. We pity the Roosevelt youngester who is fortunate enough to knock that same vase off the mantle.

The Ballinger Pinchot controversy has at last resulted in a reduction of the Interior Department's payroll tho it seems to be the opinion, of a majority of the "people", that those who have been fired were the only ones earning their salary.

The only reason we can see for the comet not putting up a better appearance is that it is jealous of the big noise made to advertise the Crookston gathering the first of next month and is therefor kind-o-sulking in the back ground:

All concerned in the investigation of the high cost of living, or 'cost of high living seem to have decided on the middle man as the srape goat. Just who this term "Middleman" includes 'tis hard to tell but it seems broad enough to include the majority of those between the Earth and the Heavens.

PROVISION STRICKEN OUT

Settlers Not Allowed to File in Federal Courts.

Washington, May 17.—The provision in the bills opening to settlement approximately 1,500,000 acres of land on the Pine Ridge and Rosebud reservations in South Dakota, authorizing the filing of entries in any federal court, was stricken out in conference. The provision was adopted in the house on motion of Representative Sabath of Illinois. It was opposed in conference by Representative Burke of South Dakota, chairman of the house committee on Indian affairs. He insisted that the filing of entries for homesteads on the Pine Ridge and Rosebud reservations shall be limited to land offices close by and the senate conferees agreed with him.

MAN JUMPS TO HIS DEATH

Prominent Chicagoan Ends Life in Sensational Manner.

Chicago, May 17.—John A. Ryerson, a prominent Chicago business man, jumped from the thirteenth floor of the Chamber of Commerce building and was instantly killed, his body being mashed into an unrecognizable pulp. The only motive advanced by the relatives of the suicide is that of supposed financial difficulties.

Dr. E. W. Ryerson, a brother, said his brother had invested a great deal of his wealth in the automobile business and that he believes financial losses reponsible for the act. The dead man was president of an electrical company.

His wife is prostrated and fears for her life are expressed by members of the family.

Rickard to Referee Fight.

San Francisco, May 17.—Tex Rickard, who is associated with Jack Gleason in the promotion of the Jeffries-Johnson contest and who came into prominence four years ago when he engineered the Gans-Nelson fight at Goldfield, Nev., has been selected to referee the battle between the two heavyweights. In accepting the place, however, the Nevada promoter made it clear he would step aside if Jeffries and Johnson agreed upon another man.

HEAVY RAIN IS BADLY NEEDED

Forest Fires Still Raging in Minnesota.

BEMIDJI NO LONGER IN DANGER

Work of Local Fire Wardens and the Fire Department Confined the Flames to a Distance of Half a Mile South of the Sawmill Yards—Severe Conflagration Reported North of Hibbing.

Duluth, May 17.—While considerable rain fell in the iron range district and in parts of Upper Michigan and Wisconsin, the precipitation was not sufficient to allay the danger of forest fires.

A severe conflagration was reported in the heavily timbered region north of Hibbing and timber cruisers say it will take a drenching rain of two or three days' duration to check it.

Six townships of valuable pine timber north of Hibbing are in danger of destruction. Over 60,000,000 feet of this pine has already been consumed. In some tracts 50 per cent of the timber has been destroyed.

A slight rain fell in Duluth. In Upper Michigan there were slight rains and the smoke on Lake Superior has been partially cleared away.

Rain put a damper on the forest fires which raged fiercely south of Bemidji and at one time threatened to spread to the brick yard and sawmills and do great damage to property. The work of the local fire wardens, aided by members of the Bemidji fire department and men from the sawmills, confined the fine to the distance of one-half a mile south of the sawmill yards, at a point where roads intersect.

Misunderstanding during telephone communication with officials in St. Paul resulted in the governor calling upon the Duluth military companies to aid Bemidji, but the order was countermanded, as these services were not needed.

Fires Given New Life.

Forest fires in section 20, township 45, range 8, which had been supposedly dead for several days, were given new life by the strong southeast wind. The fire fighters were on duty before 9 o'clock and put in a busy three hours in saving the bridge across Willow river. The fire could not be kept on the east side of the river, as the wind was very strong and the water low, so the fighters had to divide forces to protect the homes of Gus Sandberg and Andrew Bjorklund and the schoolhouse. This they succeeded in doing, checking it at Sandberg's close to the barn.

A cemetery between the river and schoolhouse was also burned over and it is believed that some ten head of stock of Mr. Sandberg's, which were in pasture and have not been located, have perished.

At Nickerson the Great Northern had a train ready all afternoon to move the people.

The country is quite well organized for protection and losses have been small, the loss of a pile of lumber by Mr. Karger being perhaps the biggest one in this district.

A light rain reduced the fire risk, but more rain is badly needed.

RAVAGING NEW TERRITORY

Forest Fires Break Out Afresh in Michigan.

Houghton, Mich., May 17.—Forest fires which broke out afresh late Sunday night are ravaging new territory.

A big force of men at Painsdale, a mining town ten miles from here, is backfiring and plowing to head off the flames, which have been advancing toward the settlement at an alarming rate.

At Hubbell, a mining town, ten miles east, there is fear of bad fires, which are raging within six miles of the settlement. In churches prayers were offered up for rain.

A light rain is falling over Northern Michigan. If it continues through the night the fires may be extinguished.

Paroled on Promise to Wed.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 17.—William Powers of Grundy county was paroled from the penitentiary on the strength of his promise to wed Miss Nannie Snapp. Powers was convicted last June of aiding prisoners to escape from the Trenton jail and sentenced to two years. Unkind treatment of his bride or failure to rule his conduct according to her views of what is right and proper will land him back in the penitentiary.

Aged Woman Burned to Death.

Superior, Wis., May 17.—Mrs. G. Rorer of Minong, aged ninety-eight years, was burned to death in her bed while left alone in the house. She was bedridden and nearly blind and her granddaughter, Mrs. Gerry McCord, with whom she lived, was hanging out clothes, she being the only other person near at the time. Mrs. Rorer was in the habit of smoking in bed and it is supposed the fire started from her pipe.

The Roulette Ball.

That capricious little ball that decides our fortunes at the ever fascinating game of roulette at Monte Carlo occasionally flies from the skillful croupier's hand, though not often. One afternoon it slipped from its manipulator's fingers and found its way into an Englishman's coat pocket. So impressed was the Englishman that he promptly lost a couple of hundred pounds. But the little ball once found a far stranger destination than that. Escaping from the croupier's hand, it flew straight into the mouth of a German onlooker, and he was so impressed that he promptly swallowed it.—London Bystander.

Tea in Paraguay.

When the natives of Paraguay drink tea they do not pour it from a teapot into a cup, but fill a goblet made out of a pumpkin or gourd and then suck up the hot liquid through a long reed. Moreover, the tea which they use is altogether different from that which comes from China, being made out of dried and roasted leaves of a palmlike plant which grows in Paraguay and southern Brazil. The natives say that this tea is an excellent remedy for fever and rheumatism.

The American opossum is one of the most curious animals living in the United States. It is the only one that carries its young in a pouch like the kangaroo. Its snout is like a hog's, while its mouth is liberally furnished with teeth. Its eyes are like a rat's, and it hisses like a snake.

A MEMORIAL DAY CONSPIRACY.

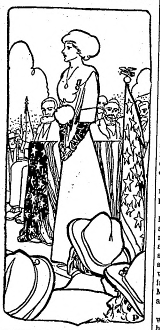
Lovers Plot a Surprise and Get One In Return.

By CARLOTTA PERRY.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

The veterans that marched in the procession that Memorial day of which this story tells were the remnants of a Wisconsin regiment that went out in 1862, and they looked like the flag they followed.



SHE BEGAN TO SING THE OLD WAR SONGS.

The exercises of the day were held close by Graceland cemetery and were of the usual order. Yet an observing eye would have noticed on many faces, especially on the older ones, a look of peaceable expectation, as though there was to be something a little extra on the program.

The introductory remarks were made; the invocation was offered; the band played. Then a tall, serene faced young woman came forward to the very edge of the platform and for an imperceptible moment looked into the eyes that answered her with a look of tender recognition and of remembrance that she knew was not alone for her. There were cheers and clapping of hands, and from here and there came the words, "El'ner, our El'ner!"

Then she began to sing the old war songs, "Marching Through Georgia," "Brave Boys Are They," "Tramp, Tramp." When the choruses came she lifted her white hand as a baton and led the quavering voices that joined hers into decorous time and tune. The veterans nodded approvingly, and here and there a tear made its way down a furrowed cheek. Then after the orator of the day and the distinguished citizen had had their innings and the band had done its worst she sang for them again. There had been enthusiasm, fervor, pathos, heartbreak, in her voice as she sang the old songs, to which there had been quick response. So now in the exaltation, the triumph, of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" the worn old soldiers seemed with her to see "the glory of the coming of the Lord."

As the last notes died away a man in the audience asked of the one beside him, "Do you know who she is?"

"Her name is Elinor Mason, sir. But I reckon we've heard all that's wuth while, and if you'd like to hear about her we might repair to the shadder of the umbrageous oak yander—to use a figger of speech, it being early for umbrageousness—and I'll tell you. This vast patriotic assembly will soon go into the cemetery to lay their tributes of affection on the heroes' graves, and meantime we can converse. I infer that you are a stranger here."

The stranger assented.

"The young lady's father," he resumed, "was one of the boys of this regiment. He served two years and came home alive, and that's about all. He never was in any big battle, but the malary of a southern swamp, if it kills, is a man's Waterloo to him just as truly as shot or shell; takes longer, that's all. After waiting eighteen or twenty years, more or less, to get well he married the girl he left behind him. He lived long enough to hold his little daughter on his knee and hear her sing the old songs that he taught her himself. He had a splendid voice, and El'ner sang before she could talk plain. They named a post after him here, and the boys sort of adopted the little girl. As she grew up she sang for them at their campfires and reunions and other gatherings and for all the social doings in the village. She was the leading soprany in the 'Piscopal church here when she was a mere kid. It was such a mite of an affair—the building, I mean—that the outsiders, irreverent cusses, called it the Church of the Holy Pepper Box, the H. P. B. for short. When she was about fifteen, I should say, a rich uncle discovered her and after giving her the best teachers at home he sent he abroad for study. She's been home only a few months. She's a soloist in a Chicago church. And, what do you think, sir—she's come up here to sing for the boys today and to put posies on her dad's grave. And, say, didn't she sing that 'Marching On' song to beat the band? It made me feel as though maybe God is marching on in this wicked old world after all. Curious how just a song and a woman's voice can make a man feel, isn't it?"

"She certainly has a voice of great power, and she sings with rare expression," was the response.

"I don't s'pose, though," continued the narrator, "that these songs give her voice scope enough. She'd sing ragtime or 'Gideon's Band' to please the boys. But her own taste is way up in classic realms, sir, as one may say. I've heard her in the city church, and she's simply great. She can quiver beautifully, sir."

"And this uncle of hers—he, too, was a soldier, I suppose?"

"Well, no, not exactly, though he kept in close touch with them all through the war, especially about pay day. He was a sutler, sir, and he made money. But after the war was over and he'd turned his ungodly gains over many times he must have come to himself—his real self, you know—for the bad tobacco that he sold to the boys at $5 a pound and other necessities in proportion troubled his conscience to that extent that he calculated he owed the soldiers a debt of honor, and they do say that the old skinflint made good in various and many ways looking after their widders and orphans. Giving El'ner a chance was one of them."

"She certainly has repaid his kindness," said the other. "He must be proud of her."

"Proud of her ain't it. He loves her—loves her like a father, sir. She's the apple of his eye, sir. She and her mother own a nice little cottage here, and now that El'ner is home they will spend their summers here. Probably some of the neighbors and the boys will call around to see them this evening. I shall probably drop in myself. Maybe you'd like to go. Her mother's a fine woman, sir."

"I should be glad to do so. By the way, my name is Dr. Graham," and he handed the other his card.

"Thank you. I'm just out of callin' cards, but my name's John Davis—just plain John Davis, sir."

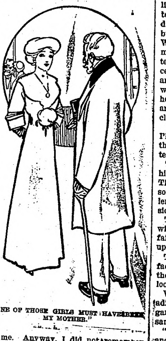
Plain John Davis introduced Dr. Graham to Mrs. Mason that evening, saying, "Being a stranger, ma'am, the doctor thought he might be sort o' buttin' in coming here tonight, but I told him it would be all right, and I was sure you'd all be glad to see him."

"As we certainly are," said the lady. Then she turned away to greet others. John Davis was borne away by old friends. Dr. Graham and Elinor were left together.

"It is a little strange," he began, "but this is the second time that I have found myself in this little town at a gathering of the clans. Thirty-five years ago, Miss Mason, I heard some girls sing 'Brave Boys Are They' under the same trees you sang under today. They sang for the regiment represented by the grizzly old fellows here today."

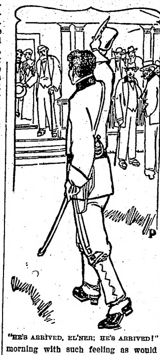
"One of those girls must have been my mother," said Elinor. "Did you know my mother or my father?" she asked.

"I had met your mother the winter before in my home town at the east, where she was visiting, and—and I came west that spring to attend to a little matter of personal interest, and I called upon her. It happened, I remember, to be the 30th of May. I have a memory for dates. My call was a short one. It was her busy day. I heard her sing. I did not meet your father. I do not know that I heard his name. Anyway, I did not remember it. I recognized your mother instantly. The years have been kind to her, but I am sure she has quite forgotten me."



"ONE OF THOSE GIRLS MUST HAVE BEEN MY MOTHER."

He said this rather haltingly for one to whom speech was easy. Then, with a swift change of manner, he went on: "To the girls who sang under the trees that other May day the war meant something that it cannot mean to you. They sang for departing fathers, brothers and lovers. Their hearts were in their voices, and yet you who have not their bitter knowledge sang this morning with such feeling as would tempt me to swear that you were one of those very girls—that is, if my eyes were shut. Knowing what training and culture do, I still can wonder how you did it."



"HE'S ARRIVED, EL'NER; HE'S ARRIVED!"

"I learned those songs," said the girl, "when nearly every one except the soldiers had ceased to sing them. When other little girls were learning school and gospel songs I was sitting on my father's knee, joining my voice with his in the songs dear to his heart." Then after a moment's pause, with the color deepening in her cheek, she said: "But you speak, Dr. Graham, as though the civil war was the only one to which fathers, brothers and lovers have gone, leaving weeping women behind. Dr. Graham, my heart follows as brave a soldier as ever my mother's did."

"I should not forget," he replied, "with my only son under our flag in the Philippines—my only child, Miss Mason—and I am foolishly happy in the expectation of seeing him soon. He is coming home on a three months' leave. He will probably be in Chicago by the time I reach there tomorrow."

"My fiance is also coming home on a three months' leave, and I am rarely happy in the thought." With the air of one listening for footsteps she added, "He may be here soon—very soon."

"I wonder if there are any other resemblances between the two individuals under consideration," said the doctor.

"The man of whom I speak," returned Eleanor, "wears a captain's uniform. He is very tall, the handsomest man in his regiment, they say, and he has a fine baritone voice."

"My son is all that, with the added advantage of resembling his dad, and he sings like a seraph. But, say"—and the doctor looked at her with a puzzled expression—"isn't this growing interesting and a trifle exciting? There's something in the air that makes me feel creepy. Is anybody trying to play tricks on the old man?"

Then—you who read are anticipating this—there was a slight tumult on the porch, and a moment later John Davis conspirators. Any one with the least grain of responsiveness in his being must feel himself a sharer in the wonderful happiness of the hour.

"It worked all right, dad, this surprise that we planned for you, didn't it?" asked the captain of his father.

"It worked all right, my son, and for a surprise that didn't surprise may be considered a success of the most brilliant order. When I received your letter urging me to be here on a certain date to look after a miserable little business deal I suspected something. When John Davis planted himself by my side this afternoon and volunteered his interesting information concerning the sweet singer of the day and incidentally of himself I began to watch out, and when he invited me here and presented me to Miss Mason and her mother the whole story was clear as print to me.

"But wait till I give you a surprise. I'll try to make it as happy a one as this is to me, my dear son and daughter."

Two months later there was a pretty high noon wedding in the H. P. B. The village folk were there, and Mason post, at Captain Graham's request, lent a fitting military air to the occasion.

The young couple, their faces alight with love and with dreams of all fair things to be, were good to look upon.

There was another couple, graver faced, but with a serene gladness in their eyes. They, too, were good to look upon.

When the young couple made their adieus the elder couple, in traveling garb arrayed, were quietly doing the same, Dr. Graham explaining thus:

"Yes, my son, your mother-in-law and your wife's father-in-law drove over to the rectory early this morning and were married, and they—that is, we—are starting on our wedding journey.

"Ah, my boy, you were wiser than you knew when you inveigled your father to this blessed little village that thrice blessed Memorial day. Goodby. Goodby."

Centralia, Ala., May 17.—Thirty-six negro convicts lost their lives when the stockade of the Red Feather Coal company, about fifteen miles north of Centerville, was destroyed by a fire set by one of the prisoners in an effort to gain his freedom. Thirty-five of the convicts were burned to death and another was fatally shot by guards while trying to escape. Among the former is the negro who started the blaze.

It was with much difficulty that the remaining convicts in the stockade were prevented from eluding the guards.

Mr. Van Cleave was nearly sixty-one years old. Until six months ago he was in robust health. H. C. Thompson, for thirty years his business associate, said Mr. Van Cleave's breakdown could be traced to his war with the labor unions.

OUTCOME OF CONTROVERSY

Methodists Issue Statement on Italian Mission.

VISIT OF COLONEL ROOSEVELT

Responsible for the Announcement Made by the Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Methods of Mission in Italy the Same as They Were Almost Forty Years Ago.

Philadelphia, May 17.—The board of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, through its secretary, Bishop L. B. Wilson, issued an official statement which had been prepared by the board at its meeting in Chicago on May 9, relative to the Italian mission. The statement is the outcome of the recent controversy in Rome caused by the visit of Colonel Roosevelt. The statement follows:

"Deploring and at all times seeking to avoid interdenominational controversy, we are nevertheless compelled to recognize occasions when personal preference must yield to a proper sense of official duty.

"We cannot allow to pass unnoticed the recent unprovoked and unwarranted attempt to discredit one of our most useful missions by widely published accusations which, if based upon truth, would bring dishonor upon the church which supports that mission.

Real Cause of Outcry.

"We can only observe: That the methods of our mission in Italy, now for the first time thus publicly condemned, are the same that have been pursued from the beginning, almost forty years ago, and that the inference appears to be irresistible that other considerations than the methods of our mission in Rome must have been the real cause of this sudden outcry.

"Possibly some urgency of diplomacy, local in its origin but farreaching in its portent, required this attack, with all its hazard, as a diversion from the real issue involved.

"The facts that support this inference are known to all who have followed the course of recent events in the city of Rome.

"Had there been any way to avoid certain issues of etiquette and precedence created by coincident circumstances of a public nature, the Methodist mission might have escaped calumny, and thus lost the valuable recognition of its success.

"We content ourselves with affirming our entire confidence in the moral integrity of our missionaries and methods in Italy, and against the denunciations of their accusers we place the wide open record of the Methodist Episcopal church, both as to teaching and method, in America and throughout the world."

The Making of Lenses.

The essential part of any device for the study of the starry millions—the suns, planets, comets and the nebulae that are perhaps new worlds in the making—is the lens or the optical train that consists of a series of lenses. It is this that makes the modern science of astronomy possible. There is absolutely no other human occupation that requires the accuracy of observation and the delicacy of touch that are requisite for the making of the finest lenses. These are the most perfect products of human hands. It may convey some idea of the labor required in the making of a large lens to say that at least one year's time is required for the grinding and polishing of a thirty inch object glass. A little lens two inches in diameter requires the unremitting care and attention of a skilled workman for two or three days. It is easy, then, to see why it is that even lenses of high class photographic work are costly. A forty inch object glass for a large telescope cannot be made in much less than four years' time, and if everything does not go just right it may require much longer than that.—Kansas City Star.

Persian Jests.

An exceedingly ugly man, says the Persian Joe Miller, was once in the mosque, asking pardon of Allah for his sins and praying to be delivered from the fires of hell. One who overheard his prayers said to him: "Wherefore, O friend, wouldst thou cheat hell of such a countenance? Art thou reluctant to burn up a face like that?"

Another story the Persian jester tells is that a certain person with a hideous nose was once on a time wooing a woman. Describing himself to her and trying to make an attractive picture, he said, "I am a man devoid of lightness and frivolity, and I am patient in bearing afflictions!"

"Aye," said the woman. "Wert thou not patient in bearing afflictions thou hadst never endured thy nose these forty years!"

All of which is more witty than kind.—Harper's.

The Boy Told Him.

Father (after a long search)—Well, here it is. I wonder why one always finds a thing in the last place one hunts for it? Bright Boy—I s'pose it's cause after people find it they leave off looking.

BILL IS AGREED ON

Leaders in Congress Approve Savings Bank Measure.

SENATE MEASURE DROPPED

Provisions of New Bill Considered to Be Far Better.

Washington, May 14.—Leaders of the house and senate have been pledged to the support of a postal savings bank bill at this congress, which will embody the fundamentals of sound banking in its provisions.

Whether friendly or unfriendly to the legislation personally President Taft has secured the support of Senators Aldrich, Crane and Carter and of Representative Weeks and Speaker Cannon to the proposed legislation, which Mr. Weeks, as chairman of the house committee on postoffices and postroads, is now preparing to introduce.

The outcome of the conference the president has had with the leaders on the subject this week has brought about the following tentative agreement, which, it is now believed, will eventually be enacted into law:

It has been agreed that the senate postal savings bank bill is not made on sound banking principles, in that it provides no reserve funds, discriminates against most of the gilt edge security which the government has to offer as an investment for the deposits and imposes upon the government, which is to act as guarantor of the deposits, the necessity of depositing postal bank funds in state and private banks over which it has no supervision or control, as well as in national banks over which it has no control.

The bill which Mr. Weeks is now engaged in perfecting covers three features, as follows:

It will provide a gold reserve against postal bank deposits, to be kept in the United States treasury, of not more than 10 per cent.

It will provide that the deposits shall be invested in bonds of the government and in new issues at 2½ per cent interest.

It will permit the issue of Panama canal bonds over which there has been a conflict between the treasury department and congress.

HEINZE FOUND NOT GUILTY

Acquitted of Charge of Misapplying Funds of Bank.

New York, May 13.—F. Augustus Heinze was acquitted in New York of charges of misapplying the funds of the Mercantile National bank while he was president of the institution in 1907, and he was cleared of the charge of overcertifying the checks of his brother's firm, Otto Heinze & Co.

F. AUGUSTUS HEINZE.

Thus failed the federal government's attempt to hold Heinze responsible for financiering during the panic of three years ago alleged to be in violation of the national banking laws. Charles W. Morse got fifteen years for "bank wrecking," but Heinze's transactions were held legal, notwithstanding the prosecution's attempt to prove him a gambler with millions not his own.

LETS OUT HIS STENOGRAPHER

Ballinger Bitterly Denounces Employe In Letter of Dismissal.

Washington, May 17.—Frederick M. Kerby, the stenographer in the office of the secretary of the interior, who on Saturday issued a statement regarding the Lawler memorandum on the Glavis charges to the president, was discharged from the government service by Secretary Ballinger.

In a stinging letter dismissing Kerby "for the good of the service" Secretary Ballinger said that the stenographer was "unworthy to remain in it." "The fact that your treachery," said the secretary, "is futile cannot mitigate the character of your offense."

It is understood that Kerby is considering the filing of a suit against Secretary Ballinger for damages for the language used in the letter of dismissal.

The Old Fashioned Woman.

"What caused your sudden blowing in?" asked a veteran in Shade Land of a woman who just arrived. The woman gave a sigh that blew over a tombstone as she replied: "I am an old fashioned woman, and I did my work in a kitchen with a six hole range, a big sink, three long tables, two pantries and a dishpan large enough to wash a turkey in. Two days ago I went to visit my daughter in a big city and found her cooking for her family in a chafing dish, doing her dishes in a washbowl and keeping them stored in the lower part of the washstand. When I saw her get the bread out of a big bowl on the piano called a jardiniere and reach for the butter out of the window I felt a cold chill come over me, and when she made soup by opening a tin can and pouring out a mess to which she added water from the wash pitcher I knew no more." Then the old fashioned woman gave such a sniff of disgust it blew all the shades over into the next county.—Atchison Globe.

A Remodeled Text.

"Perhaps you could preach us a sermon about the condition of things in our town," says the resident pastor to the visiting one. "Saloons, gambling houses and the like run wide open all the time, and the officers pay no attention to them."

"Yes," agrees the visitor; "I might take as my text, 'There's no arrest for the wicked.'"—Judge.

Grace Before Meat.

Plummer is rapidly gaining for itself the name of being one of the best towns in the northern part of the state in which to do your trading and deservedly so for which we think we are entitled to some credit.

It was our idea on starting in business to allow a very small margin of profit on our goods but to turn them often enough to make up the differance. Our success along these lines has far exceeded our expectations. We are willing to have you compare our prices with those of any other honest dealer in this section. Quality, of course must be taken in to consideration, we do not belive in handling an inferior grade of goods If you will think it over we are sure you will decide that it will be to our mutual benefit for you to do your trading HERE.

To Celebrate.

Rumor has it that Red Lake Falls will hold an immense celebration in honor of the laying of the cornorstone of the new county court house. We are informed that there will be music in the air plenty of eatables and a guaranteed good time for all attending. The big doings will take place some time during the first of next month. Whether the Thief River band will be engaged for the occasion and the Thisf Riverites invited to attend we have not heard. If they could only guarantee as an attraction that J. A. and J. W. would unite their strength in raising the stone to its resting place and with a smile of brotherly love adorning each solemn physiognomy would together work with trowel and mortar to cement it in place, then indeed would they have a stellar attraction to offer. One that would empty the farms, villages and towns and send the counties entire population hurring to the down river town on the day set for the celebration. But alas! alas, we fear it cannot be.

Saw Some Corn.

There is a good joke going the rounds on a prominent New Yorker who visited Grand Forks recently. He saw the immense ear of corn displayed in the window of the Great Northern Land company's offices, formerly on exhibition here in Robert Purviss' office, and proceeded to investigate. The ear of corn happens to be about four feet long and naturally was made for display, but the New Yorker singled out one of the obliging land agents and wanted to know what kind of corn it was. He said he wished to tell his friends back home about it and wanted the facts. the agent informed him politely that the corn was a cross between Mexican corn and native corn and that one of the pecular things about it was that it would not reproduce its kind. The New Yorker went on his way well satisfied and his friends in Gotham will be regaled in the near future with a corn story that is hard to beat.—Crookston Times.

Farmers using checks.

One of the gratifying developments that has taken place in the last few years is that more farmers are using banks as places for depositing their funds than ever before and that they are doing business in a more business like way. They are paying their obligations by checks which is not only a great convenience but is also a safeguard in the matter of receipts. With the money that is usually carried around in farmer's purses, small banks have been organized all over the country, villages that ten or fifteen years ago never supported a bank or thought of having one. All this tends toward dignity and order and the money thus released finds its place in the channels of business. Recent statistics show that the proportion of checks used is 78 8-10 per cent; currency 21 8-10 per cent, and specfe 5 4-10 per cent. In states like North and South Dakota in which there are no large cities the proportion is about the same. Since the hard times of 1890-96, farmers have been steadily gaining in wealth and now their bank deposits form a much larger proportion of ready money than ever befofe. This helps trade and swells the volume of currency available for all kinds of business enterprises.—Minnesota Agriculturist.

Demonstration Farms.

Demonstration farms have been started in different parts of the state by the division of agricultural extension of the University of Minnesota. These farms are under the direction of Prof. T. P. Cooper and have been established by the aid of a committee of three selected by the commercial club of the town where they are located and three farmers in the neighborhood. The farmer whose farm is selected agrees to operate his farm for a term of five years as advised by the experts sent out by the division. He furnishes all the equipment and labor and operates the farm as decided upon by agreement between himself and the demonstrator. A farm for the purpose must be representative of the locality in area, soil and type of farming followed, and must be so located that it is acessible to the largest number of people. The work carried on will be entirely pratical in its nature, and will consist chiefly in reorganization of the farm so that it may be farmed more effectively. Suitable farm crop rotation will be established which further involves the proper appreciation of manures, together with work demonstrating the proper methods to use in the care and feeding of live stock.

Public meetings for demonstration purposes will be held on the farm from time to time when desirable methods of agriculture will be explained and shown on the farm.

Blanks will be furnished the farm owners on which to report all business transactions so that at the end of the year the total profit or loss on the farm may be ascertained.

These demonstration farms must not be con used, as some newspapers seem to have done, with experiment farms. They are not intended for experimentation, but to show every farmer, or others interested in agriculture, what experimentation at St. Anthony Park and experience proves may be done on any farm in the state, where practical methods are followed. The arrangement, system and orderly classification and process of rotation will be exemplified by thoroughly practical people, to enable farmers to raise better and more crops on present farms and better and more stock with the minimum of labor and expense.

I. M. Lillo, Secretary.

On account of petty quarrels among the patrons the Clearwater creamery has never been the success that it should and could have been. There is no reason why it should not now be one of the best in the county but the continual quarreling over small differances caused a dropping away of the patrons until there was even talk of closing it alltogether. At a well attended meeting held last week how ever it was decided to get together and all work for the success of the creamery and as a result butter-maker Lauritzon received over three thousand pounds of cream the following Friday. If all the patrons will now work for the success of the creamery and stop scrapping over the little things the rest of the creameries in the county will have to look to their laurels. It has as large and as good a territory to draw from as the Plummer creamery and if they will keep on the way they have now started it will soon be just as successful. It was also decided at the meeting to have all the stock that has been suscribed, paid in, which will insure all the patrons taking more interest in its success. Next months statement will undoubtedly show the result of the new spirit. It is natural for a person to take more interest in the success of a project that he has put real money into then one to which he has simply given the use of his name.

Deer Park Nubbins.

Another small rain fell up our way this week.

Ed. Hyland transacted business at Plummer last Thursday and returned Friday.

Knut Syvesrud and Ole Burdickson called on friends up this way last Sunday.

Knut Olson and Mike Kalski have gone into partnership during the breaking season.

Tobias Olson, left for lower California last Tuesday and will not return before fall.

Mrs. Mat Bakken has been on the sick list this week, but is now on the way to recovery.

Early seeded grain looks pretty good, a nice rain would just make things "hum" in the crop line.

Thomas Rowe, was over to Lillo last Tuesday to see his sister who has recently come over from Norway.

O yes its kind of changeable weather up our way, also one day we getting ready for a north pole expedition.

G. Swenson has gotten his meadow land just about all cleared, and nt land just about all cleared, and is farm.

Ole Skreland received a letter the other day, and it was addresed in this way: Hr. Ola Skreland, and it wasn't from Norway either.

Some o the Deer Park ladies, say Charles Johnson has the nicest and best buggy horse in the town, O my! if this had only been leap year.

Mrs. Knut Syversrud and two of her boys are on the sick list. The Syversrud family have certainly had their share of sickness this spring.

Ole Shreland had all the girls in Deer Park call on him the other evening, but Ole was in bed, and the girls, yes, they just had to go home again.

There was religious services at the Tobias Olson school house last Sunday, by Rev. O. Kolstoe. Those who attended from here were, Lillie and Rose Swanson, Victor Lindholm and Miss Christine Skie, Ole Skreland and Miss Anna Rust.

Sheriff Nelson was up here last Thursday and posted notices for the Polbrook and Skreeland ditches here. First hearing on June 10th.

Nearly everyone up our way has taken greatly to the poultry business of late, but we had no idea that Victor Lindholm was also learning that way, until the other evening, to our surprise we saw him and his best girl make off with a bag full of old hens, yes, and there were others that heard the hens. However we fell kind of sorry, how, beng that we invested our surplus cash into our incubator early this spring.

Some time ago we happened to mention the fact that this was an awful lonesome place for some of the school ma'ams up our way. Well since then we have been called upon by one of them to further explain ourself and state whom we were refer to in particular, as most of the school ma'ams are very fortunate in that respect and always have a beau. We, hardly ever apologise but always tell the facts, and we will say in this particular case, that the school ma'am we refered to is kind of shorrt and fleshy. There now will that do.

The Typhoid fly.

Prof Washburn, chief of the entomological division of the department of Agriculture at St. Anthony Park, says the house fly better named the typhoid fly, passing the winter as a perfect insect, or as a pupa, now appearing in alarming numbers, is laying her eggs which will quickly hatch into maggots. These reach mature growth in from six to seven days, and after resting about the same time become a perfect fly. It breeds in manure piles, in decaying vegetables, in sewerage, in waste from the human intestines and in other filth. The typhoid fly does not bite, but sucks or laps up its food in a liquid state, and crawling over bread, pastry, candy, vegetables and other articles of human food, infects it with bacteria, which taken into the human system, causes intestinal disorders, typhoid fever, tuberculosis (consumption) etc. This filthy insec is found to be a serious menace to human health by the discovery of disease germs on its feet and body. One hundred thousand bacteria have been found under the micsoscope on the body of a single fly, known to have been in contact with matter voided from the human intestine. These flies, crawling over human food, infecting it with deadly germs, and inoculate wounds and abrasions on the skin with loathsome disease. It may be the cause of epidemics suddenly appearing in a community for which no reason can be assigned.

The remedies are screened windows and doors, fly paper, sticky or poisoned, doing away with manure heaps, covering of slops, filth, swill barrels, and through sterilizing of intestinal discharges from patients suffering with typhoid or other fevers, or infectious diseases, before being emptied into sewer or cesspool or, otherwise deposited where flies can have access to them.

Prof. F. L. Washburn, University Farm, St. Paul, will send without charge bulletins treating upon the eradication of flies and other household insects to all who apply for them.

Political Announcement

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the district.

If the insurgents could only prove that "Uncle Joe,"was to blame for the "cost of high living"they would have their problem solved. He would hae to flee to Europe before the advance of the housewife army.

A special tax on state and corporation owned lands which lie idle in large tracts in the midst of country which the actual settlers are trying to develop would go along way toward solving the good road problem.

A saloon keeper in Nebraska was arrested and fined for using smaller glasses than was the custom, the judge holding that it was illegal to give short measure in beer, as milk groceries, etc. Wonder whether the judge was or was not a prohibionist.

An inventor has now come forward with a machine that he claims will travel with equal facility on land, water or on the air. The modern novelist had certainly ought to be able to get up a great plot, in one of the hero, heroine, villain stories, with its assistance.

With the state treasurership conceeded, to be the state office the G. O. P. will give the northern part of the state the race narrows down to a fight between Al. Kaiser of Bagley and Walter J. Smith of Eveleth with the Eveleth mayor showing up a trifle the strongest.

According to reports going the rounds any politician trying to fix Association meeting at Crookston next up any deals at the Development week will sound his own death knell. Private interest politics will be strictly barred.

Speak For Yourself, John.

The Lord Leicester of a century ago had no sons by his first marriage and, being well on in years, was anxious to see his heir apparent, a nephew, happily wedded. His wish was that a charming daughter of his neighbor, the Earl of Albemarle, should be the future Lady Leicester. With her and her sisters he used to enjoy his morning rides. One morning she came alone, and during the ride he asked, thinking to forward his nephew's interests, "Anne, my dear, how should you like to be mistress of Holkham?" "There is nothing I should like better," she replied. "Then I shall send my nephew William to court you," said the earl, glad that the fates seemed to favor his project. But the lady calmly and gravely answered, "I shall never be mistress of Holkham on those terms." "Why," exclaimed the astonished old gentleman, looking the lady hard in the face, "you don't mean to say you would marry me!" "Yes, indeed I would," was the answer, "and nothing I should wish better." And as a consequence the nephew did not succeed to the earldom.—London Chronicle.

Wonderful Victoria Falls.

"It is well nigh impossible to describe a scene of such wonder, such wildness," says Lady Sarah Wilson in her "South African Memories" of the Victoria falls. But she gives this graphic description: "Standing on a point flush with the river before it makes its headlong leap, we gazed first on the swirling water losing itself in snowy spray which beat relentlessly on face and clothes while the great volume was noisily disappearing to unknown and terrifying depths. The sightseer tries to look across, to strain his eyes and to see beyond that white mist which obscures everything, but it is an impossible task, and he can but guess the width of the falls, slightly horseshoe in shape, from the green trees which seem so far away on the opposite bank and are only caught sight of now and then as the wind causes the spray to lift. At the same time his attention is fixed by a new wonder—the much talked of rainbow. Never varying, never changing, that perfect shaped arc is surely more typical of eternity there than anywhere else."

The Light of the Stars.

Various endeavors have been made to estimate the light of the stars. In the northern hemisphere Argelander has registered 324,000 stars down to the nine and a half magnitude, and with the aid of the best photometric data Agnes M. Clerk's "System of the Stars" gives the sum of the light of these northern stars as equivalent to 1-440 of full moonlight, while the total light of all stars similarly enumerated in both hemispheres, to the number of about 900,000, is roughly placed at 1-180 of the lunar brightness. The scattered light of still fainter celestial bodies is difficult to compute. By a photographic method Sir William Abbey rated the total starlight of both hemispheres at 1-100 of full moonlight, and Professor Newcomb from visual observations of all stars at just 728 times that of Capella, or 1-89 of the light of the full moon.

It is not certain, however, that the sky would be totally dark if all stars were blotted out. Certain processes make the upper atmosphere strongly luminous at times, and we cannot be sure that this light would be totally absent.—Harper's Weekly.

A Dutch Fishing Fleet.

If the traveler wants to get a real glimpse of picturesque Holland, a glimpse which shall long be a happy memory, let him journey to the old fishing village of Scheveningen, not far from The Hague. Its fishing fleet is an imposing one and is best seen at night, when the boats are drawn up on the beach. Each has a number, and these are painted on the sides in such large figures that they can be read at a considerable distance. At night when the fishermen begin to come to land the women of the village walk down to the beach with their knitting in their hands to meet them. They wear their wooden shoes, some of which are made to look especially clean by an application of whiting, and they make a merry clatter as they go. Industry is characteristic of the women of Holland in all walks of life. They must always be at work of some kind, and it would seem as if more knitting needles must be used in Holland than in any other country in the world.—E. J. Farrington in Interior.

The Old Time English School.

Until comparatively recent times public school boys in England had many hardships to endure. As late as 1834 a writer who spoke from experience said that "the inmates of a workhouse or a jail were better fed and lodged than the scholars of Eton." Boys whose parents could not pay for a private room underwent privations that might have broken down a cabin boy and would be thought inhuman if inflicted on a galley slave.

"They rose at 5, winter and summer, and breakfasted four hours later, the interval being devoted to study, after they had swept their rooms and made their beds. The only washing accommodation was a pump. The diet consisted of an endless round of mutton, potatoes and beer, none of them too plentiful or too good.

"To be starved," says this writer, "frozen and flogged—such was the daily life of the scions of England's noblest families."

Peculiar Optical Effects.

If one places a pinhead up close to the eye and directly in front of it the head of the pin appears transparent and things may be seen as easily through it as through a sheet of isinglass, the head appearing simply as a large round cloud. If it is placed somewhat closer no pin or head can be seen at all.

If one goes into a very dark room and puts a lighted candle near the side of one eye very pretty and peculiar effects are observed. A tracery, forming a regular network, can be easily detected, and this is merely the shadow thrown by the candle on the retina of the eye of the small capillary blood vessels between the retina and the candle.

If one looks to the side of a dim star in the heavens the star appears a great deal brighter than direct vision makes it appear. This is because the light in the indirect view falls on what is known as the "yellow spot" or point of keenest vision. As this is not put directly behind the front of the eye the side glance is necessary. Some people can see stars that way that they cannot perceive at all on direct vision.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Little by Little.

The Young Wife (showing her furniture)—Here's the rocking chair for the parlor. Isn't it just lovely? Mrs. Oldly (rather critically)—But I don't see any rockers, dear. The Young Wife—Oh, they'll be here next month. You see, we are buying the chair on the installment plan, and we haven't paid for the rockers yet."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Westminster Abbey.

The full legal title of Westminster abbey is "the Collegiate Church of St. Peter, Westminster." Very few people have heard the famous burial place so designated. A collegiate church, as distinguished from a parish church, is one that is administered by a "college" of priests instead of an individual rector or vicar.—Westminster Gazette.

Another Way.

"Why don't you throw away this old junk? It is of no use to any one."

"But that would make me feel wasteful."

"Then give it away and feel charitable."—Washington Herald.

RICKARD UP IN THE AIR.

THINK HE SHOULD WITHDRAW

Fight Fans Say Rickard Would Make Poor Referee.

San Francisco, May 24.—That Tex Rickard would do well to withdraw from the refereeship and allow some other man more accustomed to the work and more experienced to fill his shoes is the consensus of opinion of many sporting writers here as well as followers of the boxing game.

This suggestion does not in any measure reflect on the honesty of the Nevadan, but every man in his trade, and Rickard certainly is not a referee by profession.

"At the outset," said Tex, "I had absolutely no intention of refereeing. Now I don't know just what to do. Both Johnson and Jeffries have insisted that I go through with it and many of my friends have come to me with the same plea. Of course, there have been others who have advised me against the job."

Clearly Rickard is up in the air on the situation.

SPITZER ON THE STAND

Government Plays Trump Card in Sugar Fraud Case.

New York, May 24.—The trump card in the prosecution of Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, was played at the opening of the sugar trust underweighing conspiracy trial when Prosecutor Stimson called as the government's first witness Oliver Spitzer, superintendent of the Williamsburg docks, who some months ago was convicted of underweighing and sentenced to two years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

When Spitzer took the stand John B. Stanchfield, for the defense, contended that under the federal statute Spitzer, as a convicted man, could not testify.

The sensation of the trial was then created by the declaration in court that Spitzer had been pardoned by President Taft.

The testimony of Spitzer was sensational in many respects. He described in greater detail than the story had been related how the government was cheated out of millions of dollars by weighing frauds and he told of some devices for this purpose that had not been mentioned by witnesses in any of the previous trials.

NOW ON WAY TO THE HAGUE

Counsel, Assistants and Witnesses in Fisheries Case.

New York, May 22.—The array of special counsel, assistants, secretaries and expert witnesses who are to appear before the international arbitration tribunal at The Hague in the Newfoundland fisheries case sailed on the liner Lapland for Amsterdam. They will proceed to The Hague immediately, where the court convenes on June 1.

The case, which is the first to be heard under the general treaties of arbitration negotiated by Secretary Root under the recommendation of the last Hague convention, is one of the most important matters undertaken by the United States. It involves the entire fishing industry of the North Atlantic, involving millions of dollars annually.

CLARA MORRIS NEAR DEATH

Little Hope for Recovery of Once Famous Actress.

New York, May 22.—Clara Morris, the former actress, had a severe sinking spell and her condition is reported critical. The physician in attendance at her home in Yonkers says no hope remains that she will regain her sight and he is doubtful of her recovery.

Happiness In Sleep.

I saw once how like sleep was to life in the deep waters. A man who to my waking eyes looked cold and starved and ragged sat upon one of the benches on the embankment. He was sleeping, and I knew from his face that there at least he did not count himself miserable. But presently a policeman came and shook the sleeper into waking life. Then all the violence of the world seemed to be let loose upon this wreck of a man. He shook and blinked his eyes and breathed with heavy spasms. It was just as when a fish is caught out of the depth of the sea and suddenly cast into a basket. I have seen mackerel shake and gasp like this poor man suddenly caught up out of the native depths of sleep. Or if you think that a fish thus dying is only an amusing and not a painful sight then think of what it might be if some giant of fable could catch us up out of our native air into the space between the stars. Would we not willingly sink back again into the depth of air? So it is when the loud world lets us glide down into sleep.—London Outlook.

His Name In the Directory.

"One funny thing I have learned about human nature," said the drug store cashier, "is the habit many people have of marking their own names in the city directory. They do that because the directory is the only place where their names ever get into print, and it has such a fascination for them that they can't resist calling attention to it. A funny old man who likes to talk tells me that he has made special trips to different parts of the city just to mark his name in the directories of the neighborhood. He puts a little cross in red ink before it. I asked him what good it did. He said none possibly, although he is a teacher of languages and may get a few calls on account of that queer advertisement. But his is an exceptional case. Not many persons spend time and money hunting city directories, but every time they happen to see a new one they can't help looking up their names and putting some kind of a mark around them."—New York Sun

RULED OUT ON A POINT OF ORDER

Tariff Board Provision of Sundry Civil Bill Eliminated.

DALZELL LEAVES RESERVATION

Pennsylvania Congressman Makes Powerful Argument Against One of President Taft's Measures—Leads Opposition to It With the Knowledge That the Chief Executive Desires It Should Be Enacted Into Law.

Washington, May 24.—That there is a determined opposition in the house to enlarging the powers of the tariff board as proposed in the Tawney provision to the sundry civil bill was indicated when that provision was ruled out of the measure on a point of order made by Representative Fitzgerald, a New York Democrat. The most powerful argument against the provision was made by Representative John Dalzell of Pennsylvania, who, after a regularity extendilng over a period of twenty-three years, jumped the reservation and led the opposition to the proposal endorsed by the administration.

Mr. Dalzell was the only Republican who spoke against this particular administration measure and he did so with the knowledge that it was the earnest wish of President Taft that it should be enacted into law. The fight to enlarge the powers of the tariff board is to be continued. As soon as Representative Mann of Illinois, who presided as chairman of the committee of the whole, announced his ruling sustaining the point of order made by Mr. Fitzgerald, Representative Tawney presented an alternative proposition to read as follows:

"To enable the president to secure information to assist him in the discharge of the duties imposed on him by Section 2 of the tariff act, approved Aug. 5, 1909, and the officers of the government in administering the customs laws and to give to congress information of the state of the Union, I recommend to their consideration such measures as they shall judge necessary and expedient, including the employment of such persons as may be required for procuring, classifying, tabulating and arranging under his direction said information and to enable him to do any or all things in connection therewith by him deemed necessary and authorized by law, $250,000."

Similar in Substance.

The provision rejected and the one quoted differ in language, but they are similar in substance, and in the opinion of those who favor a live tariff board, one is as good as the other. The provision originally reported specially authorized inquiries into cost production at home and abroad.

Representative Tawney and others hold that if the substitute is adopted the president will be at liberty to direct the board to make cost investigation. They desired to have it stand in the law that such inquiries should be made, but believe that the substitute provision, if enacted, will be interpreted by the president in such a manner as to make certain the collection of as complete data as was contemplated in the original provision. The tariff board provision was under consideration in the house throughout the day.

Debate was begun by Representative Tawney. Speeches in support of the provision were also made by Representatives Gelfer and Douglass of Ohio. Stated briefly, Mr. Tawney took the position that the proposal to enlarge the powers of the tariff board could not be construed as new legislation, as contended by Representatives Fitzgerald and Dalzell, because the president was charged under the Constitution to advise congress as to the state of the Union, and that, in this instance, he was merely asked to make inquiries along certain lines and lay the results before congress if he were so disposed, or if he were asked to do so by either house.

Representative Dalzell's attack on the provision was bitter in the extreme. He said he regarded the proposal to create a permanent tariff as "mischievous" and he was opposed to the tariff board as a general proposition, but it was particularly obnoxious to him when it was proposed to create it through the medium of a "rider" on an appropriation bill.

Mr. Dalzell contended that the provision was palpably out of order.

RUNAWAY BOY IS KILLED

Minneapolis Lad Jumps Into Hay and Fork Enters Body.

Wahpeton, N. D., May 24.—Victor Westberg, sixteen years old, who ran away from his home in Minneapolis this spring, died in St. Francis' hospital here as the result of an accident.

The boy lived with Andrew Myron west of Abercrombie. He jumped from a hayloft to a wagon partially loaded with hay and struck upon the handle of a hay fort, which ran into his abdomen eleven inches. The boy lay in agony some time before he was found and taken to the hospital, where he died.

The boy's father works as a mechanic in Minneapolis.

The Alert Man.

"Calmness is a fine trait," said Mr. Bliffly, "but does it always get there? You take the case of two men standing up in a car holding on to straps, both the same age, but one of them quiet and the other quick, and now let the man they are standing in front of get up to leave the car at a station, and suppose these two men are both at exactly the same distance from the seat, each with the same chance as the other for seizing it, which would get that seat? Would it be the calm, cool man who moved deliberately and always with some thought for others, or would it be the ever alert man, quick to move and always on the lookout, not caring a continental for what anybody thinks and always ready to jump in any seat he can nab? Why, while the calm man is thinking it over about what he shall do and beginning to turn that way the alert man is in the seat. I certainly do admire the calm, tranquil man and his good manners, but it is the man ever on the alert that gets the seat in the car—and other things."—New York Sun.

The Back of a Glove.

The meaning of the three marks on the back of a glove and the clocks on a stocking were two of the little mysteries of dress explained at a lecture on clothes in London. The lecturer said that the three marks on the back of a glove correspond to the fourchette pieces between the fingers, and in olden days these pieces were continued along the back of the hand, braid being used to conceal the seams. A somewhat similar origin was assigned to the ornamental clock on the stocking. In the days when stockings were made of cloth the seams came where the clocks do now, the ornamentation then being used to hide the seams. The useless little bow in the leather band lining a man's hat is a survival of the time when a hat was made by taking a piece of leather, boring two holes through it and drawing it up with a piece of string.

Fashions In Borneo.

According to the rules of Borneoan fashion it is deemed necessary to mold one's limbs into a more shapely form than that bestowed by nature. This is done really effectively by winding strong brass wire round the ankles, the wrists, under the knees and above the elbows of children. Growth at these points is, in consequence, greatly hampered, with the result that the limbs come to be deformed or, according to Dyak ideas, brought into proper shape. The headdress consists of a curious headwork cap, and around his neck a bridegroom to be wears bangles of plaited fiber and strings of cowrie shells. These shells, by the way, as in other parts of the world, are used as currency. A yard of fiber or twenty to thirty cowrie shells represent the value of a penny. The white armlets are made of another species of shells.—Wide World Magazine.

What a Toad Enjoys.

There are few things more amusing than to watch a toad submitting to the operations of a back scratching. He will at first look somewhat suspiciously at the twig which you are advancing toward him, but after two or three passes down his back his manner undergoes a marked change, his eyes close with an expression of infinite rapture, he plants his feet wider apart, and his body swells out to nearly double its ordinary size, as if to obtain by these means more room for enjoyment. Thus he will remain until you make some sudden movement which startles him or until he has had as much petting as he wants, when, with a puff of regretful delight, he will reduce himself to his usual dimensions and hop away, bent once more on the pleasures of the chase.

In Hearing.

They stood upon the crest of the mountain and gazed off through the purple distances.

"Darling," he whispered, bending closer, "give me a kiss—just one!"

"No, Clarence," she answered timidly; "some one will hear us. There may be other ears around."

"Other ears! Why should you think so, dearest?"

"Oh, because I have so often heard of mountaineers I thought perhaps there might be some around, and"—

But just then there was a mighty crash. A mountain goat had heard the awful pun and jumped over the cliff.—London Tatler.

Making Money Two Ways.

Our five cent pieces, of course, are merely tokens, deriving their purchasing power from the fiat of the treasury. The metal blanks for them cost only about 14 cents a hundred. When the expense of stamping the designs upon them is added they come to something like $3,510 a million—that is to say, for this amount the government produces $50,000 worth of nickels, making a clear profit of $46,490 on the transaction.—Saturday Evening Post.

CLARK ATTACKS TARIFF LAW

Minority Leader in House Assails Payne-Aldrich Statute.

Washington, May 22.—Denouncing the Payne-Aldrich tariff as a "transparent humbug," attacking the tariff views of its author, Representative Sereno Payne (Rep., N. Y.) and vigorously assailing President Taft for his support of that law, Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, leader of the Democratic minority, delivered in the house what is regarded as the Democratic keynote speech of the coming congressional campaign. Mr. Clark had prepared his address with great care and spoke at length, giving facts and figures in support of his contention that the tariff had not been honestly revised and that the Republican majority in congress had endeavored to trick the people. Mr. Clark also paid his respect incidentally to the $250,000 item in the sundry civil appropriation bill for the creation of a tariff board.

LIABILITIES ARE HEAVY

Firm of Grain Merchants in Hands of Creditors.

Albany, N. Y., May 24.—The firm of Durent & Elmore, grain merchants with offices in Albany, Chicago, Buffalo and Boston, is practically in the hands of the officials of the National Commercial and First National banks of this city, who are its creditors to the extent of nearly $500,000.

By the alleged manipulation of bills of lading the company, through its treasurer, Gibson Oliver, who had charge of the Albany office, is alleged to have been able to borrow hundreds of thousands of dollars from banks in Albany and other cities. The total amount involved has not been ascertained. It is understood, however, that the firm has outstanding paper aggregating between $500,000 and $800,000, but just what proportion of it is secured probably will not be known for several days.

An Odd Nugget of Gold.

There have been many large and oddly shaped gold nuggets found in the United States and elsewhere, but the oddest of them all was that discovered at the Midhas mine, on Sulky gully, near Melbourne, Australia, in 1887. The nugget was flat and almost the exact counterpart in contour of a colossal human hand held open, with the exception of the thumb and forefinger, which were closed together in a manner so as to make it appear that the thumb was holding the finger in place. Its greatest length was twelve and a half inches and its greatest breadth eight inches. It was of the very purest gold, with but a little of foreign substances adhering, mostly between the "fingers," and weighed 617 ounces. It was found in the northwest main drive of the Midhas mine, 120 feet below the surface of the earth and at a spot only fifty feet from where the famous Lady Brassey nugget was discovered the year before. It weighed fifty-one pounds of pure gold.

Mme. Rejane at Rehearsal.

Mme. Rejane at one of her rehearsals was endeavoring to impress upon a young actor the necessity of a tragic expression.

"Put yourself in his place," she said.

"But I have never been through such an experience," the other pleaded.

"Well, then," retorted the actress, "imagine you have lost 300 or 400 louis at baccarat and that you have been dismissed from the company."

His face fell.

"There you have it," said she. "Keep that expression and you will win."

For a young woman who could not weep to order she tried a heroic cure.

"Very well. I will take the part away from you. You are not pretty enough."

This had the desired effect, and the floodgates opened.

"Weep like that and you will be the hit of the piece," exclaimed Rejane triumphantly.—London M. A. P.

Balzac and Black Coffee.

Balzac was addicted to the use of strong black coffee and depended upon it as a nervous stimulant during the hours which he devoted to composition. Its effect he has himself described in these words:

"The coffee falls into your stomach. Immediately everything starts into action. Your ideas begin to move like Grand Army battalions on the battlefield, and the battle opens. Memories arrive at a run, standards flying; the light cavalry of comparisons breaks into a magnificent gallop; the artillery of logic dashes up and unlimbers; thoughts come rushing up as sharpshooters; characters spring up on all sides; the paper becomes covered with ink, for the struggle has begun and ends in torrents of black water like the battle in black powder."

Burns as a Tax Collector.

In the olden days candles were taxed articles, and it was the duty of Robert Burns as an excise officer to see that the tax was not evaded. He generally looked the other way, however, as when passing through the kitchen one night at William Lorimer's of Kennishall, where the gudewife was busy making candles, he merely remarked, "Faith, madam, ye're thrang the nicht," and passed into the parlor.—St. James' Gazette.

The Mountains Bother Them.

The British have had heaps of trouble in Siam to make the natives understand that the world is round instead of flat. Indeed, the native teachers keep on teaching the children that it is flat, and when argued with they reply, "If it isn't flat why do the mountains stand up as they do instead of rolling downhill?"

A Financier's Observation.

"He spends money like a prince," said the man who makes trite comparisons.

"Perhaps," replied Mr. Dustin Stax, "only most members of royal families I have met in my banking experience are more anxious to borrow money than to disburse it."—Washington Star.

Bohemians and Wedding Rings.

"Here are two wedding rings that I have just made over," said the jeweler. "They are for Bohemian women. They lost their own rings, so they had their husbands' rings cut down to fit. That is a custom in their country. Both husband and wife wear wedding rings there. If the man loses his ring he has to buy a new one, but if the woman loses hers she wears her husband's. I do a good deal of that kind of work. Other women who lose wedding rings just buy another one and say nothing about it, but these women are too conscientious for that. Usually I have to make the man's ring smaller, but once in awhile it has to be spliced to make it fit. The women are always considerably chagrined over the splicing and offer all kinds of explanations to account for their big fingers."—New York Sun.

A Dilemma.

Doctor (who is not feeling well, to himself)—What shall I do? I haven't any confidence in any of those other doctors, and, as for myself, my charges are too high.

Couldn't Forget It.

"Saturday night some miscreant lugged off a whole cord of my wood, and somehow I can't forget about it," declared Silas.

"Have you tried to forget it?" inquired his friend.

"Yes. Sunday morning I went to church, hoping I could get it off my mind, and before I had been there five minutes the choir started in singing 'The Lost Chord,' so I got out."—Judge.

CAUGHT IN THE TRAP HE SET.

How a Smart Hotel Clerk Found a Real Romance.

By HOMER CROY.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Ezra Knabb, night clerk of the Vendome, busied himself sorting letters. The mail had been scattered into the key boxes once, but Ezra Knabb was very busy. Miss Morgan, the night telegraph operator, leaned over the desk, one beseeching eye on Ezra and one ear on her instrument.

"It's rather quiet tonight," observed Miss Morgan invitingly, casting an eye over the deserted tiled lobby.

Miss Morgan was tall, angular and earnest.

"Yes," assented Ezra Knabb without looking up. "Jackson, Jacobs, Johnson, Johnston"—

"We've got a lot of jays with us tonight—the stock exhibit is on," she laughed.

"Yes," answered Ezra Knabb shortly.

Miss Morgan paused a moment. "It's almost 3 o'clock g. m."

"Mason, Montgomery, Montague, Merton."

Miss Morgan was not discouraged. "Do you suppose we will get off Friday in time to see the carnival parade?" she asked entertainingly.

"I don't know."

"I don't care much, for—oh, that's my call. You'll excuse me a moment, won't you?" as she skipped away to answer her instrument.

"Emphatically yes," murmured Ezra Knabb under his breath, as he sighed with unmeasured relief. "She means all right," he complained, "but it seems more natural and fitting for the male to do the courting. Yes, she means all right, but"— He dropped the sentence.

A customer came in and asked for a room with bath. Ezra fitted him out and rang for a bell-hop.

"Oh, here, I wish to deposit this for tonight," said the late guest, bringing out some papers and bills. Ezra sealed the valuables in an envelope and gave the man a numbered receipt. He turned the combination and swung the door open, then stepped inside without turning on the electric light. Just then the bell-hop came back and, seeing the door open, with no one in the office, gave it a vigorous push and turned the silver knob.

The bellboy was just turning away when a faraway scratching and muffled beating caught his ears. He pricked up his ears and bent over with his head against the door of the vault. Then his face turned white. He looked hurriedly around. There was no one in sight.

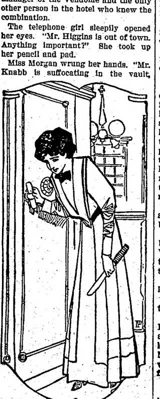
He raced out to Miss Morgan's little room. "Oh, Miss Morgan," he panted, "I think the vault door has blew shut on Mr. Knabb. If it hain't, he's tryin' to commit suicide."

Miss Morgan hurried to the vault and held her head against the door. The faint hammerings could barely be distinguished.

Then she rushed to the telephone operator. "Call Mr. Higgins, quick!" she commanded. Mr. Higgins was the manager of the Vendome and the only other person in the hotel who knew the combination.

The telephone girl sleepily opened her eyes. "Mr. Higgins is out of town. Anything important?" She took up her pencil and pad.

Miss Morgan wrung her hands. "Mr. Knabb is suffocating in the vault, that's all." She glared at the telephone operator. "Yes, be sure to make a note of that, and call it to Mr. Higgins' attention."



SHE HELD HER EAR DOWN AGAIN, AND A SMILE CAME OVER HER FACE.

Miss Morgan hurried back and again bent her head against the iron door. "Boy," she called to the page, "didn't Mr. Knabb once hold a wire?"

"Guess so."

Miss Morgan raced to her desk and came back with a heavy bronze world's fair paper knife. She began to hammer with it in queer little clicks. She held her ear down again. A smile came over her face. For a moment she tap-tapped, and then came an answering series of clicks. With one hand on the silver knob she repeated aloud the message from the inside:

"A under O—reverse to 7½ to 12 to 0."

In a moment she swung back the heavy door. Mr. Knabb leaped out, rubbed his eyes and drew a long breath. Miss Morgan swayed lightly toward him, smiling. But Ezra Knabb pretended not to notice the hint. He kept his arms rigidly at his sides.

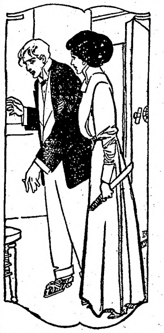
"That was a pretty close call," he remarked calmly, sighing with relief.

"Indeed it was," emphasized Miss Morgan. "If I had been a second"— She paused expectantly.

"Yes, that was a pretty good idea," he said, without much enthusiasm. Ezra Knabb did not seem very enthusiastic, not any more so than if he had just been telling her that her ability as an operator was slowly improving day by day.

Miss Morgan withdrew, hurt. She dragged herself back to her desk instead of skipping, as she usually went. Ezra Knabb watched her out of the tail of his eye.

"I guess I'll have to marry her now," he groaned. He sat down and sighed sorrowfully. He did not look happy, as a newly rescued man should.



WITH ONE HAND UNDER HIS ARM SHE SUPPORTED HIM TO A CHAIR.

It was a week later that Ezra Knabb had a heart to heart talk with Wetzel, the afternoon clerk. "The train's getting too much for me, Wetzel," he confided. "She—that thing"—he jerked his thumb toward the telegraph room—"says it's a romance, and we've got to live up to it. She says there never was a more romantic romance. She cried about it yesterday when I got cold about it. I"—

"Well?" asked the afternoon clerk to the point.

"Well, I don't think it was a romance. I think it was just an accident."

"Well?"

"I am going to prove to her that it wasn't a romance at all—that anybody could have got me out. Now, Tuesday night I'll get in there again, and I'll have the bell-hop go after you, and you come and let me out easy as pie. I guess that'll show her it ain't a romance."

"Knabb, old boy, she is a pretty nice girl. You'd better give her a square deal."

"I know it," whined Ezra, "but the man ought to do the advancing, according to my notion."

At last Wetzel agreed to do his part.

It was shortly before 8 o'clock Thursday morning that Ezra Knabb stepped into the vault and banged the door behind him. He chuckled as he drew it shut. The posted bellboy noticed what had happened a moment afterward and turned the silver knob. Then he ran past Miss Morgan's room shouting out the catastrophe with an admirable look of horror on his face; then he raced out and down the street to the house where the afternoon clerk roomed.

Miss Morgan hurried to the vault and tried the combination, but it had been changed.

The bell-hop was back, his face blanched. "I run down after Mr. Wetzel," he puffed, "'cause he knows the combination, but his landlady said that he was dead drunk."

Miss Morgan hastened for her paper knife and began tapping:

"Wetzel dead drunk. Send combination."

It was several moments before Ezra Knabb could seem to grasp the turn affairs had taken. He had no penknife to send the message with, so he took off his shoe and hammered with the heel. His message was as follows:

"A under O—reverse to 5½ to 9 to 0."

Puffed under the eyes and short of breath, Ezra Knabb burst out. When the combination was turned he put willing hands against the door and pushed with all his might. He almost fell into the arms of Miss Morgan. With one hand under his arm she supported him to a chair. As he filled and refilled his lungs he looked up into her eyes. Then he turned to see if the bell-hop had gone away.

He caught hold of her fingers. "It is a romance, after all, Winifred," he whispered tenderly.

The following afternoon Miss Morgan came down a few minutes earlier than usual. She paused before Wetzel's desk.

"It worked fine," she whispered. "You're to be the only one there besides the relatives!"

LENIENCY IS RECOMMENDED

President of Pittsburg Council Is Convicted.

Pittsburg, May 21.—After deliberating over eighteen hours the jury in the case of Dr. F. C. Blessing, president of the common council of Pittsburg, returned a verdict of "guilty as charged in the indictment." The verdict asks for extreme leniency.

Dr. Blessing was tried on indictments charging conspiracy and bribery in connection with certain measures up for passage before the new municipal governors.

Fresh Discovery of an Old Truth.

Helen's enjoyment of the party given in honor of her ninth birthday was nearly spoiled by the ill tempered outbreaks of a very pretty and well dressed little girl who was among her guests. A peacemaker appeared, however, in a plain and rather shabby child, who proved herself a veritable little angel of tact and good will.

After her playmates were gone Helen talked it all over very seriously with her mother. She summed it up in this piece of philosophical wisdom:

Salt and Health.

Few persons understand the therapeutic value of salt. A little salt in one's drinking water is "good medicine." Salt applications to the skin are wonderfully soothing and wholesome. There is nothing better as a wash for the throat and the nasal passages to prevent or to cure catarrhal troubles than a solution of common salt in plain water—the cheapest remedy one can find. Many persons give their eyes a daily bath of cold salt water with satisfactory results.

The Married Voice.

A dramatic critic has been saying that our most accomplished players cannot reproduce on the stage the "married voice," even when they are married. There is a peculiar domestic note—used at home—which cannot get over the footlights and was never meant for publicity.—London Chronicle.

NAVAL FIGHT IN NICARAGUA

Madriz Cruiser Venus Reported to Have Sunk Estrada Gunboat.

Bluefields, Nicaragua, May 21.—A report received from Greytown tonight says that the Madriz cruiser Venus sank the Estrada gunboat Ometepe off Punta Gorda late today. The crew of the Ometepe numbered 100 men and all are reported drowned or killed by the fire from the Venus. When the Venus was driven from Bluefields by the United States gunboat Paducah the Ometepe went in pursuit. The Venus was ordered back to Bluefields by Madriz and it is supposed then met the Estrada boat.

The encounter between the two boats is believed to have been accidental, despite the fact that the Ometepe started in pursuit. According to reports received here the plan was for the Ometepe to keep the Madriz boat in sight until the arrival of the steamer Utstein from New Orleans, when an atack on the Venus would be made

DONATED MUCH TO CHARITY

Bank Official Pleads Guilty to Stealing $370,000.

Worcester, Mass., May 21.—After a plea of guilty to an indictment charging the larceny of $104,000 from the South Bridge Savings bank and a subsequent recital of his disposal by gifts to charity and to relatives and by bad investments of a sum of money which he estimated at $370,000, John A. Hall, defaulting treasurer of the bank, was sentenced to serve not less than twelve nor more than fifteen years in the state prison.

Although he kept no record Hall said he estimated the total amount of his stealings at about $370,000.

BARRACKS ARE DESTROYED

Explosion Kills and Injures Many at Pinar del Rio, Cuba.

Havana, May 20.—Two almost simultaneous explosions of dynamite, supposed to aggregate 3,000 pounds, completely demolished the rural guard barracks in the city of Pinar del Rio. About thirty-five persons were killed and twice that number injured.

Most of the dead were rural guards, but the entire families of several of the officers of the rural guard were killed also, as well as several employes of the public works department and residents of the city, on which fell a deluge of masonry and debris from the wrecked building.

It is almost certain that the explosion resulted from the accidental fall of a case of dynamite from the hands of an employe of the public works department, who, with others, was loading upon wagons seventy-two cases of the explosive, which was to be transferred from the barracks to the government magazine in this city.

Freaks of Language.

A peculiar kind of blundering known as "folk etymology" is responsible for some of the queerest freaks of language. An easy example will make this clear. Our American word "carryall" for a kind of vehicle is not a compound of "carry" and "all," but a slight distortion of the French "carriole," a diminutive car. The change was made in obedience to the universal tendency to assimilate the unknown to the known, to make words mean something by associating them with others which they resemble in sound. Often there is no etymological relation between the words associated, as when sparrowgrass is made out of asparagus. This particular corruption was once in such good colloquial use that Walker, the lexicographer, wrote, "Sparrowgrass is so general that asparagus has an air of stiffness and pedantry."

His Critic.

What astonishes the visiting Briton most is the manner in which every kind of immigrant to the United States adapts himself to the prevailing ideas about Englishmen. In the course of conversation with the noble Italian who condescends to brighten shoes the visitor informed the bootblack that he was an Englishman—and Englishmen had a great respect for Italians and had entertained Garibaldi in grand style.

"Inglees! Ha, ha! Inglees!" said Diego in soft, musical tones. "Ha! They spic no good. Dey droppa da hlatch!"—Exchange.

A Horse on a airship cruise.

It has been said and justly, that wonders never cease—for each day brings to notice something new—but it has been left to the proprietors of the large circuses to scheme and plan, invent and produce novel features that are beyond the wildest dreams of the imagination, and to accomplish the seeming impossible.

When the airship was recently perfected it was thought that the ingenuity of man could devise nothing greater than to make the air navigable—but it was left for Dode Fisk to accomplish a still greater wonder, that of sending a horse on a cruise in an airship.

It is beyond human belief that this is done—but one has only to witness this most sensational of the world's greatest triumph of wonders to be convinced.

Mercury, the Airship horse, Aviating Equine Feature with the great Dode Fisk Shows, makes a sensational ascension twice daily with bewildering pyrotechnic display, making this the most extraordinary feature ever presented by an amusement Organization in America.

The Great Dode Fisk Shows will exhibit afternoon and evening at Thief River Falls, Friday, June 10th.

KEEPING PROMISES.

In no work is there greater need for keeping promises both in the spirit and the letter than in connection with farm trasactions. The business farmer whose "word is as good as his bond" is the one who has the confidence of his neighbors and is locked up to with respect by all.

The keeping of promises in business transactions is the "sheet anchor" in the establishing of credit world of business places a great deal word of business places a great deal of value on promises. The bank note is a written promise. It says on its face, "I promise to pay." This same promise is found on the United States issues of bank notes, on the face of which is a promise clearly stated.

Not only in business transactions but in the every-day life the keeping of a promise should be looked after with great care. Whatever you do keep your promise. The man who breaks his promise even in little things is pretty sure to break them in larger things.

It is a good plan when making a promise as to dates to jot it down in a memorandum book so that no mistake can be made. When a promise is made to meet a party at a certain place, such a promise should be kept the same as when it involves the payment of money. It is a question of debt and the obligation is not cancelled until the debt is paid.

That man whose promise can be relied on is the one whose influence is far reaching in the community in which he lives. The home is the place above all others where a promise should be fulfilled.

Deer Park Nubbins.

Ljot Segurdson transacted business at Plummer last Friday.

Matt Bakken has been assisting Knut Syversrud this week.

Everybody up our way is busy breaking and getting groud ready for flax.

George Singer transacted business at Sunbeam and other points Monday.

The recent spell of cold weather has kept the early seeded grain on a stand still for several days.

Chas. W. Johnson was a pleasant caller here last Sunday. Chas. kind of apologised for having an overcoat on.

Mike Kalski, finished seeding his flax last Friday and next week he will assist Knut Olson to break for flax.

J. A. Duffy, the Red Lake Falls banker, and another eastern gentleman were looking over the country here last week.

Charles W. Johnson and Edward Singer transacted business at Plummer and Thief River Falls last Thursday and Friday.

Thomas Rome finished seeding last Saturday. Tom believes in diversified farming, as he also has a large bunch of cows.

John Gunderson from Lillo came over last Friday with his sister Marget whom he left at T. G. Rome's where she will visit for some time.

It has been a stand off between the rain and jack frost for the past week, but the latter won out on the last round on Sunday morning and left a streak of snow.

Ole Skreland was out walking kind of late last Saturday night and on his way home he saw the so much talked of comet, in the western sky the tail could plainly be seen.

There was a swell social party at the home of Mrs. S. B. Swanson last Sunday, and those present from here were, Ole Skreland, Anna Rust, Victor Lindholm, Christine Skeie and Rose and Lillian Swanson. A good time was reported.

Soporific.

"I heard one man," said the playwright, "who attended the premiere of my new play last night complain that it was so late when he got out."

"Yes?" queried the critic.

"Yes, and yet the final curtain fell before 10:45."

"Ah, perhaps he overslept himself!"
—Catholic Standard and Times.

Making a Lawn.

On his English tour an American was admiring the velvety smoothness of a certain sward, and, being possessed of land and an overpowering confidence that with money all things are possible, he asked the head gardener how to produce such a lawn. And the gardener said: "It's easy enough, sir. All you need do is to remove all the stones, plow up the ground, plant it with grass seed and roll it for 800 years."

To Vote on Division.

Governor Eberhardt last Tuesday issued a proclamation calling for a vote at the general election next fall on the question of dividing the present Red Lake County and of the north portion forming a new county to be known as Pennington. The proclamation states that Thief River Falls is to be the county seat in case the proposition carries and that the first board of commissioners will consist of Peter C. Wold, Peter Hedeen, Ed. A. Aubold, Daniel Shaw and Olaf Larson. If the proposition carries Minnesota will have eighty-six counties.

Discover coal near Warroad

While drilling for water on the farm of A. M. Landby, up near Warroad, last week, a hard ledge was encountered, and as Mr. Landby desired to go to a greater depth dynamite was used. After the explosion the pump was started, and in the debris pumped up was found a large percentage of black rock, which, upon examination and test, proved to be good hard coal. The particles which were about the size of a hickory nut were put on the fire and burned like coal.

The ledge is estimated to be of considerable thickness, but as to its extent nothing can be known as yet.

A REST ROOM.

Not long ago a Farmer's Wife passed here on her way to Thief River Falls to do some shopping. She said it was a perfect dread for she got so tired and did not know where to go to rest.

The thot came to my mind that a rest room centrally located would be a very nice thing. A nice place where a farmer's wife may go and feel she has a right to. Where she can leave her baby with an older sister or brother, where she can wash and strighten up after a long and tiresome ride, where she can leave her extra wraps and her parcels and have a cup of tea or coffee if she likes.

You say, "What about the hotels?" They really afford little rest as the rattling of dishes, slaming of doors the rush and bustle of people, walking and talking can always be heard.

As a rule a farmer's wife has to get her work done up so she can stay away a day or two, then a long ride and she is tired out before she begins shopping. She is really too tired to look around and get the things she really wants; she buys anything that will answer the purpose, then comes home and is dissatisfied, she did not get what she wanted and she

I know a town in our state where thinks, Thief River Falls is a poor place to trade.
such a rest room was established, it being furnished by subscriptions from Citizens and business people of the town. This room was in charge of a woman who made it homelike, a boon to the women folks who come to town to trade and attend fairs and other celebrations. This room was especially fitted out for children with baby swings and other nice things for youngsters while the Mother had at their disposal all modern conveniences in the dressing room line.

Would not such a room be a nice thing for Thief River Falls, as well as the farmer's wives?

Are YouA Booster?

The Value of Land.

Now as to the value of our lands: How much is your farm worth per acre? Well, you say that improved lands are selling for about $60 per acre in your vicinity. But does that answer the question. How much is your farm worth per acre, or how much is it worth to you? The true way to estimate the value of a business is to figure out the net income from the investiment. If your neighbor's farm sells for $60 per acre and you are able to realize twice as much net income per acre on your land as your neighbor can realize from his land, is it correct to say that your land is worth about $60 per acre.? If by keeping up the fertility of the soil, in fact, actually increasing it, by engaging in dairying, you are able to get twice as much as the farmer who has neglected to do this isn't your farm worth many times over what his farm is worth.

What constitutes the value of farming land, anyway? Is it the price for which neighboring land is sold, or does its true value lie in its ability to produce profit for its owner? What does it matter what neighboring land is selling for, anyway, as long as you live upon your farm and look for returns only in the way of profit? You may have a little more pride in your farm when your neighbor is able to sell his land at a high price but that does not effect the net income from your farm a little bit: As long as you live upon that farm it is worth to you a certain price per acre, that price depending entirely upon the ability of the farm to produce net results. It is the productive value which is of greatest importance then and not the price which the real estate dealer sees fit to place upon it.

The owner of a farm in the northwest, therefor, has control over the value of his land. Anything he can do to increase the net income upon the farm makes it worth more to him. Dairying will increase the fertility of the soil and increase the profits from the farm, providing it is propely carried on. If you want to increase the value of your farm, (to you particuarly) breed good dairy cows, give them plenty of the right kind of feed and take good care of them.—N. W. Agriculturist.

Fires During 1909.

There were 6,168 fires in Minnesota during 1909, according to the third annual report of State Fire Marshal Edward Peterson. Of this number 863 were in the Twin Cities, 231 in St. Paul and 542 in Minneapolis. Duluth had 126 fires. The total loss during the year including the conflagration at Chisholm in 1908, was $14,000-000. Defective flues caused 105 fires, the greatest number from any one cause, while childerd playing with matches caused fourty-eight.

A Settler Proposes a New Holiday.

What about starting a movement for an organization of a Home-steaders Day. We have a day set aside for all occurances of any consequence that we wish to take it in history, and we honor and respect them accordingly as the day comes. Now what could be more appropriate than to set aside a day to celebrate, in honor of the real home-steaders. We are doing a great injustice to them if we do not, as the real home-standers like our old soldiers are fast leaving us. We must remember that durning the progress of civilization they fought side by side with our soldiers during the early colonization of our states and territories. It was the early homesteaders that blazed the way through the forests, and left their paths o'er the endless plains toward the setting sun and the soldiers guarded the march, and fought battle upon battle to keep their ground; but it was the home steaders that worked and toiled in the meantime felling the forests as they went and dotting the plains with their sod shanties and log cabins from coast to coast. They shared as equals in hardships and gave their life blood freely for our country's sake and Old Glory, and they helped to plant the stars and stripes upon our Freedom's Flag, but who got the honor, The Soldiers. This, however, is not the only reason why we should celebrate a day in honor of the real homesteaders. Their desendents have a claim upon all parts of history that their father's and mother's were participants in and also to any incidents leading there to, and this can onyl be secured and preserved thru organization. We believe that it could be best done by taking it up as a local matter, and say that each township formed an organization of its own, in this it would be more apt to become active and there is no question, but in course of a little time that it will become general. As an observance for the homesteaders day, we could have speeches and stories of pioneer days, and to make it real, the mid-day meal should be prepared over a camp fire. The day should be spent very enjoyably. A committee should be selected to gather up the history of each individual homesteader, and the early settlement of their respective towns, and then this could be published in book form with the photo's of the parties concerned. and the history the history of their lives which will be very interesting reading matter for the old homesteaders to get together again and live over in their thoughts and talk of the early pioneer days. Shall we grant them this day of joy or shall we let them pass away, all forgotten? (with the exception of a very few.) No give them their dues and let us honor and respect them as equals with our soldiers. History will never be complete with out them.

Will not remove officials.

A. A. Latendresse and C. A. Lindquist, members of the board of county commissioners of Red Lake County will not be required to answer to the charges of malfeasance in office.

This was the decision made by Governor Eberhardt after considering the complaint filed by Anton Shaefer, public examiner. Governor Eberhart has decided that to ask for a hearing would be useless formality.

The charges alleged that money belonging to the ditch fund had been used in constructing county buildings contrary to law. As soon as the matter was called to the attention of the board members the funds were transferred back to the ditch fund. A site for a court house was bought on auditors warrants on legal advice. The governor finds that there was no intention to violate the law.

"I am advised that officers elected by the people should not be removed for errors of judgment, but only for willful intention to violate or ignore the law," said the Governor.

The return of Populism.

Louis Hanson of Ada, representing the Ada Milling Company spent a part of last week here. He is one of the men that started the Minnesota Insurgency in the good old days of Ignatius Donnelly and S. M. Owen, when the insurgency took the form of Populism and threatened the destruction of the dominant party. He was the chairman of the executive committee of the populist Party in the 1892 campaign. He is one among 10,000 who today willingly pay tribute to the greatness of these two men; the Sage of Ninninger and S. M. Owen. One among the many that can see that it is but a reappearance of that same wave of advanced ideas that is returning under the name of Insurgency. These pioneers who occupied places as leaders and blazed the way are gone; but the wave of advanced thought they set in motion although crushed to earth for a time only rise again when the people are more ripe for these advanced ideas. Mr. Hanson delights to recount the interesting reminiscences of those days when all the combined influence of the daily press hurled their shafts of ridicule at at the great leaders, at first as it were throwing acid into their faces, and in subsequent campaigns they changed tactics and bombarded the weaker part, the rank and file, by jest and ridicule till they returned to the feet of their humiliators to again become a part of the plutocratic party.

No History of the state can leave out the part they played in the stormy days a decade ago. To the student the influence of their aggitation on the minds of the people are bearing fruit in the banishment of the extreme partisanship that characterized the populist struggle.—Mahnomen Free Press.

Political Announcement

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the district.

Ada, Minn., May 3rd., 1910.
A. L. Hanson.

Every blind vote is a boost for socialism.

One of our North Dakota exchanges tells the following: A man cancelled his subscription to the paper by refuseing it at the post office, and left the country, owing the editor over three dollars. Recently the scribe was greatly astounded to receive a letter from the delinquent in which was enclosed the amount of his debt He said he had been converted at a revival meeting and felt in duty bound to pay the old bill. The editor is under the impression that this old subscriber got the right brand of religion.

Is this continual graft exposure a menance to our Republicism? Hardly, if it arouses the average voter sufficiently to start his thinking machine working. Is it not time the citizen stopped blindly voting party tickets straight because his father did so, or because he had the make up and represented himself as as a tiller of the soil; or because he was a good orator and had a large amount of personal magnetism. How long will you continue putting men in business that you would not trust with your own. When a man cannot succeed for himself or be a success when working for individuals is it common sense that he is a good man to put in charge of your public power to run your commonwealth's affairs.

Our own Senator, Knute Nelson doesn't appear to have as clean a set of shirts as he might. Is there not a possibility that he figured in the Ballinger investigation and the action he was forced to take, when he announced that he would not again be a candidate for the senatorship. The people have honored him greatly, yet he does not seem to consider it worth while to keep faith with them. Rather does he seem to have figured that the good will, and what goes with it, of the unscrupulous capitalists are worth more. All thru the investigation he has shown where his sympathies were and several little things have made it apppear that it may have been profitable, considering the word in a certain sense, for him to side that way. His countryfied appearance has gone along way towards keeping a place for him in the hearts of the people but all things become weatherbeaten in time.

Did old Johnson err when he said mankind disliked to think? The doctor sometimes was peevish. Man objects to being fed exclusively with thought and knowledge. He craves also laughter and tears; comedy and tragedy; adventure and surprise; sport, comfort, and consolation. He can not live only for the higher satisfactions, but these he is fairly willing to include. This militant weekly of ours, for example, may be taken as a gage of what the public will endure. We have 117,000 more subscribers than we had twelve months ago. Had we used the same energy in exploting facts that could not personally offend a human being—pretty actresses, the size of our country, gossip of the prominent, how to get rich, stories of poor lads rescuing trains and marrying daughters of employers—we could have increased our circulation probably twice as fast; but would it have been worth the doing? We live but once, and it is preferable not to make all the money possible, but to do as much good as each of us can afford. Journalism, no longer a private business, is a public function; but life generally, ought it also not to be considered something of a trust? It is a flashing moment we are on this earth, and the brevity becomes bare if we put into it nothing that helps our fellow-beings. Faith is a cardinal virtue, and charity a greater, but the English word charity ill conveys the thought: it means spirit of love and effort which is faith expressed in deed. We are poor at these preachings, but would fain express the belief that cheap success is easily obtained, with reasonable advantage and ability but that also moderate worldly prosperity may be combined with methods and pursuits which are worth the expenditure of the precious, fleeting years.—Colliers Weekly.

One hears all kinds of rumors concerning politics this time of the year. and one should not be surprised at anything. New developments take place ,new combinations are made, to the advantage of some and to the disadvantage of others. What benefits one, naturally proves another man's loss. For years Red Lake has been divided within itself over the location of the court house What one end of the county has advocated the other has opposed, with the result that neither have secured anything politically. This difference, it is told, has now been patched up and this year Red Lake county will present a united front and has decided to ask for the house member from the 61st district. It is said Clearwater county joins in the deal, which politically should mean nomination, as the two counties together had a male voting population of 4133, while Beltrami county had only 3189 in 1908. While our county has grown considerably in two years yet we cannot hope to have outstripped the two other counties that make up our district to the extent of having overcome their majority. Beltrami county then would therefore have but little to say in the selection of a house members. Of course we can put up a man, and if he proves a good runner he might outstrip his opponent in the other parts of the district. Beltrami County is a big factor in the fight yet. The man spoken of as the probable candidate is Audrew Hanson of Lillo, near Clearwater river in Red Lake county. See the point.—Bemidji Sentinel.

WHY IS IT

As we passed along the street on a recent Sunday we counted twenty-seven young men, most of them in their teens, just budding into manhood, loitering their time away. As we looked into their faces, many of them lighted up by the beacon rays of a poor cigar or the pernicious cigarette, we recognize them as young men blessed wth comfortable homes, indulgent parents and loving sisters. We ask ourselves, why is it? Why do these young men perfer the unclean resorts, comfortless streets and mixed society, to the upholstered chair, the pleasant and comfortable surroundings of the family circle at home? Who can answer? Dare we charge the parents in a degree responsible for this state of affairs? Are these things as they would have them? Do you shut up your homes lest the sun should fade your earpets, and your heart lest a laugh should shake down a few of the musty old cobwebs that are hanging there? If you want to ruin your sons let them think that all social enjoyment must be left at the threshold when they come home. When once a home is regarded as only a suitable place to eat, drink and sleep in, the work is begun that ends in gambling houses and reckless degradation. Better let the fire burn brightly in the winter and the doors be thrown open in summer and make the homestead delightful with all those little arts that parents so well understand. Half an hour of merriment within doors, and merriment of a home blots out the remembrance of many care and annoyance during the day, and the best safeguard that can be take with them into the world is the unseeninfluence of a bright little home sanctum. Let parents ponder over these few suggestions.

We often think, when sorrow's heavy mantle is thrown over us, that life is all shadows. Do we ever find it so? Ah no! As the golden rays of heavens' own light shine from behind the clouds after a storm, so does the light of God's countenance shine back of the clouds of sorrow and gives a peaceful soothing, calm to the tired heart. However deep the wound and fierce the conflict, sooner or later we realize that "He knoweth best, and doeth all things well."

Mothers, how do you rule? By love or the much and often unwisely used rod? Is it love to rule so that the child is obedient through fear of you? Be more patient Give a word of commendation, kindly little smile when your boy does the best he can. He will remember it in after years and, sitting by his own fireside, with his little ones around him, will tell them of his mother, who was ever ready to smile away the clouds and make his little heart swell with gladness.

It is estimated that the fruit crop of the Yakima country in Washington this year will load forty-five miles of freight cars. The land that will produce this fruit was a desert about ten years ago. It is a help to Washington to have this fact announced definitely.

Minnesota has no desert places but she has acres of rich lad that require drainage to make them a great asset to the State, and she has large areas of rich soil that need clearing to add to this asset. These lands should be made ready for cultivation.

Minnesota needs a throughly organized work along this line. A State bureau on the Kansas plan, which would not cost to exceed $25-000 a year, would keep the people informed as to conditions in each county.

It is sound principle to know what one is dong in business. As a State, we should know our condition. The Journal would like to see an agricultural bureau established on a $25,000 basis by the next Legislature, to work in conjunction with the Agriccultural School. We should know what each county is doing as to all industries, and what the possibilities would be in each county, were the respective areas made ready for cultivation.— Minneapolis Journal.

Honesty and decency pay, and the International Poster Printers' Association will not, we are sure, have any occasion to regret the resolution it has adopted at the Cincinnati convention. Still, the fact that the action may be an example of enlightened selfishness does not detract anything from its virtuous, praiseworthy quality.
praiseworty qualities.
"go" from the billboard. It is desreed that the laws of propriety and taste extend to the theatrical poster. What newspapers would exclude poster printers will not pass henceforth.

A committee has been appointed to rule on posters to which objection is taken. It is to be hoped that objections will be freely invited, and that the excellent resolution will not peter out inpractice through division of responsibility and indiflerence of subordinates.

We do not doubt the convention "meant business" in repudiating the nasty, licentious poster and deciding to reform it. Let the indivdual printers now systematically suit their conduct to the spirt and letter of their collective pledge to the gratified nation.

BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS.

By Dr. David Roberts.

Bovine Tuberculosis is costing the United States millions of dollars yearly, not through the actual death of tubercular animals but by the tubercular animals infecting the healthy ones, thereby reducing their actual value.

If all of the tubercular cattle in the United States were slaughtered at once, the balance of the cattle would be worth more than the tubercular and healthy animals together.

It is every man's duty, in justice to himself, to determine positively that his herd is free from tuberculosis. Wiping tuberculosis out of the cattle of this country is too large a problem for a handful of people to undertake and for this reason I contend that we will never wipe tuberculosis out of the cattle of our country until the live stock owners are given the proper infoamation, both concerning the nature of bovine tuberculous and the tuberculin test. When this information reaches the live stock owner, I am sure that he will be more anxious to wipe tuberculosis out of his herd than any one else owing to the fact that he is financially interested and he and his family first of all are consumers of the products of his cattle.

Supposing those who do not believe that there is such a thing asbovine tuberculosis or a reliable tuberculin test apply this simple, harmless test to their herd and if they find that there are animals in their herd that have reacted to the test, have such animals plaeed in one stable and those that passed the test, indicating that they are free from tuberculosis placed in another stable, keeping for their own use the product of the ones that have reacted and pronounced tubercular, and putting upon the market the products of these that have according to this test passed and found free from tuberculosis.

Live stock breeders, think this over carefully and be fair with yourself.

A Washington dispatch says that President Taft will, at the proper moment, write a letter to some prominent republican in the First Minnesota district indoseing Jas. A. Tawney in the same manner in which he has just indorsed Representative Smith of Iowa. Mr. Taft evidently believes that "one good turn deserves another."—Princeton Union.

MOTHS IN THE HOUSE.

Moths are a serious menance to furs, feathers and woolen goods during May, June, July, August and September. The Entomological division of the state department of agriculture advises shaking or brushing articles of clothing on with eggs, visible with the naked eye, are found and then storing them in air tight receptacles. When carefully packed in such receptacles put a ew ounces of carbon bisulphide into a saucer-shaped dish and set it on top of the goods, closing the cover tightly. Don't open for several days. In a week or ten days later a second fumigation may take place. The carbon bisulphide vapor is fatal to insect life, but as its effect on the eggs is not so certain two or three such fumigations during the summer are advised. The carbon bisulphide vapor is heavier tha air, will penetrate everything in the box, and is not injurious to garments. It is explosive and no artificial light or matches should be used near it. It may be purchased of drugggists in pint cans.

Camphor, napthaline, moth balls and cedar wood are only repellants. They do not destroy insects nor eggs Closets, attics and other out of the way places are prolific breeding attack by moths should never be stored in them.

As a result of the systematic advertising which Canada is doing, and has been doing for a number of years past, that country is attracting a large number of farmers from the western states, says Daniel J. Keefe, commissioner general of immigration. No reason whatever is apparent why farmers should flock to Canada when they can secure land which is much more fertile in this country. Take northern Minnesota, for instance. There is no more productive soil on the face of the earth. But Canada

The Prison Mirror, published at the Stillwater prison, bemoans the fact that no real and genuinely trained editor is sent there, to help get out the issue. The writer makes himself quite facetious over the preachers, doctors, bankers and lawyers, of whom there seems to be an over-abundance there, and he naturally wonders why no editors ever are sent there. Of course the case is a little over-drawn, as everybody knows the editor is as mortal as anyone and if he does not get into jail it must be because he is not found out.

MANY ARE ASKED

Progressives and Regulars Invited to Meet Roosevelt.

DESIRES TO HEAR BOTH SIDES

Ex-President Will Go Deep Into Party Differences.

Washington, May 31.—Letters from Colonel Roosevelt have been received by many members of congress in the last few days asking them to meet him in Oyster Bay immediately after his return to the United States. These letters have come to progressives and regulars alike and to members of both houses who have been closely identified with legislative and political matters in the present and former sessions of congress.

It is apparent from the character of the letters received in Washington that the former president desires to discuss in detail the legislative and political developments of the last year with the men identified with every phase of affairs in congress. He has not swerved thus far from his determination to refrain from public utterances upon American politics until his return to this country.

There is every reason to believe that an endorsement of either side of the Republican factional controversy will be forthcoming from Mr. Roosevelt after his return to America. His earliest speeches will be those made on his Western trip, when he will speak at Cheyenne, Wyo.; Kansas City, Chicago, St. Paul and other points.

ROOSEVELT AND ROOT MEET

Former President and Senator Confer In London.

London, May 31. — Ex-President Roosevelt has had an opportunity to hear something of affairs in the United States. By appointment he met Senator Elihu Root, who is passing through London on his way to The Hague. Mr. Roosevelt and his former secretary of state had a long talk at Ambassador Reid's residence, Dorchester House. Asked later what interesting subject kept them together for so long a time Mr. Roosevelt laughingly replied:

"This is one of the cases in which I must observe my usual reticence."

Mr. Roosevelt made a call on Mrs. Humphrey Ward, with whom he took tea. He dined with Lord Charles Beresford, whose guests included many prominent members of the Unionist party. Ambassador Reid also was present, as were Admiral Sir Edward Hobart Seymour, Admiral Sir Girard Noel, Vice Admiral Sir Hedworth Lambton, Lord Roberts, Lord Alverstone and Lord Rothschild.

SERIOUS FLOODS IN NORWAY

Unusually Hot Spring Responsible for High Water.

Christiania, May 27.—The extraordinary heat during the spring months has melted the snow on the mountains in the interior, causing a flooding of the lakes and rivers far beyond the record established in 1860. The situation at several places is critical, especially at Lillestromment, near Skedsmo, where the streets are submerged to the first floors of the buildings.

M. Braenne, minister of public works, is now engaged in inspecting the city in a motor boat. Floating timber endangers the bridges over many rivers. At Fetsund 360,000 pieces are afloat and it is feared that the railway bridge will be damaged. The question of state assistance has been submitted to the storthing.

HAD CREW OF TWENTY-SEVEN

French Submarine Boat Pluviose Sunk In a Collision.

London, May 27.—A telegram received at the admiralty says that a French submarine was rammed and sunk in the English channel by a mail boat running between Calais and Dover. All on board were drowned.

The name of the foundered submarine was Pluviose. Her crew numbered twenty-seven men, all of whom were lost.

The submarine was sunk by the Calais-Dover ferryboat Pas de Calais two miles northwest of Calais.

The Pluviose sank in 160 feet of water.

The crew had no chance for escape, as their craft plunged to the bottom in the moment of collision.

DEFEATED IN THE SENATE

Cummins Amendment to Railroad Bill Voted Down.

Washington, May 27.—The Cummins amendment to the railroad bill prohibiting the increasing of rates by railroads until they have been declared by the interstate commerce commission to be just and reasonable, was defeated by the senate by a vote of 29 to 43.

Justice Moody May Retire.

Washington, May 27.—Reports are being circulated in Washington to the effect that Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Moody, who has been ill for the past six months, will retire from the bench.

PROFESSOR KOCH.

Noted Bacteriologist a Victim of Heart Disease.

PROFESSOR KOCH IS DEAD

Noted German Bacteriologist Victim of Heart Disease.

Baden Baden, May 28.—Professor Robert Koch, the famous bacteriologist, died here from heart disease. He was born at Klausthal, Hanover, Dec. 11, 1843.

Professor Koch became distinguished as an investigator of micro-organisms, but probably gained most renown as the discoverer of the bacilli of tuberculosis and cholera.

Professor Koch received decorations from the German and French governments for his discoveries. He visited the United States in 1908 and attended the international tuberculosis conference in Philadelphia.

DEWEY WAS SCUTTLED

Sinking of Drydock Believed to Be Work of Enemies.

Manila, May 31.—Further examination of the United States drydock Dewey, which is partly submerged at Olongapo, has strengthened the belief of those in the navy who have held that the damage was done deliberately by a band of conspirators against the government.

However, it is now learned that the valves had not been opened, as first declared, though they were found to have been leaking a little. This leakage would not have caused the trouble and the dock sank more rapidly than would have been the case had all the valves been opened and no other opening made.

Accordingly, the experts believe that a large hole will be found in the port side or bottom of the dock. It is probable that the mystery will not be cleared until the dock has been raised.

RESOLUTIONS ARE ADOPTED

Close of Convention of Attorneys General at St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 28.—At its closing session the convention of attorneys general adopted resolutions protesting against the interference by federal courts of inferior jurisdiction with the enforcement of state laws and insisting that the Fourteenth amendment shall not restrict the Eleventh amendment.

Also that the state supreme courts have original jurisdiction in certain peremptory proceedings.

The simplification of court procedure to expedite the trial and disposition of causes is recommended.

Urged that all expenditures incident to a state's legal business be intrusted to the attorney general.

LORIMER DENIES CHARGES

Brands as False Accusations of Corruption.

Washington, May 29.—Strenuous denial of the charge that he had obtained his seat in the United States senate through bribery and corruption was made before that body by William Lorimer of Illinois.

Foremost in the answer of the senator to the charge stood his assertion that it had been formulated by the Chicago Tribune with the purpose of destroying a new banking association in that city which Mr. Lorimer has organized.

REVOLT PROBABLY ENDED

Nicaraguan Government Troops Defeat Rebels.

Bluefields, Nicaragua, May 28.—The government forces, under cover of the fire of the gunboat San Jacinto, routed the insurgents and captured Bluefields bluff. This loss to the Estrada forces probably ends the revolution.

General Estrada takes his defeat at Bluefields calmly. He says he intends to make further resistance.

Cotton Mills Closing Down.

Fall River, Mass., May 28.—Nearly all of the cotton mills here will be shut down from today until June 6 to curtail the output. About 20,000 operatives will be affected.

PLEASURE TRIP ENDS FATALLY

Man and Woman Drowned In Lake Pokagema.

THEIR ROWBOAT CAPSIZES

Party of Four Thrown Into the Water and M. A. Hulvahill and Miss Ruth Backus Perish—Other Members of the Party Cling to the Boat and Drift Ashore—Girl's Fright Cause of Accident.

Ely, Minn., May 31.—A pleasure trip by four young people of this city ended fatally for two, M. A. Hulvahill and Miss Ruth Bachus drowning in Lake Pokagema when a rowboat in which they were seated overturned in rough water.

The other members of the party, Harley Caldwell and Miss Anna Becker, clung to the overturned boat and drifted ashore, a short distance from the scene of the accident. Miss Becker was overcome by the excitement and the effect of the cold water, but recovered in a few hours.

A large party is dragging the lake in rowboats, but, owing to its extreme depth, it being in many places 200 feet deep, it is not expected that they will be immediately successful.

It was Miss Bachus' fright at the big waves that caused the accident. When the white caps tossed over the gunwales she stood up in the boat and screamed. She lost her balance, and the craft was capsized. Her home is in Big Rapids, Mich. She was a teacher in the Forest Lake school here. Mulvahill was manager of a bottling works in this village. His home is at Arnprior, Can.

Miss Viola Bachus, sister of the drowned girl, who is also a teacher in the schools here, was in Superior, Wis., visiting. When she returned home and learned of the accident she became hysterical, and her life is despaired of.

KILLED BY A FINLANDER

Minnesota Settler Shot Through the Heart.

Duluth, May 31.—Joe Dillon, aged forty-five years, was shot and instantly killed at his homestead near Hibbing by a Finlander whose name has not yet been learned. The news was learned when Dillon's wife arrived at Hibbing and notified the authorities of the murder. Deputy Coroner Butchart immediately left for the scene and returned with the body.

According to the story told by the woman the Finlander entered Dillon's place, where it is alleged that he has been conducting a "blind pig." She says that the visitor insulted her and it was resented. Her husband drew a revolver and threatened to shoot the alleged intruder. The Finlander also was armed and, getting the drop on Dillon, shot him through the heart, killing him instantly. The woman is held by the authorities pending the coroner's inquest.

DECISION IS UNPOPULAR

Referee Calls McFarland-Welsh Fight a Draw.

London, May 31.—Packey McFarland of Chicago and Freddie Welsh, the British lightweight champion, fought a twenty-round draw before the National Sporting club. The fight was for a purse of $6,500 and a side bet of $1,000.

McFarland had much the better of the bout. He led all the way, knocking his opponent against the ropes repeatedly and forcing the fighting in every round.

The verdict of the referee was received with much hostility. Welsh was the favorite at the opening of the contest at 7 to 4, but before the fight was half over the sympathy of the crowd was wholly with the American.

Dorothy Russell Elopes.

San Francisco, May 31.—That Dorothy Russell, daughter of Lillian Russell, the actress, eloped six weeks ago with Robin W. Dunsmuir, son of Lieutenant Governor Dunsmuir of British Columbia, and that the couple are now living in Mazatan, is the report brought here by the steamship San Juan, which arrived from Central American ports.

Heavy Damage by Fires.

Winnipeg, May 31.—Immense forest fires have been raging the past six weeks around Lesser Slave lake in the Peace river country. Millions of dollars' damage has already been done, and unless the fires soon are under control the timber districts in that region will be wiped out before many weeks.

Old Settler Dead.

St. Paul, May 31.—Mrs. Jane De Bow Gibbs, widow of the late Herman R. Gibbs and the oldest white settler in the state of Minnesota, died at the family homestead, Rose Town, at the age of eighty-two years. Death resulted from general physical breakdown incident to old age and was not unexpected.

A CALL LOAN.

Tale of Chaparral Banking and a Near Train Holdup.

By O. HENRY.

In those days the cattlemen were the anointed. They were the grandees of the grass, kings of the kine, lords of the lea, barons of beef and bone. They might have ridden in golden chariots had their tastes so inclined. The cattleman was caught in a stampede of dollars. It seemed to him that he had more money than was decent. But when he had bought a watch with precious stones set in the case so large that they hurt his ribs and a California saddle with silver nails and Angora skin suaderos and ordered everybody up to the bar for whisky—what else was there for him to spend money for?

Not so circumscribed in expedient for the reduction of surplus wealth were those lairds of the lariat who had women folk to their name. In the breast of the rib sprung sex the genius of purse lightening may slumber through years of inopportunity, but never, my brothers, does it become extinct.

"YOU ARE CARRYING ONE VERY BAD BIT OF PAPER."

So out of the chaparral came Long Bill Longley from the Bar Circle branch on the Frio—a wife driven man—to taste the urban joys of success. Something like half a million dollars he had, with an income steadily increasing.

Long Bill was a graduate of the camp and trail. Luck and thrift, a cool head and a telescopic eye for mavericks had raised him from cowboy to be a cowman. Then came the boom in cattle, and Fortune, stepping gingerly among the cactus thorns, came and emptied her cornucopia at the doorstep of the ranch.

In the little frontier city of Chaparosa Longley built a costly residence. Here he became a captive, bound to the chariot of social existence. He was doomed to become a leading citizen. He struggled for a time like a mustang in his first corral, and then he hung up his quirt and spurs. Time hung heavily on his hands. He organized the First National bank of Chaparosa and was elected its president.

One day a dyspeptic man, wearing double magnifying glasses, inserted an official looking card between the bars of the cashier's window of the First National bank. Five minutes later the bank force was dancing at the beck and call of a national bank examiner.

This examiner, Mr. J. Edgar Todd, proved to be a thorough one.

At the end of it all the examiner put on his hat and called the president, Mr. William R. Longley, into the private office.

"Well, how do you find things?" asked Longley in his slow, deep tones. "Any brands in the roundup you didn't like the looks of?"

"The bank checks up all right, Mr. Longley," said Todd, "and I find your loans in very good shape, with one exception. You are carrying one very bad bit of paper, one that is so bad that I have been thinking that you surely do not realize the serious position it places you in. I refer to a call loan of $10,000 made to Thomas Merwin. Not only is the amount in excess of the maximum sum the bank can loan any individual legally, but it is absolutely without indorsement or security. Thus you have doubly violated the national banking laws and have laid yourself open to criminal prosecution by the government. A report of the matter to the comptroller of the currency—which I am bound to make—would, I am sure, result in the matter being turned over to the department of justice for action. You see what a serious thing it is."

Bill Longley was leaning his lengthy, slowly moving frame back in his swivel chair. His hands were clasped behind his head, and he turned a little to look the examiner in the face. The examiner was surprised to see a smile creep about the rugged mouth of the banker and a kindly twinkle in his light blue eyes. If he saw the seriousness of the affair it did not show in his countenance.

"Of course you don't know Tom Merwin," said Longley almost genially. "Yes, I know about that loan. It hasn't any security except Tom Merwin's word. Somehow I've always found that when a man's word is good it's the best security there is. Oh, yes, I know the government doesn't think so. I guess I'll see Tom about that note."

Mr. Todd's dyspepsia seemed to grow suddenly worse. He looked at the chaparral banker through his double magnifying glasses in amazement.

"You see," said Longley, easily explaining the thing away, "Tom heard of 2,000 head of two-year-olds down near Rocky ford, on the Rio Grande, that could be had for $8 a head. I reckon 'twas one of old Leandro Garcia's outfits that he had smuggled over, and he wanted to make a quick turn on 'em. Those cattle are worth $15 on the hoof in Kansas City. Tom knew it, and I knew it. He had $6,000, and I let him have the $10,000 to make the deal with. His brother Ed took 'em on to market three weeks ago. He ought to be back most any day now with the money. When he comes Tom 'll pay that note."

The bank examiner was shocked. It was perhaps his duty to step out to the telegraph office and wire the situation to the comptroller. But he did not. He talked pointedly and effectively to Longley for three minutes. He succeeded in making the banker understand that he stood upon the border of a catastrophe, and then he offered a tiny loophole of escape.

"I am going to Hilldale's tonight," he told Longley, "to examine a bank there. I will pass through Chaparosa on my way back. At 12 o'clock tomorrow I shall call at this bank. If this loan has been cleared out of the way by that time it will not be mentioned in my report. If not I will have to do my duty."

With that the examiner bowed and departed.

The president of the First National lounged in his chair half an hour longer, and then he lit a mild cigar and went over to Tom Merwin's house. Merwin, a ranchman in brown duck, with a contemplative eye, sat with his feet upon a table, plaiting a rawhide quirt.

"Tom," said Longley, leaning against the table, "you heard anything from Ed yet?"

"Not yet," said Merwin, continuing his plaiting. "I guess Ed' ll be along back now in a few days."

"There was a bank examiner," said Longley, "nosing around our place today, and he bucked a sight about that note of yours. You know I know it's all right, but the thing is against the banking laws. I was pretty sure you'd have paid it off before the bank was examined again, but the son of a gun slipped in on us. Tom, I'm short of cash myself just now, or I'd let you have the money to take it up with. I've got till 12 o'clock tomorrow, and then I've got to show the cash in place of that note or"—

"Or what, Bill?" asked Merwin, as Longley hesitated.

"Well, I suppose it means be jumped on with both of Uncle Sam's feet."

"I'll try to raise the money for you on time," said Merwin, interested in his plaiting.

"All right, Tom," concluded Longley as he turned toward the door. "I knew you would if you could."

Merwin threw down his whip and went to the only other bank in town, a private one run by Cooper & Craig.

"Cooper," he said to the partner by that name, "I've got to have $10,000 today or tomorrow. I've got a house and lot here that's worth about $6,000, and that's all the actual collateral. But I've got a cattle deal on that's sure to bring me in more than that much profit within a few days."

HE WAS LIFTED FROM HIS FEET AND THROWN FACE DOWNWARD.

Cooper began to cough.

"Now, for God's sake don't say no," said Merwin. "I owe that much money on a call loan. It's been called, and the man that called it is a man I've lain on the same blanket with in cow camps and ranger camps for ten years. He can call anything I've got. He can call the blood out of my veins and it'll come. He's got to have the money. He's in a devil of a—well, he needs the money, and I've got to get it for him. You know my word's good, Cooper."

"No doubt of it," assented Cooper urbanely, "but I've a partner, you know. I'm not free in making loans. And even if you had the best security in your hands, Merwin, we couldn't accommodate you in less than a week. We're just making a shipment of $15,000 to Myer Bros., in Rockdell, to buy cotton with. It goes down on the narrow gauge tonight. That leaves our cash quite short at present. Sorry we can't arrange it for you."

Merwin went back to his little bare office and plaited at his quirt again. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon he went to the First National and leaned over the railing of Longley's desk.

"I'll try to get that money for you tonight—I mean tomorrow, Bill."

"All right, Tom," said Longley quietly.

At 9 o'clock that night Tom Merwin stepped cautiously out of the small frame house in which he lived. It was near the edge of the little town, and few citizens were in the neighborhood at that hour. Merwin wore two six-shooters in a belt and a slouch hat.

"WHAT'S THE WORD, ED?" GASPED MERWIN.

He moved swiftly down a lonely street and then followed the sandy road that ran parallel to the narrow gauge track until he reached the water tank, two miles below the town. There Tom Merwin stopped, tied a black silk handkerchief about the lower part of his face and pulled his hat down low.

In ten minutes the night train for Rockdell pulled up at the tank, having come from Chaparosa.

With a gun in each hand Merwin raised himself from behind a clump of chaparral and started for the engine. But before he had taken three steps two long, strong arms clasped him from behind, and he was lifted from his feet and thrown, face downward, upon the grass. There was a heavy knee pressing against his back and an iron hand grasping each of his wrists. He was held thus, like a child, until the engine had taken water and until the train had moved with accelerating speed out of sight. Then he was released and rose to his feet to face Bill Longley.

"The case never needed to be fixed up this way, Tom," said Longley. "I saw Cooper this evening, and he told me what you and him talked about. Then I went down to your house tonight and saw you come out with your guns on, and I followed you. Let's go back, Tom."

They walked away together side by side.

"'Twas the only chance I saw," said Merwin presently. "You called your loan, and I tried to answer you. Now what'll you do, Bill, if they sock it to you?"

"What would you have done if they'd socked it to you?" was the answer Longley made.

"I never thought I'd lay in a bush to stick up a train," remarked Merwin, "but a call loan's different. A call's a call with me. We've got twelve hours yet, Bill, before this spy jumps on to you. We've got to raise them spondulics somehow. Maybe we can— Great Sam Houston! Do you hear that?"

Merwin broke into a run, and Longley kept with him, hearing only a rather pleasing whistle somewhere in the night rendering the lugubrious air of "The Cowboy's Lament."

"It's the only tune he knows!" shouted Merwin as he ran. "I'll bet"—

They were at the door of Merwin's house. He kicked it open and fell over an old valise lying in the middle of the floor. A sunburned, firm jawed youth, stained by travel, lay upon the bed puffing at a brown cigarette.

"What's the word, Ed?" gasped Merwin.

"So so," drawled that capable youngster. "Just got in on the 9:30. Sold the bunch for fifteen straight. Now, buddy, you want to quit kickin' a valise around that's got $29,000 in greenbacks in its in'ards."

Ironclad Warships.

The idea of the ironclad warship is at least as old as the reign of Napoleon. It was suggested to Napoleon, patented in this country during the war of 1812 and suggested again later to the French government, but in each case failed to receive recognition. At the beginning of the Mexican war successful experiments were made with it under the auspices of the United States government, but again the matter was, strangely enough, allowed to drop. Shortly afterward, however, the French government finally took up the idea, and French ironclads in the Crimean war did good service against the Russian forts. But the battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac was the first real encounter between real ironclad ships.—New York American.

DAY GENERALLY OBSERVED

Exercises Held in Memory of Civil War Heroes.

St. Paul, May 31.—Memorial day was observed in St. Paul according to customs which have become fixed through nearly fifty years of annual repetition. The exercises of the forenoon were held in the various cemeteries of the city, where the graves of departed soldiers were decorated with flowers and flags.

The living soldiers were honored in the afternoon in a civic and military parade, which was perfect in every detail and which was witnessed and cheered by thousands along the line of march. Later in the afternoon memorial services were held at the Auditorium, where other thousands listened to an excellent programme of oratory, recitation and music—all of a patriotic character.

One feature of the day passed almost unnoticed. After the parade and while crowds were hurrying toward the Auditorium a little group of women guided a rowboat from Harriet Island to the center of the Mississippi and strewed the water with wild flowers in memory of the sailors who fought and died in the Civil war. The custom is common in seaport cities and on the Great Lakes, but Minnesota's contribution to the naval forces of the war was small.

The day was fittingly observed in cities and towns all over the country.

There Was No Duel.

Colonel Crisp when in the Missouri legislature was one of the central figures in a scene which promised bloodshed, which ended in a hearty laugh and which was the cause of an astounding remark from Hon. John W. Farriss, the then speaker, said Champ Clark. Crisp and another member got into a debate which grew into a quarrel. They shook their fists at each other and roared like a pair of Numidian lions. Everybody expected and many hoped to see a regular old fashioned knockdown and dragout fight, which expectation and hope were frustrated and dashed to the ground by Speaker Farriss remarking:

"If you gentlemen do not quit fussing and take your seats I will order the chaplain to take you into custody," which so amazed the bellicose legislators that they stood in a state of lingual paralysis, while the spectators laughed till they were red in the face. Humor saved the day.

How He Helped the Blind.

"Please help a blind man," said a fellow with green goggles as he held a tin cup toward the line of people issuing from the Union depot. "I always help the blind," said one of two young men who were passing, and he stopped and took out a five dollar bill. "Can you get a quarter out of this?" "I guess so," said the blind man, fishing out a handful of change and counting out $4.75. "Well, John," said the benevolent young man's companion as they walked on, "you're a bigger fool than I took you to be." "Am I?" said John. "Yes, you are. That fellow's no more blind than I am. How could he tell that was a five dollar bill?" "Blamed if I know," said John innocently, "but he must be mighty near sighted not to see that it was a counterfeit."—Chicago News.

Hair Monstrosities.

French theater managers in the eighteenth century had worse evils than picture hats to contend against. Marie Antoinette, who was short even according to French standards, set the fashion of high coiffures, and ultra-fashionable women prided themselves on measuring four feet from their chins to the tops of their heads. These structures took about six hours to erect, the hairdresser mounting a ladder in the process. Some coiffures were almost as broad as they were long, with wings sticking out about eight inches on each side of the head. For the "frigate" coiffure the hair was rippled in a huge pile to represent the waves of an angry sea and surmounted by a fully rigged ship. As a consequence of these monstrosities disturbances in theaters occurred almost daily until an ordinance was issued against the admission of women with high coiffures to the floor of the house. —Chicago News.

Yet He Meant Well.

Just as the train was leaving the Fifty-eighth street elevated station a man who had got off there hurried along the platform and spoke to a passenger sitting by an open window in the smoking car.

"Quick!" he cried. "Please hand me that package. I left it on the seat when I got out just now."

"Sure," said the passenger, picking up the bundle and tossing it out of the window.

"Thanks!"

"Hey, there! What are you doing that for?" demanded the wrathful, red faced man sitting next to him.

"Why, he"—

"You double dyed idiot, that package belonged to me! It was $15 worth of laces and ribbons I was taking home to my wife!"

Over the scene that followed let us draw a veil.—Chicago Tribune.

Donizetti and Coffee.

Donizetti, composer of "Lucia di Lammermoor," sought inspiration in the coffeepot. It would be interesting to know accurately the total amount of coffee this erratic genius managed to consume during his short career. It was his habit to shut himself up in his room with writing materials and three or four coffeepots full of steaming coffee. When these were emptied he ordered in three or four more and, these disposed of in their turn, another three or four. His biographer says that the amount of coffee he drank was "fabulous," and one can well believe it. The effect on his once fine constitution was deplorable. His face shriveled and turned yellow, his lips became black, and with the inevitable breakdown of his nervous system his genius fell rapidly into premature decay.

Routed the Enemy.

In some of the London courts there are private dining rooms reserved for the exclusive use of the legal fraternity. Into one of these rooms one day there bustled a gaunt female who on being courteously approached by a junior counsel flatly declined to leave. Thereupon an unblushing Q. C. looked the lady in the face and expressed his mind. Still she did not budge. Counselor Lockwood then intervened. "I do not think there is anything unseemly in this lady's presence," quoth he. "She wears a gown and—yes, I'm pretty sure that she also wears a wig." The lady went.—London Tatler.

He Knew Them.

A minister, the father of six-year-old twin boys, was obliged to send one from the table for misbehavior. The little fellow was sitting crestfallen on a chair in an adjoining room when the maid entered. Upon spying him she said, "Oh, Billie, I'd be ashamed to be sent away from the table, as big a boy as you are too."

Billie, with flashing eyes, drew himself up, saying, "Well, you wouldn't if you'd known this family as long as I have."—Delineator.

Perseverance.

Timour, the great Asiatic conqueror, commonly known by the name of Tamerlane, had extraordinary perseverance. No difficulties ever led him to recede from what he had once undertaken, and he often persisted in his efforts under circumstances which led all around him to despair. On such occasions he used to relate to his friend an anecdote of his early life. "I once," he said, "was forced to take shelter from my enemies in a ruined building, where I sat alone many hours. Desiring to divert my mind from my hopeless condition, I fixed my eyes on an ant that was carrying a grain of corn larger than itself up a high wall. I numbered the efforts it made to accomplish this object. The grain fell sixty-nine times to the ground, but the insect persevered, and the seventieth time it reached the top. This sight gave me courage at the moment, and I never forgot the lesson."

The Landscape Near Jerusalem.

The country about Jerusalem is essentially a pale country. Indeed, I often thought it looked stricken, as if its pallor had come upon it abruptly, had been sent to it as a visitation. I was not sorry that I saw it first under grayness and swept by winds The grayness, the winds, seemed to me to emphasize its truth, to drive home its reality. And there was something noble in its candor. Even nature can take on an aspect of trickiness at times, or at least a certain coquetry, a daintiness not wholly free from suggestions of artificiality. The landscape in the midst of which Jerusalem lies is dreary, is sad; in stormy weather is almost forbidding. Yet it has a bare frankness that renders it dignified, a large simplicity that is very striking. The frame is sober, the picture within it is amazing, and neither, once seen, can ever be forgotten.—Robert Hichens in Century.

What Happened to Bill.

Mrs. Dixon was putting Frank, aged six, and Willie, aged four, to sleep with a bedtime story when she was suddenly compelled to answer the doorbell. Hastening away with the intention of immediately returning, Mrs. Dixon was detained by a caller. The boys grew restless. Finally, running to the top of the stairs, where he knew his mother could get a perfect view of him, Frank used nearly all his small stock of diplomacy in trying to attract his mother's attention without disturbing the visitor After several futile attempts at gesticulations he called out in a loud whisper perfectly audible to both ladies below, "Mamma, you'd better come up," then in a most awe inspiring tone adding, "'cause Bill's nose is comin' unwiped!" — Youth's Companion.

Tibetan Penal Code.

The Tibetan penal code is curious Murder is punished with a fine varying according to the importance of the slain theft by a fine of seven to one hundred times the value of the article stolen Here, again, the fine depends on the social importance of the person from whom the theft has been committed. The harborer of a thief is looked upon as a worse criminal than the thief himself Ordeals by fire and by boiling water are still used as proofs of innocence or guilt, exactly as was the custom in Europe in the middle ages And if the lamas never inflict death they are adepts at torture.

Taken Literally.

The tramp approached the pompous gentleman and asked for a copper

"Go to the ant, thou sluggard," quoted the gent.

"'Tain't no use, mister," answered the weary one "Me aunt's jist as tight fisted as me uncle and me other relatives."—Exchange.

His Question.

Edgar, aged six, was recently sent to school for the first time, and upon his return home he asked, "Papa, who taught Adam the alphabet?"

The Battle of Chalons.

There have been so many bloody battles it is perhaps impossible to say with absolute certainty which of them all was the bloodiest, but the balance of the evidence seems to be in favor of the battle of Chalons, France, fought A. D. 451 between the Huns, under Attila, and the Romans, Goths and Franks, under the command of Aetius, the most renowned captain of his day. At the head of his 500,000 of savages Attila was having everything his own way, and it looked as if Aryan civilization was destined to fall before the Tartar despotism, when suddenly, like the bolt out of the blue, Aetius fell upon the barbaric hordes and Europe was saved. It is estimated that 400,000 of the barbarians were left dead on the field.

Couldn't Frighten Him.

An Indian maharajah once received Lord Clive, the famous soldier, in his palace court. Presently in sprang two whopping big Bengal tigers, as big as ever grew. They rolled and sprawled and romped all over the court, growled, spit and struck at each other. All the time the rajah slyly and snakily stole glances at Clive to see if it would scare him green white. After a little the tigers were driven out. Clive smoked his cheroot all the while.

Got Another Copy.

A well dressed man was standing outside a bookseller's shop in Charing Cross road closely examining one of Balzac's works illustrated by Gustave Dore. "How much is this Balzac?" he asked an assistant outside.

"Twenty-five shillings," was the reply.

"Oh, that's far too much. I must see the manager about a reduction," continued the prospective customer, and, suiting the action to the word, he took up the book and went into the shop.

Approaching the bookseller, he took the book from under his arm and asked what he would give for it. "Seven shillings highest offer," he was told.

The offer was accepted, the man took his money and left.

"Well," queried the assistant later, after the man had gone, "were you able to hit it off with the gentleman sir?"

"Oh, yes. I managed to get another copy of that edition of Balzac for 7 shillings."

Then the bookseller went out to lodge a complaint with the police.—London Telegraph.

A Victim of Leprosy.

"On my travels in Venezuela," said a New York man, "I stayed in a hotel with a young man in whose family there was the taint of leprosy, though he apparently did not have it. One night sitting at dinner he became angry at a waiter and brought his hand down on the table with full force. He instantly realized that he did not feel the blow and sat looking at his hand, his face whitening with horror. 'Give me your knife, Bob,' he said to his chum. He grabbed the pocketknife in a frenzy and stabbed the side of his hand with vicious cuts from finger tip to wrist. You may not know that leprosy appears in the side of the hand, numbness being a sign. The man did not feel the cuts. He arose from the table, knocking over his chair, rushed out into the courtyard of the hotel, and we heard the quick tang of a revolver shot, telling us how he had conquered the leper's curse by ending his life."—New York Times.

He Could Wield an Ax.

The skill of the old Maine shipbuilders in the use of the adz and broadax was wonderful. One old time yarn is of a carpenter who applied very drunk at a shipyard for employment. In order to have a little fun with him the foreman set him to give a proof of his skill by hewing out a wooden bolt with no chopping block but a stone. The carpenter accomplished his difficult task without marring the keen edge of the broadax and showed the foreman a neatly made bolt. Then he brought the ax down with a terrific blow that shattered its edge upon the stone. "I can hew fust rate on your chopping block," he hiccoughed, "but I'll be blamed if I can make the ax stick in it when I git through." The story runs that the foreman lost no time in employing such a workman.

Judges' Wigs.

The wig is only worn by English barristers to give them a stern, judicial appearance, and no one can say that it fails in this respect. The custom was originated by a French judge in the seventeenth century when, happening to don a marquis' wig one day, he found it gave him such a stern and dignified appearance that he decided to get one for himself and wear it at all times in court. This he did, and the result was so satisfactory from a legal point of view that not only judges, but barristers also, took up the custom throughout Europe.—London Graphic.

Acquitted.

"Sir!" said the young woman, with what seemed to be indignation.

The young man looked embarrassed. "Yes, I did kiss you," he admitted, "but I was impulsively insane."

"That means that a man would be a lunatic to kiss me?"

"Well, any man of discretion would be just crazy to kiss you."

This seemed to end the strain, and, no jury being present to muddle affairs, a satisfactory verdict was reached.

GROCERIES.

Plummer is rapidly gaining for itself the name of being one of the best towns in the northern part of the state in which to do your trading and deservedly so for which we think we are entitled to some credit.

It was our idea on starting in business to allow a very small margin of profit on our goods but to turn them often enough to make up the differance. Our success along these lines has far exceeded our expectations. We are willing to have you compare our prices with those of any other honest dealer in this section. Quality, of course must be taken in to consideration, we do not belive in handling an inferior grade of goods If you will think it over we are sure you will decide that it will be to our mutual benefit for you to do your trading HERE.

Cut Worm Destruction.

The State Entomologist, Prof. F. L. Washburn, says that some relief may be had from cut worms by the use of poisoned baits, made and applied as follows: Make a bran mash, sweeten with molasses or brown sugar, and add enough Paris green to make it a decided green color. A big tablespoonful of this placed at intervals among the plants, just at nightfall, will attract the cut worms, and kill a large number. These baits should not be put to close to the plants for fear rain will wash the Paris green against the plants and injure them. Cut worms do not die immediately upon taking this poison, but it is sure death after a few hours. Traps, consisting of pieces of board, placed about the garden may be used, under which the cut worms will be found in the morning. Some birds prey upon them, and various parasites and predaceous insects attack them. In the case of field crops, where it is possible, frequent cultivation will turn the worms up, enabling birds and other enemies to prey upon them.

Our Friends.

If we choose our friends for what they are, not for what they have, and if we deserve so great a blessing, then they will be always with us, preserved in absence and even after death, in the amber of memory.—Cicero.

Couldn't Talk.

De Style—You say that loving pair of deaf mutes were sitting in the parlor and didn't carry on a conversation? Gunbusta—They couldn't, for they were holding hands.—New York Press.

His Deduction.

The Sunday school teacher had just explained to the juvenile class that the first parents were made from dust.

"Now, Edgar," she said to a bright little fellow, "can you tell me who the first man was?"

"Henry Clay," was the prompt reply. —Chicago News.

As to Truth Telling.

There is an eastern saying which runs: "It is good to know the truth and to tell it. It may be better, knowing the truth, to talk of date stones."—London Truth

Quickly Subdued.

Von Blumer (roaring with rage)—Who told you to put paper on the wall? Decorator—Your wife, sir. Von Blumer—Pretty, isn't it?

Are YouA Booster?

So far as Mr. Bjorges withdrawal is concerned, the Free Press has definite knowledge that there is absolutely nothing to it. Mr. Bjorge is a fighter, as he showed by his great struggle for the tonnage tax, and is in the race to stay. It is early yet and he has not deemed it neccessary to scour the district so far in advance of the election. He is about to don his war cloths, however, and when the votes are cast in the primariet Halvor Steenerson will know that he is not the only pebble on the beach.

Mr. Peat Johnson and daughter Clara of St. Hilaire were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Pleth Thursday.

P. S. Medchill left Tuesday evening for a couple of weeks visit at the Twin Cities and with relatives it Goodhue county.

DEER PARK NUBBINS

Rain, rain, yes, every other day and then some.

Geb. Singer trnsacted business at Kratka last Saturday.

Ed. Hyland seeded in some clover and timeothy last week.

Ole Skreland transacted business at Plummer last Wednesday.

Knute Syversrud was on the sick list last week but is now somewhat better.

Thomas G. Rome transacted business at Garnes and other points last Thursday and Friday.

Ole S. Raaen, from McIntosh was a caller on old friends here last Thursday.

Ole Rustan from near McIntosh was visiting with his son Ed. here last week.

Miss Sigrid P. Lansdal was calling on friends and relatives here last week.

Flax seeding will be finished up in about ten days then get ready to fight the "skeeters."

Sam B. Swanson returned home from the Crookston drive last Friday, but will so go up again on the next one that comes along.

Ljot Segurdson, passed by here last Monday on his way over to Equality where he has a ditch contract to finish up since last year.

What about the proposed new Holiday, The Homesteaders Day? By all means put your shoulder to the wheel and push it along.

Miss Marget Lintvidt who for some time past has been visiting with her brother T. G. Rome, will leave for Lillo again this week.

The ladies aid met with Mr. and Mrs. G. Swenson last Wednesday, but the crowd was the biggest recorded since their organization. There was not less than 21 babies present good and bad.

To start next week.

The steel gang for this end of the new Plummer-Moose Lake line is scheduled to arrive next Wednesday and will at once start laying rails. The grading of the first thirty miles out from here is now finished and the contractors are leaving most of them going to North Dakota where they have taken contracts on the new Soo Drake-Medford line. The remainder of the grading in Clearwater and Beltrami counties is being rushed as fast as possible so as not to hold up the steel gang. Foreman Hagerty has been busy with a crew of about fifty men for the past two weeks unloading ties, rails and other material in the yards which now begins to make quite an imposing pile. If everything goes well it is expected to have the line completed sometime in August.

$2,250 A WEEK.

There are now an average of a hundred and twenty-five tubs of butter shipped from Plummer each week or about 7,000 ℔, which at thirty cents a pound, which if anything is below the average price, makes $2,250 that the farmers of this corner of the county are receiving each week from their cows. This in addition to what is used at home most of which goes to feed the calver and hogs. Sure money; Receipts that will hold up well in the face of a drought or wet spell. And that is not all. Instead of a worn out farm at the end of fifteen or twenty years, you will have a better farm one of added fertility as a bedrock for your old age and to leave as a heritage to your childern. A great mortgage chaser and standby for the optimist that old cow.

Co-operation.

The live farmers' clubs in Meeker county, where there are twenty or more co operative creameries and elevtors, have became associated in a central league. This suggests the thought to the division of agricultural extension that all the farmers clubs in each county, all cooperative creameries and co-operative elevators, should get together in a central federation, and at least once a year meet and discuss the matters that have arisen in the different local clubs for which no satisfactory solution has been found. Whereever matters of mutual interest to a county have arisen in any one club worthy of promotion the several clubs can unite and decide upon a course of action, discuss everything pertaining to the common good and develop other guestions worthy of promotion.

Prayer of a Horse.

Translated from the Swedish.

To Thee, my master, I offer my prayer: Feed me, and take care of me. Be kind to me. Do not jerk the reins; do not whip me when going up hill. Never strike, beat or kick me, when I fail to understand what you want of me, but give me a chance to understand you. Watch me and if I refuse to do your bidding, see if there is not something wrong with my harness. Do not give me too heavy loads; never hitch me where water will drip on me. Keep me well shod. Examine my teetn when I fail to eat I may have an ulcerated tooth. That you know, is very painful. I am unable to tell you in words when I am sick; so watch me and I will try to tell you by signs: Pet me sometimes; I enjoy it and I will learn to love you.

Protect me in summer from the hot sun. Keep a blanket on me in winter weather, and never but a frosty bit in my mouth but hold it in your hands a moment first. I carry you, pull you wait patiently for you long hours, day or night. I cannot tell you when I am thirsty; give me clean, cool water often in hot weather.

Finally, when my strength is gone, instead of turning me over to a human brute, to be tortured and starved, take my life in the easiest and quickest way, and your god will reward you in this life and in heaven. Amee.
—Our Dumb Animals.

If you want a real good dish of sauce, the kind that will just make your lips smack for more, why, go to Geo. Singer's and get your dried fruit at Rhode. This is no "ad" its a compliment.

Victor Lindholm who for some time past has been assisting G. Swenson left for Minneapolis last week, where he will accept a position as clerk in a large department store. Later: Victor missed the train and stated in "grubbing" for John Paloni, instead.

Professor Boeggild Spoke.

That, in dairying, it pays to continually work with a view to raising the standard of your cows and also to feed them sientifficly were two points brot out by Professor Boeggild in his dairy talk at Thief River Falls, in which he gave the history of dairying in Denmark, on Wednesday of last week. There was a fair sized crowd present several of the local dairymen attending. Tho the Professor did not have very good command of the English language his talk proved very interesting to his many listners, and he showed that he had made a careful study of conditions in his own country in regard to his subject, and also that there is a good bit of room for improvment in local methods and that to make such improvement certainly pays.

In introducing Proffessor Boeggild Prof. Haeker very briefly outlined his address calling especial attention to the fact that tho the country of Denmark has only one seventh part the area of our fair state of Minnesota still it furnished the bulk of the dairy products consumed in London and several other large cities of Europe and also a large part of the meat supply.

He reminded us that the Red River Valley had been alotted but one lecture by the famous Danish Proffessor and that the decision of the place had been left with our Dairy Inspector, Mr. Storvick and that it was to him that we were indepted for this opportunity to "Sit down and learn," from one who had spent a lifetime in the study of dairy questions.

Prof. Boeggild said in part "Forty years ago Denmark was not only It's small farmers had only a few cows each and they were generally of an inferior quality because richer and large farmers always were looking for good cows to buy and were willing to pay a reasonable price for them so while the small farmers sold their best stock for what they could get for it and kept the poorer stock with which it was practically impossible to do a profitable business, the larger owners were buying the best stock in the country at comparatively low prices and taking good care of them and their products. They were making handsome profits in the business.

"A careful study of these conditions during the early '70's gradually resulted in a revulsion from the old methods and innauguration of new ones, which crystalized in the organization of the first co-operative Association for the production of dairy products in Western Gotland in 1882. As this proved itself a success more of them were established until in 1890 Denmark had about one thousand creameries in opeáration and today they have about fourteen hundred of which twelve hundred are co-operative and only two hundred are private ones on some of the larger farms.

"The possibilities and advantages of the co-operative plan took such hold of the Danish peasant that even as early as 1887 they organized the first co- operative packing house. This has been followed by others until now almost the entire slaughtering business is done by these Co-operative Associations "In 1895 this was followed by the first Co-operative egg market which has led to the establishing of numerous local markets and one central exporting Associations.

"Denmark is at the present time producing 55 million dollars worth of butter per year. They produce 38 million dollars worth of packing products and 7 million dollars worth of eggs annually, and almost all of this comes from the small farmers because the larger farms with small private creameries find it hard to compete with the large co-operative associations and are selling a large share of their milk for consumption in their own cities.

"The first co-opperation creameries were small and only poorly equipped as the co-operators were poor peasants and some what skeptical as to the results. But as the success of the enterprise became established the confidence as well as the financial ability grew, larger buildings were put up and more elaborate equipments provided until now many of the plants are worth $50,000 or more.

"One of the secrets of their success is the constant increase in the quantity of milk delivered. This constant increase was made possible by three things; firstly, the number of cows have been more than doubled since 1880, secondly, the cows of the ssmall farmers are given better care thirdly, by co-operation and careful selection the grade of cow kept by the Danish farmer has been greatly improved. "It is a noticeable fact that by far the greater share of improvement along these lines have been with the small farmers and co-operators and so the increased wealth of the Denmark is mostly in the hands of these same farmers. "They use 20 to 25 per cent of their ground for root crops to be fed to their cows during the long period of stable feeding which extends over ten to eleven months. They feed each cow about $15 to $20 worth of oil cake per year and make the feed as uniform as possible throughout the year.

"The native cow improved by careful selection in breeding has proven superior to the expensive imported cows. A careful record is kept of food fed to each cow, and the amount of milk and butterfat test received from her as well, enabling the owners to know exactly what it costs to produce a pound of butter. In the beginning cows were found that would consume 40 to 50 cets worth of feed to produce a pound of butter. Now they call them "rats in the cow stable," and they are sent to the packing house as soon as possible. Now they have so far improved their stock that they have cows that will produce a pound of butter on a consumption of only 12½ cents worth of food."

When asked if bran was a good feed the Professor answered "yes, but we can't get enough of it so we plant roots to take its place but must supplement roots with oil cake. We have improved our roots very much also by selection, as to amount of dry matter contained and their ability to resist frost and while we started with feeding 15 pounds per cow a day we are now giving them all they will eat even as high as one hundred pounds per day."

The average Minnesota cow will produces but 160 pounds of butter per year while the records at the St. Anthony Experiment farm shows an average in their herd of grade cows to be 270 pounds per year. Prof. Haeker said, "The cow is a machine to change food into butter and the trouble with our dairying is we have too poor machines and often the operators are still more to blame."

No less a person than Walter, the son of J. J. Hill, is expected to join the ranks of Kittson county farmers. In a interview with James J. Hill recently we were told that Walter expects to take charge of his Northcote farm and will probably move onto the farm in the fall. He will have the Northcote buildings and about four sections of land. The soil on that land is the very best in the county and we look for the development of one of the finest farms in the valley in a manner that will be an inspiration to our farmers.—Hallock Journal

Thief River Falls News—Frank Mc Ginty returned last Friday evening from a trip to western Saskatchewan where he had been with a carload of horses for a man who was injured in the Soo yards here. It took ten days to make the trip and Mr. McGinty had a good opportunity to look the country over. He says that the country is backward and the prospects for a crop not very good There is little or no grass and the stock is very poor. On the day Mr. McGinity left Saskatchewan, six inches of snow fell and the storm was general thruout Canada, as there was snow on the ground all along the road to Winnepeg.

Political Announcement

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the district.

Ada, Minn., May 3rd., 1910.
A. L. Hanson.

A good library well used makes a wise man; a good newspaper well read makes an up-to-date,

How about a social and business clug in every township and a gathering of all every year to discuss pertinent subjects. Sociability is the keynote to happiness. We can not enjoy anything, alone as much as we can in company.

With these 100 percent dividends that all the corporations are declaring every little while the poor fellows had ought to be able to lay aside a little something for that rainy day of socialistic reform.

Taft might successfully make another run for the presidental chair if he would announce to the people that he would let them appoint a guardian for him while he is in office.

The standpat Republican papers continue to talk of Taft's growing popularity. We cannot see it. The average politican's theory seems to be that it is all right to fool the people as long as you are not found out. So far so good. But when found out it seems that they had ought to be willing to step down and out. The evidence in the Ballinger investigation shows that Taft attempted to willfully deceive people. While the country may prosper with crooks in some of the subordinate positions it does not seem likely that the people will rehire another man for their highest position who has shown that he is not to be trusted.

Commenting on the fight against the raising of freight rates J. J. Hill is credited with the following; The country has lived thru some stupid things; I hope it can live thru this" How very true. Some very stupid things, such as allowing a few to gather unto themselves in some way or other what every body needs and what belonged to the country or the people in general such as tracts of agricultrue, minisg and timber lands etc. And now the foolish people, have the foolish idea, that they ought to have something to say about the management of all these things especially public utilities sush as railroads, express companies and other things that their every day existence needs. How very foolish, how very stupid.

There is not a man in our city, however indifferent to the claims of Christanity, who would want to rear his family here if there were no churches or church influences, for he at once recognizes them as the guardians of the morals of the community. What would be the condition of this community at the end of the next years if from this time until then the churches were closed? To what extent would life and property be safe? And yet, with all the organized agencies of the church, the devil too frequently holds high carnival. What might we not expect if wholly divested of these good influences.

The Borers in Flower Gardens.

These are the worms which make holes in the stems of lilies, dahlias, golden glow, peonies, etc., causing the stalks to fall over. They come originally from weeds, and the eggs are laid at the base of certain weed stalks in the fall, and hatch the following spring. A garden adjoining a weedy, neglected lot is apt to be troubled.

Sticky tanglefoot of medium thickness, which can be bought easily in large quantities, applied over a space of three inches wide on the outside of the base board of a fence, or a board barrier placed for the purpose, we have found to be an effective preventive, since the worms cannot cross the sticky band. This should be done early in June, and might call for more than one application, in order to keep the barrier sticky.

Spraying Compounnds and Spraying.

We find arsenate of lead to be the safest, most effective and most lasting of the arsenical poisons, and it can be used successfully against the plum curculio, codling moth, tent caterpillar, potato beetle, and the like. It does not burn tender foliage, and remains on oliage and fruit a long time. It should be used at the rate of three or four pounds in fifty gallons of water.

It can well be used in combination with Bordeaux mixture.

Receipt for Bordeaux: Dissolve four pounds of blue stone in twenty-five gallons of water; slake four pounds of quick lime in twenty-five gallons of water in some other recepacle. The bluestone should not be dissolved in a metal receptacle. When ready to use, pour the two together, and add the arsenate of lead, taking care that it is throughly mixed with the liquid. It is well to test the Bordeaux mixture before the arsenate of lead is added. If a clean steel knife is discolored upon being immersed in it, there is too much blue-vitroil, and more lime should be added. Use the Bordeaux nozzle, or some equally coarse nozzle in applying. It is quite a common practice to fight fungous troubles and insects at the same time by combining Bordeaux with arsenate of lead or Paris green.

Spraying of Dandelions.

For the past two years iron sulphate has been used at the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station for the eradication of dandelions in lawns. Fairly good success has resulted from these experiments. Altho spraying the dandelions does not by any means mean absolute destruction of this pest, it at least kills many of the flowering stalks and keeps hundreds of dandelions from coming to seed. It also kills many of the younger plants. If one were to spray a lawn carefully for an entire season the result would possibly warrant the time and expense connected with the spraying. Iron sulphate at the rate of one and one half pounds to one gallon of water is the proper proportion to use on the lawns. The spray should be applied with a sprayer which gives a very fine mist-like spray. Apply the solution about three days after the lawn is cut, on a day that is bright and warm. The grass will be somewhat blackened but little damage results. Some of the white clover, owing to its broad leaf is somewhat injured. The lawn should be sprayed about once a month. Care should be taken when spraying to keep the solution off of the cement walks as it discolors them.

W. L. OSWALD,
Minnesota Experiment Station.

Bacon Hogs.—The experiment Station at Grand Rapids is raising bacon hogs—Improved Yorkshire, and practices having their sows furrow in March and April. The pigs are turned into a clover pasture when from six to eight weeks old, and are fed a little shorts and milk. In September barley and peas are added to their ration, and for two weeks they are fed all they will eat. They reach prime condition about the first of November and weigh from 130 to 150 pounds. In the local market the price the past three years has averaged eight and a half cents per pound. The cost of production has been estimated by Supt. McGuire to be four and one half cents a pound. Good houseing, early farrowing clover pasture, skim milk, barley, shorts and peas, easily obtained with little expense, make a good profit in the pig industry.

Don't Kill the Toad.

Prof. Washburn of the Minnesota division of Entomology at University Farm findstoads to be friends of the farmer. They feed entirely upon an incredible number of insects. The federal deartment of agriculture, investigating the toad, discovers the startling fact that in twenty-four hours the insect food consumed by one toad equals in quanity four times the capacity of its stomach, which is practically filled and emptied four times every twenty-four hours. One hundred fifty-nine stomachs examined by the department showed a content of 19 per cent of ants; 16 per cent of cut worms; 10 per cent of thousand legged worms; 9 per cent caterpillars; 8 per cent of ground beetles; 5 per cent of destructive weavels; 3 per cent of grasshoppers. together with crickets, spiders, sow bugs, potato bugs and a miscellaneous lot of other insects. Protect the toad. Teach the thoughtless boy friendliness to this helqless, harmless, useful animal.

Over a period of nine years' experimentation at the Ohio station, shallow cultivation of corn shows alead in grain harvested of four bushels per acre over deep cultivation during that period, regardless of weather conditions. Experiments at the Minnesota station at St. Anthony Park are in line, with Ohio and several other states.

NOTED STORY WRITER DEAD

"O. Henry" Fails to Rally After an Operation.

New York, June 6.—William Sydney Porter, better known under his pen name of "O. Henry," writer of short stories, died at Polytechnic hospital. He underwent an operation last Friday and never rallied. The nature of his ailment was not made known. Mrs. Porter, who had been in South Carolina, was summoned by telegraph, but did not arrive here until after her husband's death.

Mr. Porter was born in Texas forty-six years ago and began his journalistic career on the Houston Post. Before that he had been a cowboy, sheep herder and druggist and an extensive traveler.

WHOLE CITY PLACARDED

Foreigners at Nanking, China, in Danger of Massacre.

Peking, June 4.—The consuls at Nanking report that native disturbers in that city have assumed openly an insulting attitude toward foreigners and have defiled the walls of the American consulate in a disgusting manner.

Placards have been posted in the streets calling on the people to rise and slaughter the foreigners and destroy their property.

Threats that a revolution will be launched on June 5, the date set for the opening of the Nanking exposition, are causing Chinese merchants to flee with their treasures to the country districts, where they are burying their wealth.

The authorities at Nanking have removed the bolts from the rifles of the soldiers. The situation is considered to depend entirely upon the attitude of the military in the city, which, up to the present, has not manifested symptoms of disloyalty.

The United States cruiser New Orleans and the German and Japanese men-of-war are lying off the town and it is believed these vessels will be adequate to protect all foreigners in the event of an outbreak.

Ready For the Next One.

A generous and brave but very eccentric Virginia planter named Hill Carter, who had once been an officer in the United States navy, had a hand to hand battle at fisticuffs one day with his plantation overseer and came off second best. He therefore challenged the overseer to a formal duel, but the latter declined on the ground that, being a husband and father, he was under obligation not to risk leaving his family destitute. Carter at once removed that objection by settling upon the family a comfortable annuity. Then everything was got ready for the fight, but just as the two men faced each other the sheriff arrived on the scene, took them into custody and had them bound over to keep the peace. Mr. Carter did not, however, change the deed of gift with which he had provided for the overseer's family, remarking that he might wish some time to resume the interrupted fight and hence would rather keep everything in readiness for prompt action.—New York Post.

Consul King David.

This amusing anecdote of Lamartine is related by the Baroness Bonde in her volume of letters. Shortly after the revolution of February he wrote on the blank leaves of his pocketbook the names of his proteges and sent the list to be provided with places immediately. Previously, however, it seems, he had scribbled "David" on the page, and the head of the cabinet appointed the said David consul at Bremen. The postulant, however, never came forward, and, though the poet did not like being disturbed, M. Hetzel was obliged to ask who was the David on his list.

"He who danced before the ark," was the answer.

"Oh, dear! I have gazetted him to Bremen!"

"How very singular! I meant him for a subject for meditation, not for nomination. But you can cancel it."

The moniteur registered the change, but few knew that the last consul appointed to Bremen was King David!

The Minnesota Experiment Station does not recommend the killing of an animal for the purpose of human food within twenty-four hours after feeding. When an animal is on full feed it is impossible to drain the veins throughly. Food in the stomach rapidly decomposes after the animal is killed, and the gases generated often flavor the meat disagreeably. Water, however, may be given up to the time of slaughter. It keeps the temperature normal and helps to wash the effete matter out of the system. A nicely colored carcass results.

Attend the Convention Being Held in St. Paul.

DEVOTED TO ORGANIZATION

Opening Session of Meeting of Brotherhood of Locomotive Enginemen and Firemen Taken Up With Routine Work—Four Cities in Contest for the Next Convention.

St. Paul, June 7.—At what was said by Secretary A. H. Hawley to have been the biggest meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen ever held the 756 delegates who answered to roll call completed their first day's work at the Auditorium here. The sessions were devoted chiefly to the organization of the convention and the appointing of committees. The real work of the convention will probably not begin until the committee on constitution and bylaws makes its first report on the proposed amendments.

Out of respect to Mrs. Leach, wife of the founder of the order, who died Sunday night while on her way to attend the convention, the afternoon session adjourned at 4:30 instead of 5:30. The funeral and interment of Mother Leach will be held at Sedalia, Mo., and the appointment of a committee of the convention to attend the services will probably be the next business transacted.

Communications from several cities relative to getting the next convention in 1912 were among the correspondence read. Washington, St. Louis, Mobile and Omaha will all make an effort to obtain the delegations. The decision of the convention will not be known till later.

The filing of several appeals with the committee on appeals, which included a large number of beneficiary claims, and the opening address of President W. S. Carter composed the principal other business of the afternoon session.

The opening address of welcome at the public reception, to which the evening session was given over, was made by Bishop J. J. Lawler.

Governor Eberhart Speaks.

Governor Eberhart, who was next introduced on the programme, spoke of the great significance which the work of the convention has for Minnesota workingmen and for all of the laboring classes in general. On behalf of the state of Minnesota and of the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis he then welcomed the delegates.

Mayor-elect Herbert P. Keller was next called upon by Mr. Hawley, who acted as chairman.

J. A. Newman, first vice president of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, told of the close relationship between his own order and the one he was addressing, and looked for a still closer co-operation between the two.

The conditions in English trade circles and the work of the British Associated society were graphically told by Albert Fox of Leeds, England, general secretary of the associated society of L. E. and F of Great Britain.

W. E. McEwen, state labor commissioner, opened his remarks by saying he had come 7,000 miles from Vienna to be one of the speakers before the convention, and after telling the delegates that he was himself a union member, he described some of the results of his study of labor conditions abroad.

Patrick Fennel, famous the country over under his pen name of Shandy McGuire, was one of the most interesting of the speakers, in his story of his experiences as a writer.

Mrs. Georgia M. Sargent, grand president of the ladies' society of the order, gave a brief resume of the growth of the sister body, and urged more co-operation on the part of the men.

In making the closing address of the long programme President Carter thanked the speakers and replied to the donor of a token from the British Isles, that it was not a gift to him personally, but to the whole American labor world.

The benediction was pronounced by Dr. Robert Christie of the House of Hope church, and the audience filed out to the music of the orchestra.

Woman Killed by Train.

Sioux City, Ia., June 7.—A honeymoon of three days' duration ended in a horrible manner at Arion, Ia., when Mrs. Frank B. Sherwood, aged twenty-eight, was killed by an Illinois Central engine near the Milwaukee station. She was running to get on a Milwaukee train and did not hear the advancing train on the Central. All the cars passed over her body. Her husband, to whom she had been married but a few days previously, was a witness.

Another American Cardinal.

Rome, June 7.—The creation of another American cardinal at the next meeting of the consistory was plainly hinted by the pope in an audience he gave to Archbishop Henry Moeller of Cincinnati. The archbishop was with the pope nearly an hour and much of the time was spent in discussing the needs of the church in America.

LONG FIGHT ENDS

Administration Railroad Bill Is Passed by Senate.

PROGRESSIVES GET IN LINE

Many Amendments Made During Prolonged Discussion.

Washington, June 4.—The senate has passed the so called administration railroad bill, thus ending a contest between the progressives and Republican regulars which has run on more or less regularly for almost three months. Not a progressive voted against the bill, which went through by a division of 50 to 12. All who voted against the bill were Democrats, so that President Taft will have the satisfaction of reflecting that, notwithstanding all the dust and smoke that has been kicked up in the long senate fight, the bill has finally emerged a real party measure.

The bill will now go to conference, the house having already acted on a similar measure. To gain a parliamentary advantage the senate, after it had passed the bill, took the house bill from the table, struck out all after the enacting clause and substituted its own bill as an amendment. This will permit the house to disagree without delay and ask for a conference.

The long fight over the railroad bill in the senate ended with both progressives and regulars in good humor. The progressives, in explaining their rush toward the band wagon, declared that the bill contained many good features and that they alone were entitled to the credit for them.

The Democrats who voted for the bill were Chamberlain of Oregon, Clay of Georgia, Gore of Oklahoma, Paynter of Kentucky, Simmons of North Carolina and Stone of Missouri.

Many Changes in Original Bill.

The bill as it passed the senate contains only three or four propositions in the same form as they appeared in the administration's original bill. The commerce court feature is retained, with slight modifications, and so also are the propositions authorizing shippers to select their own routes, the provision imposing penalties for incorrect statements of rates by railroad companies, and that authorizing the commission to begin investigation upon its own initiative and to control classifications. These are practically the only elements of the original bill left.

To these have been added, chiefly through progressive and Democratic votes, a long and short haul amendment, an anti-injunction amendment, a provision giving the interstate commerce commission power to suspend increases in rates for eleven months, a provision allowing the interstate commerce commission to become a party to litigation in regard to its orders before the new commerce court an amendment shifting the burdens of proof in regard to the reasonableness of increases in rates from the shipper to the railroad itself, an amendment including telephones and telegraph companies as common carriers under the interstate commerce law, and several other amendments of minor importance.

In addition, the progressives, acting in concert with the Democrats, forced out of the administration bill the section legalizing traffic agreements and the four sections providing for government investigation of stock and bond issues by railroads.

The Languages of Paradise.

Every language has its admirers. In "Lucile" the author, Owen Meredith, maintained that when he heard French spoken as he approved he "found himself quietly falling in love." Edward Hutton is another instance of this lingual fascination. In stating his preference in his enchanting "Cities of Spain" he recalls an interesting mediaeval legend. He says:

"And as I listened to the splendid syllables of the Castilian tongue that rang eloquently through the twilight I remembered the saying of that old Spanish doctor of whom James Howell tells us in his 'Instructions For Forraine Travell'—to wit, that Spanish, Italian and French, these three daughters of the Latin language, were spoken in paradise; that God Almighty created the world in Spanish, the tempter persuaded Eve in Italian and Adam begged pardon in French."

Taste Is Localized.

Taste is curiously localized in the mouth. Put a lump of sugar on the tip of your tongue and you will find it distinctly sweet. Then try it halfway back on the tongue and you will find it tasteless. All sweet or aromatic substances, such as wine, sugar and coffee, can be properly appreciated by the front half of the tongue, a piece of knowledge that every true connoisseur applies when he sips instead of taking a mouthful. With most other substances, however, the reverse is true. In these cases the tip of the tongue serves only for touching—it is the back part that tastes. The sides of the mouth, too, are quite insensible to certain substances not tasteless. Put some salt or vinegar between the teeth and the cheek and you will find them absolutely flavorless.—London Standard.

RAILROAD OUT A LARGE SUM

Brings Suit Against Four of Its Former Officials.

TWO MILLION DOLLARS GONE

Repair Contracts Alleged to Have Been the Medium Through Which the Illinois Central Was Defrauded. Filing of the Suits Follows Months of Investigation.

[illegible] June 7.—Charging that it h[illegible] defrauded of about $2,000,000 on [illegible] in a period of four ye[illegible] Illinois Central Railroad company filed suit for an accounting against four of its former officials in the circuit court here. The railroad company's bill, which alleges conspiracy to defraud, names the following men:

Orlando S. Keith, former superintendent of transportation.

Joseph E. Buker, former assistant superintendent of machinery.

William Renshaw, former superintendent of the machinery department.

John M. Taylor, former general storekeeper.

In connection with these charges made against its former officials the Illinois Central road declares in its bill that these concerns profited in alleged overcharges on car repair work in the following amounts:

The Blue Island Equipment company, $400,000.

The American Car and Equipment company, $100,000.

A. Osterman Manufacturing company, $750,000.

The Memphis Car company, $300,000.

International Car company.

In addition to the suit filed against the four former officials the railroad also filed suits for an accounting against the West Pullman Car company and against the American Car and Equipment company. These suits were also filed in the circuit court here.

The filing of the suits follows months of investigation by the railroad company and numerous rumors of an alleged graft "ring" in the Illinois Central railroad. Heretofore, high officials of the road have stoutly denied that there existed any trouble of this alleged character.

Entered Into a Conspiracy.

The bill against the four former department heads alleges that the men entered into a conspiracy in June, 1906, and that from that date until April, 1910, the railroad company was defrauded out of nearly $2,000,000. The defendants are alleged to have represented to the corporation that the company's repair work could be done more cheaply by independent concerns than at the railroad's own shops. When contracts were given certain independent concerns, the bill charges, the railroad company began paying a long series of large overcharges from which certain superintendents are declared to have secured thousands of dollars.

In the suit filed against the American Car and Equipment company Judge Walker at once issued an injunction restraining the car concern from bringing any suits to collect from the Illinois Central amounts alleged to be due.

In the bill filed against the West Pullman concern it is charged that Henry C. Ostermann and the Ostermann Manufacturing company entered into the conspiracy to defraud the railroad. The West Pullman company is successor to the Ostermann company.

The bill against the four former officials stated that the four defendants caused cars to be sent for repairs to the repair concerns controlled in whole or in part by Keith, Buker, Renshaw and Taylor.

The bill also charges that when the Illinois Central closed its own repair shops in 1906 it had on hand a large number of cars to be repaired and large stocks of materials and supplies with which to make repairs. In this connection the bill says:

"They further conspired to cause your orator's materials and supplies, such as lumber, paint, ties, rails, bolts and other materials and supplies to be delivered to such companies, without payment made or any credit given your orator."

Horsethieves at Work.

Lemmon, S. D., June 7.—Horsethieves have been operating with some degree of success in this vicinity. Thieves entered the barn of Sherman & Nighbert and stole two valuable horses. The animals were found in a pasture two miles from the town by Deputy Sheriff Goodhue, but the saddles were missing. The same night three horses were stolen from Bert Moon, a freighter, as he was camped on Grand river.

PREMIER KATSURA.

Alleged Plot to Assassinate the Entire Japanese Cabinet.

NUMBER OF ARRESTS MADE

Members of Japanese Ministry Marked for Assassination.

Tokio, June 4.—The government is using the utmost secrecy in its investigation of the reported socialist plot against Premier Katsura and other members of the Japanese cabinet. No one besides the government's trusted agents is permitted to see the half dozen alleged conspirators who have been arrested.

The extreme caution taken has given rise to alarming reports of the extent of the plot and cabinet members and other government officials make no attempt to conceal their fear of assasination.

TRIPLE MURDER ALLEGED

Iowan Charged With Slaying Parents and Brother.

Des Moines, June 7.—Raymond Hardey, aged eighteen years, was taken into custody at Vancleve suspected of the murder of his father, James Hardey, his mother and his brother Earl.

The father was found in a barn at the Hardey home, four miles south of Vancleve. His head had been crushed with a piece of gas pipe. The mother and the boy, Earl, had been slain in the house, their heads also having been crushed.

Raymond Hardey spent the evening with a girl, Mabel Starnes, and claims to have found the bodies when he got home, shortly after midnight. He gave the alarm to neighbors an hour later.

Neighbors say Raymond Hardey was a quiet, inoffensive boy and are at a loss to account for a motive.

Bureau drawers in the house had been ransacked and pocketbooks opened, but small sums of money found on the persons of both the father and dead brother and the watch worn by the latter had not been touched.

Raymond Hardey was to have been married next Wednesday to Mabel Starnes of the same neighborhood. The girl says her fiance was with her from 8:30 p. m. until after midnight.

TWICE ACROSS THE CHANNEL

English Aviator Flies With an American Machine.

Dover, Eng., June 3.—The Hon. Charles Stewart Rolls, captain in the London section of the army motor reserve, driving a Wright biplane, vindicated Anglo-Saxon aeronautics by crossing the English channel twice without alighting. He made the round trip between Dover and Calais in ninety minutes

While two Frenchmen, Louis Bleriot and Count de Lesseps, have crossed the channel in an aeroplane it remained for an Englishman in an American machine to perform the double feat. The distance across between the two points named is twenty-one miles, so that his over water flight of forty-two miles without a stop establishes a new record.

Dalzell's Opponent Asks Recount.

Pittsburg, June 7.—Dr. Robert J. Black, former mayor of McKeesport, announces that he will ask for a recount of the votes at Saturday's primaries, in which Congressman John Dalzell of Pittsburg claims to have won the Republican nomination to congress for a thirteenth term. Unofficial returns in the Thirteenth district have given the veteran Dalzell a majority of 402, according to the claim of his managers.

South Remembers Davis.

New Orleans, June 4.—The birthday anniversary of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, was celebrated throughout the South. In Louisiana the day is set apart as a memorial, or decoration day. It is a legal holiday in Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Texas, South Carolina and Louisiana.

CONFER WITH TAFT

Railroad Heads Agree to Withdraw Increased Rates.

GOVERNMENT TO DROP SUIT

Injunction Now in Force Will Be Dismissed.

Washington, June 7.—A complete agreement between the government and the recently enjoined railroads of the Western Trunk Line association was reached at a White House conference which lasted for more than four hours.

The railroads represented agreed to withdraw all rate increases filed, to be effective on or after June 1, and agreed to file no more increases until the bill in congress, which gives the interstate commerce commission power to investigate and suspend increases that are not justified, becomes a law and goes into effect.

President Taft thereupon stated the administration's purpose in bringing the injunction suit had been accomplished and the suit would be discontinued. The discontinuance will not be entered, however, until after the new railroad law is signed.

The belief was expressed that all of the other railroads of the country which have filed increased rates or have had such a plan under consideration will abide by the agreement reached with the twenty-four railroads named as defendants in the recent suit.

There will be another conference at the White House, in which President Brown of the New York Central railroad, President McCrea of the Pennsylvania and other officials representing railroads in the Eastern and Central territory will participate.

Will Not Increase Rates.

That they will acquiesce in President Taft's proposition and hold up the proposed increases until after the new law becomes effective is practically taken for granted here.

Every one connected with the conference seemed gratified over the outcome. All that President Taft has desired is that the interstate commerce commission should have authority to investigate increases in rates to determine whether or not they are justified by prevailing conditions and are just to the shippers. This power is to be conferred under the new law.

The railroads, on the other hand, it is pointed out, are to be relieved of embarrassing litigation, are assured of a "square deal" when their case is presented to the interstate commerce commission, and are free to resume the contracts for improvements and extensions which they threatened to cancel had the court proceedings continued.

The new railroad bill contains a clause which gives it effect sixty days after being signed by the president. It will be necessary to make the provision as to the supervision of rates by the interstate commerce commission immediately effective, and for this reason, as President Taft indicated, it will be necessary to send the bill to conference.

President Taft summoned Attorney General Wickersham, Secretary of State Knox, Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel and Chairman Knapp and Mr. Lane of the interstate commerce commission to the conference.

TWO FIREMEN SUFFOCATED

Score of Others Overcome While Fighting Blaze.

New York, June 7.—Two firemen were suffocated and more than a score were overcome by stifling fumes in fighting a stubborn warehouse fire near the North river front.

Two of the firemen overcome were caught in a back draught on the fourth floor of the building. Two men who managed to avoid the worst of the burst of flame and dense smoke screamed from a window for help. Ladders were raised and the unconscious men carried down.

Fireman Timothy Cotter died on the sidewalk after having been carried from an upper floor, where he had lain unconscious for more than an hour in a pool of water. Fireman William Healy was taken out of the building dead. Three of the injured firemen are still in a hospital in a serious condition.

ROBBED OF $50,000 ON CAR

Chicago Man Loses Big Sum En Route to New York.

New York, June 7.—That William A. Miner, president of the William A. Miner company of Chicago, was robbed of $50,000 while en route from Chicago to New York last Thursday night has just become known here.

Detectives have been working on the case, but no announcement had heretofore been made, as it was hoped that the thieves might be caught while trying to dispose of some of the negotiable paper included in the amount lost.

The money was in a traveling bag which he had at his side in his berth in the sleeping car. He did not discover his loss until he reached his hotel in New York.

ACCUSED MEN OUT ON BAIL

Illinois Legislators Appear in Court and Give Bonds.

JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS BRIEF

Indicted Solons Released With the Understanding That Bondsmen Will Produce Them at the Order of the Court—Senator Broderick Denies That He Ever Gave State Senator Holstlaw Money.

Springfield, Ill., May 31.—State Senator John Broderick of Chicago and Stanton C. Pemberton of Oakland, together with Representative Joseph S. Clark of Vandalia, accused in the recent confession of State Senator D. W. Holstlaw of nefarious conduct as legislators, appeared before Judge Creighton in the circuit court and gave bonds.

Senator Pemberton arrived a little earlier in the day from his home in Oakland and Representative Clark had been here over night. The three with their attorneys and bondsmen hastened to the courthouse.

The judicial proceedings were brief. The bond of Senator Broderick was fixed at $10,000 and was promptly signed by Benjamin F. Kirlin, a Springfield liveryman, and Richard Egan, a contractor of Springfield. The same bondsmen presented themselves as sureties for Representative Clark in the sum of $5,000, and Senator Pemberton's bond of $5,000 was signed by J. F. Crawford and C. C. Ashmore of Oakland, Ill., and William M. Checkley of Mattoon. No date was set for the trials of the indicted men, their sureties binding themselves to produce the three at the order of the court.

Wrestling For Rent.

In several cantons of Switzerland the custom prevails of holding wrestling matches and other exhibitions of physical strength at their choral, gymnastic and rifle festivals. The champions taking part in these athletic sports belong to the most diverse ranks in the social scale. Thus at a recent festival at Grenchen, a little town in the canton of Soleure, a wealthy property owner and his tenant, a carpenter, stepped into the arena to wrestle according to the rules of the art. There were to be four rounds, or "falls." The stake for each "fall" was one quarter's rent. After the carpenter had thrown his landlord four times the victor's prize was awarded to him, and he accordingly found himself entitled to live in his house rent free for a whole year.

A Henpecked Astrologer.

Lilly, the astrologer and alchemist, could not see for himself sufficiently far into that future which he professed to be able to scan so clearly for others to guard him against making a fool of himself by marrying. He caught a vixen, "of the temper of Mars," to use his own words, and the fact that she brought him £500 as dowry did not count for much in the way of compensation, seeing that "she and her relations cost him £1,000."

Matrimonial Dyspepsia.

"Well, how do you like married life?" inquired the friend.

"Not at all," replied the man who had married money and was suffering for it. "I'm a case of matrimonial dyspepsia."

"Matrimonial dyspepsia?"

"Yes. She never agrees with me; she's too rich."

His Suggestion.

Wigwag—I never knew such a fellow as Bjones. He is always looking for trouble. Henpecked—Then why doesn't he get married?—Boston Courier.

Going Round the World.

In sailing around the world eastward the days are each a little less than twenty-four hours, according to the speed of the ship, as the sun is met a little earlier every morning. These little differences added together will amount to twenty-four hours. This gives the sailors an extra day—not in imagination, but as an actual fact. They will have done an extra day's work, eaten an extra day's ration of food and imbibed an extra day's allowance of grog.

On the other hand, in sailing westward the sun is overtaken a little each day, and so each day is rather longer than twenty-four hours, and clocks and watches are found to be too fast. This also will amount in sailing around the world to the point of departure to one whole day by which the reckoning has fallen in arrears. The eastern bound ship, then, has gained a day, and the western bound ship has lost one. This strange fact, clearly worked out, leads to the apparent paradox that the first named ship has a gain of two whole days over the latter, if we suppose them to have departed from port and returned together.—Philadelphia Record.

Sally's Iron.

In describing some of her associates of the stage, Ellen Terry, in McClure's Magazine, tells of her dresser, Sarah Holland. She had an extraordinarily open mind, writes Miss Terry, and was ready to grasp each new play as it came along as a separate and entirely different field of operations.

She was extremely methodical and only got flurried once in a blue moon. When we went to America and made the acquaintance of that dreadful thing, a "one night stand," she was as precise and particular about having everything nice and in order for me as if we were going to stay in the town a month. Down went my neat square of white drugget. All the lights in my dressing room were arranged as I wished. Everything was unpacked and ironed.

One day when I came into some American theater to dress I found Sally nearly in tears.

"What's the matter with you, Sally?" I asked.

"I 'aven't 'ad a morsel to heat all day, dear, and I can't 'eat my iron."

"Eat your iron, Sally! What do you mean?"

"'Ow am I to iron all this, dear?" wailed my faithful Sally, picking up my Nance Oldfield apron and a few other trifles. "It won't get 'ot!"

Until then I really thought that Sally was being sardonic about an iron as a substitute for victuals.

THE PRIME MINISTER.

A Foreign Sovereign Responsible For This English Official.

So long as the sovereign himself presided at the meetings of the cabinet there was no obvious necessity for giving any member of it precedence over the others. But from the accession of the house of Hanover the king ceased to take part in the deliberations of the cabinet. It has been said, indeed, by a modern statesman that, "with a doubtful exception in the time of George III., no sovereign has been present at a meeting of the cabinet since Anne."

The change, like so many other modifications which have been introduced into the British constitution, was the result of a purely accidental circumstance. George I. could not speak the English language. It was clearly useless for a monarch to be present at the meetings of his councilors when he did not understand the language in which their deliberations were carried on. But when the sovereign was thus necessarily and habitually absent from the cabinet it became requisite that some minister should be chosen who should preside at the meetings and report its decisions to the king. Thus the accession of a foreigner who could not converse in English led to one of the most momentous changes in the constitution. The act of settlement had given England a foreign sovereign; the presence of a foreign sovereign gave England a prime minister.—From "Essays Political and Biographical," by Sir Spencer Walpole.

Roused His Suspicions.

A naval officer was speaking of the extortions of innkeepers in out of the way parts of the globe.

"In Montenegro once," he said, "I asked for my bill after having slept overnight at a certain inn, and as soon as the document was handed to me I took out my purse to settle it. I did not bother to verify the various items. What would have been the use?

"But my readiness to pay amazed the landlord. He thought a moment, and then he said uneasily:

"'Will you let me have another look at that bill, sir? I think I have omitted something.'"

She Was Numerous.

"I want a license to marry the best girl in the world," said the young man

"Funny, isn't it?" commented the clerk. "That makes 1,300 licenses for that girl this season."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

I do not know of any way so sure of making others happy as of being so oneself.—Sir Arthur Helps.

TWO BANKERS SENTENCED

Plead No Defense to Charges of Conspiracy and Bribery.

Pittsburg, June 2.—After having pleaded no defense to charges of conspiracy and bribery in connection with the recent municipal corruption exposures two bankers were sentenced to jail and fined in criminal court.

E. H. Jennings, president of the Columbia National bank, and F. A. Griffon, cashier of the same institution, appeared before five judges, the former receiving a fine of $500 and a sentence of two months in the Allegheny county jail and the latter receiving a fine of $500 and a sentence of four months in the same institution.

The two bankers were immediately taken to jail to begin their terms of sentence.

GOVERNMENT TROOPS BEATEN

Driven From Vicinity of Bluefields by the Insurgents.

Washington, June 2.—The Nicaraguan government's army, under General Lara, which has been in front of Bluefields for several weeks, has been defeated by the insurgent troops of General Estrada and are now in full retreat.

This information reached the state department in a dispatch from Commander Gilmore of the United States gunboat Pudacah, now at Bluefields.

Killed Robbing Bird's Nest.

Chicago, June 7.—On a challenge by his brother Charles to climb an iron post of the sanitary district to rob a bird's nest Harry Eulberg, seventeen years old, accomplished the feat and as he did so met death by coming in contact with an electric wire.

The Hat Straw Crop.

The greater part of the straw employed for making summer hats comes from Italy. To obtain a suitable straw for this purpose the wheat is sown as thickly as possible in order that the growth of the plant may be impoverished as well as to produce a thin stalk. The Italian wheat blooms at the beginning of June and is pulled up by hand by the roots when the grain is half developed. Should it be allowed to remain in the ground a longer time the straw would become too brittle for the purpose for which it is grown. Uprooted straws to the number of about five dozen, the size of the compass of the two hands, are firmly tied together in little sheaves and stowed away in barns. After that the straw is again spread out to catch the heavy summer dews and to bleach in the sun. When the product has been sufficiently bleached it is put into small bundles and classified. The last step is to cut it close above the first joint from the top, when it is again tied up in small bundles containing about sixty stalks each and is then ready for the market. —Harper's Weekly.

His Athletic Neighbor.

A young man inmate of a boarding house had been disturbed night after night by the boarder in the next room doing things with a punching bag he'd rigged up in the room some way. At breakfast each morning the young man would look over the crowd and wonder who the bag puncher might be, but there was no one in sight but a bunch of women and eight or ten men with narrow chests and retreating chins. One night he made up his mind to knock on the bag punching roomer's door and ask him to put over his exercise until daylight when all the world's awake. The man might be small enough to bulldoze even with all his athletics. The door opened and there, clad in a tight fitting red jersey, was a robust, buxom woman of perhaps thirty summers.

"And what did you say to her?" the young man was asked.

"I was so startled," replied he, "that I asked what afterward seemed to me the most natural request I could have made. I asked her if she'd lend me a couple of matches."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Clyde Fitch's Joke.

"Clyde Fitch was an indefatigable worker," said an actor who has played in many of the Fitch comedies. "When he had a play on the stocks he would labor over it day and night, often scarcely pausing for his meals and getting very little sleep; consequently his health suffered. He would work until on the verge of a nervous breakdown, and then his physician would step in and force him to knock off.

"During one of these periods of enforced idleness he was lounging in the Players club one day when Harry B Smith, the prolific comic opera librettist, strolled in.

"'What are you doing now?' asked Smith.

"'I am in my doctor's hands,' replied Fitch. 'He tells me I'm in a bad way and has absolutely forbidden me to do any brain work.'

"'That's tough,' said Smith. 'How do you manage to put in the time?'

"'Oh, I'm writing the libretto of a musical comedy!' replied Fitch, with one of his cynical smiles."—New York Times.

Perfumes In Ancient Days.

Old as the history of the world itself is that of the queen of flowers. The ancient Greeks and Romans reveled in roses. They were used lavishly at their feasts. In the time of the republic the people had their cups of Falernian wine swimming with blooms, and the Spartan soldiers after the battle of Cirrha refused to drink any wine that was not perfumed with roses, while at the regatta of Baiae the whole surface of the Lucrine lake was strewn with flowers.

A fool's heart is in his tongue, but a wise man's tongue is in his heart.—Quarles.

Modern Gold Mining.

Up until about 1850 only placer or surface gold was mined—that is, free gold, deposited in the beds of streams, in sands and in the crevices of rocks. Placer mining, mainly in new and remote regions, still furnishes a material though not a large percentage of the world's output. Formerly the alluvial gold was separated from the sands and gravels containing it by washing them in pans, cradles, rockers and sluices. In 1852 the hydraulic method was first employed in California. By this means a "giant" stream of water turned against the side of a mountain washes everything before it. The gold settles to the bottom of the funnel or sluice through which the gravel, sand and water flow. In 1889 dredges or excavators were first used in Australia. Today steam and electric dredges produce a considerable portion of the world's output.—Byron W. Holt in Everybody's.

Why Boiled Water Freezes Easily.

Water which is hot of course cannot freeze until it has parted with its heat, but water that has been boiled will, other things being equal, freeze sooner than water which has not been boiled. A slight disturbance of water disposes it to freeze more rapidly, and this is the cause which accelerates the freezing of boiled water. The water that has been boiled has lost the air naturally contained in it, which on exposure to the atmosphere it begins again to attract and absorb. During this process of absorption a motion is necessarily produced among its particles, slight certainly and imperceptible, yet probably sufficient to accelerate its congelation. In unboiled water this disturbance does not exist. Indeed, water when kept perfectly still can be reduced several degrees below the freezing point without its becoming ice.

Gardens In the Ice.

A glacier when it dislodges itself and sails away over the Arctic ocean never travels alone. In the wake of every large one floats a line of similar companions. The Eskimos call this phenomenon "the duck and ducklings," and any one who has watched the progress of the wild duck followed by her brood will appreciate the aptitude of the name. Strange as it may seem, plants grow and blossom upon these great ice mountains. When a glacier is at rest moss attaches itself to it, protecting the ice beneath, just as sawdust does. After a time the moss decays and forms a soil, in which the seeds of buttercups and dandelions, brought by the wind, take root and flourish. Those who have traveled much in arctic lands say the poppy does not bloom during the brief northern summer.

Language of Switzerland.

It is a curious fact that the people most celebrated for love of country should in a manner be without a language—that is, a mother tongue. The Swiss have three official languages—German, French and Italian. About three-fourths of the population of the mountain confederation speak German, while the remainder divide four other languages among them, chiefly French and Italian, these languages being found, as a rule, in districts in close proximity to the countries wherein those languages are the principal tongue. In Switzerland documents and notices are printed in both the French and German languages. In the national assembly members deliver their speeches in either French or German, for nearly all members understand both tongues. The decrees and proclamations of the president are translated by an official interpreter and furnished to the press in both languages.—New York Press.

Her Fault.

The teacher in charge of the primary department at a school in West Philadelphia was talking the other day about her work and her pupils.

"They are dear youngsters," she said, "but they sometimes make curious remarks. Several times I have had occasion to reprove a little boy who isn't bad, but who is very mischievous and annoying. He is always getting into trouble and making a disturbance.

"One day he had been more than usually uproarious, and I was very tired. Instead of scolding or punishing him I began in rather an exasperated tone to talk to him.

"'Tom,' I said, 'I'm afraid I'm never going to meet you in heaven.'

"He looked up with the most shocked face. 'Why, teacher,' he said, 'isn't that just too bad? What have you done?'"—Philadelphia Times.

A Modest Request.

An impeccably dressed gentleman the other day when walking along Piccadilly felt a movement in his pocket and, clapping his hand thereto, seized the wrist of the thief. He drew forth the erring member, and, looking at it with supreme disgust, he released it, saying, with a grimace of disgust, "For heaven's sake, my good man, go and wash your hands before you put them in a gentleman's pocket again!"—London Tatler.

Made Him Feel Old.

"What's the matter?"

"Oh, nothing much."

"But you look as if you had something serious on your mind."

"Well, if you insist on knowing, a boy who was named after me has just become engaged to be married. How time flies!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Dollar Mark.

"Have you seen the Washington monument?"

"Yes," replied the New Yorker. "It's a pretty tall building, but what's the good of it without any offices for rent?" —Washington Star.

DEER PARK NUBBINS

Mat Baggen has been on the sick list this week.

A number of young people from Equality took in the ball game at High Landing Sunday.

There was a meeting of the town board of Deer Park at the town clerks office last Tuesday.

C. O. Lindberg and A. H. Green transacted business at Red Lake Falls last week.

John Polbrook and ye scribe was down to Plummer last week concerning ditch matters.

The two ditches known as the Skreland and the Polbrook ditches in the northern part of our town were ordered to be established by the commisioners at their last hearing, on the 10th. This will be good news to all concerned.

There will be a steel bridge built across the Clearwater river, between sections 31 and 32 in our town, known as the Green Bridge, which is to be completed before fall.

Ole T. Lande and his mother and sister Incaborg visited at the home of I. G. Rome's last Sunday.

Miss Anna Rust and Mrs. W. A. Swanson called on the Rome family last Sunday.

Thor. T. Lande returned from Montana last week on account of being troubled with rheumatism.

The moonlight night of June is really a sight to-sweet-to-behold.Truly the charms of nature are the most pleasing of all charms.

C. W. Johnson transacted business at Fosston last week.

Victor Luidholm was a pleasant caller in this vicinity a few days last week, and he also had the pleasure of taking some of the advantages of the moonlight nights, in the meantime in company with the girl he left behind him- a short time ago.

Ole Skreland is one of these fellows that are not satisfied with one girl but he always takes a wagon load of them when he goes off for a time last Sunday he "showed" in Highlanding.

To Celebrate the 4th.

The people of the town of Mayfield expect to have a big 4th of July celebration again this year. In the forenoon there will be a patriotic meeting at the church, after which the entire party will repair to C. Magnell's place where dinner will be served. After dinner, Rev. O. M. Bakken will deliver the oration of the day; this will be followed by the Ladies' Aid's auction at which all manner of useful articles will be sold. Ice cream, lemonade and other refreshments will be served. Everybody is urged to attend. The farmers of Mayfield always have had unusually good celebrations, but the one this year will eclipse anything ever before attempted. Let everyone show his spirit by being present.

Land Opening Monday.

Next Monday at 9 a. m., the land offices at Crookston, Duluth and Cass Lake, will open for filing. 233,000 acres will be opened for settlement. At Crookston and Duluth, lines have been forming for a week or more, each individual being anxious to file first and secure his choice of the claims. Those in the line-up, remain there constantly, not risking the loss of a claim for either meals or sleep. Meals are brought to them by their friends, while they seek repose at night still retaining their places in the crowded file of settlers. Various reports give the number in each line-up as seventy or eighty. It is expected that by 9 o'clock Monday morning, the number in each line will have increased to 500

New Rotary Ditch Machine.

A large number of residents went to the Walsh farm near the race-track Monday and witnessed the work being done by the rotary ditch machine invented by Ben Clements. It outclasses any machine of its kind that has ever been shown in this section, leaving a clean ditch with perfect sloping sides, moves with great rapidity, and the dirt taken up and deposited in the roadway is pulverized and well-mixed to make a splendid road. It is the only machine which has the hearty endorsement of State Engineer George W. Cooley. Apparently this great machine is in a class by itself.—Crookston Morning Times.

NEW BANK AT RED LAKE FALLS.

It is reported on good authority that a new bank, to be known as "The Farmers' National Bank," will be opened soon at Red Lake Falls. L. C. Simons, of St. Paul, together with several other St. Paul bankers, will be at the head of the new institution. Mr. Simons is an experienced banker, well and favorably known in banking circles throughout the state. The bank, when opened, will be the second National Bank in the county, the First National of Thief River being at present the only one.

Frank Owens, catcher of the Minneapolis baseball club, will attempt during the aviation meet in that city to catch a ball dropped from an aeroplane 1000 feet above the ground. If a ball falling that distance should happen to strike Mr. Owens, it would not surprise people very much if they heard about a new catcher in the Minneapolis line-up.

The prudent young man who is looking for a wife who will "wear well," takes notice of the appearance of her mother. If she is neat and trim and looks as if she helped with the work and shows a kind and loving disposition, he may safely infer that her daughter will make a good wife.—Karlstad Advocate.

HAS RETURNED FROM CANADA

Henry Rose Advises Farmers to Stay Where They Are.

Henry Rose, who, with his brother-in-law D. H. McCullough has been making an extensive trip through western Canada, returned home the first of the week. Mr. Rose stated though there were a few good pieces of land out there, they were not very plentiful. He furthermore stated that after a diligent search through a large part of Alberta and contiguous territory, he was unable to find anything that he considered worth proving up and consequently did not file on any land; the good land, what little there is of it, has already been taken.

Mr. Rose also reported that rain was badly needed out West. When he first reached that country, some two or three weeks ago, there was a white blanket of snow, four inches deep, which covered everything. This was, however, a dry snow which when finally melted, really added very little moisture to the soil. Since that time there has not been sufficient rainfall, and although the crops on the better portions of these western lands are looking fair now, the crops in many places will suffer grievously if a heavy rain does not fall soon.

The only good land, he said, that he came across, was situated an hundred and ten miles from the nearest railroad. This, he thought, was a little too far off from civilization to make it appeal to any intelligent person. He believes that any man who is located here and has a farm, even though it may be a small one, had better stick to it; it is more apt to prove a gold-mine than a claim in some out-of-the-way place in Canada. Too many people are lured to the West by glittering advertisements and see their mistake only when it is too late. Stay where you already have a good farm and leave "well enough" alone.

In connection herewith it may be of interest to our readers to know what one of the leading papers of the Northwest has to say on this subject:

"The Northwestern states are just waking up in earnest in regard to the matter of getting settlers for their large areas of unimproved lands. While busily engaged in other enterprises, they have allowed a continuous procession of land-hungry people to pass through their confines seeking locations farther north and west, without systematically calling the attention of these people to their own agricultural resources. When a movement is once started in a certain direction it is difficult to check it until it practically exhausts itself. The farther away from home that snaps in land are supposed to be, the greater the tendency to move in that direction. This going across a continent looking for good things becomes a fashion, then a passion. If a good proportion of those who are seeking to better their circumstances would look around the country nearer home, they might find lands much more suitable for cultivation than those several hundred miles away."

Advice to Boys.

Recently the mother of a boy who is about twelve years of age made complaint before a Judge that her son was unruly and she feared he was associating with company that in the end would bring disgrace to himself and her. The Judge told the son to step near him, and, pointing to the parent, said in a pleasant tone of voice: "Boy, there is the only true friend you have; obey her. Let me impress this on your mind; think of it, remember it! Whatever shadow you cast in life will follow you as long as you live and always keep up to you That is your reputation. It is always in sight and just your size exactly, and how proud and happy it will make your fond mother if you will stop going with bad youths and stand in such a position in the sunlight of heaven that your shadow will always be on the side of honesty and respectability. Go home this time with your mother, turn over a new leaf and prevent the law from sending you to the reform school."—Ex.

CORNER STONE LAID SATURDAY

Impressive Ceremonies, Structure Soon to be Completed.

The following news from Red Lake Falls was received at the Pioneer office the first of the week:

The laying of the corner-stone of the new courthouse in this city took place Saturday. A large crowd from all parts of the county was present, but owing to the inclemency of the weather a large number were kept at home. Dr N. M. Watson of Red Lake Falls, very ably presided at the ceremony, making the welcoming address. He was followed by the Rev. Hughes, of the Presbyterian church. In his remarks he touched on the beautiful scenery of the city, calling it a worldly paradise and saying that it was the most beautiful spot he had ever been in. F. A. Grady, Attorney of Red Lake Falls, then read a history of Red Lake County, which had been prepared under the instructions of the county commissioners. Dr. I. Lemieux delivered an able oration, having been a resident of the city and county from its earliest infancy. His oration was very interesting and well received. The history of the county and other papers and souvenirs were then placed in a metallic box and the honor of sealing this was given to J. A. Duffy, mayor of Red Lake Falls, who proclaimed it to be one of the greatest pleasures of his life. The corner stone was then laid in place by the county commissioners and the stars and strips planted thereon by W. H. Krueger, after which the audience sang "America" and departed for home.

Year-Book Out.

The new Year-book of the Department of Agriculture has just been issued. This book contains information on almost every farm subject. Valuable statistics are embraced in it, articles on the destruction of the pocket-gopher, better methods of marketing grain and farm produce, comforts and conveniences for the farm home, a discussion of woven fence wire, and other similar articles of interest to farmers of this vicinity are contained in it.

It contains a lengthy article on the tuberculosis of hogs, showing how healthy, vigorous hogs may become infected by being fed the skimmed milk of tuberculous cattle, feeding after these cattle, and in many other less common methods. Of most interest to all, perhaps, is the article on "The Future Wheat Supply of the United States." James J. Hill has stated that within a comparatively few years we will be, not exporters, but importers of wheat. He bases this statement on the fact that the population is constantly increasing while the acreage and average yield is actually decreasing. The Year-book takes another view of the matter and shows that in spite of these facts the country may still through the development of the "dry-farm" lands and by increasing the yield per acre through proper cultivation and fertilization of the soils now used for raising wheat,—may still be able to supply the home demand without importing from other countries. This question is a grave one and every farmer in the country should be fully informed on the subject,

The Year-book is printed by the government and is sold to farmers at the actual cost of printing. It contains some 900 pages, is well bound, and farmers are not required to pay postage on the book as it is carried free through the mails. The book may be obtained in the usual manner from the Department of Agriculture or the Superintendent of Documents at Washington.

The annual chautauqua at Detroit will be held this year June 25th-July 4th. Among the more noted speakers will be ex-Governor Folk of Missouri, who, on the evening of June 28th will deliver an address on "Soldiers of Peace." Ex-Governor Yates of Illinois will give the patriotic address on July 4th, "The Evolution of Patriotism." A number of Plummer people have expressed their desire to attend a part of the program.

A Celebration.

On Wednesday of this week the Norwegian "Satersdahls" held a great get-together down at Erskine. All the people in this part of the state who could prove their Satersdahl blood were eligible to attend; as a result a very large number were present. About thirty people went down from the territory surrounding Plummer and all declare that they had the best time of their lives.

In all, about 500 people were present from Minnesota and North Dakota. Dr. Olson of Erskine gave the opening address. He was followed by Pres. B. Bjorenson, who delivered the ablest address of the day in the Norwegian language. The Erskine band furnished the music and were assisted by Messrs. Aakus and Sorenson of Grand Forks, who rendered many charming selections on the violin. Other well-known speakers were present and contributed to the gayety of the occasion. In general, a very enjoyable time was spent by all.

Happily Wedded.

On Saturday of last week, June 11, at the Hotel Crookston, occurred the marriage of Miss Bergit Hemmestvedt of Ada to O. H. Langlie of this city. The happy couple departed the same evening on their wedding trip through the east. They will be home to their friends at Plummer after June 25th.

The groom is a well-known and wide awake business man of this city, while the bride is one of the most popular of the young ladies of her town. The Pioneer joins their many friends in wishing them a long, happy, and prosperous married life, unclouded by sorrow or misfortune.

Convention Held.

The Republican County Convention was held at Thief River Falls yesterday. This Convention elected delegates to the State Convention who in turn will nominate the candidates on the Republican ticket for the various state offices. Henry J. Enderlie and Adolph Alrick represented the village of Plummer at the Convention. The delegates elected to the State Convention are:

Warnings have been sent out by the Bankers' Association for the bankers to be on the lookout for a man who claims to want to buy a farm, but who in reality is working bankers and real estate men to cash his worthless checks. His graft is to get bankers or real estate men to show him possible bargains in farms, one of which he decides to buy; then, after gaining the confidence of his victim, he asks him to cash a check before he leaves town.

All Hail, the Heroes!

Last Tuesday night some worthy of the city filled an old shipping crate with straw, dragged it up behind Tom Norby's place, set it ablaze, and then yelling "Fire, Fire," at the top of his voice like an escaped lunatic, ran to the fire hall and commenced frantically to ring the bell.

Instantly the flames shot forth as if a volcano were beneath. Huge, fiery spectres lept high into the evening sky, illuminating the twilight heavens with their lurid glare. It seemed for a time as if the entire city must go. Anxious fathers were already carrying their deed-boxes out of the houses; frenzied mothers were pocketing their trinkets and getting the furniture ready to move into the streets; terrified children with awe-striken faces were hastily gathering up their little boxes of junk and getting ready at a moment's notice to carry them into the brush across the railroad tracks.

At this trying moment, the brave veterans of the fire brigade appeared on the scene. Quickly hauling out the fire apparatus they turned the hose on the blazing mass, and after a desperate struggle in which every member had ample opportunity to show his prowess and valor, were enabled to subdue the flames and save the crate from total destruction.

No insurance was carried.

Political Announcement

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the district.

Ada, Minn., May 3rd., 1910.
A. L. Hanson.

When a man hands you a "come-any-old-time" invitation it is equivalent to an invitation to stay away.—Chicago News.

This year 1,350,000 pounds of government seeds were sent out by Congressmen to their constituents. It cost the government nearly a million dollars to carry these through the mails. Then the seeds themselves cost at least several millions. We consider this a ruthless waste of money. In 98 per cent of the cases, the seeds are given to people who are well able financially, to buy their own garden seeds and who would rather do so than to pay these extra millions in tariff taxes. Furthermore, since these seeds are sent out with the idea of securing votes for the Congressmen we will state that we have never yet known of a case where a packet or two o seeds would purchase a vote. There are many people in this country who are willing enough to sell their vote; but it usually takes more than a few dried-up radish or turnip seeds to turn the trick.

We heard a conversation over the Ballinger - Pinchot controversy the other day in which Ballinger was roundly berated and Pinchot lauded like a victorious Roman gladiator. We had our own opinions (of a much milder character) formed concerning these two public men, so did not dispute the statements. But, curious to learn on what grounds such strong opinions could be based, we made a few inquiries. We learned that one of the gentlemen knew nothing about the controversy at all except that Pinchot had been a friend of Roosevelt; the other knew only what certain traveling-men had told him about the matter And in their meager and vague bit of information they had formed opinions strong enough to shake a continent.

One finds this to be an almost universal fault. People, in general, have but very little difinite information on questions with which they should be throughly familiar. Their knowledge is confined to an occasional remark dropped by someone who knows probably, very littlie about the subject, or perhaps to a glance at the headlines of a newspaper. Yet, they are able to form very definite opinions on every subject of the day. And the more they are able to air their views, the more definite do those opinions become.

Taft has made another flowery break. After "insisting" that the new railroad bill contain some provision to control the issues of the stocks and bonds of railroad companies, he has decided to add a paragraph to the providing for a commission to investigate this matter and report at the next session of Congress. This is a somewhat worn, but very effective method of playing on the good faith of the people, and, as has been said of the last bill, "giving the shell to the people and permitting the nut go to the corporations." The passage of the railroad bill at this session of Congress is almost a certainty. Then, next year, when the people ask why those stock issues are not controlled, the adminstration will reply;"Last year we gave you the railroad bill Under its regime, business has increased in the land, by 'leaps and bounds,' prosperity has doubled; and the railroads, concious of the mighty hold the people of this great nation have upon them, are waking up to the fact that they are only public service corporations and that they must submit to the will of the people." And the commission? O, the commission will make its report,—to a committee, whereupon some Congressman from Massachusets or Pennsylvania will move to accept their report by unamious vote and lay it on the table. Thus will die the "people's interests," which has been so zealously guarded by our president. Meanwhile the moisture still accumulates on the stocks and bonds.

The aviation meet at the Minnesota state fair grounds, Wednesday June 22 to Saturday, June 25, for unique and sensational features is the most remarkable racing event in the history of the Northwest, but the country. Glenn H. Curtiss, who has just won the word's applause by his flight from Albany to New York, is to come here with his new model aeroplane and go against world's records in competition with such other notable flyers as Chas. K. Hamilton, the bronco buster of the clouds, Charles F. Willard, holder of the worlds' records for accurate starting land landing, J. C. Mars, who has also been attracting attention by his daredevil feats. Inducements have been offered, also, which will bring to the meet a half dozen or more amateur aviators among them Clifford F. Harmon, whose ballon flights have made him famous and who now gives promise of making his mark with the aeroplane.

Barney Oldfied the dare devil driver; with his 200 h. p. Benz car, with which he made a mile in 26 seconds, Kischler with his Darracq machine, from France, and possibly Ray Harroun, the winner of the Speedway competitions at Indianapolis, are to compete for world auto records. There are also to be notable motorcycle races.

The great feature of the meet, however, will be a race between Curtiss, with his aeroplane. Oldfield with his Benz car, and Minor Heir, the fastest harness horse in the world, all going at once, the horse on a half-mile track the auto on a mile track, and Curtiss flying above. The fairground is loctaed between Minneapolis and St Paul, can accomodate 100,000 people, and furnished ideal conditions for the races.

WORLD'S SWIFTEST RUNNERS

The Minnesota firemen's convention was held at Alexandria this week and a delegation went down from here to attend the same. They report a good time. A well planned and well executed program was carried out and as one man expressed it, "There was something doing every minute of the day."

During the business meeting our delegation was extra busy and landed a couple of choice plums. While the 1911 meeting of the convention had been set for Owatona and the 1912 meeting for Minneapolis they secured the next available date, 1913 for our city and great preparations will be made for that occasion.

A vigorous and closely contested battle with other delegations was necessary to land this date and a large amount of credit is due to the boys for their enthusiastic work.

Ira C. Richardson was elected 2nd. Vice President.

The other delegates from here were Louie Lonson, Christ Porter and Mr Ed Langevin.

The Origin of the "Marseillaise."

In the reign of terror under Freron and Barras, when hundreds of victims were carved by the guillotine and the people rose against the aristocracy, was born the hymn of France, composed by Rouget de l'Isle. He was an officer of engineers and at a banquet was asked to compose a war song. He wrote it in his room that night before going to bed, and the next morning his hostess, the wife of the mayor of Strassburg, tried it on a piano, and in the afternoon the orchestra of the theater played it in the square of Strassburg, where it created much excitement and gathered many volunteers. Rouget called it a song for the Army of the Rhine, but subsequently it was sung by a regiment of volunteers, mostly assassins, who marched out of Marseilles to Paris, where it was appropriated by the capital and called the "Hymne des Marseilais." But Joseph Rouget, the author, died in poverty. – Deshler Welch in Harper's Magazine.

Westminster Hall.

Westminster hall, England's old hall of the king's justice, is one of the world's notable historical shrines. Built four centuries before Columbus sailed for America, burned, restored, remodeled, it has seen more history in the making than perhaps any other building west of Rome. Here some of the early parliaments met, and here the second Edward was expelled from his throne. Here Richard II. was deposed, Charles I. condemned and Cromwell hailed as lord protector, whose head, if the legend is authentic, was afterward exposed from one of the hall's pinnacles. Westminster hall was the scene of the trial of Warren Hastings. In it sentence of death was pronounced on William Wallace, Sir Thomas More, Somerset, Essex, Strafford and Guy Fawkes.—New York World.

Tried to Fly.

John Milton in "Britain to the Conquest" says that the youth King Harold, last of the Saxons, strangely aspiring, had made and fitted wings to his hands and feet. With these, on the top of a tower, spread out to gather the air, he flew more than a furlong; but, the wind being too high, he came fluttering to the ground, maiming all his limbs, yet so conceited was he of his art that the cause of his fall was attributed to the want of a tail, as birds have, which he forgot to make.

MANY DIE IN FIRE

Between Twenty and Thirty Persons Perish at Montreal.

TANK CRASHES THROUGH ROOF

People in Building Buried in Wreckage When Fire Starts.

Montreal, June 14.—Between twenty and thirty people lost their lives when the supports of the sprinkler system tank on the roof of the Herald building gave way and the great mass of metal and water, weighing thirty-five tons, went crashing to the basement.

Fire broke out immediately, adding its horrors to the disaster. The firemen displayed splendid heroism in rescuing scores of people from perilous positions in the tottering walls. Some of the walls had to come down before the work of recovering the bodies could be safely attempted.

The first warning of the impending disaster passed almost unnoticed. There was a slight cracking; then a little more, somewhat more pronounced, but it was not until the ceiling plaster began to fall that a rush for the stairway began. Before any one reached it there occurred a final deafening crash and then chaos. Some survivors tell of falling one and two floors efore the awful crash died away and then they found themselves able to crawl through the dense dust to a place of safety. The majority sought safety by rushing to the front of the building. Fortunately all the floors held about thirty feet from the front wall, and to this is due the fact that the death list did not run into the hundreds, for there were nearly 300 people in the building at the time.

Girl Displays Great Heroism.

One ladder was hoisted, reaching to the fourth floor, on which the bindery was located. It came between two windows. From one of these a little girl crept along the coping until she could reach the ladder. Grasping a rung with one hand and placing a foot on another, she lent a helping hand to eight or ten girls twice her size. When all the girls had reached the ladder and had been brought down to safety she came down alone.

A dozen injured people were brought from the ruins by the firemen, many of them with broken limbs.

All of the members of the editorial staff escaped unharmed, their quarters being located in the front of the building. John C. Walsn, editor of the paper, and the members of the staff were taken from windows by firemen.

The fire started from the stereotyping department, the red hot coals from the furnace evidently being distributed on the different floors through which the pots passed on their way to the basement, for the fire appeared to start almost simultaneously on all the lower floors.

The building was valued at $150,000 and was owned by the Herald company, while the valuation of the plant is placed at $300,000. About half the linotype battery remained in position and it is believed that the two newspaper presses, located in the basement, were not seriously damaged. The insurance on the building and plant totals $177,000.

MAY BE DOUBLE MURDER

Charlton's Coat Discovered Near Place Where Wife's Body Was Found.

Como, Italy, June 14.—A part of a man's coat, declared by some of his fishermen neighbors to have belonged to Porter Charlton, was found in Lake Como, from the water of which the body of his murdered bride, Mary Scott Castle Charlton, was recovered last Friday.

The torn garment was fished up from the bottom of the lake near the spot where the trunk containing the body of the woman was found.

This discovery strengthens the theory of many that a double murder was committed. This is the view of Charles M. Caughy, the American consul at Milan, who believes that Charlton met the same fate as did his wife. Mr. Caughy is actively engaged in furthering the investigation. Earlier evidence that both of the Americans were killed, presumably for their valuables, was found in the blood spattered bed at the villa which they occupied.

CLOUDBURST IN GERMANY

Late Estimates Place Dead at One Hundred and Fifty.

Cologne, Germany, June 14.—Great loss of life has occurred in the Ahr valley of the Eifel region as the result of a cloudburst which swept the district Sunday night. Late estimates place the total number of dead at 150.

The greatest loss of life occurred where two barracks containing Italian and Croation laborers employed on the railway were swept away. The inmates were surprised in their sleep and generally unable to help themselves. Thirty-seven bodies have been recovered.

The flood subsided as suddenly as it came and the danger is now past. Many peasants, however, have lost everything and are dependent on charity.

Spirit of Young America.

A teacher in a Philadelphia public school narrated the following account of how an aspiring young Italian citizen was beginning to show the effects of an American environment. The story, which was told at a teachers' association meeting, runs something like this:

Tony had been away from school about a week, and when he showed up one morning the teacher asked him where he had been.

"I ran away," said Tony.

"Ran away! What did you do that for?" asked the teacher.

"My father was going to lick me, so I thought I'd run away," was the reply.

The teacher by further questioning brought out the fact that Tony for some trifling dereliction had been threatened with a beating and had stayed away from home the best part of a week.

"But your father has the right to whip you," said the teacher.

"Yes, he may," added Tony, "but I was born in this country, and I don't want no foreigners to lick me."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

PASSED BY HOUSE

Favorable Action on Postal Savings Bank Bill.

PROVIRIONS OF THE MEASURE

Deposits of Any One Person Limited to $500.

Washington, June 10.—Representative Hammond of Minnesota was one of twenty-two Democrats who voted for the administration postal savings banks bill in the house, which passed, 195 to 101.

Under the terms of the postal savings bank bill passed by the house a board of trustees is created consisting of the postmaster general, the secretary of the treasurer and the attorney general, who shall declare what postoffices shall become postal savings banks. Deposits in these banks made by any person shall not be more than $100 a month or exceed a total of $500. An account may be opened with $1, but stamps of 10 cents each will be issued for those desiring to accumulate money to be deposited. On deposits 2 per cent per annum is to be paid.

Any depositor so desiring can change his deposits for government bonds to be issued in denominations of $20, $40, $60, $80, $100 or $500, to bear interest at 2½ per cent per annum. The money accumulated in the postal savings banks is to be deposited in both national and state banks in the vicinity of the postoffices in which the money is deposited by the people, such banks to pay 2¼ per cent interest.

Five per cent of the total deposit is to be retained by the secretary of the treasury as a cash reserve. Not more than 30 per cent of these deposits may be withdrawn by the government at any one time for investment in bonds of the United States, the remaining 65 per cent to remain on deposit in the banks.

The banks are required to give as security for the deposits they receive "public bonds or other securities supported by the taxing power," which restricts such securities to some form of national, state, municipal or other such bonds approved by the board of trustees in charge of postal savings banks.

REFUSES TO SEE HARRISON

President Taft Snubs the New York Congressman.

Washington, June 10.—President Taft declined to receive Representative Francis Burton Harrison, Democrat, of New York, who called at the White House in company with two other representatives to introduce a number of Jewish rabbis who took up with the president the question of the expulsion of Jews from Russia.

The president received the delegation and chatted with its various members for fifteen minutes or more. Representative Goldfogle of New York acted as spokesman and so adroitly had the situation been handled by Secretary Norton that not one of the callers knew anything of the incident until Representative Harrison returned to the Capitol and there made a statement to the effect that he had been rebuffed by the president.

Mr. Taft based his refusal to see Mr. Harrison on statements attributed by newspapers to the representative in connection with his resolution in the house calling upon Attorney General Wickersham for full information as to the connection of his office with the Ballinger-Pinchot episode. Mr. Harrison, according to the White House version of the matter, charged the president and the attorney general with having wilfully attempted to mislead congress in the back dating of the attorney general's summary of the Glavis charges against the secretary of the interior.

GREAT FIRE AT SEATTLE

Six City Blocks Destroyed, Causing Loss of a Million.

Seattle, Wash., June 12.—Fire that broke out on the northern water front during a hurricane was carried by the wind to a district to the eastward thickly covered by wooden buildings and in a short time twenty acres were ablaze, causing a loss of $1,000,000 and rendering 500 people homeless.

The fire, starting at Railroad avenue and Battery streets, destroyed all the buildings on six city blocks and picked out a wooden house here and there in the surrounding district not entirely fire swept. When the flames were at their height burning brands set fire to houses several blocks from the main fire.

ACCUSED OF VIOLATING LAW

Western Union Caught In Bucket Shop Net.

Washington, June 11.—The federal grand jury has returned an indictment against the Western Union Telegraph company charging it with forty-two violations of the bucket shop law of March 1, 1909.

The charge is made that the Western Union company, by means of a telegraph wire and a ticker, aided and abetted the conduct of a bucket shop in the District of Columbia.

How the Train Was Held Up

By BEVERLY WORTHINGTON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

All day we sped on, getting farther and farther from civilization. What had been three carloads at the start was soon reduced to one, and finally all save about a dozen passengers had dropped off. The country becoming arid, nothing to look at outside and nothing to do inside, some of us got together to talk. There was a Methodist minister in a white cravat and a woman dressed in calico, an Irishman with a red head and a colored man. Others there were, but these four are especially impressed on my memory. We had exhausted every topic we could think of and were pining for something to break the monotony of the journey when the conductor came in and said to us:

"We're coming to a place, a cut and a curve in the road, where there is a possibility of the train being held up. If you people have any valuables that you don't care to lose you had better dispose of them in some way by which they won't show up."

"How do you know the train is likely to be held up?" asked the Irishman.

"A man got on at the last station who said that his little daughter, only twelve years old, had heard some men laying a plan. They had agreed that they would go through this very train and at the cut two miles beyond Raccoon. There's only one cut about there, and there's a curve in it."

"Why don't you go back?" asked the woman, trembling.

"Because there's no certainty about the matter. I don't know how well I can depend on the information. If I backed at every such report, throwing the road's schedule out, I'd soon get my walking papers."

"Where's the man who told about this?"

"In the baggage car."

One or two of the passengers went forward to interview the informer, while the others began to take measures to put their valuables in places where they would not likely be found. We had left Raccoon and would be in the cut in a few minutes. The woman unhooked her dress in front and crammed in a pocketbook. The Irishman, thinking that she would not be likely to be forced to disrobe, asked her if she would kindly take charge of a roll of bills for him. She consented. No one of the other passengers—they were all men—seemed to be satisfied to keep his valuables on his person, so one by one they went to the woman and asked her to be their temporary safe deposit. She was very obliging, but, not having room where she had put her own pocketbook, she suggested that they tie up their goods in their handkerchiefs and she would pin them on to the waistband of her petticoat.

This seemed so admirable a plan that every man in the car came to this lone woman and begged the protection of her skirts for his money, watch and jewelry of every kind. She was literally loaded down with them, having a circle of suspended articles around her waist.

The news that the train was likely to be held up was carried into the next car back—there were but two passenger cars—and half a dozen persons came into our car to learn about the matter. There was no more room for valuables under the woman's skirt, but the minister stepped forward with a plan, much to the relief of these newcomers. Taking off his silk hat, he said:

"I am carrying funds for the church, and, knowing of the danger of being robbed in this wild country, I had a false top put in my hat. I have room for what money any of you may wish to secrete."

He took out the false top and put it back again on all the money there was left unprovided for.

But there was no room in the clergyman's hat except for money. The colored man opened a worn suit case that looked as if it would scarcely hold together to complete the journey and among the contents, some soiled underclothes, hid a fifty cent piece and two nickels, all the money he had. This seemed to those passengers whose watches and jewelry had not been taken care of the acme of fine hiding places. No robber would expect to find anything in that suit case among a negro's soiled underclothes. Consequently the goods that had not yet been hidden were dumped into the tattered receptacle.

By the time the last article had been stored away the train reached the cut. The passengers held their breath while passing through it and breathed again on reaching the other end. When they were congratulating themselves on getting through safely there was a jerk on the bell rope, and the train suddenly came to a stop.

The passengers turned pale and kept their seats except the clergyman, the woman and the negro. They went to the door, apparently to see what had happened. But they did not stop there. Four horses stood saddled beside the track. The three passengers mentioned, the negro holding on to his suit case, jumped from the car and on to the horses. The fourth horse was mounted by the informer. Waving an affectionate adieu, they put spurs to their horses and were soon lost to view in a wood.

"By thunder," exclaimed the conductor, "that's the neatest job I ever dreamed of!"

Among all the passengers on the train there was not enough money left to buy a breakfast.

ATTACKS PAYNE TARIFF MEASURE

Senator Dolliver Delivers Stirring Speech in Senate.

RIDICULES TAFT'S FIGURES

Iowan Declares Statistics Presented by Chief Executive In Several Speeches Were Misleading and That the President Had Been Imposed Upon in Regard to Them—Says Schedules Were Dictated by Manufacturers.

Washington, June 14.—Senator Dolliver of Iowa delivered a remarkable speech in the senate in support of "insurgency" and against the Payne-Aldrich tariff law. Mr. Dolliver charged the Taft administration, in effect, with using the patronage club in an effort to beat recalcitrant party members into line and served notice that they could not force him to yield in this way. He ridiculed the figures which President Taft had presented in his speech at Winona and elsewhere to prove that the Payne-Aldrich revision was a movement downward and declared that the president had been imposed upon in the matter of these statistics, which had been handed to him by his supposed friends.

"Vagrant children left in William H. Taft's intellectual household and adopted by him," was the way Senator Dolliver described the statistics that the president had presented to the country in defense of the "best tariff law ever framed in the United States."

Senator Dolliver reiterated his charges of last year that most of the tariff schedules were dictated by the manufacturers themselves. He scoffed at the idea that the Payne-Aldrich law was revised downward and presented figures in support of his contention.

Bill Coerced Through Congress.

He declared that the bill had been put through congress by log rolling and coercion and quoted Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, Senator Elkins, a regular of regulars, and even President Taft himself in support of some of his statements in regard to this charge.

Senator Dolliver served notice on the Republican organization that they could not force him out of the party; that he intended to stick and to fight to the end methods used by his party in the past.

"The truth is," said Senator Dolliver, 'that last year witnessed two events of worldwide interest and significance—the discovery of the North pole by Dr. Cook and the revision of the American tariff downward by the senator from Rhode Island, each of them in itself a unique hoax, and both of them unhappily introduced to the favor of the American public by the highest official congratulations."

Senator Dolliver was, of course, referring in this statement to the president's own message to Dr. Cook and to his commendation of the Payne-Aldrich law.

Senator Dolliver spoke for more than three hours. Nearly every chair in the senate was occupied and the galleries were crowded. At the conclusion of his speech the senator was surrounded by the progressive band and by many Democrats who congratulated him.

SOO LINE PAYS $10,500 FEE

Largest Sum Ever Paid Into North Dakota Treasury.

Bismarck, N. D., June 14.—The largest sum of money ever paid into the state treasury in one sum was paid by the Soo railroad when the office of the secretary of state received a draft for $10,500 for increasing the capital stock of the company from $21,000,000 to $42,000,000.

The law provides for a charge graduated according to the capital stock of corporations for filing articles of incorporation and certifying increases of capital stock.

Some time ago the Soo applied for a certified copy of its articles of incorporation and they were certified by Secretary Blaisdel at $21,000,000. At the same time the company was notified that an increase in its capital stock to double the present sum would necessitate the payment of a fee as stated above. The attorneys of the road advised that the payment of the fee was necessary to comply with the law of the state and the check was accordingly forwarded.

Colt Kicks and Kills Driver.

Tolna, N. D., June 14.—Clarence Price, sixteen years old, was instantly killed here when he was kicked in the head by a horse. The young man was driving a colt hitched to a cart and was racing with his brother who was on horseback. As he turned to speak to his brother the colt kicked, striking the driver in the temple.

Stole to Buy Food.

La Crosse, Wis., June 14.—In a remarkable confession in which he said that hunger drove him to commit burglary Frank W. Jerome of Minneapolis pleaded guilty to the charge of burglarizing the Kroner hardware store before Judge Brindley and was sentenced to eighteen months at the Green Bay reformatory.

LOUIS W. HILL.

Annoyed by Press Reports of His Conservation Views.

HILL WILL WRITE DENIAL

Great Northern President Not a Conservation Convert.

St. Paul, June 14.—Conservation is not synonymous with conversation, in spite of the similarity of sound between the two words. This is a position maintained by L. W. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, who declares that because of a little overmuch of conversation his views on conservation have been distorted.

"Mr. Pinchot, in one of his cheerful, playful moods, announced that he had converted me to conservation," said Mr. Hill. "Through the press that statement has been circulated all over the country, and as a result my office has been flooded with telegrams from people who have been wanting to know my position. It makes the situation embarrassing. I shall write a denial."

SHIPPERS CALL ON CHIEF EXECUTIVE

President Declares Railroads Must Have Square Deal.

Washington, June 14.—In talking with a delegation of shippers representing the entire country, who called to congratulate him upon his course in the recent railroad negotiations and in preventing an increase in freight rates, President Taft again expounded the doctrine of the square deal. He told the shippers that unless the railroads were given a fair profit it would deeply affect the shipping interests. He declared that the prosperity of the shippers and the carriers must be mutual; that neither could move ahead without the other.

The railroads, the president said, were entitled to a reasonable return, and it was to secure this to them that the new railroad bill proposed to give to the interstate commerce commission the right of inquiry to ascertain what a reasonable rate should be. In this inquiry Mr. Taft promised that both shippers and the railroads would be given equal opportunity to present their case.

DISCLAIMS NEW PARTY MOVE

Pinchot Emphatically Denies Making Partisan Speech.

Cleveland, June 14.—Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester and former Secretary of the Interior Garfield returned here from the Twin Cities, where they addressed the Roosevelt club Saturday night. Pinchot was emphatic in his denials of an attempt to launch a new political party.

"I said nothing along that line," declared the former chief forester. "The meeting was not a partisan one. My reference to parties was a statement that it is better to be a good citizen than a good Democrat or a good Republican and that the special interests are equally as strong in both parties."

This disclaimer was seconded by former Secretary Garfield.

"Nothing was said by Mr. Pinchot or myself with reference to the formation of a new party," said he.

Cool Railway Station Robber.

Fort Dodge, Ia., June 14.—A self possessed criminal entered the Illinois Central station at Duncombe through a window while the agent was at dinner, took $80 and went down the track at a dog trot. Pursuit was begun while he was still in sight, but he cut through fields, evaded his pursuers and is thought to have boarded a Chicago Great Western train at Vincent.

Fall of Two Feet Fatal.

Fort Dodge, Ia., June 14.—Charles Lewis, colored, fell two feet while working on the new federal building, ruptured the back wall of his stomach and is now dying of peritonitis. Lewis was wheeling a load of concrete across a suspended board when it broke.

Grandma's Ride

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

Grandma Spooner was seventy-eight years old. She had been a farmer's widow for forty years and for the last fifteen had lived with her son Zadoc and his wife.

She broke her arm.

"Grandma, you are seventy-eight years old, and I'm afraid this is the end of things," said the doctor

"That's what I'm thinking myself," she replied. "Please prop me up in bed. I want to go over things a little, doctor. I haven't had much fun in this world. At the age of ten I fell off the barn and broke four ribs."

"Yes, I've heard so."

"When I was twelve I chopped off one of my toes. At fifteen a horse ran away with me and broke my right leg. At seventeen I slipped on the ice and broke the other."

"Yes."

"At twenty I was almost drowned in a mill pond. At twenty-two I married Moses Spooner. Doctor, Moses was a poke of a man. He could hardly keep out of the way of a haystack. He was always wanting to rest. I was almost glad when he died.

"Since you knew me I have had a bug in my ear, fallen down stairs, been bitten by a snake, hooked by a cow, blowed up with kerosene, twisted my ankle, fell out of a tree and had various bones broken. This breaking my arm is about the last of me, ain't it?"

"We will hope not, but"—

"Oh, talk it right out, doctor. You can't scare me none."

"As I told you, it's serious."

"I'm feeling that way. I reckon my days are over, but I'm not complaining. Do you know, I never went to a circus?"

"You didn't?"

"Never. I always had a broken leg or something when there was a circus, spelling school or party. I never went huckleberrying. I never skated or slid downhill. I never saw a mad dog or a balloon. I never went to a church picnic. I've always had broken bones on hand or been down with sickness. I ought to have some little fun in life, hadn't I? I ought to have seen a dog fight or something."

"Surely you had," replied the doctor, "and I am sorry for you."

"Then I want you to do something for me. I've been whizzing along all my life, and I want to go out of it on the whiz. I want Zadoc to go to town and hire one of them autos and take me for a ride, and I want you to fix me up for it. I've got to go, but I want to go having fun."

"You've got a fever, and it will increase it."

"I can't help it."

"Moving you in and out of the auto will be very painful."

"But I'm used to it. I tell you, doctor, I'm going to have some fun to end up on if I have to jump down the well. It's my due. I jest want to laugh good and hearty once before I go."

The doctor wrestled with grandma for the best of an hour, and then Zadoc was called in to decide. After listening to the arguments he said:

"Why, it looks all right to me. Seems as if mother ought to have some fun after all these years. She hain't got any new bones to break."

The doctor put it off another day, and then, thinking that the worry was as bad as the fever, he gave consent. Zadoc went to town and hired an auto and chauffeur, and the broken woman was carried out with all due precautions and seated in it. She was in good spirits from the brandy the doctor gave her.

"I hope you ain't blaming me any, Zadoc," she said as the machine moved off.

"Not a mite, mother."

"You know I've got to be seventy-eight years old?"

"Yes."

"And you can't remember ever hearing me even giggle, can you?"

"No, mother."

"Always had broken bones or something to keep me from feeling good. You was going to take me to the circus two years ago, but I fell down the cellar stairs the day before."

"Yes."

"You was going to take me to camp meeting last year, but I run a rusty nail into my foot."

"So you did."

"And we was talking of going to a picnic next week, and I went and broke my arm."

"Yes."

"But I guess I've got pretty nigh the end, Zadoc. Is there a smile on my face?"

"Why, mother, there surely is!"

"And I feel like giggling. Yes, sir, Zadoc, I believe I'm going to be tickled after all these years! You won't mind it, will you?"

"Not a bit, mother. Go ahead and grin and giggle and laugh."

"Then tell him to put on the whiz. It's great, Zadoc. It's grand. Don't you see me grinning. Can't you hear me giggling? Seventy-eight years old, and this is the first grin and the first giggle that I can remember!"

"Keep 'er up, mother. I shouldn't wonder if you'd live to be a hundred."

"More whiz, Zadoc—more whiz!"

And ten minutes later he said to the chauffeur:

"Get us back home—ma's dead!"

"You don't say!"

"Smiling to beat the band, but she's dead. Poor ma! She never had any fun till now, and this has whizzed the life out of her!"

A REWARD

It Was Not For Timidity

By HARRY C. ERNST

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I arose after a night's journey in a sleeping car, made my toilet in the wash room at the end of the car, and when I returned to my berth it was made up. I found there the occupant of the upper berth, a sleek looking gentleman, well dressed and apparently prosperous, but with an anxious expression on his face that he could not conceal. He seemed to find it difficult to sit still and kept furtively looking about him as though he expected some one to pounce upon him.

We were entering Chicago and before reaching the terminal stopped at a suburban station. By this time my section mate looked so frightened that he was entirely unable to conceal his feelings. Standing up, he cast a glance out the window, hesitated, then, seizing his suit case, hurried from the train.

We had no sooner started again than, casting a glance at my own suit case, which had stood on the floor beside that of the departed passenger, I noticed that my name did not appear on its end. I quickly examined the other end, but it was not there either. I knew that my suit case bore my name and my city, so I at once made up my mind that the man who had occupied the other berth had taken mine instead of his own. I took out my key to see if I could open the one remaining, but it did not fit.

It struck me that there was something wrong with the man who had exchanged suit cases. Supposing he were a fugitive from justive, if I were found with his baggage I might be mistaken for him and get into trouble. It would be impossible for me to reach him and inform him of his mistake. I must go on to the depot without my suit case. He would discover my name and address on it, and since my residence was in Chicago he would, if honest, drop me a line through the postoffice.

But what should I do with his suit case? Did I not suspect him I would take it with me and return it to him when he returned mine. As it was, I dreaded to be found with it in my possession.

There was a young man sitting in the section opposite me. He looked rather seedy and melancholy. Beside him was a suit case. Just before entering the station he went to the other end of the car. Taking advantage of his absence, I changed suit cases with him. When he returned, since we were under cover of the station, the car was quite dark. He picked up the suit case I had placed on his seat and went out with it among the throng of passengers.

I waited patiently, expecting every day to receive a note from the man who had my suit case. I couldn't address him, for there was no name on the suit case I had taken. I received no communication and finally gave up expecting any. I determined to open the suit case I had in my possession to see if I could find anything inside indicating to whom it belonged.

Forcing the lock, I found within pieces of linen clothing, a paper novel and a few letters. The latter were not in envelopes bearing an address, and, in order to discover if there was anything in them to give me the information I wished, I read them. They were from a girl who was very unhappy at her lover leaving her to go to Chicago to seek his fortune. By mutual consent they had given up all hope of a union because the lover was poor and they couldn't afford to marry. I had gained this information before I came to the words, "I shall send your letters to No. — —— street." I knew this is to a Chicago street.

Here was what I wanted. I wrote a note to the young man stating that (by mistake) he had taken my suit case and if he had mine I would like to exchange with him.

I received no reply for some weeks; then I got a letter containing some remarkable information—information that made me regret my timidity of being mistaken for a criminal. Indeed, I no sooner read the words than I desired to "kick" myself all over the three "sides" that compose Chicago. The young man told me that he had opened the suit case and in it had found a package of bank bills to the amount of $90,000. Seeing in newspaper telegraphic news from an eastern city of a bank robbery, he had communicated with the officers of the bank, returned the money and had received a reward of $9,000 for doing so. Meanwhile the police had got on the track of the robber, who had been the bank's paying teller, and he had been arrested. The young man added that it was supposed the guilty party had purposely changed suit cases with him, not daring to face the police of Chicago, who might be watching for him. He wound up by apologizing for his long silence on the ground that he had been east to secure his reward and had brought back a wife with him.

So I had turned over $90,000 of stolen money to another, enabling him to reap $9,000 reward. But I had much consolation in the fact that I had been the means of uniting a pair of lovers who had given each other up. I met the young man and his wife afterward. They were making a fortune out of that reward.

While this young man made a clean $9,000 out of the operation, I lost my baggage, which contained a new $100 evening suit, with several valuable toilet articles.

THE PRIME MINISTER.

A Foreign Sovereign Responsible For This English Official.

So long as the sovereign himself presided at the meetings of the cabinet there was no obvious necessity for giving any member of it precedence over the others. But from the accession of the house of Hanover the king ceased to take part in the deliberations of the cabinet. It has been said, indeed, by a modern statesman that, "with a doubtful exception in the time of George III., no sovereign has been present at a meeting of the cabinet since Anne."

The change, like so many other modifications which have been introduced into the British constitution, was the result of a purely accidental circumstance. George I. could not speak the English language. It was clearly useless for a monarch to be present at the meetings of his councillors when he did not understand the language in which their deliberations were carried on. But when the sovereign was thus necessarily and habitually absent from the cabinet it became requisite that some minister should be chosen who should preside at the meetings and report its decisions to the king. Thus the accession of a foreigner who could not converse in English led to one of the most momentous changes in the constitution. The act of settlement had given England a foreign sovereign; the presence of a foreign sovereign gave England a prime minister.—From "Essays Political and Biographical," by Sir Spencer Walpole.

STRATEGY WITH GOOD RESULTS.

By SUMNER CHILDS.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"A love story in my life?" said the ex-stage driver. "You bet. It happened on the last drive I made, and that drive was between Virginia City and Sacramento. At that time there was frequent stage robberies o' the Wells Fargo express treasure owin' to the fact that some one connected with the company was passin' word to the road agents wherever a large amount o' gold dust was to be shipped.

"Well, one day a lot o' treasure boxes was hoisted aboard the stage and the inside was full o' passengers when a little schoolma'am from New England came a-trippin' along from the tavern, makin' straight for us. When she come up I was on the box and told her the coach was full and she'd better take the next one. She looked awful disappointed and said she was due at one of the stations on the road the next day and there wouldn't be another coach goin' for three days. The passengers was all men, and they poked their heads out o' the winders, starin' at the gal, but not one of 'em offered to git outside and give her his seat. She looked mighty astonished at this, for she'd been travelin' in coaches in the west and knew what deference was usually shown to women.

"What'd the little gal do but climb right up beside me. The express agent who was superintendin' the loadin' o' the boxes told her she couldn't go on that coach. She asked why, and he said the coach might be attacked by road agents. She answered him by sayin' that the road agents was welcome to all she had. I tipped the leaders on the ear, and we were off.

"I was a young man then, and I didn't let slip a chance to say soft things to the little schoolma'am. I told her that if we was attacked she mustn't be frightened, for road agents wouldn't hurt such a tender little thing as she. But I noticed she snuggled pretty close to me. We'd gone past the second relay when suddenly, on makin' a turn around a bluff, a man stepped out and said good naturedly:

"'I'll take your Wells Fargo freight, if you please.'

"'You'll find it in the boot,' I remarked, pullin' in.

"The feller had no rifle, but I knew that his pals was coverin' me from behind the bushes. He went to the boot, unstrapped the cover, and one by one his backers joined him and helped him off with the boxes. One o' the men come up front and said he'd take the mail bag if I didn't mind. I reached under my seat, pulled it out and dropped it down to him.

"'Goodness gracious,' exclaimed the little schoolma'am, 'what a lonely place for a postoffice!'

"Poor little innocent! She never mistrusted that she was sittin' on a volcano. And I didn't want her to. I told her the bag would be taken to a town off the road where the postoffice was located.

"By this time the boxes was unloaded on the grass beside the coach. The robbers was tryin' to git off the covers by rippin' 'em up with their big knives when all of a sudden there was a crackin' o' rifles from within the coach. Four road agents toppled over, one tried to crawl into the bushes, and three ran for their lives. The little schoolma'am threw her arms around me and buried her face in my whiskers.

"You see, the company had sent the coach out for a decoy. A few days before they had let it leak out that on that date they would send $50,000 worth o' dust over the road. Of course this was reported to the band, who lay in wait to relieve us o' the treasure. The boxes were filled with sand, and in every seat inside the coach sat a man with a concealed gun. They had a leader, who watched till the agents got careless, when he gave the word to fire and scooped the party.

"Well, I left the little schoolma'am with her arms around my neck, and I was in no hurry to unwind 'em. The men in the coach got out, examined the dead, took in the only man left and signaled me to drive on.

"'I was very much mortified,' I said to the gal, 'at what appeared the bad manners o' the men in the coach not makin' way for you when you got on. But, you see, to have had a woman in that party would have spoiled the game. The express agent knew what was a-goin' to happen and tried to stop you goin' with us, but when you climbed up here so confident-like I hadn't the heart to make you git down. I'm glad you come, though.'

"'Why?'

"'Well, I found it mighty nice to feel your'—

"She blushed red as a rooster's comb and moved as far as she could get on the other end o' the seat.

"I dropped her off at her station. When I got back to Virginia City the Wells Fargo superintendent asked me why I consented to let a gal go on such an expedition. 'To throw the road agents off their guard,' I told him. 'They'd never suspect danger with a little chick like that perched on the box.' The idea struck him all o' a heap, and when the wounded robber said that's what finished 'em the superintendent drew me a check for $1,000 as a reward for my foresight.

"I entered a quarter section, bought [illegible] [illegible] with the money and married the schoolma'am."

Equal to the Occasion.

The author of "Across England In a Dogcart" once stopped to examine a church in the little village of Enstone.

The day was warm, and on leaving the church I rested for awhile in the grateful shade of the building and for the sake of the coolness still kept my hat in my hand. While standing there I overheard one workman ask of another:

"Why do 'e keep 'is 'at off like that out of doors, mate?"

"'Cause 'e's a Quaker, o' course," replied the mate. "Quakers allus do in churchyards."

Here was an opportunity not to be lost. "No," said I, "I am not a Quaker. I am an Episcopalian."

There was a short, awkward pause. Then the first workman, evidently of an inquiring turn of mind, said to his fellow mason, who seemed to be considered an authority:

"A E-piscopale one, 'e says 'e is. Wot's that, Bill?"

"Oh," replied the learned Bill, quite equal to the occasion, "that's one of them fancy foreign religions, sure!"

The Emperor's Orderly.

Frenchmen of every rank and class dearly love titles. The manager of a Paris insurance company was decorated with the Legion of Honor a few days ago, and the clerks in the employ of the company presented him with a piece of plate to which their visiting cards were attached. On looking over these he was a good deal puzzled and amused by the visiting card of the office "boy," an old soldier from the Invalides, who was employed to open the office doors from 9 to 4. Under the man's name was the title "the emperor's orderly." He sent for the old soldier, who stumped in and saluted.

"Of what emperor are you the orderly, and how?" he asked. The old Invalide drew himself up to attention.

"I am the orderly of the emperor," he said, "Napoleon, le Petit Corporal."

"But he is dead. He has been dead some time," answered the puzzled manager.

"I dust his tomb for him," growled the old soldier.—London Express.

A Vast Difference.

"Don't I give you all the money you need?" her husband complained.

"Yes," she replied, "but you told me before we were married that you would give me all I wanted."—London Tatler.

Cost of Living Too High.

Duluth, June 22.–A large cow moose probably driven from its haunts by brush fires which are raging on the hills back of the city, trotted into the city yesterday morning, stood for a moment over the Glen and then dashed itself to death by leaping over the precipice.

The animal had apparently been running for some time, for its eyes were dilated and its tongue hanging from its mouth. It traveled at about a dog's trot, never stopping till it reached the edge of the cliff. Even barbed wire fences did not stop the course of the animal in its bewildered flight. Astonished people saw a spectacle of a moose standing on the brink of a cliff and apparently deliberately jumping to its death. The animal was badly cut by jagged rocks, and died from its wounds shortly after reaching the bottom. The police ordered the animal removed to the soap factory.

To Celebrate the 4th.

The people of the town of Mayfield expect to have a big 4th of July celebration again this year. The celebration will be given in the interest of the Mayfield Church, to which all proceeds of the day will go. The celebration will occur at Carl Magnell's place where a free lunch will be served to everybody by the Ladies' Aid. After dinner, Rev. O. M. Bakken will deliver the oration of the day; this will be followed by the Ladies' Aid's auction at which all manner of useful articles will be sold. Ice cream, lemonade and other refreshments will be served. Everybody is urged to attend. The farmers of Mayfield always have had unusually good celebrations, but the one this year will eclipse anything ever before attempted. Let everyone show his spirit by being present.

If you are in on this back-to-the land game, don't forget to take eight or ten small pigs back with you to fatten. Farming may be hard work; but the pig takes the liveliest interest in your endeavors to fatten him, and will assist you by every means in his power. His earnestness and enthusiasm in backing up your endeavor to make 100 pounds of pork sprout where only ten pounds sprouted before, is one of the most beautiful sights on the farm. It beats the landscape. Back to the pig pen.—Rawson, in Minneapolis Journal.

Speaking of increasing the farmer's profits, reminds us of the advice J. Adam Bede gave the farmers at the Conservation Congress last winter. "If the farmers would put more of the manure on the land and less of it in the milk, they would make a good deal more money than they do now."

More "Exchange" Advice.

The mother who allows a 16 year old daughter to float around the town ship in a buggy until 2 a. m. with a counterfeit sport of weak jaw and weaker morals, merely opens the front door to grief and disgrace. If you don't know what company your girl keeps or what time of night she turns in, your roar, when the gossips get busy, will sound as pathetic as the wheeze of a jews-harp. The girl who insists on spooning with everybody in the corporate limits, ought to be backed into the woodshed and relieved of her excess affection with a No. II slipper laid carelessly across the biplets. We would rather see a girl kiss a blind shoat through a barbed-wire fence than see her change partners six nights a week in the front parlor with the lights turned low.

It is harder to marry off a girl who has been pawed over by every yap in the community than it is to fatten sheep on pineapple ice. You can't gold-brick a sharp-eyed suitor with second-hand goods anymore than you can fit a bathrobe on a goat. There are lot of weak-minded parents going up against the Judgment Day with about as much show as a cross-eyed girl in a beauty contest, and their children will rise up and call them blessed with the enthusiasm of a one-legged man at a club dance.—Ex.

State Convention Held.

On Tuesday and Wednesday last, the republican state convention was held at St. Paul. There were present 1,076 delegates. Of these, Red Lake County had 10, they being the following: C. H. Martz, Andrew Trovaten, Peter Heden, Dan Shaw, John Eastman, P. T. Hamre, G. Halvorson, A. H. Fasel, Wilhelm Michelet and Dr. Hieber. The Ninth District was unable to land its candidates but showed increasing strength over preceding years. As usual, the Twin Cities held the balance of power and showed no hesitancy in using it.

Governor Eberhardt was nominated for re-election by acclamation. Senator Clapp was also unanimously endorsed for U. S. Senator. The other nominations were:

Lieutenant Governor, S. Y. Gordon. Browns Valley.

Secretary of State, Julius Schmahl, Redwood Falls.

State Auditor, S. G. Iverson, Rushford.

Attorney General, George T. Simpson, Winona.

State Treasurer, Walter J. Smith, Eveleth.

Clerk of Supreme Court, J. A. Caswell, Anoka.

Associate Justices Supreme Court, E. A. Jaggard, St. Paul; P. E. Brown, Luverne; C. L. Brown, Morris; D. F. Simpson, Minneapolis.

Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner, C. F. Staples, St. Paul.

House Destroyed by Fire.

The home of Mrs Legvold, situated some fourteen miles east of town near Lillo P. O., was completely destroyed by fire on Tuesday. Mrs. Legvold and son were in Crookston at the time, making final proof on their land.

Mrs. Legvold's sister together with the two children were the only persons at home. They had been doing some baking, and at the time the fire broke out were upstairs in the building. Suddenly the rooms were filled with smoke, and on going to the head of the stairway, they heard the crackling of the burning timbers beneath. The flames, creeping up the dry walls as if they were paper, and urged on by a high wind, soon enveloped the entire building. None of the household goods could be saved, and the occupants were fortunate indeed to escape with their lives.

Nothing definite is known as to the origin of the fire. It seems probable that an overheated stove was the cause, but this is only a conjecture. The loss is a heavy blow to the owner. But Mrs. Legvold is a progressive woman and will erect another building as soon as carpenters and the necessary materials can be procured.

Box Car Burglars.

A sealed freight car standing upon the sidetrack here one night last week was broken into and a case of shoes extracted therefrom.

The next morning, a short distance west along the track, the shoe box and a portion of its contents was found. The railroad company and county authorities were notified and detectives were soon upon the track of the culprits, who were finally captured at East Grand Forks.

Sheriff Daniels came up Tuesday night after witnesses in the case. Agent Lloyd, Marshal Carlson, and K. Ostrem were subpoenaed. The trial was held in East Grand Forks Wednesday. The men were three brothers, giving their name as Krueger. Two of them when caught wore shoes taken from the stolen case and plead guilty. They claimed that the third one had nothing to do with the robbery and he was discharged. They were entire strangers at Fosston and were walking the track westward at the time they made their unfortunate stop here.—Fosston Thirteen Towns

Elevator Burned Down.

The Northland Elevator Co's. building at Erskine was struck by lightning during the thunderstorm Tuesday night and the building totally demolished. Nothing could be done to check the fire. Several cars, loaded with ties and standing beside the elevator, were moved out of danger after being badly scorched; but everything else connected with the building was consumed by the flames except the office fixtures and the gasolene engine. The Soo depot caught fire several times, but a bucket brigade was organzied and the building saved. About 2,000 bushels of grain in the building at the time were completely destroyed.

LAND OPENING WAS QUIET

State Fails to Advertise. Few Outside Settlers Attracted.

At nine o'clock sharp Monday morning, the land offices at Duluth, Crookston and Cass Lake opened for filing. The crowd was not nearly as large as had been expected,—few, indeed, having joined the ranks during the last days preceding the opening. At Cass Lake, of course, only a few were expected as very little land could be filed on at that place. But the lines at Duluth and Crookston did not number more than sixty each. Considerable consternation prevailed at Duluth when it was learned a few days before opening, that 1,000 acres of the choicest land had been withdrawn from entry. Seven or eight settlers who had spent considerable money in locating claims and who had been in the line for nearly a week, were informed that they could not file on their pick of the land. Rather than lose their places in the line, they remained in rank, decided to file on land they had never seen before, and take their chances on its being good. A fair amount of timber was standing on the land withdrawn, from which the settlers had hoped to reap enough money to give them a good start at farming.

At Crookston everything passed off without trouble. The fourth man in line, Oscar Elg of Duluth, an old veteran of sixty-three years, had endured all the hardships of the younger men present, firm in his belief that the land could not be duplicated anywhere. Martin Bothun, ex-groceryman of Thief River Falls, was number thirteen in the line-up, but this fact did not seem to disturb him. He had secured what he considered the choicest quarter section in Minnesota and was not dismayed because fate had given him the hoodoo number. All save five of the settlers came from Minnesota, three of the outsiders coming from North Dakota, one from South Dakota and one from Wisconsin. Only three women were present in the line. A large number of filings by mail were received from Warroad, Spooner and Beaudette; but the settlers filing directly at Crookston were given precedence over those filing by mail. At least so says the Interior Department at Washington. The state law gives the squatter precedence. A number of contest cases have been started as a result of these conflicts.

The last great land-opening in Minnesota is now a matter of history 233,000 acres of as good land as there is anywhere, have been thrown open to settlement; yet few people outside of Minnesota are aware of the fact. The various commercial clubs and leagues of the state have given the matter almost no publicity. Very little advertising has been done by the State; and the railroads, which are usually such great boomers of government lands, have been silent as a mute. For every score of settlers that have passed out into the arid and desest west, only one has remained to take up land in a state where exist the best of soil conditions, where crops may be raised every year, where the cry for rain is never heard, and where crop failures are wholly unknown.

It is difficult to understand why this state of affairs should exist. It is true that some of the land is swampy; but this can be drained just as the reservation lands northeast of us are being drained, and this swampy land is but a fractional part of the whole. The bulk of the land is richer and more fertile than any other land in the state. Small timber and fuel grow in abundance, and conditions are ideal for diversified farming. Yet, while the northern part of the state has been "boosting like blazes" all the while, the southern half has held aloof, united action has been lacking, and nothing has come of the matter.

Slowly the country will be settled. Such fertile land cannot forever lie untouched. But no country can be thoroughly developed until every acre of it is bringing in returns. Twenty years from now the land will all be settled. Had the matter been properly handled, every acre would be taken up now. Yet, because of the lack of foresight and united effort, the development of extreme Northern Minnesota will be delayed ten or fifteen years and the richest land in the state will bring in only limited returns. Has the State been asleep, or has it been blind?

To the wide-eyed farmer boy;
Then hies him back to his White House home
With its air of rustic joy.

"Stick to the Farm," says the railroad king,

Sudden Death at Erskine.

Gus Anderson, sixty years of age, living by himself on a small farm near Erskine, was discovered dead on his doorstep last Tuesday morning by a neighbor.

Mr. Anderson had been in the village the evening before his death at the home of his sister, and was apparently feeling as well as usual. He had helped to water the garden and stayed for a brief visit, starting home early in the evening.

The next morning a neighbor, J. O. Mescad, went to his home on some errand and found Mr. Anderson lying dead on the doorstep, where he had apparently fallen as he was in the act of entering the house.

Heart failure is the cause attributed.

A Bad Scare.

A fire, that for a time threatened to do serious damage, occurred in the rear of H. H. Finrow's building last Sunday evening.

It appears that the little boy had been somewhat careless about shooting fire-crackers up on the roof, and some of these, blowing over into several quilts hanging out there, had set them ablaze.

When the fire was discovered, it had already made considerable progress; but the prompt work of the fire department soon brought the flames under control, and very little actual damage was done.

Auto Breaks Down.

A party from Red Lake Falls, consisting of J. A. Duffy, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Kaufer and child, and Mr. Fisher, made a trip to this city Sunday evening in an automobile. As they passed by the First State Bank, the machine suddenly stopped in its tracks. After toiling for some time at the machine, vainly endeavoring to again set it in motion, the party became discouraged and decided to give up the struggle. They returned home in a livery rig.

Lillo to Celebrate.

Lillo has joined the ranks and its people will show their spirit by a glorious celebration the day of the Fourth. There will be patriotic addresses, followed by racing and the various other forms of Independence Day celebrations, including the greased pig exercises if suitable arrangements can be made. A ball game will be played, and gorgeous fireworks are promised for the evening. More detailed announcements will be made in our next week's issue.

Lesson From the Mule.

(Bill Nye.)

We may often learn a lesson from the stubborn mule, and guard against the too protuberant use of our own ideas in opposition to other powers against which it is useles to contend. It may be wrong for giant powder to blow the top of a man's head off without cause, but repeated contests have proved that even when giant powder is in the wrong, it is eventually victorious.

Political Announcement

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the district.

Ada, Minn., May 3rd., 1910.

A. L. Hanson.

The last outposts of the mail-order houses have been captured. They are fighting a defensive battle and it is now only a question of how long they can withstand the siege. T. M. Roberts have passed into the hands of the receivers. Mintgomery Ward and Co.. calls to memory only recolections of the past. Sears Roebuck and Company are fast losing the firm grip they had on the public a few years ago All over the country, people are waking up to the fact that their home merchant sell them a better grade of goods for the same money that the mail order houses charge than inferior article. The farmin ti particular have learned that "some small margin of profit" is a pretty big margin after all.

It has been an unequal struggle from the first. The newspapers have for a long time been compelled to fight the battle alone. Only after the masses have been stung a great many times, have they been willing to join forces with the Press. It has been just a little skirmishing here and there for many long, discouraging years; but, the papers have kept hammering away till the obstacle, which once seen insurmountable, is now disappearing in the distance and the end is already in sight.

It has taken people a long time to see that a dollar spent at home enriches the community two fold, while that same dollar, spent away from home brings nothing in return. But at last they have seen it; and it is now a pitched battle with all the odds in favor of the people. May they take the situation firmly in hand and eventually be returned the victors.

And yet it almost grieves us when we think that the mail order catalogue will be no more. Not that we want to order anything listed in them; in all our life we never ordered 12 cents worth of their truck. But those catalogues have tided us over many a stormy period of our boyhood life; we have found in them a refuge and a solace when all the world seemed turned against us.

We remember one time when we had been punished more severely than usual and, as we thought, very unjustly, that we crawled up into the hay-mow, resolved to hide there till after dark, and then, slipping quietly away from home go out into the cold, dreary world and not return home till the entire family had begged forgiveness. And then, after we had planned out our campaign and were waiting for night to descend, we could forego the pleasure of taking a last, fond look at that mail order catalogue. In less than an hour all our troubles were forgotten and we were out in the back yard working at the woodpile as we had never worked before. When we look back now upon childhood days that old catalogue looms up as the truest friend we ever had. It would console us in our grief, comfort us in our afflictions, and stand ready at any moment to conciliate us with the outside world.

We know that other boys have had similar experiences; that those catalogues have more than once helped boys over dangerous pitfalls. We almost shudder when we think that soon they shall be no more. And yet we feel certain that the next crop of boys will be able to anneal their tempers without the use of catalogues just as our forfathers did before us. There will be something else to hold the boys in check No evil is so irretrievably vile that some good will not spring up from it. Yet the world will be much better off when the mail order house have been overthrown. Let us not cease from our labors till every catalogue house has gone out of business. By so doing, we will render a service to our country, to our community, and to ourselves.

The more one observes the actions of Minnesota politicans the more one becomes convinced that boss rule will form of government cannot remain have to be crushed or a republican permanently.

In our experience at the State Republican convention this week we noted the attitude of the newspapers and particularly their reporters toward 'bossism' and 'reform. We wish to say unreservedly that Charles B. Chenney on the Minneapolis Journal force showed the ual facts in the case rather than just simply something with which to fill up a boss subsidised newspaper.

A town is no better than its citizens want it to be, says an exchange, reflecting the same individuality and characteristics as its inhabitants. If the people are selfish, indolent and spiteful, showing a lack of unity of purpose, the community is certain to deteriorate, no matter what its natural advantages may be. The get together spirit, forgetful of little petty jealousness and selfishness for the common good, has made most towns that are worth mentioning what they are.

Both Had Titles.

An ol dfisherman while fishing one day was surprised at hearing a voice, and on looking up he saw that his visitor was a stranger, and this was the coversation.

Stranger—How's luck, old man?

Fisherman—Well, pretty fair; I caught 47 yesterday and 17 to-day so far.

Do you know what I am?

Fisheman—Don't belief. I do.

Stranger—Well, I'm the game warden, forty is the limit.

Fisherman—Mr. Game Warden, do you know who I am?

Game Warden—No.

Fisheman—Well, I am the biggest liar in the state.—Elsie Shaller, New Jersey.

Saren Knutson and Theodore Syvorson transacted business at Thief River Falls Tuesday.

LIGHTENING BURNS ELEVATOR.

On Wednesday morning the lightening struck one of the elevators at Erskine and in spite of a heavy downpour of rain and every effort to check the flames the structure was burned the ground. The amount of grain stored therein is reported to be inconsiderable. Te amount of loss is not as yet definitely known.

ADJUDGED INSANE.

The latter part of last week Miss Agnes McAnulty was adjudged insane by Judge Richardson and sent to Fergus Falls. She had been residing on a homestead in Beltrami county for sometime.

Miss Mc Anulty's parents reside at Litchfield, Minnesota.

A Beautiful Lake.

Perhaps the most striking instance to be seen in the whole world of the wonderful apparent coloring of bodies of water is the marvelously beautiful Blue lake in Switzerland. Encompassed on all sides by lofty mountains, their lower ranges luxuriantly clothed with verdure down to the edge of the water and adorned with many fine forest trees, while their higher acclivities are garbed in a mantle of eternal snow, the little lake, nestling in its deep hollow basin and protected from winds and storms, is quite startling in its singular and strange beauty. The water, although really pure and colorless, appears to be of a most vivid and intense sky blue. And its transparency is so remarkable that a small nickel coin dropped into the water in the center of the lake can be seen gyrating downward until it reaches the bottom, apparently more than a hundred feet beneath.

Japan's National Beverage.

Sake is the national beverage of Japan. It has a peculiar flavor not comparable to any European drink, is made from fermented rice by an intricate process in winter time and contains from 11 to 14 per cent of alcohol. It is a necessary constituent of every ceremonial Japanese dinner, is served in little, ampulla-like jars and drunk with much formality from squat, earless sake cups containing approximately about two ounces. To the European palate it tastes sour at first, but a preference for it is readily acquired. Curiously enough, it has a much more powerful effect on the Japanese than on Europeans. A stronger variety, shochu, contains from 20 to 50 per cent of alcohol. Another form, mirin, is more or less a liqueuer.—London Lancet.

The Real Grievance.

"You are always complaining. You ought to be satisfied with the money you've got."

"I am. It's with that which I haven't got that I am not satisfied."

A Conclusion.

"Her husband doesn't smoke, drink, chew, swear or play cards."

"Introduce me. Widows are my specialty."—Houston Post.

TO ELEANOR B. ALEXANDER

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Married in New York.

New York, June 21.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., was married to Miss Eleanor Butler Alexander in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church before probably the greatest social gathering of the season. Colonel Roosevelt, just back from his trip abroad, was present.

Invitations were sent to about 1,500 persons and the church was crowded. For the reception at the home of Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, an aunt of the bride, between 800 and 900 invitations were issued.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Henry M. Saunders, a great uncle of the bride, assisted by Rev. Gordon Russell, Cranford, N. J.

AWFUL FLOOD IN SERVIA

Nearly Four Hundred Persons Lost Their Lives.

Belgrade, June 17.—Dispatches received from King Peter, who is personally conducting the relief work in the flooded Morava river valley, indicate that between 300 and 400 persons have lost their lives and that at least twenty towns have suffered heavy loss, besides incalculable damage in the rural districts.

Thousands of persons are still marooned by the flood and unless the work of relief is greatly expedited, hundreds of these will be either drowned or die from starvation and exposure.

Several of the smaller towns have literally been washed away. Wreckage of every conceivable sort is being carried down by the Morava river. The situation is the worst in ten years.

Dr. Johnson's Church.

St. Clement Danes has never forgotten the fact that Johnson worshiped within its walls. The pew in which he sat (it is in the north gallery, close to the pulpit) is marked by a brass plate which was erected by the parishioners in 1851. In December, 1884, the centenary of Dr. Johnson's death was observed by a memorial service, when a special address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Lindsay, at that time rector of St. Clement Danes. Johnson's pew was on that occasion draped in violet. Johnson was always constant in his attendance at church on Good Friday and Easter day. On April 9, 1778, he went with Boswell. "His behavior," writes Boswell, "was, as I had imagined to myself, solemnly devout. I shall never forget the tremulous earnestness with which he pronounced the awful petition in the litany, 'In the hour of death and in the day of judgment, good Lord, deliver us!' "—London News.

Fine Art of Letter Opening.

In Russia one letter in every ten passing through the post is opened by the authorities as a matter of course. Indeed, the postal authorities of every country have experts who have raised letter opening to a fine art. Some kinds of paper can be steamed open without leaving any traces, and this simple operation is finished by reburnishing the flap with a bone instrument. In the case of a seal a matrix is taken by means of new bread before breaking the wax. When other methods fail the envelope is placed between pieces of wood with edge projecting one-twentieth of an inch. The edge of the envelope is first flattened, then roughened and finally slit open. Later a hair line of strong white gum is applied and the edges united under pressure.—London Chronicle.

Alkarazza is the name given to vessels of very porous earthenware which when filled with water are always moist outside and owing to the evaporation of the water on their surface always keep their contents cool. Alkarazza can be made from any good potter's clay by mixing with it 10 per cent of its weight, dry, of very fine sawdust and then working it. On burning the sawdust is destroyed and the clay thereby left porous.

HER BANK ACCOUNT

By J. ANTHONY TWINING

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

A man suffragette and a man anti-suffragette were discussing the question of votes for women. The suffragette led off by stating that women often owned property and were entitled to vote for those who made the laws affecting their interests. A widow, for instance, had not even a husband to represent her. A woman who might have more business ability than many men—

"What's that you say about a woman having business ability?" interrupted the anti.

"I said that a woman might"—

"Do you include my wife?"

"I haven't the pleasure of an acquaintance with your wife."

"If you had you would never have made that statement."

"Is your wife a poor business woman?"

"You just try her in a matter of banking."

"Not up to that, eh?"

"I should say not. When I married her she had some funds and insisted on managing them herself. I opened a bank account for her and tried to teach her how to keep it. She learned very quickly what the check book was for, but the pass book baffled her. I brought down her balances for her in the check book, so that she would know how much she had in bank.

"One day I handed her her pass book that had just been balanced at the bank. She looked at the figures and seemed very much pleased. Then she went off and looked at her check book balance. Soon after that she presented me with a fur lined coat as a surprise. It was not long before she received a surprise herself in the shape of a notice from the bank that her account was overdrawn. She came to me to ask what it meant. I told her, and she left me with a puzzled look on her face.

"A few days later I received a polite note from the cashier asking me if I would kindly call at the bank. I did so, and he received me with a peculiar smile. Taking me into a private office where no one would hear, he told me that he had sent my wife notice that her account was overdrawn to the amount of $350. Then he showed me a note from her, in which she inclosed her check on his own bank for the amount to square the account.

"'Your wife is not used to keeping a bank account, I take it,' he remarked in kindly consideration of my feelings.

"'Oh, yes, she is,' I replied. 'I've told her all about it.'

"'It can't be a mistake of ours.'

"'No; a mistake of mine. I should have told you that she can't learn just how the trick is done. I'll give you a check for her overdraft.'

"I wrote him a check and that evening asked my wife how she expected to wipe out an overdraft in that way. She was very much surprised and disgruntled. I thought that I'd better look into her check and pass books, and what do you suppose I found? When a short time before I had handed her her newly balanced pass book she had noticed that the balance brought down was $350 to her credit. The balance I had brought down for her in her check book was $10. There were checks out not yet presented at the bank for $340. Being a mathematical prodigy, she figured that if she had $340 in the pass book and $10 in her check book she must have a balance of $350. She at once determined, in the generosity of her dear innocent heart, to spend it in a fur lined coat for me. I paid for the coat, and it furnished food for the moths.

"She was so disgruntled at her inability to manage her account that she said she would draw out all her money and give up banking. I asked her what money she referred to. She said that since I had paid the overdraft there must be several hundred dollars to her credit. Rather than try to explain to her that the account had been closed I deposited $400 in bank, and she drew a check for it, and in this way the matter was settled.

"Well, there was no more trouble after this till one day I left her to go on a business trip. In my check book I left a check payable to her order for a blank amount duly signed, so that if she needed money she could fill in the amount she required and get it at the bank. During my absence she ran short of money. A bill for perfumery came in for $6.25. She filled in this amount, drew the money and paid the bill.

"The next day she needed more money. She submitted the case to a friend, who advised her to write a check for all the funds she would need till my return, take it to the bank, and they, knowing she was my wife, would probably cash it. Instead of taking it there herself she sent it.

"Well, she got the money. But when I came back, happening in at the bank one day, the cashier greeted me with another grin, this time more idiotic than before, handing me at the same time the check my wife had drawn, to which she had signed my name.

"Great heavens! It was a forgery. I couldn't have written my name any better myself.

"I took the thing home and showed it to her.

"'Why, I supposed,' she said, 'I should sign your name as nearly as you sign it as possible.'

"No, sir; women are no good for keeping bank accounts."

HE PAID THE RECKONING

By MOLLIE K. WETHERELL

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

A long while ago, when the people of Europe lived in an artistic atmosphere, a stranger stopped one evening at a peasant's cottage in the south of Spain and asked for supper and a night's lodging. He was made welcome and comfortable so far as these poor peasants were able to make him.

The family consisted of a man perhaps thirty-five years of age; his wife, a young woman of twenty-two or twenty-three, and their child, a boy about eight months old. While the stranger was eating his supper his eyes were constantly fixed upon the man, who sat smoking his pipe by the chimney, turning them from him to the woman who sat on the opposite side, nursing her baby. In the man's face was a certain repose, a contentment with the world and with his lot in it. The woman's, though that of a peasant, was tinged with a certain indescribable spirituality. When the child sat up in his mother's lap and looked at the guest his eyes were opened very wide, and there was an appearance of intelligence in them beyond babyhood, beyond childhood—even, it seemed at times, beyond manhood.

When the stranger had eaten his supper he said: "I shall be gone in the morning before you are up. Please tell me what is the reckoning, that I may pay it now, for my supper and my bed."

"There is nothing to be paid, senor," said the man. "What we have given you to eat, while it is good enough for us, is not good enough for a gentleman like you. At any rate, it is not of any real value. As for the bed you are to sleep on, you will fare no better than the mules. What presumption, senor, it would be for us to take money for these things. By doing so we would call down the displeasure of our patron saint."

The stranger made no reply to this, but, taking up a candle, mounted a rude staircase. In the morning, however, he was still in the cottage, coming down from his room after the peasant and his wife had breakfasted. The woman gave him what remained in the house for a meal, after which he said:

"You will not permit me to pay for your hospitality, but possibly you may accept a gift at my hands. I am an artist and will draw your likenesses."

To this the husband demurred, saying that the gentleman's time was too valuable to be spent sketching poor peasants, but the wife took a woman's view of the matter. She wished for the portraits of her husband, herself and especially her child. So she persuaded the man to sit with her and their boy for the stranger to copy.

The artist placed the woman in a chair, holding her child in a standing position, while the man stood looking over her shoulder at both her and the boy. Then from a portmanteau he had with him he took out drawing materials, and, improvising an easel out of a chair, he set to work. He made a number of outline sketches of the three, also filling in separate drawings of them. When he had finished he put them away and said:

"I shall take away what I have done with me, but this," selecting one of them, "I will return to you. If you desire to improve your condition or are in need of money you may be able to sell it for a fair price."

With that the artist took up his portmanteau and departed.

Some time after this when the peasant had forgotten the incident and his wife was lamenting because the artist had neglected to send the sketch a man appeared, saying that he had been sent with it by the artist. It was in a frame, and in one corner a name was written. But the name was not familiar to the peasants. They hung the picture on the wall and were very proud of it. When the neighbors came in to look at it they would be asked, "Are not the figures like us?" and the reply would be: "Yes, they are like you, but they are holy people. Your baby resembles our blessed Saviour."

The peasants kept the picture for many years. Meanwhile they grew to be old and their boy became a young man. He loved the daughter of a wine grower, but she was without dowry, and he was without any means to set up housekeeping. Then his mother remembered the artist's words that they might sell the picture for a price. Her husband had no faith in this, but the boy, who was in love, begged his mother to try. Her affection for her son triumphed over her desire to keep the sketch, and with him she went to Seville.

On reaching the city she went to a church to pray for the success of their undertaking. When they came to the altar both stood still in amazement. There before them was their sketch in painted colors inclosed in a massive frame. It represented Mary and Joseph and the infant Jesus.

The next day people gathered in knots to discuss a bit of news. A peasant woman and her son had come in from the south with the original sketch of one of the most famous of Murillo's paintings of the holy family. They did not know its value, but when a dealer told them that there were persons who would give a thousand sequins for it they were amazed. They agreed to take this amount, the dealer taking the risk of selling it at a profit. Then the two peasants went home happy.

NEITHER WAS JEALOUS

By F. TOWNSEND SMITH

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Frank," said Lucy to me, "marriage is a very serious matter."

"How did you find that out at eighteen?"

"I am much older at eighteen than some girls are at twenty-five. Now, there are certain faults my husband might possess which I would not be able to endure, but others wouldn't trouble me. Before we take the final step I propose to test you to discover if you have one especial fault that I am sure would separate us."

"But if you tell me you're going to test me isn't that giving away the whole thing?"

"My object in telling you beforehand is that I shall have to seem to act wrongfully to you. I shall be able to tell you that I had an object. You understand?"

"Certainly. And I suppose that I had better tell you that I'm going to test you, too, so that if I behave badly you'll understand."

"H'm! I supposed when you told me that I was far too good for you you meant it."

"And I supposed that when you said I was the best felow in the world and you were proud to be loved by"—

"Don't be silly. I sometimes think that you at twenty-three are younger than I am at eighteen. How are you going to test me?"

"How are you going to test me? I mean what for?

She did some very hard thinking in that youthful head of hers and then said: "It won't do any harm if I tell you I'm going to make you jealous. Jealousy separates more married couples than any other cause."

"Did you get that from a statistician?"

"Now you're talking absurd again."

"Very well; go ahead; make me jealous. But I warn you that your plan will be a failure. Suppose you succeed?"

"In that case I shall consider that it wouldn't be safe to marry you."

"I shall test you for the same fault. But if I don't succeed I shall consider that it won't be safe to marry you."

"Why not?"

"It will indicate that you don't love me. No one can love another without jealousy."

"Except having perfect confidence in that other."

"Very well. We'll try it."

And we did try it with a vengeance. When we came together again we resumed our dialogue.

"It's all over between us," said Lucy, both sad and angry.

"Didn't I stand the test?" I asked in an injured tone.

"I should think not. You haven't spoken a word to me for a week."

"I was testing you."

"Was it necessary to test me by constantly sailing past here with that one girl—a girl you know I despise?"

"It wouldn't be any test to flirt with two."

"I flirted with half a dozen."

"It wasn't for me to tell you how to test a fiance."

"I should think not. I couldn't have acted on your advice if it was to act as scandalously as you have acted."

"It seems to me that I have stood your test and you haven't stood mine."

"Do you call it a test to select a girl like that and go about all the while with her looking as if you were about to kiss her? It was disgusting."

"And didn't you go about looking up lovingly at Scrimser? I didn't care for the other fellows—they were blonds. Scrimser was the real thing."

"I'm glad I have him to fall back upon now it's all over with you."

"And I suppose Camilla will help me out."

"I wish you to understand that no man to whom I am engaged shall pay the slightest attention to such a girl."

"Not for a test?"

"Not on any account. I consider it an insult to me. If you had taken some of the other girls, such as Grace or Alice or Bess"—

"No one of those girls would do for a test. Grace is homely as a hedge fence, Alice is cold as an icicle, and as for Bess"—

"They are all at least to be respected."

"Yes, and they are your friends. They're so much to be respected that they wouldn't take your fiance away from you, because"—

"Because?"

"Both you and they know they couldn't."

I was getting tired of this and resolved to bring it to a close.

"I say, Lucy, I am delighted at the success of my test on you."

"Delighted?"

"Yes. Didn't I tell you that love begets jealousy?"

"Jealousy! You flatter yourself if you suppose you can make me jealous of that creature."

"I am awfully jealous of Scrimser."

"Because he is such a perfect gentleman, I suppose."

"He wouldn't kiss and tell, I admit. Come; we've each tested the other with remarkable success—that is, we've proved we love each other."

I took her in my arms. She was mollified.

"I knew you loved me," I said. "The test didn't amount to anything, though. You weren't jealous, were you?"

"Certainly not!"

"Nor was I."

ROOSEVELT HOME

Given Great Demonstration on Arrival at New York.

MILLIONS CHEER IN WELCOME

Crowds Gather on Land and Water to Greet Ex-President.

New York, June 18.—Theodore Roosevelt, ex-president of the United States, statesman and cosmopolitan traveler, was greeted back to his native land today by such a demonstration of popular enthusiasm and personal devotion as had never before been accorded to a returning American traveler.

Each step in this eventful homecoming from the time he left the steamer Kaiserin Auguste Victoria until he moved up Broadway amid the tumultuous demonstrations of vast throngs of people brought forth a continuation of the ovation and fresh tributes of popular enthusiasm.

The stages in this stirring welcome were crowded into hardly more than three hours. At 8:30 this morning Mr. Roosevelt left the steamship amid the roar of big guns from battleships and land forts and a pandemonium of steam whistles from craft and the factories along the water front. Then, aboard the revenue cutter Androscoggin, he moved at the head of an imposing marine parade, up the Hudson river to Riverside drive and back again to the Battery, amid the continuous demonstrations of water craft and the assembled multitude along the water front.

The landing at the Battery was the signal for another clamorous ovation. Here, too, Mayor Gaynor extended official greetings and Mr. Roosevelt spoke briefly but significantly of the interest and part he will continue to take in public affairs. At 11 o'clock the start up Broadway began, through dense massed throngs extending for five miles along the main thoroughfare of the city.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Everywhere the returning traveler met the same whirlwind of demonstrative greetings—as he passed Wall street, further on as he moved through Park place and the business section, and then through the throngs in Union and Madison squares and through the long reaches of Fifth avenue.

Mr. Roosevelt was erect in his carriage most of the time, his silk hat in his right hand, most of the time waving responding greetings to the cheers. By noon the popular welcome was practically concluded and Mr. Roosevelt joined relatives for luncheon preparatory to returning to his home at Oyster Bay, where he went later in the day.

Steamer La Rochelle Sunk in Collision in Irish Sea.

Liverpool, June 21.—Ten members of the crew of the steamer La Rochelle, from Bayonne, N. J., were drowned in the Irish sea when their steamer was sent to the bottom in a collision with the steamer Yews from Harrington to Port Talbot. La Rochelle is a big iron tramp freighter and was cut almost in two when the vessels came together, sinking so rapidly that the engine room force had no chance to escape.

Icy Waters Fatal to Two.

COTTON POOL INDICTMENTS

Seven True Bills Returned Against James A. Patten and Others.

New York, June 18.—Indictments for alleged violation of the Sherman act in connection with the recent bull pool in cotton were returned against James A. Patten, Maurice H. Rothschild, F. B. Hayne, William P. Brown, Eugene S. Scales, Sidney J. Harmon and Robert M. Thompson. Bail was fixed at $5,000 each and the defendants were given three days in which to qualify.

Washington, June 18.—Attorney General Wickersham, in commenting on the indictments growing out of the so called "cotton pool," said that the investigation which was held had satisfied the grand jury of the existence of the combination and of its questionable characteristics.

WOULD STOP BIG FIGHT

Governor of California Directs Attorney General to Act.

San Francisco, June 16.—Stirred to action by insistent protests from all parts of the state Governor James N. Gillett took steps to prevent the championship fight between James J. Jeffries and Jack Johnson scheduled to be held in this city July 4.

In a letter to Attorney General U. S. Webb the governor expresses his disapproval of prize fighting in unmeasured terms and directs that the aid of the courts be invoked to prevent the match. He concludes with a positive order that in case the plea for a restraining order is not granted and the fight is held the attorney general proceed to gather evidence and prosecute the principals and those interested in the fight for violation of the penal code of the state.

Battle Will Occur at Goldfield.

San Francisco, June 18.—Tex Rickard announced on receipt of a telegram from Morris Sullivan of Goldfield, Nev., that the Jeffries-Johnson fight would be held there July 4. Sullivan guaranteed $125,000 to the promoters.

MAY ATTACK WOOL SCHEDULE

Representative Good Expects to Do It Through Sherley Rule.

Washington June 21.—If the new Clark-Sherley rule will work such Republicans as Representative Good of Iowa expect to destroy a few Payne law tariff schedules during the next session of congress. Mr. Good said that he will file a notice to discharge the ways and means committee from considering the amendment to the wool schedule and he believes that a house majority will agree to amend that schedule.

Other representatives expect to amend other schedules, such as the lumber and steel articles.

TWELVE PERISH IN BLAZE

Unknown Austrians Cremated In Fire at Falls View, Ont.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 16.—Twelve Austrian laborers, known by check numbers only, were burned to death in their shacks at Falls View, near here, one man, a woman and a child receiving probably fatal injuries.

When the firemen from this city reached the little settlement of foreigners employed in the power development work they found four shacks reduced to embers.

CLOUDBUST IN HUNGARY

Three Hundred Persons Killed and Several Villages Destroyed.

Budapest, June 18.—Nearly 300 persons were killed and several villages annihilated by a cloudburst in Krasso-Szoreny, a county of Hungary bordering on Transylvania, Roumania and Servia. The capital of the county, which is mainly peopled by Roumanians, is Gugos.

MEASURE WILL BECOME A LAW

Congress Will Pass Irrigation Appropriation Bill.

WORK ON WESTERN PROJECTS

To Be Proceeded With After the Measure Authorizing the Issuance of Certificates of Indebtedness to the Extent of Twenty Million Dollars Has Passed—Head of Reclamation Service Slated to Go.

Washington, June 21.—An issue of $20,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness to enable the government to proceed with work on Western irrigation projects is now assured. The measure authorizing this issue of certificates will first come up for consideration in the house and later in the senate. By agreement among the leaders the irrigation certificate feature was taken out of the land withdrawal bill handled by Senator Nelson in the senate. The land withdrawal measure, which passed the senate, will come up in the house soon. Representative Mondell of Wyoming, who is in charge of the measure, said it would be passed without any difficulty. The bill authorizing the issue of irrigation certificates will be called up immediately thereafter.

Plans are already being formulated under which new work is to be mapped out by authority of the bill providing for certificates of indebtedness. While there is no official authority for the statement, it is the understanding that the reclamation service contemplates doing some work in the Milk River valley in the near future. When Louis Hill was here early in the session the proposed Milk river project was one of the questions he discussed with the president. At the time assurances were given that with additional appropriations, or an issue of certificates, such as was proposed, the government would be in a position to push irrigation work in Montana.

Will Fall by the Wayside.

The indications are that the bill "increasing the efficiency of the engineer corps of the army," which contains a provision empowering the president to detail army engineers for duty in connection with irrigation projects, will fall by the wayside. It is the general understanding that if this bill is passed an army officer will be placed at the head of the reclamation service, and others assigned from time to time, as engineers in charge of particular projects. Whether this bill is passed or not it is evidently the purpose of the administration to displace Frederick H. Newell from his position at the head of the reclamation service. While Senator Warren of Wyoming made the statement in the senate that the pending measure would not affect Mr. Newell's tenure one way or the other, it is said that if the bill is passed the administration will put an army officer in Mr. Newell's place without making any excuses.

Senator Bailey, who looks with disfavor on the engineer corps because it failed to indorse a Texas harbor project in which he is interested, is opposing the bill. He announced that it was his purpose to filibuster against it until the end of the session. Many Western senators are fighting the bill. If the leaders find that Senator Bailey is in earnest they will insist that the bill shall be laid aside until the December session.

TWO OFFICERS WOUNDED

Mining Specials Shot by Roysterers Near Ely, Minn.

Duluth, June 21.—Two police officers of the Oliver Mining company, James Martin and John Linklater of Ely, while on duty were shot and seriously wounded.

A noisy time was in progress at the Zenith location, and the officers went from the mine to investigate. Just as they arrived at the scene of the rumpus two men and a woman came out of a house and proceeded to get into a buggy. The officers spoke to them and told them they must be quieter, but the reply they received was a string of oaths, and as they drove away one of the occupants leaned out of the buggy and fired two shots, one bullet striking Officer Linklater, who happened to have his club up before his face. The shot struck the club, splintering it in pieces and also smashing two fingers. The position of the club saved him from receiving it in the head. Officer Martin did not come off so lucky, the shot striking his leg near the thigh. The injury will disable him for a long time.

One of the party is under arrest, but the one who did the shooting is still at large. A reward of $500 is offered.

William P. Murray Dead.

St. Paul, June 21.—William Pitt Murray, pioneer resident of St. Paul, former state senator, and the oldest living graduate of the University of Indiana, died at his home here from appendicitis. Had he lived until midnight Mr. Murray would have been eighty-five years old. He was an attorney. Mr. Murray is survived by a widow, Mrs. Carrie C. Murray, eighty-one years old, and three children.

Disraeli's Jokes.

Disraeli dearly loved a joke at the expense of others. An author who had sent his latest effort in fiction to him received the following complimentary acknowledgment:

"I thank you for the book you sent me and will lose no time in reading it."

"I wonder what makes my eyes so weak," a fierce Radical once said to Disraeli.

"It is because they are in a weak place," was the reply.

An incident in the life of the late Lord Rossiyn shows how acute was the sense of humor in Disraeli. "What can we do with Rossyin?" he asked of a colleague.

"Make him master of the buckhounds, as his father was," suggested the latter.

"No," replied the premier; "he swears far too much for that. We will make him high commissioner to the Church of Scotland." And such he was made. —Chambers' Journal.

A Maker of Bulls.

Some excellent bulls are credited to William Arolin, who was a London police judge in the thirties of the last century. He once remarked to counsel, "If you can show precisely at what moment the offense was committed and prove that the prisoner was not there when he did it, he could not possibly have done it." And he sagely added, "We cannot divest ourselves of common sense in a court of justice." Of a similar character was an axiom he once delivered himself of, which has been maliciously fathered on many other occupants of the bench, "If ever there was a case of clearer evidence than this case, this case is that case."

TOO CLEAN.

African Natives Who Were Lavish In Their Use of Soap.

Miss Mary Kingsley, who made many journeys in the wilds of Africa, used to relate how once, finding it necessary to cleanse a much soiled and stained blouse, she carried it, with a cake of soap, to a neighboring spring, where an interested group of native women watched her wash it. They were much impressed by the way in which the spots disappeared, and it emerged as good as new.

The next morning when it came time to break camp Miss Kingsley missed her soap—a precious commodity in the wilderness. Suspicion soon pointed to a certain woman, who, on being accused, confessed boldly that she had taken it and cast it into the spring that its extraordinary powers of renewing old garments might be permanently imparted to the waters. She was deeply mortified to learn that her effort had been in vain.

The Rev. Peter McQueen of Charlestown, Mass., tells a kindred story. His soap, however, was not lost, although misused. He still had it with him.

"I told our native servants to be sure to lay in a supply of clean water when we crossed the Taru desert, a scorched belt of sand stretching some seventy-six miles," he relates. "Tidings had reached us that an English explorer who had attempted to cross that desert shortly before us had perished from thirst, so we wanted to be careful.

"You can imagine my surprise when, upon taking my first draft of water, I discovered that it tasted strongly of soap. All the casks were similarly tainted, and we rounded up the natives and held a hasty court martial.

"It was a tough predicament, but I couldn't refrain from smiling within when the leader of them meekly confessed that as the master had instructed him to lay in a supply of clean water he had seen to it that bars of soap were added, for soap, he said, was used to clean things."

They did not perish of thirst, but after sixteen days of drinking soapsuds, which agreed with neither palate nor stomach, no native of that particular gang was again likely to try to purify water with soap.—Youth's Companion.

ON THE DEAD RUSH.

An Experience In Getting Acquainted In New York.

Getting acquainted in New York is thus described by a man from Atlanta. He brought a letter of introduction to the person he was to meet at the latter's office in Nassau street.

This is the Atlantan's report to his house:

"Called at 2 p. m. Boy on the gate asked my name and business. Gave him the letter of introduction. Boy returned and told me to sit down.

"Sat down twenty-five minutes. Saw a man come out of his office and break through the gate as if he was chased by hornets.

"'Who's the man from Atlanta who wants to see me?' asked the hurried individual.

"'I am the man,' I replied, trying to act as if I was also hurried.

"'Come along with me,' said the man as he grabbed me by the arm. He dragged me through the main door into the hallway. He caught sight of a descending elevator and shrieked to the man in the car to stop.

"The door of the car slid ajar, and the man who had me by the arm said. 'Come along; let's get acquainted as we go down.'

"By that time the car had reached the landing on the main floor. As the door of the car was pushed back the man who had my letter in his hand said:

"'I haven't had time to read this letter, but we know each other. Come in day after tomorrow. I've got to make a train. I'll know you when we meet again. Goodby.'

"Before I could say goodby he had turned the corner and was out of sight. That's business in New York."—Success Magazine.

Milk on a Stick.

In winter time milk goes to the buyer in a chunk instead of a quart, says a Glasgow paper. The people in Siberia buy their milk frozen, and for convenience it is allowed to freeze about a stick, which comes as a handle to carry it by. The milkman leaves one chunk or two chunks, as the case may be, at the houses of his customers. The children in Irkutsk, instead of crying for a drink of milk, cry for a bite of milk. The people in winter time do not say, "Be careful not to spill the milk," but "Be careful not to break the milk." Broken milk is better than spilled milk, though, because there is an opportunity to save the pieces. A quart of frozen milk on a stick is a very formidable weapon in the hand of an angry man or boy, as it is possible to knock a person down with it. Irkutsk people hang their milk on hooks instead of putting it in pans, though, of course, when warm spring weather comes on they have to use the pans or pails as the milk begins to melt and drop down the hooks.

Forgetful.

"Tommy," said his mother reprovingly, "what did I say I'd do to you if I ever caught you stealing jam again?"

Tommy thoughtfully scratched his head with his sticky fingers.

"Why, that's funny, ma, that you should forget it too. Hanged if I can remember."—Everybody's.

One Exception.

"You know," began Lovett, "it is said that 'love levels all things.'"

"Yes," remarked the crusty bachelor, "it may level all things except the lover's head."—Philadelphia Press.

HAMILTON'S GREAT FLIGHT

Aviator Makes Round Trip Between New York and Philadelphia.

New York, June 14.—Charles K. Hamilton arose in his aeroplane from Governors Island and sped without a break eighty-eight miles to Philadelphia in a remarkable cross country flight under the auspices of the New York Times and the Philadelphia Public Ledger. He made the trip in one hour and fifty-one minutes.

Alighting at Aviation field he delivered letters from Governor Hughes and Mayor Gaynor to Governor Stuart and Mayor Reyburn, accepted messages of congratulation from them to bear in return and started for New York again with only brief intermission for food, fuel and oil. He had flown approximately seventy miles of his return journey when a sluggish motor drove him to descend in a swamp near South Amboy, N. J. The propeller was broken there in landing, but after repairs had been made Hamilton resumed his flight and landed at Governors Island. The return trip was made in one hour and thirty-six minutes at an estimated average speed of 54.96 miles an hour, which breaks the record made in the Curtiss flight from Albany to New York.

A "Big Fish" Story.

Crookston, June 28.—After a battle that lasted several hours Sunday, W. Anderson landed the largest fish ever seen in the Red Lake River, a sturgeon weighing 251 pounds, measuring seven feet two inches from nose to tail and girdling three feet at the largest point. The head weighed 56 pounds.

The monster was first seen by Anderson, an employe of the Power company, when he was cleaning off the slats just above the sluiceway at the dam of the power company, and having a pole about seven feet long with a big hook at the end of it, he was successful in getting a good hold of the sturgeon and thought he could land it as he was well braced on the dam. With one jerk the fish landed him ten feet from the dam in deep water and he let the pole go and made for shore; but he had injured the fish which headed across the river and landed with its head out of the water. Anderson hurried across but the fish floundered back in and was seen only at intervals of several hours, the water being deep.

The Power company has a big iron rake about six feet across used for cleaning away the debris that clogs the grating and this was brought into use and at 4 o'clock the monster fish was caught in the rake and was jerked close to shore where it was stabbed and later landed, several men assisting Anderson.

To Celebrate the 4th.

The people of the town of Mayfield expect to have a big 4th of July celebration again this year. The celebration will be given in the interest of the Mayfield Church, to which all proceeds of the day will go. The celebration will occur at Carl Magnell's place where a free lunch will be served to everybody by the Ladies' Aid. After dinner, Rev. O. M. Bakken will deliver the oration of the day; this will be followed by the Ladies' Aid's auction at which all manner of useful articles will be sold. Ice cream, lemonade and other refreshments will be served. Everybody is urged to attend. The farmers of Mayfield always have had unusually good celebrations, but the one this year will eclipse anything ever before attempted. Let everyone show his spirit by being present.

Democrats to Meet.

The democrats of Red Lake County will hold their county convention at Thief River Falls on Saturday, July 23rd. A few days preceding this date a special election will be held in this village to elect delegates to the county convention. These delegates will elect representatives to the state convention in the same manner as the republicans did several weeks ago. At the state convention the democratic candidates will then be nominated for the various state offices.

Old Age.

We wish to say a few words for the old folks, believing that the infirmities of advanced years are too often treated with an indifference that is hard to bear. Not by all, of course, for there are many,—we will hope the majority,— that are thoughtful of the aged and kind to them. Then again, there are others, who, to put it mildly, are harsh and cold. ~~It is very nat~~ural to smile upon what is lovely or strong, and frown on what is the reverse, without even observing that we do so; and it often follows, with the young especially, that as they look on the furrowed face, the dim eyes, the trembling hands, the tottering, uncertain steps of an old man or woman, they seem to forget that in that worn and homely prison house are a heart and a soul that yearn for recognition, for kindness in word or deed, for a little love, with an intensity that youth in its fulness does not know.

In our words to others, in all our dealings with them, it is our duty to stop and think; and with the old it is positive cruelty not to do so. It is downhill, remember,-a hill with steep stony paths,-and at its foot there is only the grave. Don't, by impatient word or look, push them along its precipitous ways. Don't bruise their weary feet with rocks of ridicule and uncalled-for jest. Don't glaze that downward slope with the ice of indifference. And, above all, don't hang on every bush and boulder, placards of their own deterioration. It is not necessary to remind them that they have left their prime and strength behind. They know it; none so well.

Yes, let us sometimes stop and think let us turn from our own ambitions and lend a hand to the old folks. Let us smooth their path, let them lean on us as they step over the steep ledges, and let us warm the chill of that bleak hillside with sympathy and love. Let us give them back all they gave us in other days; for, however useless we may deem them now, we will miss them when they are gone. It may be when we stand beside their coffins; it may be in years to come when we tread the path that once was theirs; we will stop and think; thoughts will come. Then God help us all that in those thoughts there may not be that word of flame—remorse.-Erskine Echo.

Back From Honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Langlie returned home Monday from their honeymoon trip. As announced in a previous issue of the Pioneer, they were married at Crookston three weeks ago. They have spent their honeymoon visiting friends and enjoying the sights at Ada, Alexandria, Detroit, and other places in the state. Last Tuesday night they were royally entertained at a cornstalk charivari given in their honor by their many friends in this city.

Parochial School Opens.

Last Monday morning at 9 o'clock the parochial school of the Norwegian Lutheran Church was opened in the village school-house. Only nine pupils enrolled, but it is expected that the list will swell to a considerably larger number. The session is to last till the latter part of July, a term of four weeks, though if conditions warrant it may be continued longer.

The present class is composed only of the smaller children, all save two being beginners. It is necessary in some cases for the larger children to remain at home and help with the work; but in a great many more cases the children remain away simply because of the indifferent attitude of the parents toward the school. There are a great many children in this community who could attend and who would if once they got started. If it is possible to let the children go, parents should send them, as this schooling will be of inestimable value to the children.

The beginners are receiving elementary instruction in the Norwegian language. The two older pupils receive more advanced work in this line but the greater part of their work is in the study of the Catechism. Miss Alfson, of Red Lake Falls, a very able and efficient instructor, is in charge of the work and under her competent guidance the pupils are progressing rapidly.

Should Plant Corn.

Farm authorities everywhere are advising farmers to plow up their tame hay fields and all other ground as they can and plant fodder corn at once. They say that, without doubt, the prolonged heat and drought have ruined the hay crop and that this is a serious thing for the stock and dairy farmer.

The authorities say to prepare the ground as thoroughly as possible by plowing, dragging and discing and then plant from one-half to three-fourths of a bushel to the acre. Fodder corn properly cared for will take the place of the hay crop, and thus enable the farmers to keep their cows.

Farmers are advised not to sell the cows, but to plant fodder corn. The drought is general over the country, so that farmers are warned not to figure on buying hay this winter. Stockyard receipts at South Saint Paul show that many find themselves unable to keep their cows over the dry spell and as a result the market is glutted.

Girl Was Drowned.

The body of Helen Henry, daughter of Charles Henry, residing up the Red Lake River, fifteen miles, and who was last seen on May 2nd, was recovered from the river last week. The body was found floating eight miles down stream from the home of the Henry's by a farmer who was crossing the stream. While it was generally believed from the time the girl dissapeared that she had fallen into the river near her home, there was still a lingering hope that she might have wandered away or have been abducted, and her parents kept up a search for her ever since she was lost. At one time it was surmised that a passing boatload of Indians from the reservation had kidnapped her, but the discovery of the body sets all these rumors at rest. She was buried in Greenwood cemetary at Thief River Falls Saturday, the services being conducted by Rev. J. B. Smith of the M. E. Church.

Notice For Bids.

Notice is hereby given that the town Board of the Town of Mayfield will meet at the town clerk's office on Section 35, town of Mayfield, on Monday July 11th at 2 o'clock p. m., to receive open bids for the removal of 1000 yds. of dirt, more or less, on the Section Line between Sections 22 and 23; and 800 yds., more or less, on the Quarter Line between the S. E. ¼ and the N. E. ¼ of Section 30; work to be completed this summer. The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

H. C. Jarr,
Sam Sovaas, Clerk. Chairman.

A man down in St. Louis the other day went into a restaurant with his friend. The friend asked him to give him change for a fiver. He took the bill, placed it between his teeth, and commenced counting out the change. While thus engaged, he took a bite of sandwich and swallowed. He is consoling himself now with the fact that he has a five-dollar bill where his wife can't get at it.

TO COMMENCE LAYING STEEL

Crew is Expected Hourly; Good Progress Made at Other End.

The steel gang, scheduled to arrive at this place half a month ago, is at last showing signs of putting in an appearance. From almost every source come the reports that they will commence work immediately. They are being hourly expected, and it would not be a surprise to the residents of Plummer if they pulled in to-day. If such is the case, they will hardly begin actual work until after the Fourth as preliminary work will keep them busy for a short time.

The telegraph crew, consisting of ten or twelve men, arrived in the city a few days since and will at once commence the setting up of poles on the new grade. The grade from this end has been finished for something over thirty miles and the remaining stretch, which is by no means the most difficult on the line as some now believe, will be rushed to an early completion.

The laying of the steel from the east end of the line was commenced about the middle of May. This work proceeded westward from McGregor, a station on the Northern Pacific line running from Duluth to Brainerd. The laying of the track from Moose Lake to McGregor, a distance of 25 or 30 miles, was performed last fall so as to rush the work along with all possible speed this summer. The eastern crew, working now for nearly six weeks, has extended the line quite a distance in this direction. The exact mileage laid cannot be ascertained; but the Mississippi River, which was expected to cause the greatest delay owing to the necessity of constructing a steel bridge over it, has been crossed, and unofficial reports state that the line of steel has been extended twenty miles this side of the river.

The laying of the material yards at this place was also completed during May, and for the past five weeks ties, rails, and other materials have been rushed in as fast as they could be unloaded. Foreman Hagerty has had a crew of from 35 to 50 men working here right along and there is now sufficient steel here to lay about 35 miles of track and ties sufficient for about 40 miles.

The laying of the track from this end has been delayed longer than had been anticipated; but it is still thought that unless something unexpected turns up, the trains will be running over the new road-bed by the 1st of September.

A Prairie Fire.

The remarkable spectacle last Sunday of a prairie fire in June attracted considerable attention from the residents near Dugdale, located some 25 miles southwest of Plummer, when the farm owned by Nels Peterson of the Crookston State Bank was swept from one end to the other by a fierce fire which it is believed originated from sparks from a locomotive. The house, barn and granary were completely destroyed. Fortunately the buildings were vacant.

Most of the fire was through stubble left from last fall, which was grown up with weeds; but this burned like so much tinder. The excessive dryness as shown by this fire at this time of the year, is something never before heard of in June.

A temperance meeting was held in the school-house Thursday evening.

Comet Dope Wrong.

The stories being circulated about Halley's comet producing the dry season are nonsense. The return of the comet has no more to do with it than has the return of Roosevelt: The wireless stations are working the same as before, showing that the electricity is still in the air. The atmosphere surrounding the earth, in which clouds are formed, is here just the same as it was two months ago. The comet has come and gone, the astronomers tell us, without causing any planetary disturbances. Apparently, the only relation the comet has to the drought is that it happened to sail around this way in a year when the rainfall was a little below the normal during the summer months.

If the comet really had anything to do with the weather, why is it that there were such bumper crops in 1835, the last time it visited us? The comet came much closer to the earth on that occasion than it did this year. As far back as records go, this is the first time since 44 B. C. that crop conditions were not good the year the comet came around. At that early date, B. C., the comet visited the earth and there was a deluge of rain; the crops were all drowned out. Since that time the comet has returned to the earth abcut 25 or 26 times. If it didn't strike at least a wet or a dry season in all that time, one should certainly suppose that the laws of chance were not working properly. There is something radically wrong with the person who thinks that the comet, after having no effect on the weather for twenty centuries, would suddenly turn round and drive the rain away from the earth.

Lillo to Celebrate.

Lillo has joined the ranks and its people will show their spirit by a glorious celebration the day of the Fourth. There will be patriotic addresses, followed by racing and the various other forms of Independence Day celebrations. Dinner will be served at 11:30 by the Ladies' Aid. At 1 o'clock the ball game will be played. There will be a big bowery dance in the afternoon and evening. Ice cream and refreshments will be there in plenty. Gorgeous fireworks are promised for the evening. Everyone living in the vicinity of Lillo should attend this celebration as it will be the biggest event in years.

Sunday morning the Fourth of July fireworks in the drug store at Euclid were ignited by the intense heat of the sun which shone in under the curtain of the front window, and the entire collection was exploded. The damage was confined to a large plate glass window, and that done by the water and smoke. The noise of the explosion created a panic for a few moments as it was thought that the exploding fireworks were revolver shots and that the new bank was being burglarized.

Farmers Getting Rich.

The latest reports show that out of ten thousand automobiles in Iowa, five thousand are owned by farmers. Out of the ten thousand in Minnesota a smaller percentage are owned by the farmers, it being a somewhat younger agricultural state than its sister Iowa. Last year Kansas farmers spent $3,200,000 for automobiles. In a Nebraska town of 800 population, forty automobiles were purchased last year by farmers near the town or retired farmers living in the town. A careful estimate of the total number of automobiles owned by farmers in the entire United States is 75,370.

These machines are by no means all touring cars. A large per cent are regular auto trucks that the farmers use for hauling their cream and produce to town.

To anyone who glances these figures over, the cry about there being no opportunity on the farm sounds about as hollow as the squeal of a pig in an old rain barrel. If a farmer mixes a few brains with his profession there is no other occupation that will yield him as large returns. It may be true that the autos do not bewilder the grasshoppers up here just now; but when this country has been farmed as long as have the lands of Iowa and Nebraska, there will not be a farmer anywhere in this part of the state who will not be sending his children to school in the morning in a $1200.00 runabout.

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the district.

A. L. Hanson

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce my candidacy for the Republican nomination as a member of the house of representative from th 61st legislative district which comprises the counties of Beltrami, Clearwater and Red Lake. If nominated and elected I pledge myself to use all efforts to secure the redistricting of the state, a one mill tax for good roads, a liberal appropriation to advertise the recources of Minnesota, and a county option law.
D. P. O'Neill.

A stand— pat exchange wants to know why the country is not aflame with praises fo Taft because he stopped the increase of freight rates on western railoads. The country has not been hollering its head off for the simplereason that Mr. Taft did not act from patrotic motives The psychological moment had arrived to demonstrate to the country that the rairoad bill reallyhad an excuse for existing. No one blame he President for seekink thus to strengthen his administration But if Mr. Taft is so public spirited, why does he not prosecute the railroads now? He will never have a clearer case of a violation of the the Sherman Anti-Trust Law in the form of a combination in restraint of trade. Furthermore, until we hear from the Interstate Commerce Commission we have no reason to believe, that the proposed rates will not eventually be put into effect We are eyeing the move with suspicion.

Down in Indiana last week, a precedent was established which, out the true importance of the farout the true mportance of the farmer. Down in that country the crops are all ripe and harvesting is on in full tilt. It happened that a district court was also in session at the time, and a large number of farmers had been drawn for jury duty. Out of a certain list of eighteen veniremen, thirteen were farmers. They all asked that they might be excused from jury duty and allowed to go home and look after the harvest rush. The judge, who himself had been reared on the farm, is at pesent the owner of considerable land in that vicinity, saw the reasonableness of the request and ordered that these thirteen men should be excused. More over, he gave instructions to the sheriff to exclude from the list of veniremen the names of all farmers who were needed at home to look after the harvest. This action of the Judge demonstrated in a very forcible manner that the farmer is one of our most important business men and an integral factor in the welfare of the nation The farmer, as a rule. makes a good juror. But this fact should not justify a court in compelling him to let his grain shell out when other men were available for jury duty. The nation is depending upon the farmer for its prosperity and everything possible should be done to make him prosperous.

After watching the assessor at work, one is tempted to throw aside what little faith one has in mankind. The assessor is usually met at the door, in many cases not even admitted, and a valuation two or three times lower than that given to the insurance agent, is handed out to him. If the assessor happens to see anything in the room he can put it down at what he considers a reasonable valuation; but if there are any diamonds, jewelry, or other articles of value concealed in the bureau drawer or lying in some other room, they never have the slightest chance of getting into the list. If the private libraries were to be sold at the figure given to the assessor, only a small percentage of the books could be replaced, even if bought second-hand. But personal property alone does not escape. The farmer's land in plain view can hardly be kept out of the list at its proper value. But if there are several thousand bushels of grain in the bins, it is apparently forgotten on assessment day. The farmer claims, and rightly so, for he already bears more than his just share of the burden; —that if he were to show up everything, he would not have enough left, after paying his taxes, to live on. This matter is carried much farther by the people having bank accounts or holding stock securities. A case of this kind is at present on at Goshen, N. Y. The estate of the late E. H. Harriman is required to pay a tax under the transfer law of $900,000. This is a bout $890,000 more than that estate ever had to pay before in a single year. It is so much larger than former amounts that if this sum is placed on the assessment role, every other individual in that town will have to pay only one-eighteenth of the taxes he paid last year.

MUCH WORK DONE

Record of Congress During the Long Session.

FEW FALL BY THE WAYSIDE

Majority of Administration Measures Are Approved.

Washington, June 26.—Notwithstanding the fact that action on many important measures was delayed by conflicts between progressive and regular Republican factions in both branches, and that the Democratic minority was an active force, congress is expected to conclude its long session with a record for enacting legislation that seldom, if ever, has been equaled.

In the matter of "reform" movements for which President Taft stood sponsor there were many instances of success. Chief in the list of legislation for which the administration contended were the following:

Striking revision of the railroad laws, including the creation of a commerce court.

Admitting Arizona and New Mexico as separate states.

Authorizing the establishment of postal savings banks.

Giving to the president unlimited authority to withdraw public lands for conservation purposes.

Providing for publicity of campaign contributions.

Authorizing the issue of $20,000,000 in certificates of indebtedness to complete reclamation projects.

Creating a bureau of mines.

Extending the activities of the tariff board and appropriating $250,000 for its use.

Looking to the suppression of traffic in "white slaves."

Authorizing the entry of the surface of coal lands.

Creating a commission to consider economics in the administration of the federal government.

Providing a new tariff system for the Philippine islands.

Legislation which ultimately is expected practically to give prohibition to the Hawaiian islands.

Few Failed of Passage.

Opposed to the foregoing formidable list of legislation obtained were a comparatively small number of measures which had administration sympathy, but failed of passage. They were measures on the subjects of ship subsidy, anti-injunction, for new forms of government in Alaska and on the Panama canal zone; to create a bureau of health; to provide increased rates of postage for second class mail matter; to create the Appalachian forest reserve, and increase the engineer corps of the army.

Not the least conspicuous acts of congress were the strenuous measures taken by the house of representatives to reform its system of conducting business so that less power might be reposed in the speaker and the organization of which he is the natural leader.

The speaker was removed from the committee on rules, which he had previously been credited with dominating, and a new rule was adopted for the purpose of preventing pigeonholing of bills by committees when they were approved by a majority of the house, regardless of party affiliation.

The enormous proportions of the demands for legislation which are pressed upon congress is shown by the fact that since the beginning of the present congress more than 27,000 bills have been introduced in the house and more than 9,000 in the senate, in addition to hundreds of resolutions on various subjects. This record, so far as the number of bills is concerned, is without a parallel.

The increase provided for the navy was notable. Two battleships of 21,000 tons each, armed with fourteen-inch guns, making them the most formidable dreadnaughts afloat, were authorised.

GOVERNOR HARMON.

Endorsed for President by Democrate of Ohio.

ENDORSED FOR PRESIDENT

Ohio Democrats Also Name Harmon for Governor.

Dayton, O., June 23.—The Democratic party of Ohio goes into the state campaign this fall with Judson Harmon as its candidate for governor and president. The Democratic state convention, which completed its labors, endorsed him in the strongest terms for the presidency of the United States after it had renominated him for governor by acclamation.

A move of great importance in Ohio was made by the convention when it endorsed the proposal for a constitutional convention, a question that will be voted upon by the people this fall. The action of the convention means that a straight Democratic ballot will count in favor of holding the convention to revise the constitution of the state.

ADMITS KILLING WIFE

Porter Charlton Confesses to Crime When Arrested.

New York, June 24.—The Lake Como (Italy) murder mystery has been solved. Porter Charlton, an American youth of good family, sought by the police of two continents, was arrested in Hoboken, N. J., as he stepped from the North German Lloyd liner Princess Irene.

In less than an hour he confessed without tremor that in a fit of temper he beat his wife into insensibility with a mallet, jammed her body in a trunk, and sank it in Lake Como.

She was Mary Scott Castle of San Francisco, a woman sixteen years his senior, divorced wife of Neville H. Castle, a former San Francisco lawyer, now in Alaska.

Charlton is only twenty-one years old. His father is Judge Paul Charlton, law officer of the bureau of insular affairs at Washington and Classmate of President Taft at Yale. The boy was married to Mrs. Castle in Wilmington, Del., last spring over his parents' protests.

Ill-mated and both of erratic temperament, they sailed for Italy for their honeymoon. Murder brought it to an end, and her body was found in the lake by fishermen on June 10.

LA FOLLETTE WELL PLEASED

Wears Broadest Smile After Conference With Roosevelt.

Oyster Bay, June 28.—Robert M. La Follette, United States senator from Wisconsin and the father of Republican progressiveness, spent two hours talking politics with Theodore Roosevelt. He left Oyster Bay wearing a broad smile.

Senator Elmer Burkett of Nebraska, another progressive, is coming to Sagamore Hill after Colonel Roosevelt's return from Boston. He, too, will talk politics.

Representative Madison of Kansas, an incorrigible progressive and ardent defender of Gifford Pinchot as a member of the Balinger-Pinchot congressional investigation committee, will be at Sagamore Hill probably late this week. His theme will be politics.

Within the last few days Colonel Roosevelt has talked politics with Gifford Pinchot and his ally, James R. Garfield.

THREE ROADS ARE INDICTED

Charged With Violating the Elkins Law in Various Ways.

Chicago, June 28.—The Illinois Central Railroad company, the Pennsylvania Railway company and the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago roads have been indicted by the federal grand jury here.

The Illinois Central is charged with violating the Elkins law in failing to observe its tariff on shipments of cabbage from Crystal Springs, Miss., and Roseland, La., to Chicago.

The other roads are charged with destroying way bills covering shipments of coke to the Illinois Steel company at South Chicago.

Usually the Way.

Mamie—She is trying to keep her marriage a secret.

Maud—How do you know?

"She told me so."

To forgive a fault in another is more sublime than to be faultless oneself.—George Sand.

His Maternal Grandma.

A devoted father after a day's absence was met by his two little sons.

"Have you been good boys?"

Silence.

"Have you been good boys?"

"No, papa; I called grandma a bad word," said five-year-old, turning scarlet.

"Is it possible? What did you call your grandma?"

"I called her a human being."

The father, with a mighty effort, maintained his gravity and closed the scene decorously. "I must forgive you for once, but remember if you ever call your grandmother a human being again I shall have to spank you."

Stated a Fact.

"Do you see the horizon yonder where the sky seems to meet the earth?"

"Yes, uncle."

"Boy, I have journeyed so near there that I couldn't put a sixpence between my head and the sky."

"Oh, uncle, what a whopper!"

"It's a fact, my lad. I hadn't one to put."—Pearson's Weekly.

An Unnecessary System.

"You ought to have a burglar alarm system in your house," said the electrical supply agent, "so that you will be awakened if a burglar raises one of the windows or opens a door at night."

"No burglar can get in here while we are peacefully sleeping," replied Mr. Newpop. "We are weaning our baby."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Notable Exceptions.

Mrs. Bloobumper—Yes, everybody is always ready to give advice.

Bloobumper—There are exceptions.

"Are there?"

"Yes; doctors and lawyers."

ONE WOMAN IS A HEAT VICTIM

Hot Weather Again Prevails In the Northwest.

VIEWED WITH APPREHENSION

Crop Condition Such as to Cause Concern to Farmers—Effect of a Short Crop Would Be Farreaching and Its Ramification Would Extend Into Almost Every Branch of Business.

East Grand Forks, Minn., June 28.—The first death in this section from heat occurred when Mrs. Daisy Friers, a member of a Gipsy camp near the city, succumbed. She was overcome by the heat last Friday. The remains were shipped to St. Paul for burial.

The extended period of dry weather following unseasonable climatic conditions earlier in the year has produced a crop condition in the Northwest that is viewed with much apprehension in Duluth. The effect of a short crop of all grains, especially wheat, would be farreaching and its ramification would extend into almost every branch of business, as well as industrial, stock and copper markets.

Duluth is particularly concerned because of the relation of this market to the spring wheat crop. It derives nearly all of its receipts from North Dakota, where the damage is most severe and where the drouth has been most prolonged.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 28.—Evidence of how dry the situation is in this particular section of the Red river valley was shown at Gilby, when a field of clover owned by J. W. Scott, which under normal conditions should be perfectly green at this season of the year, took fire by sparks from a locomotive. Fire breaks had to be plowed before the fire could be stopped.

At Forest River, Charles Johnson, a well known farmer, announced that he intended plowing down some grain that had practically been burned up by the heat.

The day's heat record was a new one, the temperature rising one degree higher than any point touched yet, the official reading showing 98 degrees. No rain has falen in this section and there apparently is little hope of any.

TRIES TO KILL CONGRESSMAN

Cuban Takes a Shot at One of His Opponents.

Havana, June 28.—A senational attempt to kill Antonio San Miguel, congressman from Pinar del Rio and editor of La Lucha, was made in the lobby of congress. Congressman Manuel Lores of Oriente was the assailant. The single shot he fired went wild, but almost hit another congressman standing near.

San Miguel was standing in the lobby awaiting the opening of the session, when he was approached by Lores, who had several friends with him. Lores whipped out a revolver and fired at San Miguel at short range. The bullet missed its mark, but grazed the head of Congressman Antonio Gonzales Lanuza, leader of the Conservative party, who was standing behind San Miguel. The latter drew a pistol, but before further shots could be exchanged the combatants were separated.

It is believed that a duel between San Miguel and Lores is inevitable.

The cause of the murderous attempt was the attitude of Congrtssman San Miguel in denouncing editorially as a colossal fraud the proposition to exchange the Villanueva station of the United Railways, on the Prado, for the government arsenal lands, of which scheme Congressman Lores and his colleagues are ardent supporters.

MAYOR HAS NEW COMMISSION

Seidel Will Pick a Wife for Old Comrade in Montana.

Milwaukee, June 28.—Mayor Seidel is looking for a girl who will make a good wife. He does not want her himself, but he has a comrade in Montana where girls are scarce, who is unmated. One of the conditions which the widower of fifty places on the mayor in his selection is that the girl must not be over thirty nor under twenty. He has four children, one of whom is married and two who are about to be married. The address of the lonesome widower is John Firth, R. F. D. No. 2, Box 31, Victor, Mont. In his reply Mayor Seidel stated that he will try to find a good wife for the man.

Taft's Son Runs Down Laborer.

Beverly, Mass., June 28.—One of President Taft's automobiles, driven by his son, Robert A. Taft, ran over and seriously injured an Italian street laborer. At the hospital it was said there were indications that the workman's skull was fractured.

Drowns Himself in River.

Charles City, Ia., June 28.—John Larson, aged about fifty, drowned himself in Cedar river here. He worked in a tailor shop. The cause of his deed is not known.

HELD VALID BY JUDGE MORRIS

Federal Statutes Are Declared to Be Constitutional.

RAILROAD COMPANY DEFEATED

Train Crew Cannot Be Worked More Than Sixteen Hours Out of the Twenty-four—First Decision by Any Court Upon the Constitutionality of the Law and the First Judicial Interpretation of Its Provisions.

Washington, June 28.—Announcement was made by the interstate commerce commission that United States District Judge Page Morris, holding court in Iowa, had decided that the federal laws regulating the hours of service of train crews on interstate railroads was constitutional.

The attorneys for the defendant—the Illinois Central railroad—attacked the constitutionality of the law on thirteen different grounds. Their principal reliance was upon the decision of the United States supreme court in the employers' liability cases.

In its statement the commission says:

"In the interpretation of the hours of service act, which limits the service of the train crew to sixteen hours in any twenty-four-hour period, the court held that the performance by the engineer of duties required by the rules of the company in preparation for a trip during the half hour previous to the scheduled time for the departure of a train from an initial terminal made such engineer 'on duty' during such half hour, and that this time must be included in the time of permitted service."

The case was a test case, the statement concludes. It was the first decision by any court upon the constitutionality of the law and the first judicial interpretation of its provisions.

GORE AND CURTIS IN ROW

Indian Bill Cause of Trouble Between Senators.

Washington, June 28.—That Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma and Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas had a stormy interview in the Democratic cloak room of the senate last Thursday has just been disclosed.

Senator Gore was sitting with his colleague, Senator Robert L. Owen, when Senator Curtis of Kansas approached them and upbraided Mr. Gore for having objected to the consideration of the bill to pay James West $5,000 to compensate him for some loss he had sustained on account of the Cherokee Indians.

Senator Curtis had reported the bill and was interested in its passage. He called it up and Senator Gore objected to it and prevented its passage. Senator Gore said afterwards that he had been advised that the bill was not meritorious and that he obstructed its passage upon information given him by the attorney for the Cherokee Indians. Other members of the Indian committee of the senate were inclined to believe that the bill had merit. It was for this reason that they reported it.

Senator Curtis seemed very much disgruntled that the senator from Oklahoma had opposed the bill, and, after complaining to Mr. Gore, Senator Curtis warned him that he would never be able to get unanimous consent again in the senate for the consideration of any measure in which he was interested. Senator Gore retorted by inviting Mr. Curtis to go to a climate that is popularly believed to be hotter than Kansas, even at this season of the year.

Senator Curtis made some reply, whereupon Senator Gore denounced the senator from Kansas in language that, if uttered upon the floor of the senate, would probably have lead to his being called to order. He said things about Senator Curtis that surprised those who heard him.

FORM A NEW ORGANIZATION

Land and Lumbermen Plan to Improve Highways.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., June 28.—Representatives of several land and lumber companies met here and organized the Equitable Taxpayers' association.

The organization will have for its purpose the improvement of public highway conditions in the counties of Ashland, Bayfield, Iron, Price, Taylor, Sawyer and Rusk by looking after the expenditure of the money raised by taxes for road improvements in these counties. It will include all the large landholders in Northern Wisconsin, and will make a systematic effort to induce counties to put in more roads through the outlying districts. A large fund was subscribed.

The following officers were chosen: President, J. T. Barber, Eau Claire; vice president, George H. Atwood, Park Falls; secretary, Harry Albright, Ashland; treasurer, George Foster, Mellen.

Harry Albright has been land examiner for ten years for the Wisconsin Central railway. He has resigned this post and will devote his entire time to the new organization.

The Dead Soldier's Afterglow

By HELVIN BRAYTON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

The national guard were fighting a sham battle. The red were attacking the enemy's country, while the blue were defending it. Lieutenant Ned Wagstaff was standing behind the line of battle, the men, at parade rest, waiting orders. A staff officer rode up and said:

"This command has been annihilated."

The colonel turned to his men and told them that, having been annihilated, they could fight no more. Then he gave the order to stack arms and permission to do as they liked till retreat.

"Billy," said Wagstaff to Captain Drummond, "I want you to do something for me."

"What is it?"

"Go up to the house and tell Belle Harkaway that our regiment has been annihilated, that I've been killed and the jig's up all around."

"What for?"

"I want to see how she'll take it."

"She is certainly not so silly as to take it literally."

"She's pretty stupid."

"Stupid girls are most attractive to men—that is, if they are pretty—and Belle is very pretty—decidedly pretty."

"If you play your part well you can fool her. I'm curious to know if she'll mourn for me."

"All right; I'll try it on. Suppose she wants to see your dead body."

"I never thought of that. Perhaps I'd better lie dead on the battlefield. You can bring her to see the corpse. But first I want to know if you're going to give me away."

"No; I won't do that, though it would be a good joke to do so. I'll play the part for you as well as I can."

"And you'll tell me how she takes it?"

"No, but if she wants to see your corpse you can judge for yourself about that."

"All right. You'll find me under that big oak over there. So long."

Billy departed for the house, and Wagstaff went over to the oak, sprawled himself on the grass and, to kill time while waiting to be inspected for a dead man, lit a cigar. Men who fight sham battles need to get up a lot of Dutch courage. Ned had distinguished himself for bravery induced by several bracers during the fight; consequently he felt dopey and soon yielded to slumber. Suddenly he was awakened by a girl's voice:

"Where is he? Oh, tell me, where is he?"

Ned, recognizing the voice of the girl he loved and, realizing that soldiers are not usually killed with cigars in their mouths, let the half smoked weed fall. He felt it roll down his cheek, but where it landed he couldn't see. He lay stiff and stark.

"Here he is!" he heard Drummond say.

Ned looked sidewise between his lashes and saw Belle Harkaway hurrying toward him. He closed his eyes and lay with a peaceful expression on his face. Indeed, he put on a certain serenity which he had often practiced before a mirror and which he considered very becoming to him. Belle knelt beside him. He dared not open his eyes, but he knew she was there and very near him.

"Oh, Ned!" she moaned.

"He died a noble death," Billy put in solemnly.

"Dear, brave Ned! If I had only not treated you as I did. If you could but speak one word to me to tell me that you forgive me. Are you sure he is dead? There's color in his face."

"Oh, that's often the case with men shot in battle. They call it the soldier's afterglow."

This was very clever of Billy, seeing that the afterglow was produced by the bracers Ned had taken during the fight.

"Ned," moaned Belle, "speak to me!"

Ned didn't dare part his lips sufficiently to look at her, but he could hear her moaning over him.

"He makes a beautiful corpse," Billy remarked.

"Lovely! He must have been smoking when he was shot."

"What makes you think that?" asked Billy.

"Don't you see the cigar on his shoulder? Dear, brave Ned—coolly smoking in the face of danger."

"That was just like him," said Billy. "He was always doing that kind of thing. He cared nothing for danger."

"What were his last words?" asked Belle. "Did he say anything about me?"

"Yes. He said, 'Tell Belle Harkaway that my last thoughts, my last words, were of her.'"

"Oh, dear! If I could have been here to hold him in my arms when he died! Somehow I can't realize that the red color you call the soldier's afterglow isn't the blood of life. I'm going to pinch his cheek. It may bring him back to us."

She gave his cheek a terrific pinch. Ned winced, but stood the test.

"See!" cried Belle. "The afterglow—a lot of it!"

She pinched him again, this time so vigorously that he howled.

Opening his eyes, he looked into two of the merriest orbs that ever gazed on the corpse of a beloved object.

"Rats!" he said. "There's no use trying to be dead under a pinch like that."

"More afterglow!" she cried, clapping her hands with delight as a blush of shame covered his face.

Respond to Blue Eyes.

"Every little while physiologists come to the front with some advantage accruing to people who have blue eyes," said the city salesman. "Well, I discovered a point that they have never mentioned. A jeweler told me. He is manager of the jewelry department of a big store. I applied to him for a situation for my wife's cousin.

"'What's the color of her eyes?' he asked.

"'Brown,' I said.

"'Bring her down and I will take a look at her,' he said, 'but I am afraid she won't do. People with a certain shade of blue eyes make the best jewelry salesmen. Many customers who buy jewelry want some one to try it on so they can get the effect of the stones when worn. There is something about deep blue eyes that brings out the best lights in most jewels. Take notice and you will find that two-thirds of the jewelry salesmen in New York have blue eyes.'"—New York Times.

Stingy Queen Bess.

Every one who ever did anything for Queen Bess seems to have been left with a bad debt on his books. So we find an unfortunate John Conley writing to Sir Robert Cecil that for the last two years he had been suitor for £100 for "beeves for the army" and complaining that "unless some order be taken I shall be undone." Sir Edward Hastyngs, after spending his life in serving the queen, had to pawn his wife's jewels and beg her majesty "to bestow something upon me in this my latter age." So badly was the fleet that beat the armada provisioned that Francis Drake had to seize at Plymouth ninety bags of rice, and the unfortunate owner, after ten years' waiting, was refused payment, "rice being an extraordinary victual not allowed for the navy." Nor did common soldiers fare better. The chief anxiety of all Elizabeth's ministers ought, in her view, to have been how to save most money.—London Telegraph.

Saving Time or Time Tables.

To most people, especially when they are on the road, time is money, but time tables are not convertible into cash. In the pages of "Through Savage Europe" Harry De Windt gives a curious and amusing experience on a Russian railway some years ago. The patience of the Russians is in marked contrast with the impatience of American travelers. All Russians have a rooted antipathy to fast railway travel, if one may judge from an incident which occurred some years ago when I was travelling across the Caucasus from Batoum to Baku. We had reached a tunnel, at the entrance of which the train waited for at least twenty minutes.

"There is something wrong," I remarked to a fellow passenger.

"Oh, no," he replied; "we are only making up the time. This tunnel was recently made to avoid a long bend round a range of hills, and as it now cuts off several miles a short delay is necessary so as to fit in with the scheduled time."

"But surely we should save time by going on," I urged.

"Perhaps so," said my friend. "But then, you see, they would have to alter all the time tables."

Form of Divorce In Old Rome.

In the earlier period of the Roman republic divorces were quite unknown and were rare right up to the time of the Sullan wars. In the old days the husband and wife who wished to separate appeared for the last time before the common hearth, a priest and priestess being present. As on the day of marriage, a cake of wheaten flour was presented to the husband and wife, but instead of sharing it between them they rejected it. Then, instead of prayers, they pronounced formulas of a strange, severe, spiteful character, by which the wife renounced the worship and gods of the husband. From that moment the religious bond was broken, and, the community of worship having ceased to exist, the marriage without further ado was forever dissolved.—New York American.

Floral Etymology.

"Primrose" is one of those words that have shown popular association to be stronger than etymology. It has no real connection with the rose, but is the old French "primerole" and, anyhow, means only the "prime" or first flower (more or less) of the year. Our language has insisted upon making "roses" of all sorts of flowers. We have the tuberose, which is only "tuberosa," tuberous, and the rosemary, which is "rosmarinus," dew of the sea. On the other hand the "rose" has been dropped readily enough in cases where popular fancy could not see the flower. The alchemists called green vitriol "rose of copper," "cuprirosa." In French this became "couperose," but English wore it down to the pointless "copperas."—London Chronicle.

The Dancing Mania.

The "dancing mania" of the middle ages came on the heels of the great plague known as the "black death." It was some sort of nervous disease and is now supposed to have been what is known as "St. Vitus' dance." It began in the year 1374 at Aix-la-Chapelle and spread all over Germany, the Netherlands and Italy. The dancers formed circles hand in hand and appearing to have lost all reason, continued dancing, regardless of the bystanders, for hours together until in their wild delirium they fell to the ground in sheer exhaustion. Panting and foaming at the mouth, they would suddenly spring up and begin the dance again, to be again exhausted, and so on until they died. The mania involved millions of people.

His Secret

By NATHAN HARDY

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

When I was at the university the set of students to which I belonged contained Oscar Poland—at least Poland was at one time a member of our group—but as time wore on he was gradually dropped by all except Alan Wells and myself. This was on account of the principles, or lack of principles, he advocated. For instance, he asserted that the Spartan code—that the criminality attached to stealing was in getting caught—would apply in most cases today. He declared that he would rob any one if he could do so without being detected.

When Poland gave us such ideas as this at first we laughed at him, telling him that he didn't believe what he said. But pessimists are never popular, and one by one his friends dropped away from him. As I have said, Wells and I stuck to him, feeling all the while that his pessimism was but skin deep. The only way we could see he proved his theory of general selfishness was by declining to spend his money as we spent ours. When we asked him what he did with his surplus change he said that he was keeping it for his own use. "You fellows," he would say, "don't spend money on each other because you wish to, but because you are afraid of being considered mean if you don't. Ergo, you are mean. Nevertheless I will admit that there may be some generosity in your case, for you do spend your money, while I, who do not spend mine, show myself to be absolutely mean and selfish."

This would start anew arguments that had already been worn threadbare, and at the end of every argument Poland would lose another friend.

"What do you think of a man," said one of our set to me one day, "who admits that he would rob or steal provided he was sure of not being caught?"

"In the case of a common thief who practiced what he preached," I replied, "I would think him an element of society that should be so far as possible eliminated. In the case of Oscar Poland I should consider that I did not understand him."

"Not understand him! Well, I like that. The more fool you if you should leave funds within his grasp that he could take without being detected. I tell you the man who declares such ideas shows that he has been born blind to principle the same as another has been born blind to colors. Take my word for it, if Oscar Poland ever finds an opportunity to make himself rich at another's expense he'll do it."

"They say business is but legalized robbery."

"My opinion of you is that you're tinctured with these fallacies yourself."

And so it was that some of our associates came to show some coolness to Wells and me, who defended Poland. Alan and I were talking the matter over one day, and Alan remarked that he wondered what Oscar did with his money. There was certainly no evidence of his hoarding it, and, as to spending it, he was considered too mean to offer a friend a cigar. That same evening we were walking along one of the principal streets of the town when suddenly Poland appeared ahead of us.

"Let's shadow him," said Alan. "We may find out something."

"If I thought for a moment we should discover something that would compromise him I would decline. As it is I'm with you."

So we lagged behind just far enough to keep Oscar in sight, now and again dodging behind a pair of steps or a tree to keep him from observing us. Presently we saw him go into a dry goods store. When he left the store he carried a bundle under his arm. He kept on in his course, we following. His next stop was at a drug store.

"Going to buy asafetida and take a dose now and then when no one sees him," Alan remarked.

One more stop and we had seen all of our quarry's purchases. He entered a toy store.

"I have it," exclaimed Alan. "He's married and running a family without the faculty knowing it."

"Perhaps you're right," I replied. "The chase is getting interesting."

Oscar left the toy store with more bundles and, turning off the main shopping street, pursued one that led into a mean portion of the town.

"I hope," said Alan, "he isn't bringing up his children in this location."

Presently Oscar stopped at the door of a little cottage that was rotting away. It was opened for him, and he went inside.

"Our game's blocked," I said.

"Wait till he goes away."

So we waited half an hour, when Oscar left the house and strolled unconcernedly down the street. He had no sooner gone beyond recall than we knocked at the door from which he had emerged. A pale woman opened it.

"We're looking for Oscar Poland," said Alan, entering without an invitation.

Well, it was all out. Several little children (one of them ill) were there. Another was trying on some new clothing, and by the sick one on a table stood a bottle of medicine.

We stayed long enough to discover that this was one of several poor families Oscar was caring for, then went away, shamed into a small gift of our own.

But we never told him or any one else we had his secret.

Coals of Fire.

"I thought," said he, "that those people treated you so badly, and now see! They invite you to their reception. Shall you go?"

"Why, certainly," said she. "Their inviting me showed they harbored no grudge against me for the way they treated me."—New York Press.

Well Answered.

"Oh, no; I don't claim to be any different or any brighter than the balance of mankind. I expect I shall marry some fool woman some of these days."

"If you ever marry that's the kind of a woman you will marry, all right."—Rochester Union.

A Telltale Touch.

"Is it true that sightless people can tell the color of things by touch?" some one asked a blind man.

"Occasionally, yes," came the answer. "If, for instance, I touched a redhot poker I could tell it was red."

Swift's Sarcasm.

"My brethren," said Dean Swift in a sermon, "there are three sorts of pride—of riches, of birth and of talents. I shall not now speak of the latter, none of you being liable to that abominable vice."

She Got It.

He (time 11:30 p. m.)—And you will think of me when I am gone? She (suppressing a yawn)—I'll try to if you'll ever give me an opportunity.

The lessons of life are lost if they do not impress us with the necessity of making ample allowances for the immature conclusions of others.

A prisoner is tried by twelve of his fellow countrymen. This custom is a thousand years old, and we get it from the vikings. The vikings divided their country up into cantons, which were subdivided into twelve portions, each under a chieftain. When a malefactor was brought to justice it was usual for each chieftain to select a man from the district over which he ruled and compel him to try the prisoner, the verdict of these twelve men being declared by the judge to be final.

Made Her Mad.

"I thought I overheard you and your wife quarreling a little while ago. What was the trouble?"

"She brought home a new hat, and after putting it on she turned to me and said she didn't believe it was becoming."

"Well?"

"I agreed with her."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The woman showed a fat finger in whose folds of flesh was imbedded a plain gold ring.

"How much will you let me have on this ring?" she said to the pawnbroker.

"I can't tell until you take it off so I can weigh it," he said.

She tugged at the ring. It wouldn't come off.

"Can't you get it off for me?" she asked.

The pawnbroker threaded a needle with strong linen thread, soaped the needle and slipped it head first under the ring toward the band. Then he wound the long end of the thread tightly and evenly around the finger almost to the nail. That done, he took the needle and unwound the thread from the base of the finger out, and as he unwound the ring slipped off. He weighed the ring.

"Two dollars," he said.

"That won't do me any good," said the woman. "I can get $3 any place else."

He returned the ring.

"She didn't really want to pawn it," he said. "She just wanted somebody to take the ring off. A jeweler would have done it the same way, but he would have charged something."—New York Sun.

Mythical Creatures of Japan.

The Japanese believe in more mythical creatures than any other people on the globe, civilized or savage. Among them are mythical animals without any remarkable peculiarities of conformation, but gifted with supernatural attributes, such as a tiger which is said to live to be a thousand years old and to turn as white as a polar bear. They also believe in a multitude of animals distinguished mainly by their size or by the multiplication of their members. Among these are serpents 800 feet long and large enough to swallow an elephant, foxes with eight legs, monkeys with four ears, fishes with ten heads attached to one body, the flesh of which is a cure for boils. They also believe in the existence of a crane which, after it has reached the age of 600 years, has no need of any sustenance except water.

Blamed the Last One.

A man who from all appearances had dined well, but not wisely, bought a ticket at the box office of a theater where a farce was being produced in German. The man settled comfortably back in his seat, smiling at the pretty stage setting and evidently prepared to enjoy an evening of pleasant diversion. After a time he began to look worried and leaned forward in his seat.

"Strangest thing ever sperienced," he muttered.

A few minutes later he left the theater. At the door the ticket taker offered him a return.

"Nope; don't want it," he said as he brushed it aside. "Guess that last drink went to my head. Can't understand a blamed thing them people a-sayin'. I'm goin' home to bed."—Philadelphia Times.

Jim Nomeland delivered a talk on Socialism at this place Wednesday night. Jim's arguments were not very convincing and the speech consisted principally of a rambling tirade against everybody who had more than 50 cents in cash. The only person who gave him even feeble encouragement was O. H. Langlie, and Ole is a newly married man.

Perhaps there are some business men in this town who have tried advertising and found the results unsatisfactory.

If so, something was the trouble. Contracting for space in a newspaper is not enough. When secured the space must be used to advantage. A convincing story should be told. A plant will not grow unless it is tended. An impression cannot be made upon the purchasing public except by careful, persistent work.

Many merchants err grievously in believing that time spent upon their ads is time wasted. No time can be made more profitable.

We believe the advertising columns of this paper can be used profitably by any one who seeks to reach the buyers of this community. We will gladly aid any one who desires to try it or who is trying it and is not satisfied.

C. D. Whaley, of St. Paul, who has spent the past week visiting with his daughter, Mrs. Joe Kiel, left for his home Thursday evening. Mr. Whaley has sold his finely improved farm in the town of Mayfield because, he says, he is unable to look after the land in person, and does not care to rent it out any longer. He has purchased some unimproved land northwest of here which he thinks is a better investment for one who cannot personally look after the land.

You can get a very good idea of the personal habits and tastes of the occupants of property by the appearance of things about the premises. If the yard is full of rubbish, the bushes untrimmed, a dearth of flowers, and other evidences of carelessness, the chances are that the occupant is untidy and loose in habits. On the other hand, if everything is clean, neat, and tidy, flowers blooming and a homelike air of contentment pervading the premises, the chances are that the occupant is neat and progressive. Let everyone keep these hints in mind and clean up and beautify the premises.—Ex.

Vanquished Fame.

Say one day to sudden fame
You arise;
People celebrate your name
With their cries.

People say you're finer than Common clay;
You're a very famous man
For a day.

Then another comes along,
Makes a hit;
Whereupon the fickle throng
Throws a fit.

No one recollects your name,
Doleful plight;
Gone is all your cherished fame,
Over-night.

SENATOR GORE.

Makes Sensational Charges in the United States Senate.

GORE CREATES SENSATION

Makes Charge That Attempt Was Made to Bribe Him.

Washington, June 25.—Senator Gore of Oklahoma disclosed in the senate what he interpreted as an effort to bribe him in connection with legislation affecting the fortune in attorney's fees claimed by J. F. McMurray of Oklahoma for services to the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations in land and townsite cases.

The charge created a sensation in the senate, which later extended to the house. The latter body in consequence sent back to conference the general deficiency bill, which carried an item relating to contracts between the Indians and their attorneys.

As the result of the denouncement, Senator Gore finally involved a member of the senate committee on Indian affairs, a member of the house committee on Indian affairs, two former senators—one from Nebraska and the other from Kansas—but whose names were not made public in debate.

Dusseldorf, Germany, June 23.—The first regular airship passenger service was inaugurated when Count Zeppelin's great craft, the Deutschland, carrying twenty passengers, sucessfully made the first scheduled trip from Friedrichshafen to this city, a distance of 300 miles, in nine hours.

The weather was perfect and the motors worked faultlessly.

The average time maintained for the complete course was approximately thirty-three miles an hour, but between Friedrichshafen and Stuttgart the 124 miles was covered at an average rate of forty-one miles an hour.

Count Zeppelin steered for the greater part of the distance.

Donizetti and Coffee.

Donizetti, composer of "Lucia di Lammermoor," sought inspiration in the coffeepot. It would be interesting to know accurately the total amount of coffee this erratic genius managed to consume during his short career. It was his habit to shut himself up in his room with writing materials and three or four coffeepots full of steaming coffee. When these were emptied he ordered in three or four more and, these disposed of in their turn, another three or four. His biographer says that the amount of coffee he drank was "fabulous," and one can well believe it. The effect on his once fine constitution was deplorable. His face shriveled and turned yellow, his lips became black, and with the inevitable breakdown of his nervous system his genius fell rapidly into premature decay.

Routed the Enemy.

In some of the London courts there are private dining rooms reserved for the exclusive use of the legal fraternity. Into one of these rooms one day there bustled a gaunt female who on being courteously approached by a junior counsel flatly declined to leave. Thereupon an unblushing Q. C. looked the lady in the face and expressed his mind. Still she did not budge. Counselor Lockwood then intervened. "I do not think there is anything unseemly in this lady's presence," quoth he. "She wears a gown and—yes, I'm pretty sure that she also wears a wig." The lady went.—London Tatler.

He Knew Them.

A minister, the father of six-year-old twin boys, was obliged to send one from the table for misbehavior. The little fellow was sitting crestfallen on a chair in an adjoining room when the maid entered. Upon spying him she said, "Oh, Billie, I'd be ashamed to be sent away from the table, as big a boy as you are too."

Billie, with flashing eyes, drew himself up, saying, "Well, you wouldn't if you'd known this family as long as I have."—Delineator.

The woman showed a fat finger in whose folds of flesh was imbedded a plain gold ring.

"How much will you let me have on this ring?" she said to the pawnbroker.

"I can't tell until you take it off so I can weigh it," he said.

She tugged at the ring. It wouldn't come off.

"Can't you get it off for me?" she asked.

The pawnbroker threaded a needle with strong linen thread, soaped the needle and slipped it head first under the ring toward the hand. Then he wound the long end of the thread tightly and evenly around the finger almost to the nail. That done, he took the needle and unwound the thread from the base of the finger out, and as he unwound the ring slipped off. He weighed the ring.

"Two dollars," he said.

"That won't do me any good," said the woman. "I can get $3 any place else."

He returned the ring.

"She didn't really want to pawn it," he said. "She just wanted somebody to take the ring off. A jeweler would have done it the same way, but he would have charged something."—New York Sun.

Mythical Creatures of Japan.

The Japanese believe in more mythical creatures than any other people on the globe, civilized or savage. Among them are mythical animals without any remarkable peculiarities of conformation, but gifted with supernatural attributes, such as a tiger which is said to live to be a thousand years old and to turn as white as a polar bear. They also believe in a multitude of animals distinguished mainly by their size or by the multiplication of their members. Among these are serpents 800 feet long and large enough to swallow an elephant, foxes with eight legs, monkeys with four ears, fishes with ten heads attached to one body, the flesh of which is a cure for boils. They also believe in the existence of a crane which, after it has reached the age of 600 years, has no need of any sustenance except water.

Blamed the Last One.

A man who from all appearances had dined well, but not wisely, bought a ticket at the box office of a theater where a farce was being produced in German. The man settled comfortably back in his seat, smiling at the pretty stage setting and evidently prepared to enjoy an evening of pleasant diversion. After a time he began to look worried and leaned forward in his seat.

"Strangest thing ever sperienced," he muttered.

A few minutes later he left the theater. At the door the ticket taker offered him a return.

"Nope; don't want it," he said as he brushed it aside. "Guess that last drink went to my head. Can't understand a blamed thing them people a-sayin'. I'm goin' home to bed."—Philadelphia Times.

Good and Evil.

Nothing is truly good to a man which does not make him just, temperate, courageous and free, and nothing can be evil to a man which does not give him the contrary disposition.—Marcus Aurelius.

SENATOR DANIEL IS DEAD

Virginia Statesman Succumbs to Complication of Diseases.

Lynchburg, Va., June 30.—John W. Daniel, senior senator from Virginia, died at Lynchburg sanatorium of paralysis and cerebral hemorrhage.

Senator Daniel was a Virginian by birth and was sixty-eight years old. He served with distinction in the Confederate army in the Civil war, being crippled by wounds received. He was elected to the lower house of the Forty-ninth congress in 1884, serving one term, when he was chosen senator. He served in the upper house continuously since March 4, 1887.

NOT READY TO TALK AS YET

But Roosevelt Has Completed Survey of Political Field.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 5.—Colonel Roosevelt's preliminary survey of the field of battle has been completed. Like a good general he has nothing to say of what his plans will be. There is any amount of speculation, some of it so concrete as to take form in confident assertion, but if the colonel himself is to be believed when he speaks of his own campaign the enemy will hear from him when the first gun is fired and not before.

KAISER ON ANNUAL CRUISE

Has as Guests Leaders in Various Walks of Life.

Berlin, July 6.—Accompanied by a number of his closest personal friends, ranging from noted scientists down to "official fun makers," the kaiser started on his annual summer cruising vacation along the coast of Norway on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern.

Drydock Dewey Refloated.

Manila, June 30.—The drydock Dewey has been refloated, apparently undamaged by its long submersion. A board is now engaged in a careful inspection of the dock to determine the cause of its sinking. The Dewey, which was towed here from the United States, sank May 24.

She Repudiated the Charge.

At the men's service in a Yorkshire parish the vicar tried to convey the lesson that the truest heroes and heroines are those who do noble deeds in the secret corner of the home, where none can see or applaud.

"Few of you seem to think," he concluded, "that your wives staying at home uncomplainingly to mind the children and prepare the meals are heroines, and yet their touching devotion to duty proves them to be so."

It certainly hadn't struck one old farmer in this way before, and as soon as he got home he promptly told his wife that the vicar had called her a heroine.

"Whatever does that mean?" asked the good lady.

"Oh, it means a woman who stays in t' house instead of goin' art to show hersen," explained the farmer vaguely.

"Then I'm not a heroine, an' I'll thang t' vicar to mind what he's sayin'," snapped the wife. "I go to his church as much as t' other women do, an' he must be blind if he can't see me. Why, I'd five different colors in t' bonnet I wore last Sunday!"—London Spectator.

Drought is Broken.

The drought which has prevailed in the Northwest for the past two months was broken as far as most of Red Lake county is concerned either Tuesday evening or Thursday. Plummer and the near vicinity however was not favored with the exception of a very light shower Thursday afternoon tho they had a fine rain on that day to the north and east. Tuesday evening the south north parts of the county were favored with a very heavy shower tho of short duration. A couple of miles south of Thief River Falls a small section suffered very severly from hail tho it did not extend over any great area. Thursday the country to the east had a very nice rain and has prospects of a fair crop. This section has stood the drought better than any other part of the Northwest and with at all favorable in the future the harvest will not fall far below the average and Red Lake county will retain its reputation of never having had a crop failure.

Scotland In New Hands.

A deal was closed Wednesday where by Nicolai Lillemoe, proprietor of the Hotel Scotland, transferred the same to Charles Strate and Goldie McKinney, late of the Bitter Root Valley, Montana. The new proprietors took charge the following day and will continue to conduct the place as a first class hotel. Mr. Lillemoe has not decided as to his future plans but will likely remove to Erskine his former home.

Mrs. Theo. Blomberg and childern are spending their summer vacation with relatives near Estevan, Canada.

A Alrick left Thursday evening for Minneapolis. From there he will leave for western South Dakota where he has accepted a position as traveling salesman.

J. J. HILL'S SHEEP FARM.

Saint Paul, Minn. July, 1910. As soon as thirty acres of sheds have been built on land which adjoins James J. Hill's farm just north of Saint Paul, the largest sheep feeding farm in the world will be established. The land has been purchased, plans have been made for the sheds and work will commence at once to put the plant in operation. Back of the plan is John MacQueen of Kirkland, Ill., recognized througout the sheep-raising world as one of the biggest feeders of sheep. At Kirkland he has a large plant where he feeds many sheep for the market. He employs 60 men there and says that double this number will be required for his Minnesota farm.

The land contains 1280 acres. Plans have been made for the construction of side tracks from the nearby railways and the greater part of the two hundred tons of feed which will be required daily, will be hauled in over them. The fattened sheep will be marketed in the South Saint Paul Stock yards. Several Lodi, Wisconsin men are interested in the deal.

So as to have everything ready and to give the train working room without interfering with the traffic on the main line the material yard and section crews laid the first quarter mile Wednesday and Thursday and the outfit with a full crew will be able to start work Monday morning. The track from here to Bemidji will be laid from this end.

Fourth a Quiet One

The Fourth of July this year was in general a quiet one, at least compared with some former ones. A safe and sane fourth was the rule in most of the places that celebrated especially the larger cities while in the north west the continued dry weather put a damper on the usual doings and as a result the papers of the day following were minus the long list of casualties that had acquired the habit of making their appearance yearly.

As Plummer did not hold a celebration this year the local people scattered to the numerous celebrations in the surrounding country and at the near by towns. A large number attended the celebration at the Carl Magnell place in the town of Mayfield where they were treated to an address by Rev. Bakke and a bounteous feast served by the ladies aid after which they spent the day according to their various inclinations. As one of the returned celebrators remarked, no one present who partook of the good things set forth would have thought that the country was suffering to some extent from a drought. The dinner netted the Ladies Aid $84, while the auction sale with the able assistance of auctioneer Husby brought in $45 more. Others journeyed farther and attended the celebration at Lillo where in addition to the other amusements an exhibition of the national game was given. Quite a number of the young people were at Thief River Falls between trains in the evening.

Sow Fodder Corn

The hay crop in Minnesota is probably less than 50 per-cent of a normal crop. In places it is a total failure This means a shortage of forage, and in consequence, the selling of much live stock. This will reduce the young breeding stock on the farm to a deplorable extent. Only those animals originally intended for the block should be disposed of. if it is possible in any way to obtain feed to carry the stock to the middle of August when fodder corn can be available.

Fodder corn is a valuable forage. It permits of early or late planting and is harvested before the general corn crop is mature. Large yields of dry forage or of silage are obtained, which for cattle, sheep, young stock or even horses is an excellent feed. For milch cows it is second only to alfalfa and clover. Much could be stated about this valuable crop, but the purpose of this article is merely to advise the farmers to sow corn thickly for fodder; thus tiding over the hay shortage period and save the live stolk.

Any peice of productive ground will grow fodder corn. The meadow, the pasture or even a grain field can well be spared if necessary. Plow the land about five inches deep and harrow as fast as plowed. Work the fur row slice back into a firm condition with a disc, a subsurface roller (not a surface roller) and finally a harrow. If sod land is used, a more thorough preparation will be necessary. The disc is imperative on sod land. you must keep the moisture in the soil. This can be done only by proper tillage methods.

The seed is planted in drills about three feet six inches apart. From one bushel (56lb) to sixty pounds are sown per acre. When a two horse corn planter is not to be had, a grain drill (not a broad cast seeder) will do the work satisfactorily. Cover the seed cups of the drill with a peice of wood or tin so as to leave the open tubes the proper distance apart for the rows. Open the seed cups wide and test the planting. The seeds should be about two inches apart. If the seed cups do not open wide enough to permit sowing at least one bushel to the acre, re-adjust the closed ones so as to leave two adjacent cups open thus planting double rows or drills (6 to eight inches apart) and about 42 inches, on centre apart. The seeds in the double rows should be from 3 to 4 inches apart, to sow the desired amount per acre.

The Experiment station in 1900 planted fodder corn on July 12th and harvested in the fall a good tonnage of excellent fodder. the stalks grew slender and about five feet high. When fed the animals left no stubs or stalks in the mangers.

Harrow the land with a slant tooth drag the next day after planting, and every five or six days untill the corn is an inch or so high. Cultivate shallow after the harrowing at least once a week until the corn is from 18 to 20 inches high. The cultivator used should have several, but small, teeth or shovels; the duck bill or eagle claw type. No sulky cultivator should be used which has the "common shovels-three on a side or in each gang." They are sure to run too deep. Two and one-half inches is plenty deep enough Do not neglect the harrowing or cultivation for the moisture must be kept in the soil. The culture prevents surface evaporation.

Directions for harvesting, storing, etc., are contained in Press Bulletin No. 37, which may be had free of charge. Write the Minnesota Experiment Station, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.

A Musical Treat.

The Navassar Ladies Band of fifty young ladies, each and every one a finished musician, fair to look upon in their natty uniforms, is the treat in store for music lovers at this years State Fair, on which occasion this famous organization makes its appearance, presenting a varied program of high class and popular compositions in the new band stand on the plaza.

The Navassars must not be confounded with ladies orchestras, of which there are several touring the country; but it is just what its name implies-a ladies band of fifty instrumentalists-a complete military band, embracing every known instrument in its complement.

The program to be presented by this, the only military ladies band in the world, will be varied in the extreme; running from grand opera selections to the popalar ragtime compositions. The fifty Navassars are conducted and directed by Augusta Dial, a lady of international reputation as a musical conductor, Herself a thorough trained musician; she particularly excels as a soloist on no less than six different instruments; vis: Bassoon, Cello, Cornet, Saxophone, and Pipe Organ, surely an imposing list of instruments, her mastery of each speaking well for her qualification as directress of the only ladies band in the world.

Mail-Order Seperator Burst

A dairyman living near San Juan has paid dearly for a cream-seperator purchased from a Chicago mail-order house, and is nursing several wounds and lacerations about the face and head caused by the cheap affair blowing up.

Instead of buying his cream separator for use at the dairy thru a legitimate agent, the dairyman was led into the trap by the sugar-coated description put out by a concern in the big catalog mailed him from the Chicago house, and now he is willing to admit that all is not gold that glitters.

In giving the seperator a tryout, the castiron, washing machine looking affair exploded like a six inch gun scattering things about the dairy and doing serious injury to the operator.

The physician who attended the injured man found it necessary to take three stitches over the eye and thirteen on a laceration across the cheek.

Political Announcement

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the district.

Ada, Minn., May 3rd., 1910.
A. L. Hanson

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce my candidacy for the Republican nomination as a member of the house of representative from th 61st legislative district which comprises the counties of Beltrami, Clearwater and Red Lake. If nominated and elected I pledge myself to use all efforts to secure the redistricting of the state, a one mill tax for good roads, a liberal appropriation to advertise the recources of Minnesota, and a county option law.
D. P. O'Neill.

Editor Kalberg of the Clearwater Crystal was fined one cent last week for daring to tell the truth in his paper. This is certainly a disgrace, not to Mr. Kalberg, bnt to our much boasted of form of American Justice. Is it not soon time that our jury system was improved a little?

No one lies awake thinking of your business; out of print out of mind. The Presidental candidates are well advertised every four years. Ask your neighbor who ran with Bryan the last time—five out of ten will saythey have forgotten and the other five will think long before they answer correctly.

An Oklahoma girl advertised for a husband and landed him, says an Iowa Exchange. The entire cost for advertising and wedding was $11. One year later her husband died leaving her $10,000 insurance. And still there are some old fashioned people which will tell you that it does not pay to advertise.: The McIntosh Times.

The County Optionists scratched together 435 votes in the state convention against 638 anti optionists. Those fellows will bear watching and if your village is in debt it would be just as well to begin to start a saving account and pay off the bonds before the figures are reversed. The eagle isn't a county option advocate, but we can see a train when it is coming down the track.—Delano Eagle.

Jack Johnson, the negro prize-fighter, has won a decisive victory over Jim Jeffries in their recent bout. We believe this was a good thing; for we really have no time for any white man who has no higher ambition than that of getting into a prize fight,—while one could hardly expect anything better of a negro who is removed from his savage state only one or two generations.

CRITICISE PITCURE OF MINN. THIRD.

Declaring that the picture of the Third Minnesota entering Little Rock, painted by Stanly M. Arthurs of Wilmington, Del., is unnatural and unreal, critics are finding fault with the painting just hung in the waiting rooms of the Governor's office in the Minnesota State Capitol at St. Paul. Among other things they say the soldiers blankets are not properly arranged. One soldier pointed out that late in the war the blankets were rolled around the shoulders as shown in Arthurs pitcure but at the time the Third entered Little Rock the blankets were folded on top of the knap sack. In Mr. Arthur's painting, musicians are shown marching ahead of the colonel. It is said that in reality, no one marched ahead of the officer in command.

Some, hypercritical, have sought to attack the artist for putting in two color bearers, but it was pointed out by General Andrews, then conolel of the regiment, familiar with the conditions, that one flag is of the nation and the other of the state and that the artist is entirely correct in putting in two flags.

The High Cost of Extravagance.

From Fibre and Fabric.

We have apparently gone crazy about spending money and every time some one thinks of a fersh way of getting rid of it. We sit up and lament loudly the increased cost of living. As some one has aptly put it, it is not the struggle to make both ends meet that is consuming our time and energy it is the contant endeaver to make those ends meet and tie in an elaborate bow-knot. Th universe would heold together just as well if the ends just met, but that would not do for us at all. We want to think of some way to spent about one—third again as much as we have and then lay the blame to the tariff or the trusts or some other conveniently remote cause.

It would be interesting to hear the comments that would be made if some of our grandfathers could come to life for a short time. What would they say to see their descendents sneaking in as if they were ashamed to eat a dinner of perfectly good food, well served, but only costing perhaps fifty cents? Would they lay this sort of performance to the tariff? Noet they. Grandfather would say, "I did as much work as John is doing for half the salary, and saved money on it. I was comfortably clothed and housed. But I wasted no time in trying to see if I couldn't look like a multi-millionaire and act like a fool and Grandfather would be right.

FOREST FIRE TROUBLES.

With fifty forest fires burning in the territory beween Lake Superior and the Red River Valley, C. C. Andrews, state forestry commissioner, is vexed. A majority of these conflagrations, he says, are started by settlers who wish to clear their lands with little work, regardless of the interests of their neighbors or the loss to adjacent property. They start the fires with no idea of trying to stop them and simply allow them to burn out. "It is not only vandalism", said Mr. Andrews, "but it's barbarism and perniciousness and it is time the county attorneys began prosecutions. The railroads are not complying with the law passed at tht last session of the legislature, requiring them to provide a patrol for their lines during the dangerous seasons. This law requires that roads to provide one man for every mile of track. Many of the conflagrations are started by sparks from engines. New York has just pased a law requiring railroads to employ men and and the cost is taxed against the roads. That is what we need out here where there are real forests. When ex secretary James A. Garfield was here with Gifford Pinchot, I told him of the carelessness of both the settlers and the railroads and he said "What you need is a little natural justice with those people".

Minnesota Prize Oats.

That Minnesota as an oats producing state stands at the very fore, is again proven by the awards which have just been made in the milling oats contest conducted at the Omaha corn exposition. The oats in the millng class are used in the manufacture of breakfast foods and are of the very highest class. Washington won first price in the contest, but Minnesota is ahead of it in other states in the number of prices and honored positions There were only twenty premiums offered in the milling class but the judges reported on 33 entries out of the 62 offered. Nine competitors in the so called James J. Hill territory won premiums and fourteen ranked for positions from one to thirty. The Minnesotans who won in the roll of honor are as follows: 10th: A. E. Van Sickle, Warren; 11th: Lawrence Beckman, Cokato; 14th: Alfred Beckman, Cokato; 15th: Andrew Thorenson, McIntosh: 16th: J. M. Stephens, Crookston; 22nd: H. J. Beardmore, Warren; 24th: John Henderson; Cokato; 25th: Anton Kertz, Warren; 30th: Weaver Brothers, Walworth.

Mississippi Improvement Association.

Champ Clark of Missouri, minority leader in the National House of Representatives, will be in Saint Paul July 12 and13, attending a meeting of the Mississippi river Improvement association. The fighting democrat from the "show me" state is coming to Minnesota with a message on river improvement and will have considerable to say about the Mississippi. It is expected that between 500 and 1,000 delegates will attend the meeting. Special invitations have been sent to many of the most prominent men in various walks of life and the majority of them have accepted. There is a possibility that uncle Joe Cannon will be one of the speakers at the meetivg of the association. An invitation was extended to him about three weeks ago, and he said in reply that if Congress adjourned in time, he knew of nothing to prevent his coming.

SUMMER SCHOOL NOW IN SESSION

Form of Divorce In Old Rome.

In the earlier period of the Roman republic divorces were quite unknown and were rare right up to the time of the Sullan wars. In the old days the husband and wife who wished to separate appeared for the last time before the common hearth, a priest and priestess being present. As on the day of marriage, a cake of wheaten flour was presented to the husband and wife, but instead of sharing it between them they rejected it. Then, instead of prayers, they pronounced formulas of a strange, severe, spiteful character, by which the wife renounced the worship and gods of the husband. From that moment the religious bond was broken, and, the community of worship having ceased to exist, the marriage without further ado was forever dissolved.—New York American.

Floral Etymology.

"Primrose" is one of those words that have shown popular association to be stronger than etymology. It has no real connection with the rose, but is the old French "primerole" and, anyhow, means only the "prime" or first flower (more or less) of the year. Our language has insisted upon making "roses" of all sorts of flowers. We have the tuberose, which is only "tuberosa," tuberous, and the rosemary, which is "rosmarinus," dew of the sea. On the other hand the "rose" has been dropped readily enough in cases where popular fancy could not see the flower. The alchemists called green vitriol "rose of copper," "cuprirosa." In French this became "couperose," but English wore it down to the pointless "copperas."—London Chronicle.

She Got It.

He (time 11:30 p. m.)—And you will think of me when I am gone? She (suppressing a yawn)—I'll try to if you'll ever give me an opportunity.

Significant Signals.

"Do you not see the handwriting on the wall?" asked the foreboding friend.

"No," replied Senator Sorghum; "the headlines in the newspapers are enough for me."—Washington Star.

Throat Trouble.

"You look bad, old man. What's the matter?"

"Throat trouble."

"I didn't know you were subject to it."

"Yes, I am. This throat belongs to the newcomer in the next house, who practices singing at all hours of the night."

Past Is Past.

Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities, no doubt, crept in. Forget them as soon as you can.—Emerson.

St. Paul, June 25.—False reports, false entries, fraudulent paper issues and other financial juggling aggregating in the amounts represented $360,798.83, are charged in fifty-three indictments against P. Mr. Joice was arraigned before United States Commissioner Spencer in this city, pleaded not guilty and furnished a bond in the sum of $2,000 to appear for his trial, which will take at Fort Dodge, Ia., June 29.

A New Method of Rescue

By ROCKFORD KING

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

People wondered why I took such interest in aeroplanes, why I continually practiced at driving them, why I studied different makes. Then, when I had taken a flight into a distant land, no one knew where, and after my return all my interest in air navigation had vanished, they wondered still more.

I have been a great traveler, though I am not yet thirty years old. Some years ago while in Russia I made the acquaintance, followed by the friendship, of a member of the American embassy of St. Petersburg. In this way I saw something of court life there. One night at a function at the Winter palace I was introduced to the daughter of a general in the Russian service. Not for an earldom would I give her name, so I shall call her Sophia. In my travels I have picked up a number of foreign languages. Russian I speak tolerably, and Sophia spoke some English. There usually comes in a man's life, if it comes when he is young, some woman who appeals to him as no other woman has ever appealed to him. From the moment I met Sophia I knew that one had risen up in my path whom I must possess, else the vitality had passed out of my life.

I went to my hotel after my first meeting with her to lie awake half the night with the comfort one feels in having found a mate, and the other half I dreamed of her. From that time for several months I was with her as often as Russian etiquette allows. I danced with her, I skated with her, I met her at the opera and on court gala occasions. She gave me unmistakable signs that in me she had found what I had found in her. But when I came to tell her my story her whole manner changed.

"No, no, no!" she moaned. "I have permitted myself to sink into a dream. You have awakened me. I have done very wrong. Go away from me. Forget me."

What there was between her and me that led her to talk thus I could not induce her to tell. I left Russia and tried to forget her. I continued my travels, but the interest for me had gone out of the curiosities of travel. The pyramids, the Coliseum, the works of art that had before fascinated me, were now unable to move me.

One day I took up a newspaper and saw by telegraph from Russia that a conspiracy against the life of the czar had been discovered and that the daughter of a prominent general had been implicated. Something told me that she was Sophia. I returned to St. Petersburg to learn that my anticipation was correct. The girl I loved had already been sent to Siberia. Now I understood her action toward me.

I felt that a great work had sprung up before me—the work of liberating Sophia. A famous traveler was in St. Petersburg at the time and was about to start, with the permission of the Russian government, to write up the condition of Siberian exiles. I succeeded in inducing him to appoint me his secretary, or amanuensis. In this way I would be able to locate the girl I had made up my mind to free. On arriving in the prison region I learned that Sophia's father had been enabled to secure for her simply exile, not imprisonment. She was living in a hut close by a prison. Escape for her was as impossible as if she had been within stone walls. But her position was encouragement for me, whose life work was to take her out of Siberia.

I saw her, talked with her and told her that during the same month (August) the following year to expect me with means by which to give her her freedom.

That autumn and winter I was known to be one of the principal devotees to the navigation of the air. I tried every kind of aeroplane that had been invented. I made long flights both by day and by night. I flew to the Land of the Midnight Sun in the dead of winter, that I might become used to flying in the cold. I tried for no prizes, entered no contests. I worked with one purpose in view. That was to make a flight to Russia, swoop down by the hut in which lived my love and bear her away to freedom.

I pass over the details of study by which I found a machine especially adapted for my purpose. I transported it by sea to Sweden. From there to my destination was not far, but I must make the journey at one flight with one supply of fuel. One morning I rose to a height of 500 feet and drove my machine eastward. I purposely kept at a considerable height till I stood directly over the sophyarhut that I might attract the least possible attention. From where I was poised was a slanting course down to the hut. I hoped that she might be outside, but she was not. I descended to her door. All was silent. I was about to leave the machine to enter the hut when I saw her face at the window, and in another moment she was sitting beside me on the machine.

I had provided for starting by fitting my machine with apparatus especially adapted to the purpose, and, though keepers were by this time running toward us from every direction, we rose above them and the shots they sent up in time to save ourselves.

After a ride high in the air we came down in Sweden, nearly frozen. From there we traveled southward, not stopping till we reached Marseilles, where we took a steamer.

We are now both in America and are soon to be married.

Many Republicans Advise Taft-Roosevelt Pact.

LETTERS TO PRESIDENT

Correspondents Writing to Chief Executive to Make an Alliance With Ex-President and Thus Include Everything Within the Republican Corral, as Roosevelt Appears to Hold Insurgents in Hollow of Hand.

Chicago, July 5.—A special to the Record-Herald from Beverly, Mass., says:

"Two new subdivisions of politics have grown out of the Taft-Roosevelt conference. Their views are coming to the Burgess Point cottage by mail several times a day. One is that the administration of President Taft needs no endorsement from Colonel Roosevelt or any other man. The other is that there is under way the strongest combination of forces ever known in national politics.

"Between the most radical of the progressives, who would have Colonel Roosevelt strike the rock with his rod that the water may gush out, and the disappointed among the 'regular' Republicans there are those who see a composite of the two in politics. They would not for the world part with Mr. Taft's conservatism and his ability to sit steady in the boat, yet they appreciate the desirability of adding to the administration force such adherents of his predecessor as he has not yet inherited.

"These men are writing to President Taft that he can make an alliance with Colonel Roosevelt for political purposes that will include everything within the Republican corral. Their counsel is to let the colonel have the 'progressives,' since with him they appear, according to Oyster Bay dispatches, to be supremely happy. Being able to control the conservative wing himself and having the support of Colonel Roosevelt, who appears to hold 'insurgency' in the hollow of his hand, it occurs to these correspondents that the combination would leave nothing to be desired."

NOT READY TO TALK AS YET

But Roosevelt Has Completed Survey of Political Field.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 5.—Colonel Roosevelt's preliminary survey of the field of battle has been completed. Like a good general he has nothing to say of what his plans will be. There is any amount of speculation, some of it so concrete as to take form in confident assertion, but if the colonel himself is to be believed when he speaks of his own campaign the enemy will hear from him when the first gun is fired and not before.

Oyster Bay learned that Lloyd C. Griscom, president of the New York Republican county committee, did not stay over night at Sagamore Hill, as had been expected, but that he hurried to town under cover of darkness, late at night, taking Dr. Albert Shaw with him. Before he left he was able to give Colonel Roosevelt a first hand account of just how the colonel was beaten last week at Albany.

The results of the conference, which are expected to have an important bearing upon the fall campaign in New York state, have not been disclosed. It is known, however, that the real object of the conference was to diagnose the life of Republicanism in the state.

CLARK AT TAMMANY HALL

Democratic Leader Delivers Fourth of July Oration.

New York, July 5.—Champ Clark, Democratic leader in the house, who was principal speaker at the Tammany Hall Fourth of July celebration here, declared the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill as iniquitous and declared that the Republican party's promise to "revise the tariff downward" had been violated.

"Is it any less dishonest to secure offices under false pretenses than to obtain money in that felonious manner?" he inquired.

"Republican factionists are at each other's throat in the house of representatives, in the senate and throughout the land. More power to their arms! I bring to you the glad tidings of great joy that the Democrats in the house are presenting a solid and united front to the enemy. We are eager for the fray."

Construction will immediately be begun in accordance with the seniority of the petitions that have been received by the commission asking that elevators be constructed at certain points.

SCORE DEAD IN WRECK

Several Other Persons Injured, Three Fatally.

Middletown, O., July 5.—Nineteen persons were killed outright, three probably fatally hurt and half a dozen were seriously injured in a head on collision between a freight and passenger train on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad here. Of the killed eighteen were passengers, the other victim being a member of the passenger train crew.

The trains were the Cincinnati section of the Twentieth Century limited on the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railroad (Big Four) and the second section of a freight train on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton road.

The latter was attempting to make a siding to give the passenger train a clear track when the flying limited, traveling at a rate of fifty miles an hour, flashed around a curve and crashed into it.

The Big Four train had been detoured to avoid a blocked track on that road at Genoa, a few miles south of here, caused by a freight wreck earlier in the day. In addition to its regular crew it carried a pilot engineer of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton road.

A misunderstanding of orders caused the disaster, which was one of the worst that this section of the country has ever experienced.

Directly behind the passenger locomotive and the tender was a combination baggage and smoking car, followed by a day coach and a chair car. All the dead and injured were in the first two cars, there being six passengers in the smoker and twenty-one in the day coach.

JOHNSON IS VICTOR

Negro Defeats Jeffries In Championship Battle.

LASTED BUT FIFTEEN ROUNDS

White Man Too Slow for His Dusky Opponent, Who Escapes With Little Punishment.

Reno, Nev., July 4.—Jack Johnson, the big negro, defeated Jim Jeffries in the fifteenth round of a one side battle in the presence of 20,000 people. Jeffries failed to show his old time snap and dash and he lacked speed and staying qualities. After the tenth round it was apparent that Johnson was getting the better of the contest and toward the end of the fight he had everything his own way. While Jeffries landed many blows they lacked force and had no effect on Johnson. After the twelfth round Jeffries seemed tired and slow, but he continued to come right up to his opponent and take all the punishment given him.

When the men faced each other at the opening of the fifteenth round it was apparent to every one that Jeffries was in distress. His face was puffed and bleeding from the punishing lefts and rights he had received, and his movements were languid. He shambled after the elusive negro, sometimes crouching low with his left hand stuck out in front, and sometimes standing erect. Stooping or erect, he was a mark for Johnson's accurately driven blows. Johnson simply waited for the big white man to come in, and chopped his face to pieces. They came into a clinch after a feeble attempt by Jeffries to land a left hand blow on the body, and as they broke away Johnson shot his left and right to the jaw in a flash. Jeffries staggered back against the ropes. His defensive power seemed to desert him in an instant.

Goes at Him Like a Tiger.

Johnson went at him like a tiger. A rain of lefts and rights delivered at close quarters sent Jeffries reeling blindly. Another series of short, snappy punches, and the big white giant went down for the first time in his ring career. He fell under the top rope, over the lower one, and onto the overhang of the platform. Resting on his haunches and right elbow, Jeffries looked around in a dazed way, and got up at the count of nine. While he was down Johnson stood almost over him until Rickard waved him back. He stood ready to strike, and when Jeffries arose from his knees he dashed in again. Jeffries reeled about and tried to clinch, but Johnson eluded him and as the old champion swung around to the south side of the ring he jolted him twice on the jaw. Jeffries sank to his knees, weak and tired, but got up again at the count of nine. It was then that Jeffries' friends began to call to Rickard to stop the fight.

"Stop it, stop it," they shouted from all sides. "Don't let him be knocked out."

Rickard gave no heed to these appeals. Jeffries was helpless now, and as he staggered to a standing position the negro was waiting for him. A left, a right and another left, short, snappy, powerful blows, found their way to Jeffries' chin and he went down for the third time. Again he sprawled over the lower rope, hanging half outside the ring. The timekeeper raised and lowered his arm, tolling off the seconds. He had reached the count of seven when some of Jeffries' seconds put foot inside the ropes and Rickard walked between the fallen man and the negro champion. Placing his hand on Johnson's shoulder, he declared him the winner. While Jeffries was not counted out, this was a technical evasion. It was evident that he never could have got up inside of ten seconds.

CLARK AT TAMMANY HALL

Democratic Leader Delivers Fourth of July Oration.

New York, July 5.—Champ Clark, Democratic leader in the house, who was principal speaker at the Tammany Hall Fourth of July celebration here, declared the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill as iniquitous and declared that the Republican party's promise to "revise the tariff downward" had been violated.

"Is it any less dishonest to secure offices under false pretenses than to obtain money in that felonious manner?" he inquired.

"Republican factionists are at each other's throat in the house of representatives, in the senate and throughout the land. More power to their arms! I bring to you the glad tidings of great joy that the Democrats in the house are presenting a solid and united front to the enemy. We are eager for the fray."

Ballinger Will Stay.

Washington, July 5.—Secretary of the Interior Ballinger added another denial to the many he has made to rumors that he would resign. The latest denial followed a report that he would resign as a result of President Taft's action in signing orders of withdrawal covering 8,495,781 acres of power site, phosphate and petroleum lands.

Helena, Mont., July 1.—Six persons were killed, twenty or more were injured and a number of buildings were destroyed as the result of a powder explosion in the store of the Graves Mercantile company at Boulder, the county seat of Jefferson county, thirty-five miles south of Helena.

The explosion was caused by some person using the powder magazine back of a hardware store for a target. As a result there is not a pane of glass unbroken on Main street. The electric light plant was dismantled and a number of stores were demolished.

SLASH IN RAIL RATES

Interstate Commerce Commission Orders Reductions.

Washington, June 30.—Decisions were handed down by the interstate commerce commission countrywide in importance. They affect freight rates —both class and commodity—on all transcontinental lines operating between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

The decisions are of what are known popularly as the Pacific coast cases, heard last autumn by the commission on its six weeks' trip to the Pacific coast and intermountain territory.

In every instance reductions in the existing rates complained of were made and in some instances they amounted to nearly 50 per cent. The commission found, through its inquiry, a remarkable rate situation existing on the Pacific coast and even a more remarkable one in the intermountain territory. This is notably true of the rates to and from Spokane, Wash., and Reno, Nev.

In the Spokane case the commission decided that present freight rates are unreasonable and excessive. Just and reasonable rates on both class and commodity freight were established for the future.

WAGE ISSUE NEAR CLIMAX

Canadian Pacific Trainmen and Conductors Firm In Demands.

Winnipeg, July 5.—Negotiations continue between the representatives of the trainmen and conductors and the Canadian Pacific railway and while it is stated that gradual progress is being made the men say that it is really only progress toward a point where they will know definitely whether they are going to agree or disagree. Representatives of the men declare a settlement remains absolutely with the company, since from the start of negotiations they have not changed their demands one iota, standing straight through for the standard wage rate of the territory. The discussions have been as to the application of these standards to the men working under different conditions, as to mileage, etc., will secure the standard rate throughout.

MANY DIE IN CLOUDBURST

Six Bodies Recovered From River at Saylorsville, Ky.

Saylorsville, Ky., June 30.—Six bodies were recovered from the Licking river following a cloudburst along its headwaters. It is reported that many other lives have been lost. Twenty-six houses were washed away. The Licking is above the flood stage.

Goldwater was sitting near the front of the grandstand and during the entire game was an interested spectator.

THE STRONG WOMAN

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

During the first year of her existence the female who came to be known as "the strong woman" was called Hetty Davis. That was her correct name. George Davis was a farmer, and both he and his wife were undersized people. The infant was a weakling, and the doctors frankly said that the first symptoms of measles would be the end of her.

At the age of eighteen months Hetty took a start in life and was soon known as "the big kid." She took on fat and simply played with mumps, measles and whooping cough. Her weight at two years was that of the average girl of ten. She grew from "the big kid" to "the big girl." At the age of sixteen they were calling her "the strong woman," and that title stuck to her.

The Davis farm was worth marrying, and there was money in the bank besides. There were young men and bachelors and widowers who were willing to marry it. They came courting and were laughed at, but at length the strong woman announced that on a certain day, if the swains would all gather at her farm, she would select a husband from among them. The gathering numbered thirty. As they sat around casting sheep's eyes at her she rose and said:

"Gentlemen, I want a man who can control me. The man who wins me must best me in a fair rough and tumble fight. There are no other conditions."

There were only five men out of the thirty who wanted matrimony that way. Out of the five there was a widower forty years old who could mow hay and hoe more corn than any other for ten miles round. He stepped out on the grass and peeled his coat and vest and spat on his hands. According to authentic reports, he was a licked man in five minutes. Not only that, but he carried a stiff neck for the rest of his life. The strong woman had almost twisted his head off, and none of the others came forward as No. 2.

The farm was run by hired men. Now and then for the first two years they got impudent at times or did not keep up to their work. They were knocked unconscious, thrown over the fence into the road or sent away with broken bones. It was a great highway for tramps, or had been. They came along in bunches. They stopped and demanded food. They even threatened things. When they got to threats the strong woman sailed in. She struck and slapped; she kicked and bit; she knocked their heads together until their ears rang for days afterward. Her greatest victory was over a bunch of five. After the news of that got abroad all tramps would go six miles around to dodge her farm. The strong woman paid no attention to science. She just waded right in any old way to win, and if she got her teeth fastened upon a man's ear it was bad for him.

The strong woman didn't pay much attention to other women. She knew they didn't like her and that they gossiped about her, but she continued to pass it by for years. Then a casual remark roiled her. A certain woman said that she was so homely that she couldn't catch a husband. No homely woman ever yet admitted that she was homely, nor was there ever an old maid ready to admit that she had tried and failed. The strong woman sent out notice that she had hit the trail for a husband. No one responded. On the contrary, men hid out in barns and haystacks and trembled in their shoes. Two weeks and no husband.

Then the strong woman bought a bear trap, covered the teeth with heavy cloth and set it at the open barn door. Three nights passed without a victim, but at midnight on the fourth night along came a horse thief, gayly, and was caught by the leg. His yells of pain aroused the woman, and she lighted the lantern and went out. After taking a good look at the prisoner she turned away with the remark:

"I guess you'll do. Stay right here till morning."

He begged and pleaded and yelled, but there he stayed for four hours more. Then came daylight and his captor, and she asked:

"Does it happen that you are a married man?"

"No."

"Then you soon will be. Listen to me. You'll be laid up for about a week. After that we shall we married, you and I."

"I marry you?" he asked after a long look at her.

"You will."

"I'll go to prison first!"

"You'll do nothing of the kind. Perhaps you've heard of me—the strong woman."

He uttered a groan of despair.

"They say I can't find a husband, but I'll show 'em!"

"But, woman, I'm a horse thief!"

"I don't care for that."

It is a fact that after a week they were married. It is a further fact that he ran away, and after a hunt of a month she brought him back and hammered him until he didn't get out of bed for three weeks. He settled down then and made a good husband, and the two lived happily together for twenty years, when the strong woman met a death befitting her name. A barn sixty feet long and thirty feet wide blew over on her, and she was gathered to her fathers. A walnut tree or a brick house couldn't have done it.

"A Danger Foreseen Is Half Averted."

If you are in business and don't advertise you are in danger.

This is a warning.

See your mistake in time and avert it.

A poor publisher, the proprietor of a struggling magazine, sent a half inch advertisement to the New York Herald. The ad man made it a half page. The bill was bigger than the publisher's entire possessions. He thought he was ruined.

It was the turning point. The magazine sold. It was good and people liked it. Other half page ads followed. Result: fortune, fame, honor.

Advertising is just as potent a lever now as it was then.

A good story is told of two great Irishmen, the late Archbishop Plunket and Father Healy, the well known parish priest of Bray. Making their way together to Bray railroad station one morning, the priest urged that they should hurry, but the prelate's appeal to his watch convinced him that they had ample time. They arrived to see the train for Dublin disappearing. The archbishop's apologies were lavish. He pleaded that he had always had unbounded faith in his watch. "My dear Lord Plunket," was Father Healy's rejoinder, "faith won't do without the good works."—Blackwood's Magazine.

The Dancing Mania.

The "dancing mania" of the middle ages came on the heels of the great plague known as the "black death." It was some sort of nervous disease and is now supposed to have been what is known as "St. Vitus' dance." It began in the year 1374 at Aix-la-Chapelle and spread all over Germany, the Netherlands and Italy. The dancers formed circles hand in hand and appearing to have lost all reason, continued dancing, regardless of the bystanders, for hours together until in their wild delirium they fell to the ground in sheer exhaustion. Panting and foaming at the mouth, they would suddenly spring up and begin the dance again, to be again exhausted, and so on until they died. The mania involved millions of people.

The Major's Value.

"Major Bunks," said a veteran, "was a pompous chap. The boys had a good deal of fun once over his exchange.

"It seems that on a very dark night a stalwart Confederate took the major prisoner. This fact, together with the narrative of the prisoner's return to camp, was signaled to headquarters tersely:

"'Major Bunks, captured during night march, exchanged later for two plugs tobacco.'"

Doctors Are More Thorough Now.

A physician at a dinner in Denver sneered at certain Biblical miracles.

"Lazarus," he said, "was raised from the dead, and yet I don't see any dead folks being raised in our time."

"No," said a clergyman, an eminent Biblical scholar, with a smile. "Modern medical science has progressed too far for that, eh?"—Washington Star.

Conciliatory.

Head Waiter (dignified and pompous) —Have you ordered, sir? Despairing Patron—Yes, I ordered a porterhouse steak half an hour ago, and I wish to apologize for my rudeness. With your permission I will withdraw it as an order and renew it as a suggestion. —Chicago Tribune.

JOSEPH H. CHOATE.

Former Ambassador May Be Tried by Bar Association.

CHARGES ARE MADE AGAINST CHOATE

Noted Lawyer Accused of "Omissions and Wrongful Acts."

New York, July 5.—For the first time in the history of the American Bar association of the United States charges have been filed against one of its members and are to be laid before the approaching convention at Chattanooga in August.

And the fact that the pioneer victim of this distinction is past President Joseph H. Choate, formerly American ambassador to the court of St. James, has aroused intense interest throughout the legal fraternity of the country. The complaint charges "omissions and wrongful acts."

The charges were placed on record with Chairman Henry D. Estabrook of the general council of the association on May 17, 1910.

James R. Watts of West New Brighton, S. I., admitted he had filed the charges and demanded a thorough investigation.

One of the statements in the "brief of facts" submitted tells of an alleged attempt to bribe Watts to leave New York city and settle in the Far West. Watts names a man, at that time connected with the law firm, he claims made the offer twice in one day.

IRREGULARITIES ALLEGED

Insurance Company Accused of Peculiar Deals.

Albany, N. Y., July 5.—Irregularities in connection with the management of the Phenix Insurance company of Brooklyn are again set forth in a report made to State Superintendent Hotchkiss by state insurance examiners.

Following discoveries of gross irregularities in the management of the company President George H. Sheldon was removed from office last December and later was indicted. He died before the indictment could be pressed. The Phenix Insurance company of Brooklyn has since been merged with the Fidelity Insurance company and the combined companies are now known as the Fidelity-Phenix Fire Insurance company and are doing an active business.

The examination just completed covers the transactions of the Phenix Insurance company of Brooklyn since the last previous examination, which was as of the statement June 30, 1887. It has been particularly searching as to the recent years of the company's existence.

The present examination was made as of Sept. 30, 1909, and the examiners find at that time a surplus above capital of $421,200, instead of $1,546,648, as claimed by the company.

DIES ON HISTORIC FIELD

Aviator Wachter's Monoplane Falls to the Earth.

Betheny Plain, Rheims, France, July 5.—The opening of the second aviation meeting on the historic field of Betheny was marked by a fatal accident, Aviator Wachter being killed.

Wachter was the first of the contestants to appear for practice. In his monoplane he battled long with the gale amid the enthusiasm of the spectators, until the rain compelled him to make a descent. He resumed his flights in the afternoon and was flying magnificently, when suddenly an explosion was heard. The wings of the machine doubled up and the monoplane dropped to the earth with lightning speed. The aviator was instantly killed in full view of the spectators, among whom were his wife and little daughter.

The accident is attributed to the wire stays.

"For a Republic We Must Have Men."

For a successful business there must be buyers. A well equipped store, a well assorted stock of goods, efficient clerks, all attract buyers; but no matter what the store, no matter what the stock, no matter how agreeable or efficient the help, buyers will not be attracted unless they know the facts.

Telling the facts in regard to your business is advertising. That method which will tell them to the largest number of prospective buyers is the best method.

It is obvious that the best method of telling the facts to the buyers of this community is through the advertising columns of this paper. Are you employing this method to the best advantage?

The Mind During Sleep.

"During sleep," says an authority on mental subjects, "the workings of the mind are under no control, and yet it seems to have a wonderful faculty of building up and arranging scenes and incidents. I remember once having a vivid dream of going into a house the furniture and inmates of which belonged to the middle ages. So clear was the dream that I had no difficulty in recalling it, and then as I went over each detail of dress, armor, jewelry, ornaments and other objects seen in my vision I realized that everything I had beheld was historically accurate—that is to say, that probably in a fraction of a second my mind had conjured up a scene to construct which, with the same faithfulness to detail, while awake would have taken me several hours."

Wheat Does Not Grow Wild.

The existence of names for wheat in the most ancient languages confirms the evidence of its great antiquity and of its cultivation in the more temperate parts of Europe, Asia and Africa. From the evidence adduced by botanists of high standing it seems highly improbable that wheat has ever been found growing persistently in a wild state, although it has often been asserted by poets, travelers and historians. In the "Odyssey," for example, we are told that wheat formerly grew in Sicily without the aid of man. Diodorus repeats the tradition that Osiris found wheat and barley growing promiscuously in Palestine, but neither this nor other reputed discoveries of wheat growing wild seem at all credible, seeing that it does not appear to be endowed with the power of persistency except under continued culture.

One Citizen's Opinion.

The time for the annual school meeting will be here next week and yet we venture to express a doubt that few if any of the parents of this district have given the matter any serious thought. Whether it is that they think, that the school board is composed of such perfect mortals that they are not liable to make mistakes, or of the different questions, that they are of not sufficient importance to command their attention. We do not know but the fact remains that they have never given it the attention that it deserves considering its importance. Now in regard to one important matter, we may be mistaken, but we are of the opinoion, that a part of the school-board at least, is in favor of improving the school grounds somewhat but have been restrained by the feeling that they had not aught to take any action in that line without the consent and co-operation of the tax payers we have never seen a district as large as this one with the grounds in such poor shape and am sure that if you will think it over you will be of the same opinion. Not only is it an eyesore instead of a beauty spot as it should be, but every spring our children have a mud puddle instead of a dry healthy yard, for a play ground. Do you not think this and other matters concerning the school of sufficient importance to command your attention if so, would it not be a good idea to plan on being present at the annual meeting this evening. Be there and give the board the benefit of your ideas in regard to the different things concerning your school.

Tony Skreland from Grit called on friends and relatives herelast week.

Gertie Skreland of Garnes came up last Thursday for a few days visit with relatives here.

There was a grand picnic on the school grounds in district No. 34 on the closing day, and a good and pleasing program was rendered by the people of the school. A good dinner was served on the grounds together with all kinds of lemonade for all. There was a large atendence and a good time enjoyed by all. Miss Anna Rust our teacher was indeed deserving of credit for the good management of our school and the sucess in the rendering of the program.

On the 23rd day of June the Angel of death called at our door and removed from our home our beloved brother Gustave who for some time past had been confined to his bed with kidney troubles and had been ailing for over a year—altho everything was done for him that loving hands could do. There came no relief to him but death. Gustave E. Swanson was barely 28 years old and was just in the prime of life when he was overtaken with sickness and his departure was indeed a hard blow to the loved ones who are left to ever mourn his loss.

Gust was a good boy a loving brother and a true and faithful friend to all he learned to know. He lived and led achristian life and his motto ever was.. "I will do unto others as I wish others will do unto me" and as a conseqence he left nothing behind him but flowers of friendship which will forever live and bloom in the hearts of those that he loved and made happy while here on earth.

How hard it must be to lay down the mantle of manhood in the bloom of life and then step forward to shake hands with the grim reaper of death while within the heart burns the wish—O God spare me and let me live out those years that lies before me, that seem so full of hope and happiness.

We saw him time and again fold his hands upon his breast and we know that that was the apeal that came from the depth of his heart—but as the dreary days slowly passed and his end drew nearer. Again we saw him fold his hands upon his breast all earthly cares had vanished now, his eyes were turned towards heaven, the last wish the wish of his heart was now going up to the almighty Father for the last time in prayer. Speak O Lord thy servant heareth A moment later, he motioned his loved ones to his bedside to bid them his last farewel, with a look upon his face that meant "may we all meet again in that Heavenly home above". The last looks, a smile and his life journey was ended. His,

Hunt Still Pushing Railroad

Roosevelt, Minn. July 5th

To the editor of the Thief River Falls News,

After a long silence of the Press and a streneous effort and unwavering confidence in the construction of the Minnesota Air Line Railway I again appeal to the honest and true minded and thinking element of Eastern Roseau Co., Eastern Marshall Co., to give one moment of their valued time. I have secured a proposition from British capitalists, of Montreal Cdn., that they can furnish the capital to construct our road, that they can furnish bonds underwritten by a Securities Co. of capitalists, which is well and favorable known, without any advance charges whatever, on certain conditions. Now if the people of Thief River Falls, Eastern Marshall Co., Eastern Roseau County, are willing to consider this proposition which is up to them, I am willing to have a representative of this Securities Co. of Montreal, to make a visit over the line with our representative, and show the people the confidence they have in pushing the construction of this line to an overwhelming success, from Thief River Falls to Roosevelt Zippel Bay with terminals at Warroad. Should this proposition meet with favor I would call meetings along the line, and each end of the line correspond with the Securities Co. of Montreal and aid in bringing this movement to a speedy and successful conclusion.

Fred Anderson was released from custody at Detroit last Friday, where he served four months and paid a fine of $400 for introducing liquor at Detroit, a city where the goverment now sanctions not only the introduction of liquor but the public sale of it. There are four saloon keepers in Detroit today doing the very same thing and violating the very same laws that Mr. Anderson had to serve four months for and pay a fine of four hundred dollars. Is there no remedy for such gross injustice or what is this country comming to.

Working on Canal.

Smoke from the stack of the big dredge so busily engaged on the canals and lagoons on the new part of the State Fair Grounds, is a source of constant annoyance to Como-Harriet car conductors, who pass the fair grounds each trip. Passengers are continually asking if the boats will be running this year on the waterway in this new addition to the exposision grounds. Arrangements have practically been made with the Ramaley Boat Works of White Bear, Minn., to equip the lagoon with a dozen motor boats of various sizes as the many canals and series of small lakes, give an opportunity of going through the big addition to the grounds.

Three boats were operated last year and their capacity was taxed to the limit. and better arrangements are certain to be made this year.

The west end of the canal which ends about 500 feet from the new grand stand, isnow enclosed in a five-foot wall of cement and has been made nearly twice as large as it was at the time of the last fair.

There is between three and a half and four miles of shore line on the various waterways and the ride is really an entertaining one.

At the fair grounds end, both sides of the canal have been graded to an attractive slope running down to the water and hundreds of trees and shrubs have been set out, which should eventually make this a most beautiful place for those who admire an artistic arrangement of shrubs and flowers.

While the financial condition of the State Agriculture Society prevents the immediate completion of the vast park scheme to be arranged on the various islands and shores of the new grounds, enough has already been done to satisfy the most critical that when complete it will be even more attractive than was ever dreamed of.

The Plummer people are making the acquintance of a great many of the so called "Weary Willie" class since the railroad work has started. There was an over supply of about a hundred and fifty shipped in Wednesday by the railroad company and President Finrow fearing trouble had to request the company to ship them away again which they did the following morning.

A. M. Arpin came down from the Mud Lake country the first of the week where he had been looking after ditching operations of the Northwestern Drainage company. He reports that two of the big dredges on the Mud Lake ditch will dig their way through this lake, going from three to four feet lowey than the bottom of the lake. When the dredges reach the lake, the levl of this water will be lowered about one and one half foot, the remainder of the water being held back by dams in order to furnish water to float the dredges.

Ole Henry, of Roseau county, has decided to shoot at crows or buy a few clay pigeons for targets instead of selecting deer at this season of the year. He shot a deer a few days ago but game warden Cooke of Roseau was soon on his trail, Henry was haled before the court and fined $27 for his fun. Shooting deer is even more dangerous than trying to smuggle a case of beer to Maple Lake among the many indian tepees there.

THE COST OF A FIELD OF GRAIN

Few farmers know the labor cost of a field of grain. Few know whether the crop barvestad pays the labor cost. It is less difficult than troublesome to keep a record, but if the farmer will carry a little book and make a memorandum of the hours actually spent in plowing, in preparing the seed bed, in sowing or planting, in cultivating, in harvesting—in fact a record, by hours, of all time consumed by man, or man and team, he will discover a new light and begin to find remedies. An account should be kept with each field, as with an individual. Charge the field with the labor at a price the farmer would pay for it if he hired the work done. Each item of cost should be charged to the field. If a machine is broken, charge the expense of repairs to the field in which the accident occurs. When the crop is taken off, credit the field with its value. The difference between the two footings will show where the loss or gain falls. Going further in book keeping the cost of seed, to which the cost of cleaning, etc., might be added and made a part of the record. When the farmers are making but 4 per cent on their investment in Minnesota, on an average, as shown by Experiment Station reports at University Farm, some making, others losing money, each should know for himself what he is doing, and if losing, apply the remedy and stop the leak with prosperity.

Political Announcement

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the district.

Ada, Minn., May 3rd., 1910.

A. L. Hanson

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce my candidacy for the Republican nomination as a member of the house of representative from th 61st legislative district which comprises the counties of Beltrami, Clearwater and Red Lake. If nominated and elected I pledge myself to use all efforts to secure the redistricting of the state, a one mill tax for good roads, a liberal appropriation to advertise the recources of Minnesota, and a county option law.
D. P. O'Neill.

When one seems most in need of a friend they all seem to have scattered.

Congress has adjourned without very much to the credit of the Republicans. Well, the less a man does the surer he is of losing his job.

The great allurements of thefruit fields of the west seem to have taken a sudden change and now the westerners can help boost for Minnesota.

The total deficiencies appropiated were gratifyingly less by $7.587,654.12 than those of the last session of the last Congress, and $11,825,788..71 less than the average annual deficiencies provided for on account of any fiscal year since 1898, the year of the Spanish-American War. It will be remembered that appropriations amounting to nearly $330,000,000 were made in deficiency appropriation acts to provide for the expenses of the war of Spain. For many fiscal years prior to that period the record shows that deficiencies were usually but little less and sometimes considerably more than those of this session.

In a short but impresive speech before the House of Representatives the Honorable William Sulzer of New York made the following remarks on the value of good roads:—

The plain people of the land are familiar with the truths of history. They know the past. They realize that often the difference between good roads and bad is the difference between profit and loss. Good roads have a money value far beyond our ordinary conception. Bad roads constitute our greatest drawback to internal development and material progress. Good roads mean prosperous farmers; bad roads abandoned farms, sparsely settled country districts, and congested populated cities, where the poor are destned to becomepoorer. Good roads mean more cultivated farms and cheaper food products for the toilers in the towns; bad roads mean poor transportation and lack of communication, high prices for the necessaries of life, the loss of untold millions of wealth, and idle workmen seeking employment. Good roads will help those who cultivate the soil and feed the multitude, and whatever aids the producers and the farmers of our contry will increase our wealth and our greatness and benefit all the people. We cannot destroy our farms with out final decay. They are today the heart of our national life and the chief source of our material greatness. Tear down every edifice in our cities and labor will rebuild them, but abandon the farms and our cities will disappear forever.

One of the crying needs of this country, especially in the South and West, is good roads. The establishment of good roads would in a great measure solve the question of the high price of food and the increasing cost of living. By reducing the cost of transportation it would enable the farmer to market his produce at a lower price and a larger profit at the sametime it would bring communities closer together and touch with the centers of population, thereby facilitating the commerce of ideas as well as of material products.

AMATURES OFFERED SPECIAL PRIZES

Stock Show Offers Liberal Reward For Best Beef Stock At Show

St. Paul, July 14th, 1910.—For the farmer or stock grower who shows the grand champion heifer or steer at the Northwestern live stock show to be held at the Union Stock Yards at South St. Paul, November 15th, to 18th, a series of premiums are offered which aggregate $445.00. To win this sum the animal must take first premium in a half dozen classes in which it may be entered and must stand the inspection of some of the most critical judges in the entire Northwest. There are special premiums offered, worthy of compeition.

This live stock show will differ from those usually seen at county fairs or at meetings of live stock associations in that it will be for market type animals only and carries no classes or premiums for breeding stock. It is the animal which offers the most tempting cut of porterhouse, the most juicy roast, the most inviting loin, that will receive attention. One of the objects of this is to draw the growers of market cattle together where they may exchange ideas, discuss the values of feed, the relative merits of the various breeds of market cattle and tell each other things of inestimable value in the years to come.

The cattle division will contain two general classes, one for pure breeds, and one for grades and cross breeds. The single entry of steers and spayed heifers will be grouped according to ages. All animals under one year of age will be shown in one lot. Those under two years and over one will be shown in another lot, while those two years and under three will comprise still another lot. For each there will be six prizes ranging from $25.00 down to $5.00 and the champion of the lot will be awarded $35.00. The champions of the two classes will be shown in competition for the grand championship, which carries a prize of $50.00.

In each class may be shown a herd consisting of one steer or heifer two years old and under three; one steer or heifer one year old and under two and one steer or heifer under one year of age. The premium for this competition will be $40.00 for the first $25.00 for the second and $15.00 for the third. While these premiums will apply to any and all entries in these classes, special premiums will be offered in addition. The American Shorthorn Association will duplicate the regular premiums won by pure bred or grade shorthorns. Farm, Stock and Home of Minneapolis, has offered $25.00 as a special prize for the grand champion steer or heifer. The live stock breeders Association of Minnesota and North Dakota each offer $35 for the best steer or heifer shown by an exhibition.

The management of the show particularily desires to encourage amateur exhibitors and have offered to those who have never before exhibited at State fairs or fat stock shows, four prizes ranging from $20.00 to $5 in each of the lots for single enteries of pure bred cattle and four prizes ranging from $15.00 to $5.00 in each of the lots for grade and cross-breeds. H. F. Brown, proprietor of the Browndale Farm, Minneapolis at the last annual banquet given for the exhibitors of this show, strongly urged the necessity of bringing out amateur exhibitors and offered to duplicate any prizes that the Association might offer for that purpose provided such prizes were won by pure bred or graded shorthorns.

These same animals are also eligible for entry in the dressed carcass division where there are four prizes for each lot from $25.00 to $5.00 with a prize of $50.00 for the champion carcass. If the champion carcass is the same animal that wins the grand championship on foot, the Association Harmony Special Premium of $50.00 will also be awarded it.

The Corn and Grain show carries an attractive offer for "County Exhibits," which shall consist of a display of grains, grasses and fodders by any county agricultural society or individual officially representing any county in the show territory. Exhibits in this class will be governed by the following conditions:

Grains must be grown in 1910, not less than 10, nor more than 20 named varities, two quarts each. Corn in sheaf must be of this year's growth not less than ten, nor more than 12 named varieties and must be shown in the ear. Native grasses not less than 12 correctly named varieties. Tame grasses and clovers, including alfalfa, not less than 10 correctly named varieties. The exhibt may also include millet, rape, sorgum, fodder corn, vetches, potatoes for stock [illegible]ding and field roots up to be 12 varieties in all. The prizes to be awarded for these exhibits are: First $100.00, second $50.00, third $25.00, fourth $25.00. The advertising feature for the county represented, is of course, the chief consideration, although the prizes in themselves make it worth while for exhibitors to enter.

The territory of the Northwestern Live Stock show and the Northwestern Corn and Grain Show is limited to the states of Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington and that part of South Dakota lying west of the Missouri river; also that portion lying north of the southern boundry of Moody Lake, Miner, Sanborn, Jerauld and Buffalo counties. In Wisconsin is included that portion of the state lying north of the southern boundry of the counties of LaCrosse, Monroe, Juneau, Adams, Marquette, Green Lake, Fondulac and Sheboygan.

The man behind the labor, the one who really does the work, the herdsman who fits the grand champion for the show, will be presented with a gold medal by "The Farmer" of St. Paul. This will be a worthy object and one the winner may be proud to show.

A novel feature of the show, one which undoubtedly will cause much comment, will be the marketing of cattle at the close of the show. As the exhibition is to be held in the big South St. Paul Stockyards, exhibitors will find a ready market for their stock right on the show grounds at the close. The exhibitors will also have the privilege of entering single animals in the carcass contest, which affords additional opportunity for winning liberal prizes and disposing of the carcasses at market value.

He Whistled.

Old Lady (to grocer's boy)—Don't you know that it is very rude to whistle when dealing with a lady?

Boy—That's what the guv'nor told me to do, mum.

"Told you to whistle?"

"Yes'm. He said if we ever sold you anything we'd have to whistle for the money."

In the Long Ago.

The Decoy.

"I notice," said the man to the parson, "that, although I am in the front pew, there is always a five dollar bill on the collection plate when it comes to me. Is that the contribution of the man who takes up the collection?"

"Not at all," replied the parson, who believed in business methods. "That's our decoy."—Detroit Free Press.

She Thought Right.

A Duke's Maxim.

It was a maxim of the first Duke of Portland, who was a great lover of race horses, that there were only two places where all men are equal—on the turf and under the turf.

The Devil's Sonata.

Tartini, the great violinist, after dining indiscreetly, dreamed that he had made a bargain with the devil for his soul. To prove his powers the evil one seized a violin and played a sonata of exquisite beauty. Tartini awoke with the ringing in his ears, committed the music to paper and published it as "The Devil's Sonata."

Royal Mistakes.

Sovereigns and princes are strangely given to making astonishing mistakes while dealing with dates. The inscription on King Edward VII.'s coffin that he died in the ninth year of his reign instead of the tenth is only an example of many similar errors. In November, 1858, Queen Victoria wrote to the late king to inform him that he might consider himself emancipated from parental authority and control, as he was now eighteen years old and therefore of age. Her majesty's letter, which was very long, was a quasi sermon, and it ended by informing the then Prince of Wales that he would be forthwith made a knight of the Garter and a colonel in the army. How Queen Victoria and Prince Albert fell into so extraordinary a mistake it is impossible to understand, for the prince had only then completed his seventeenth year. Dean Wellesley, to whom the young prince showed the letter, at once detected the serious error into which the queen had fallen, but he thought it best to say nothing.—London Truth.

Just a Blunder.

Sir Uptree Monliess (who has got old Coldkash in a corner at the club)—Mr. Coldkash, your daughter is the idol of my life, the one hope and aim of my existence. Might I dare hope that some day I may be permitted to call her wife?

Mr. Coldkash (astounded)—But, my dear sir, I have no daughter.

Sir Uptree M.—Oh, pardon me! Somebody told me that you had. Let's have a drink.—London Scraps.

Got Full Measure.

All yesterday James had played truant from school, and when the irate master raised his cane threateningly James burst into a flood of tears.

"Please don't lick me, sir," he sobbed.

"And why should I not lick you, pray?" thundered the schoolmaster.

"W'y, sir, 'cos I think I've 'ad enough!" gasped James. "Yesterday the boy as I played truant with and I fell out and he licked me, and a man we threw stones at caught me and licked me, the driver of a cart we hung on to licked me, the owner of a cat we chased licked me. Then when I got home mother licked me, and after that father licked me, and then mother licked me again for calling her a sneak for telling father."

"Well," responded the master grimly, "by this time one licking more or less won't make much difference, and it seems hard I shouldn't have my whack. Come here, sir!"—London Answers.

Remnants of a College Course.

Prosecuting Attorney (examining a prospective juror)—Do you know anything about chemistry?

"I studied it at school."

"Do you think you remember enough of it to make you a competent juror in a poison case?"

"I'm not sure."

"Do you remember any of the formulas?"

"Let me see—two."

"Only two?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are they in a poem?"

(Blushing) "Yes, sir."

"Is this the poem?

"Our Willie boy is dead and gone.
We ne'er shall see him more.
What Willie thought was H2O
Was H2SO4."

(Blushing furiously) "Yes, sir."

"I thought so. You are excused."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

On Nagging.

My son taught me a lesson on the subject of "nagging" when he was but four years old and one that I have never forgotten. He had been guilty of a small misdemeanor and had tried to wriggle out of it by not telling the exact truth. I gave him a mild spanking and, as has always been my custom, talked the matter over afterward. I began by saying, "Now, Robert, if you had told me the truth I should not have punished you."

He stood before me, scraping one foot along the carpet, and he looked up at me and said, "What would you have done?" And I answered, "I should have only talked to you." "Well," he drawled, "how long would you have talked?"

He is a big boy in high school now, but when times arise requiring a reprimand and I get started I still hear that little voice, "How long would you have talked?" and I go right to the point and say what I have to say on the subject; but, in the boy's own language, I "cut it short" and never refer to it again unless it is absolutely necessary.—Harper's Bazar.

BOWERS FOR SUPREME COURT

Solicitor General Will Be Appointed by the President.

STIMSON TO SUCCEED BOWERS

Can Have the Position of Solicitor General If He So Desires—No Longer Any Doubt That Bowers Will Become a Member of the Federal Tribunal.

New York, July 12.—A special from Washington says the following slate of federal appointments was vouched for by officials of the administration: Lloyd W. Bowers to be justice of the supreme court and Henry L. Stimson to be solicitor general to succeed Mr. Bowers.

By officials close to President Taft it was said that there is no longer any doubt that Bowers will be appointed to the supreme court. He would have been chosen instead of Justice Lurton when the latter was appointed but for the belief in the mind of President Taft that he was young enough to wait for a later appointment. The president has said to several friends that he has the highest regard for Bowers' knowledge of law and that his appointment to the supreme bench would materially strengthen it.

Now that the president will have the appointment of an additional justice to the highest court, and in all probability two, it is conceded that Bowers will attain the goal of his ambition. It is scarcely thought that Justice Moody's health will improve sufficiently to permit him to resume his seat on the bench. He is expected to take advantage of the retirement law, so that the president must name a successor for Moody as well as for Chief Justice Fuller.

Preparing for the Position.

Bowers has been preparing himself for a seat in the supreme court by keeping out of the big trust cases which have lately been argued.

Stimson can have Bowers' place as solicitor general if he will take it.

Beverly, Mass., July 12.—President Taft announced again that he would not give serious consideration to filling vacancies in the United States supreme court until the fall. As to calling an extra session of the senate in October to confirm appointees to the supreme bench and thus to facilitate the rehearing of the important Standard Oil and tobacco and corporation tax cases the president has not definitely made up his mind.

The president has offered to President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale the chairmanship of the commission authorized by congress to investigate the subject of railroad stocks and bonds and to recommend a plan for bringing the issue of these securities under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission.

Mr. Hadley is considering to what extent service on the commission would interfere with his work at Yale and will endeavor to determine this factor before announcing a decision.

RECORD BY GLENN CURTISS

Aviator Travels Fifty Miles In Fast Time.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 12.—Glenn Curtiss set an American record for a fifty mile flight in an aeroplane by covering a half hundred measured miles in five mile laps along the beach in elapsed time of 1 hour, 14 minutes, 59 seconds.

At the end of his fifty mile flight Curtiss swept his machine back over the waterways on the meadow side of the city and made an entire circle of the resort before he descended to receive the plaudits of the cheering crowd.

Mrs. Curtiss was among the first to greet him. Walter Brookins, who made the world's altitude record, and Frank Coffin, his rival flying the Wright machine, were among those who crowded around him and extended their congratulations. In the early evening Curtiss set a new mark for quick climbing by sweeping his machine 1,000 feet in the air in 5 minutes and 51 seconds.

HIT BY THREE BULLETS

Guest at Beer Party Shot by the Host.

Jamestown, N. D., July 12.—Andrew Tomjack, a farmer near Spiritwood Lake, appeared in justice court here with three bullet wounds received at a beer party held at the home of a neighbor to celebrate the home-coming of his son-in-law.

He entered a complaint against Mike Bender, at whose home the party was held. The shooting is said to have taken place after all the guests at Bender's home had retired for the night.

Tomjack and Bender had a quarrel over a land deal, according to the testimony, and the latter ended the disagreement by firing five times at Tomjack, hitting him with three of the bullets, it is said.

Bender was held to answer to the district court at its next session.

RAINS GIVE RELIEF

Precipitation General Over the Entire Northwest.

LONG DROUTH FINALLY BROKEN

Downpour Results In Immense Benefit, Although Some Crops Are Too Far Advanced to Be Helped.

St. Paul, July 10.—Rains that attacked the drouth in all parts of the Northwest and gave many districts a thorough soaking brought messages of rejoicing from North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin.

A steady, drizzling rain was general throughout the Black Hills in Western South Dakota and did immense good to the range and to crops. A third of an inch was the precipitation at Mitchell, S. D., where a shower followed the steady downpour of the night. Up to now the moisture that fell in the last month amounted to only half an inch.

Madison and Brookings, also in the eastern part of the state, reported an all night rain that insures a fair grain crop, and the rain was continuing over Eastern South Dakota. Yankton, in the southeastern part of the state, and which was visited by no rain for a month, had its third drenching for the week, and more appears on the way. The drouth has been decisively routed. Aberdeen, in Northern South Dakota, reports hard rains east of Aberdeen as far as Mobridge and south to Mitchell. The precipitation in Aberdeen was .45 of an inch.

Light showers fell in North Dakota at Enderlin, Valley City, Kensal, Harvey, Kenmare, Portal, Comstock and Fargo; in Minnesota at Thief River Falls, Elbow Lake and Glenwood.

More Rain in Minnesota.

Southern Minnesota had more rain. Winona reported a refreshing thunder shower that broke the long drouth and gave precipitation of .25 of an inch. Showers have followed a heavy rain at Redwood Falls. Farmers expect good crops. The barley and rye harvest is in progress and early oats will be cut next week. Corn and wheat prospects are better than usual. Rain also fell in Pine county, Northern Minnesota, where towns have been in peril from forest fires, and great relief is felt. Crow Wing county had a heavy rain.

Northern Wisconsin, which with Eastern North Dakota, has shared the tribulations due to the long drouth, had good rains. At Eau Claire the precipitation in the last seventeen weeks has been seven inches less than the normal. The first rain that Hudson has had in three weeks fell and will help the wheat, corn and potato crops, though it is too late to benefit oats, barley and rye. New Richmond had an inch of rain, the first real fall in two months. Rain over Chippewa county continued all day. Cumberland, Wis., had a six hours' rain that brought final relief from the forest fires.

The sixty-day drouth in Iowa was broken by a fine rain, which is quite general in the northern and western parts of the state.

COAL LANDS ARE WITHDRAWN

President Signs Orders Affecting Millions of Acres.

Beverly, Mass., July 9.—Continuing his policy of practical conservation, President Taft signed orders withdrawing 35,073,164 acres of coal lands from the public domain in the states of North Dakota, South Dakota, Washington, Utah, Colorado and the territory of Arizona.

Of the total withdrawals 20,698,469 acres are new, while 14,374,695 acres are covered in confirmation and ratifications under the new law, approved June 25, of withdrawals made during the past four years by both President Roosevelt and President Taft.

GARMENT MAKERS STRIKE

Fifty Thousand Men and Women Out in New York City.

New York, July 9.—Fifty thousand garment and cloak makers, of which 8,000 are women, walked out at the call of the International Garment Workers' union, which demands an eight-hour day, an increase in wages and a guarantee that contractors shall stand behind sub-contractors for wage payments.

The fight thus far is purely local, but officers of the union said that if the employers attempted to sublet their work in other cities, notably Chicago, Philadelphia and Cleveland, the union would call a strike there also.

TRAIN HITS TROLLEY CAR

Three Persons Killed at Winnipeg Street Crossing.

THREE MAD WITH HEAT

Ten Others Die and Many Are Overcome in New York.

New York, July 11.—Sunday was the hottest day of the year in New York. Three persons went mad with the heat and ten others died. The list of prostrations was long, but not so heavy as Saturday.

The night had been suffocating, and with the first rays of sunlight the temperature began to climb again. At 12:30 p. m. it was 92 degrees, one degree hotter than Saturday's maximum.

Ten deaths and many prostrations occurred at Philadelphia as a result of the excessive heat. The humidity was 85 during the morning hours and the mean temperature for the day was 84. The maximum temperature was 93.

JUSTICE FULLER IS BURIED

Final Tribute to Dead Jurist at Chicago.

Chicago, July 9.—Last rites over the body of the late Chief Justice Fuller were performed here. Interment was at Graceland cemetery in a grave beside that of his wife.

The funeral party which arrived from the East followed the casket to St. James' church, under escort of a numerous local delegation. All courts were closed. Federal and state judges and representatives of the bar association attended the funeral. Flags were at half mast and at the hour of the services seventeen minute guns boomed a salute.

BARONESS DE LA ROCHE.

Noted Woman Aviator Fatally Injured in Fall From Biplane.

IN FALL WITH AEROPLANE

Baroness de la Roche, Woman Aviator, Fatally Injured.

Betheny Plain, Rheims, July 9.—Baroness de la Roche, the first French woman aeroplanist, was fatally injured here by falling from a height of fifty meters.

The baroness had flown around the field once at a height of eighty meters when suddenly in front of the applauding tribunes she appeared to become frightened and confused at the approach of two other aeroplanes. She started to descend, but while still fifty meters from the ground lost control of the machine.

The aeroplane turned over and fell like a log. The baroness' legs and arms were broken. Her mangled body was removed to the hospital, where she is dying.

MOB LYNCHES YOUTH

Execution at Newark, O., Follows Murder of Citizen.

Newark, O., July 9.—Carl Etherington, twenty-two years old, employed Thursday night by the State Anti-Saloon league as a blind tiger raider, was lynched here following a day of almost continuous rioting.

The heavy doors of the Licking county jail were battered down and Etherington was dragged from his cell. He was shot, kicked and bruised before the street was reached, and the finish followed quickly.

Etherington early in the evening confessed he had killed William Howard, proprietor of the Last Chance restaurant and former chief of police, in a scuffle during a raid of alleged "speak easies" and narrowly escaped lynching at that time.

When Etherington mounted the block, ready for the swing, he was asked to make a speech.

"I want to warn all you young fellows not to try to make a living the way I have done—by strike breaking and taking jobs like this," he said. "I should have worked, and I wouldn't be here now."

MANY CITIES BAR EXHIBITION

Sentiment Against Fight Pictures Is Spreading Rapidly.

Chicago, July 7.—Moving pictures of the Johnson-Jeffries fight will be prohibited in many of the larger cities of the country through fear of the renewal of the race bitterness, as well as a possible lowering of the moral tone of the people. This means a heavy loss to the syndicate which purchased the rights to reproduce the fight, paying Jeffries $66,666 and Johnson $50,000 It was said the promoters expected to "clean up" $1,000,000 in the next month.

Following the lead of Washington many cities have prohibited the exhibition of moving pictures of the fight. Among those which have already raised the bars are Cincinnati, Boston, Louisville, Norfolk, Va.; Harrisburg, Pa.; Milwaukee, Savannah, Ga.; Lexington, Ky.; Providence R. I., and Fort Worth, Tex. Similar action will probably be taken at once at Baltimore, St. Louis and Detroit.

ENDORSED AT THE POLLS

Conservatives Returned to Power in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, July 12.—The Roblin government of Manitoba and the government ownership of elevators succeeded at the polls, the Conservatives electing twenty-seven and the Liberals fifteen seats. All cabinet members had big majorities. In the last house the Liberals had but thirteen seats and the Conservatives twenty-eight.

The government operation of telephones was one of the questions at issue. The promised reductions in rates have not been made.

All the ministers of the cabinet were elected, Premier Roblin increasing his majority by over 100. Such familiar figures as Bernier, Chevrier, T. H. Johnson and Lawrence will again sit in the house.

A BUSINESS WOMAN

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

When coal oil was found in West Virginia among the few who held on to their land was the widow Turner.

When the widow Turner was left to care for herself she possessed sixty acres of sterile land, a wretched old cabin, a mule and a cow. She had always worked in the field with her husband. She was a large, bony woman, unable to read or write, and the very homeliest among a lot of homely women. No one predicted that she would marry again, and she had no encouraging thoughts herself. She lived alone, and all the farm work was done by her own hands.

When the oil excitement got started all the landowners around the widow Turner sold out. She alone held on. She was offered five times what her farm was considered worth, but she shook her head. As a matter of fact, she was frightened.

Then along came a tin peddler. She had dealt with him before and found him honest. She told him her troubles, and he said:

"Widow, I am going to talk plainly to you. You are as ignorant as a mule and as homely as a stump fence."

"I know it," was the answer.

"If things had run along as they were going you couldn't have found a man in the United States to marry you."

"I admit that."

"But now you can. You can not only find a husband, but money with him. Let me tell you what to do."

They had a long conversation, and the result of it was that when an offer for the farm was renewed next day it was accepted with a proviso. The widow demanded $50,000 in cash and a husband. It was acceded to at once. It would be very easy to find a man to marry her and run away afterward. Plenty of them could be hired for $2,000. But the widow wanted an acceptable husband. That was different. Thirty men were paraded before her, and she rejected every one. The capitalists had figured on a soft thing and got left. After two months' search and after fifty men had been brought forward one was found to fill the bill. He was no scrub. On the contrary, he was a broken down gentleman. It was like mating an eagle with a crow.

Yes, he would do, but there were details to be considered. He must be bound to certain things, and the buyer of the farm must guarantee him. He must be bound not to run away and not to apply for a divorce. He must be bound to live in the same house with her and not be absent over three days at any time without her written permission. He must teach her the common branches of education and rules of etiquette. He must take her to New York city and Niagara falls once in two years. If she wished to sign he must not be put out. Her money must be her own. There were about a dozen other things mentioned, and the broken down gentleman said he'd be hanged if he would. They had promised him $10,000, but he said it wasn't enough. He hung out until he was offered the same as the widow. They told him that a smart lawyer could pick a dozen loopholes in the contract.

But the widow wasn't through yet. They must allow her $10,000 for a lawyer's fee. They agreed, and she sent to Chicago for one of the leaders of the bar. Then came the guarantee. The guarantee of the buyer was not enough. The lawyer insisted that some one must guarantee him. This was done. Time had been wasted, and "gushers" were being struck all around them. The money was counted out, the marriage took place, and the next day the drillers were at work. The newly weds went to the nearest village to pass their honeymoon.

The broken down gentleman had gone into the thing to make a stake. He had a good mind for billiards, good clothes and good dinners, but not for legal matters. Within three days he ran away. The wife called upon the guarantors to return him. They had to hire a detective and hunt for a month. When he was brought back he was locked up for two weeks. He appealed to the law, but the law said that his wife had a right to take all reasonable precautions. He had bound himself to teach her certain things. He refused. She called upon his guarantors, and they forced him to do it. He had taught her the A B C's when he ran away again. Again he was brought back.

Although the work of drilling wells had begun at once, there were no results. They drilled here and there for more than a year, but not a pint of oil was had. That farm was just over the oil line somehow. Geologists said there ought to be a great lake of oil under it, but it didn't turn out that way. In buying and drilling more than half a million dollars was expended. At the end of a year the broken down ran away again. When his backers were called upon to return him they agreed to give the wife $5,000 to let them off the contract. The tin peddler came along and advised her to take it, and she did. She is still living on that little farm in the Buckeye State. an though her singing scares the cows fo miles around and she is not up on etiquette and has to spell out the big words, she has money to burn and is fairly happy. The tin peddler? Oh, his conscience rewarded him for the good deed done.

The Dead Soldier's Afterglow

By HELVIN BRAYTON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

The national guard were fighting a sham battle. The red were attacking the enemy's country, while the blue were defending it. Lieutenant Ned Wagstaff was standing behind the line of battle, the men, at parade rest, waiting orders. A staff officer rode up and said:

"This command has been annihilated."

The colonel turned to his men and told them that, having been annihilated, they could fight no more. Then he gave the order to stack arms and permission to do as they liked till retreat.

"Billy," said Wagstaff to Captain Drummond, "I want you to do something for me."

"What is it?"

"Go up to the house and tell Belle Harkaway that our regiment has been annihilated, that I've been killed and the jig's up all around."

"What for?"

"I want to see how she'll take it."

"She is certainly not so silly as to take it literally."

"She's pretty stupid."

"Stupid girls are most attractive to men—that is, if they are pretty—and Belle is very pretty—decidedly pretty."

"If you play your part well you can fool her. I'm curious to know if she'll mourn for me."

"All right; I'll try it on. Suppose she wants to see your dead body."

"I never thought of that. Perhaps I'd better lie dead on the battlefield. You can bring her to see the corpse. But first I want to know if you're going to give me away."

"No; I won't do that, though it would be a good joke to do so. I'll play the part for you as well as I can."

"And you'll tell me how she takes it?"

"No, but if she wants to see your corpse you can judge for yourself about that."

"All right. You'll find me under that big oak over there. So long."

Billy departed for the house, and Wagstaff went over to the oak, sprawled himself on the grass and, to kill time while waiting to be inspected for a dead man, lit a cigar. Men who fight sham battles need to get up a lot of Dutch courage. Ned had distinguished himself for bravery induced by several bracers during the fight; consequently he felt dopey and soon yielded to slumber. Suddenly he was awakened by a girl's voice:

"Where is he? Oh, tell me, where is he?"

Ned, recognizing the voice of the girl he loved and, realizing that soldiers are not usually killed with cigars in their mouths, let the half smoked weed fall. He felt it roll down his cheek, but where it landed he couldn't see. He lay stiff and stark.

"Here he is!" he heard Drummond say.

Ned looked sidewise between his lashes and saw Belle Harkaway hurrying toward him. He closed his eyes and lay with a peaceful expression on his face. Indeed, he put on a certain serenity which he had often practiced before a mirror and which he considered very becoming to him. Belle knelt beside him. He dared not open his eyes, but he knew she was there and very near him.

"Oh, Ned!" she moaned.

"He died a noble death," Billy put in solemnly.

"Dear, brave Ned! If I had only not treated you as I did. If you could but speak one word to me to tell me that you forgive me. Are you sure he is dead? There's color in his face."

"Oh, that's often the case with men shot in battle. They call it the soldier's afterglow."

This was very clever of Billy, seeing that the afterglow was produced by the bracers Ned had taken during the fight.

"Ned," moaned Belle, "speak to me!"

Ned didn't dare part his lips sufficiently to look at her, but he could hear her moaning over him.

"He makes a beautiful corpse," Billy remarked.

"Lovely! He must have been smoking when he was shot."

"What makes you think that?" asked Billy.

"Don't you see the cigar on his shoulder? Dear, brave Ned—coolly smoking in the face of danger."

"That was just like him," said Billy. "He was always doing that kind of thing. He cared nothing for danger."

"What were his last words?" asked Belle. "Did he say anything about me?"

"Yes. He said, 'Tell Belle Harkaway that my last thoughts, my last words, were of her.' "

"Oh, dear! If I could have been here to hold him in my arms when he died! Somehow I can't realize that the red color you call the soldier's afterglow isn't the blood of life. I'm going to pinch his cheek. It may bring him back to us."

She gave his cheek a terrific pinch. Ned winced, but stood the test.

"See!" cried Belle. "The afterglow—a lot of it!"

She pinched him again, this time so vigorously that he howled.

Opening his eyes, he looked into two of the merriest orbs that ever gazed on the corpse of a beloved object.

"Rats!" he said. "There's no use trying to be dead under a pinch like that."

"More afterglow!" she cried, clapping her hands with delight as a blush of shame covered his face.

IN SUPPORT OF BEVERIDGE

Former President Roosevelt to Speak in Indiana.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 8.—Albert J. Beveridge, United States senator from Indiana and one of the most prominent and consistent of the "progressive" Republicans, came down from Sagamore Hill with a promise from Theodore Roosevelt to deliver a campaign speech in his fight for reelection to the senate. Mr. Beveridge departed content and smiling, but he left it for the colonel to make announcement of the proposed campaign speech in the senator's behalf. And this is what Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Mr. Foulke and Mr. Swift came to Sagamore Hill and spent the night here. They came to request me to go to Indiana and speak in behalf of Senator Beveridge. I promised them that I would."

He added that he had agreed to make only one speech for the senator and as far as is now known he will make only one. The time and place for this speech have not been fixed.

Bunyan's Wicket Gate.

In the village of Elstow there is abundant material that is visibly associated with John Bunyan. The isolated church tower contains the very bells in the ringing of which Bunyan rejoiced and afterward trembled. Above all there must be mentioned the wicket gate which figures early in the story of "Pilgrim's Progress." The wicket gate of "Pilgrim's Progress" is commonly represented as a garden gate or a turnpike gate, but really the term denotes a small doorway cut out of a large door. Concealed behind a tree at the west end of Elstow church is just such a small doorway in the broad wooden surface of the great door. Through this lowly opening Bunyan must often have passed when a boy.—Harper's Weekly.

A Teacher In the Making.

She was a popular young normal student who had been to a party the night before, and as a consequence was "not prepared" in the geography class. The woman instructor, true to her method of drawing upon the general knowledge of a student rather than to permit a failure, after eliciting two or three inconsequential "stabs" from her fair but jaded disciple, asked for the products of China.

The victim brightened. "Tea," she asserted, preparing to sit down.

"Yes, and what else?" encouraged the instructor.

The young woman smiled with sweet hopelessness.

"Now you can mention others, I am sure. Just think about it."

"Tea," drawled the flutelike voice of the pretty girl, "and," puckering her forehead with an intellectual tour de force, "and laundry work."—Youth's Companion.

Quick Cure.

Once there was a man who made life miserable for all he met by eternally harping about his aches and pains.

He would discourse on the subject of his dyspepsia, and he would almost interrupt a religious service to tell of his rheumatic symptoms.

If he had a stitch in his side he had to pester his friends with it, and a headache helped him make everybody unhappy.

At last a bright young woman, to whom the man applied for sympathy, cured him of all his ailments.

When he was in the midst of a catalogue of his sufferings she said sweetly:

"Yes, it is strange how many of these things afflict a man as he begins to grow old."

That man never even had a symptom after that.—Wilbur D. Nesbit in Judge.

Went Back on His Authority.

Leslie Stephen's single meeting with Freeman, the historian, was in the nature of a collision. "I came in contact with him only once," he said. "He wrote a life of Alfred for the Dictionary of National Biography under my editorship, but declined to do more because we had a difference of opinion as to whether Athelstane should be spelled with an 'A.' That was, I confess, a question to which I was culpably indifferent, but I had taken competent advice, and my system (I forget what it was) had been elsewhere sanctioned by the great historian Stubbs. Now, as Freeman was never tired of asserting the infallibility of Stubbs, I innocently thought that I might take refuge behind so eminent an authority. The result was that for once Freeman blasphemed Stubbs and refused to cooperate any longer in an unscholarlike enterprise."

CRAZY FOR THREE DAYS

Fred Gove of the Steel Gang goes mad and wanders almost naked in brush from Monday morning until Wednesday evening.

Considerable excitement was created in Plummer the fore part of the week over the dissapearance of Fred Gove a member of the Steel Gang. Fred had been drinking some for several years and came up to Plummer from the city to get straightened out. He showed himself to be a bright intelligent workman, and an agreeable companion in every respect until Sunday when he began to show signs of dementia. Policeman Rose went to the camp that evening, and altho he found Fred talking rather loony and peeking thru the keyhole of the car looking for his parents, did not think his condition serious enough to warrant taking him into custodp, and left Fred in charge of his bed partner.

Fred became restless during the night, left the car with nothing but a shirt on and went to an engine telling the fierman that he wanted to get warm. He left there at 4 A. M to go to camp, but strayed into the brush and was not seen again until Wednesday evening.

The people of Plummer immediately began a vigorous search of the surrounding territory and sent a word to Edwin C. Gove, Fred's father a prominent notel man of 409 Ave. S. Minneapolis. Monday's search resulted in no sight or sign of the missing man. Tuesday morning Mr. Grove arrived and immediately engaged some special men to keep up a constant search. Even the united effort of these men aided by numerous citizens failed to located the man, who was all the time not more than three quarters of a mile from town.

Wednesday afternoon after all hope had been given up of e ven finding Fred alive, he appeared about seven o'clock with a blanket wrapped around him at the home of Pete Moorisette about three quarters of a mile out of town. Fred was quite national and after being fed and clothed was brought to town and to his anxious father. He was, indeed, a sorry looking specimen of humanity so far as externals were concernep. His body and legs were pretty well scratched up by snags and brush, and his feet were so swollen and sore that he could hardly walk. Considering that he had been without food and almost in the brush for three days, he come out of it very lucky. He appeared to be all right Wednesday evening and was able to talk and joke with the boys much the same as ever. His mind, however, is a blank as to how he spent his tsme in the woods. He left with his father Wednesday night for Minneapolis where will be carefully watched until he has fully recovered. It is that of many that is escapade will forever cure Fred of trifling with that demon drink. He still before him the brightest part of life and with his ability can still make his mark in the world. The best wishes for the Plummer people went with Fred on his homeward journey.

Mr. Edwin C. Grove expressly stated at this time that he wished to heartily thank each and every one of the men who se diligently searched, and took such a kind and sympathetic interest in himself and son during thier sad and tryin8 misfortune. The Plummer people will always be remembered by him as a people whose hearts are right.

Looking for Location

Chris Henter of the Henter Drug Company, Gardena North Dakota, was in town Wednesday looking over the prospects and advantages for buying a lot, building a store and putting in some line of merchandise. He left for the Cities Wednesday evening to acquire more information concerning the projected towns on the NEW SOO-LINE.

If our town is one of the coming towns on the new railroad, strangers ought to be told that fact from the time they arrive until the time they leave. This section oy the country is surely due for a great and rapid development, and the better the class of pusiness men and farmers we get here, the more boosting there will be done.

FRENCH POLICE ON WATCH

Keeping Lookout for Dr. Hawley H. Crippen.

Paris, July 19.—M. Lepine, prefect of police, has issued instructions to the police of France to watch for and arrest upon discovery Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen, the American who is wanted in London on the charge of having slain his wife, known in the theatrical world as Belle Elmore.

The French search for the fugitive has taken an original turn. The police here believe that Crippen is masquerading as a woman and the descriptions sent out include this probable disguise.

The authorities of Dieppe, Calais, Cherbourg and other coast towns have been warned especially to be on the alert as it is thought quite likely that if Crippen is not already in this country he will take advantage of the first opportunity to enter a port on the Continent.

SAVED BY HIS GUARD

Moros Attack American Official in the Philippines.

Manila, July 19.—Dean C. Worcester, American secretary of the interior for the Philippines, was set upon by renegade Moros on the island of Palawan ond escaped assassination only through the alertness of his bodyguard, who shot down the outlaws, killing three of them outright.

Secretary of Interior Worcester was touring the island, which is the most westerly of the larger of the Philippine group bounding the Sulu sea on the west, and was present at the installation of the new governor. In anticipation of his coming a band of Moros planned his death. Armed with bolos, carefully concealed, they laid a trap for the secretary, who suddenly found himself the object of a savage rush.

Captain Moynihan of the scouts was the first to recognize the hostile movement and, just in the nick of time, he ordered the scouts to fire. At the fusillade three Moros who led the attack dropped dead, while several others doubled up with more or less severe wounds. The rest of them took to their heels.

Belches Forth Column of Flames Hundreds of Feet High.

Seattle, Wash., July 19.—Mount Shishaldin, Alaska, on the eastern end of Unimak island, has lighted its gigantic torch again, according to news brought by the steamer Montara, which has arrived from Nome. A clear column of flames, hundreds of feet high, without smoke, blazed from the volcano's crater. Aside from a few Indian fishermen the only men on Unimak island are two lighthouse tenders at Scotch Gap.

Killing a Bull Without a Weapon.

Cayetano, a famous Spanish toreador, once was strolling across a meadow with a couple of friends when his attention was attracted by an old and infuriated bull which was galloping toward them with lowered head and erect tail. Cayetano had no weapon, not even a cane, but he seized a dust coat which one of his friends was carrying over his arm. As soon as the bull got close to them Cayetano bade his companions make their escape while he engaged the animal's attention. Using the coat as a capa, he drove the bull crazy with fury, stepping aside with the deftest agility at each of the animal's charges. In this manner he caused the bull to turn sharply in the midst of its onward rushes until finally an ominous crack was heard, and the bull fell in a heap, with its backbone broken by the sudden wrench given by the animal's abrupt swerve.

A Lincoln Anecdote.

Jaspar Alban Conant tells the following anecdote of Lincoln in the Metropolitan Magazine:

"One of the comical characters in Washington during the war was jolly old Isaac Newton, the Philadelphia Quaker whom Lincoln appointed commissioner of agriculture—a new office just created by congress. Newton, who tried and at the same time amused the president, had made his reputation on a dairy farm. Beyond this be knew little of agriculture.

"Hearing which, I could not refrain from asking Lincoln why he had appointed such an ignorant man to the office.

"'Because I think he's competent enough to attend to all the agriculture we will have till the war is ended,' was the answer."

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce my candidacy for the Republican nomination as a member of the house of representative from th 61st legislative district which comprises the counties of Beltrami, Clearwater and Red Lake. If nominated and elected I pledge myself to use all efforts to secure the redistricting of the state, a one mill tax for good roads, a liberal appropriation to advertise the recources of Minnesota, and a county option law. ## RAILROAD MEN OUT

Over Three Thousand Employes of the Grand Trunk Quit.

OTHER WORKMEN AFFECTED

Five Thousand Engaged in Shop Work Will Be Laid Off Temporarily as Result of Strike.

Montreal, July 19.—A strike of the conductors and trainmen of the Grand Trunk railway has begun, which, it is claimed, will tie up the entire system from Portland, Me., to Chicago.

Three thousand and five trainmen and conductors on the Grand Trunk and 850 on the Central Vermont, a subsidiary line, are affected directly by the strike. In addition, 5,000 men engaged in shop work will be temporarily laid off.

The Grand Trunk railway telegraphers will not strike with the trainmen and conductors, as had been promised. The word from the conference is that the wage dispute will be referred to arbitration with the understanding that both sides will accept the award.

In a statement made public after the strike went into effect President Hays said regarding the negotiations with the men over increased wages: "We have done the best we can, having regard to the interests of the shareholders and of the men themselves. We have offered substantial increases in wages. For instance, we give conductors between Montreal and Portland an increase from $110 to $135; between Montreal and Rockville from $90 to $140 a month; between Montreal and Toronto from $110 to $140, and baggagemen from $70 to $85 and brakemen from $55 and $60 to $80.

"On mileage rated conductors of through trips are to be raised from 2.90 to 3.36 cents a mile and brakemen from 1.90 to 2.25 cents.

"On the runs between Montreal and Ottawa conductors are raised from $110 to $140 a month, baggagemen from $75 to $85 and so on.

"When I put this to the men I said that if they did not think it satisfactory I was willing to go to the arbitration of a board of expert railway men as to whether or not the proposition was fair and would be willing to abide by their decision.

"But they refused to listen to this."

SETTLE WAGE CONTROVERSY

Railroad Officials and Employes Reach an Agreement.

Philadelphia, July 19.—General Manager W. H. Myers of the Pennsylvania railroad and the committees representing the 15,000 trainmen and conductors employed on the lines of the road east of Pittsburg agreed on a basis for the settlement of the wage controversy. Each side says it has gained all it had been contending for in the negotiations which have been in progress for the past six months and which culminated last week in the strike vote by the employes.

The proposition offered by the railroad officials and accepted by the men includes a minimum day of ten hours, as detailed in the New York Central award. On certain runs where the company's present rate is higher the rate will not be disturbed.

The classification of these exceptional runs and the question of overtime were left to be decided at conferences between the various members of the committees and the division superintendents of the lines which they represent.

It was further agreed that the men would be guaranteed twenty-six days a month.

GREAT FIRE AT PORTLAND

Two Men and Scores of Horses Are Cremated.

Portland, Ore., July 15.—An early morning fire in the west central portion of the city, just on the edge of the business section, resulted in the loss of at least two lives, the injury of several persons, the burning of 150 horses and a financial damage of about $300,000. The burned district covered approximately ten acres, but a large portion of this area was devoted to the athletic field of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club and, save for a magnificent grandstand capable of seating 5,000 people, was practically unimproved.

So far as known the dead are F. R. Price, foreman of the United Carriage company's stables, and a man whose name is supposed to be Prude.

The fire started in the old exposition building, an immense wooden structure. The sparks soon ignited other buildings, including several large apartment houses, several residences and a number of stores.

CRAZED NEGRO RUNS AMUCK

Slays Three, Wounds as Many Others and Kills Himself.

Tampa, Fla., July 17.—While crazed with drugs, Will Ellison, a negro, went on a rampage, killed three persons, badly wounded three others and then killed himself. His outbreak started in a church, where a protracted service was just ending. Entering with a shotgun over his arm, Ellison announced that he was going to send all sinners to their eternal homes.

CANNON STILL OUT FOR OFFICE

Willing to Again Be Speaker of the House.

WILL NOT SEEK THE POSITION

But Should the Republican Caucus Nominate Him He Would Be Willing to Serve—Henry Clay the Only Man Who Had a Longer Service as Speaker Than Uncle Joe.

Emporia, Kan., July 19.—Joseph G. Cannon will not take himself out of the race for speakership of the next house of representatives.

This he made plain near the conclusion of his speech at Emporia. He said he would abide by the will of the Republican caucus if the Republicans control the next congress, but that no "muck raking" magazines could make him say he would not be a candidate. In other words, he said, he would not make an effort to win the speakership, yet the emphasis with which he spoke made it plain that if the Republican caucus should nominate him, he would be willing to serve.

Speaker Cannon's remarks on the speakership were made just before he left the platform at Emporia to catch a train for Burlingame, where he makes his third political speech in the Kansas primary campaign. Speaker Cannon's utterances on the speakership follow verbatim:

"I am speaker and on March 4 next, I will have been speaker for eight years, a longer continuous term than any man ever served as speaker since the foundation of the government. There has been only one man who has had a longer service of speaker than I have had and there was an interim of four years in his service. That was Henry Clay, who in the aggregate served ten years as speaker.

Somebody Must Be the Scapegoat.

"Somebody has got to be the scapegoat through magazines and letters. Candidates for congress are asked, 'Will you pledge yourself not to vote for that old czar for speaker?'

"Oh, the scapegoat. This little 154 pounds of clay cannot bear many sins off into the wilderness. If my constituency is as kind to me as it has been for thirty-six years I will go back if God spares my life and be in the next congress, either in the majority or in the minority, and I would rather be there in a Republican minority, a real virile Republican minority, than to be one of an apparent majority that could not take account of stock and know from one day to the other whether it was the majority or the minority. They wanted me to pledge that I would not be a candidate for speaker if the Republicans have a majority of the next house.

"They will meet in caucus and select a candidate for speaker. I will be in that caucus and will vote for the man the caucus selects. I know of no crime I have committed that should bar me from entering a Republican caucus.

"I have been speaker eight years because my friends thought I could be most useful as a member of congress in that position. But, as long as God lets me live, the muck raking periodicals and the so called independent or progressive Republicans shall not make me say that I will not be a candidate for speaker any more than they shall make me say, if I am again elected to congress, that I will not vote when my name is called."

SETTLE WAGE CONTROVERSY

Railroad Officials and Employes Reach an Agreement.

Philadelphia, July 19.—General Manager W. H. Myers of the Pennsylvania railroad and the committees representing the 15,000 trainmen and conductors employed on the lines of the road east of Pittsburg agreed on a basis for the settlement of the wage controversy. Each side says it has gained all it had been contending for in the negotiations which have been in progress for the past six months and which culminated last week in the strike vote by the employes.

The proposition offered by the railroad officials and accepted by the men includes a minimum day of ten hours, as detailed in the New York Central award. On certain runs where the company's present rate is higher the rate will not be disturbed.

The classification of these exceptional runs and the question of overtime were left to be decided at conferences between the various members of the committees and the division superintendents of the lines which they represent.

It was further agreed that the men would be guaranteed twenty-six days a month.

Would Lift the Lid.

Washington, July 19.—Fred W. Zollman, agent of the Minnesota brewers, took up with Indian Commissioner Valentine the suggestion that the recent order making certain sections of the "Indian country" in Minnesota "dry" territory be lifted so far as Moorhead is concerned. Clay county, in which Moorhead is located, lies entirely within the prohibited territory.

A Mohammedan Festival.

Taboots is an Indian festival in connection with the celebration of the month of Moharram, which begins the year of the true Mohammedan. This festival commemorates the death of Prince Hossein, the grandson of Mohammed, who met his death in battle after ten days' fighting against King Omar. The word taboot, from which the festival takes its name, means literally a tomb, and it is always built in front of the homes of some rich and important Mohammedans and under a temporary shed built for this purpose. The taboots are made from thin bamboo strips covered with highly colored paper, and it is always decorated with isinglass, gold and silver paper, glass balls and much red and green paint. On the ninth day of the festival of Taboots the taboots are carried in a possession through the streets of the various cities in India. On the tenth day all the taboots are thrown into some river, and thus ends the Mohammedan festival of Taboots.—Boston Herald.

Primitive Fire Fighters.

As late as the end of the sixteenth century in London the sole method of extinguishing fires was by means of contrivances known as "hand squirts." These were usually made of brass, with a carrying capacity ranging from two to four quarts of water. The two quart "squirts" were two and a half feet in length, one and a half inches in diameter at their largest part and but half an inch at the nozzle. On each side were handles, and three men were required to manipulate a "squirt." One man on each side grasped the handle in one hand and the nozzle in the other, while the third man worked the piston or plunger, drawing it out while the nozzle was immersed in a supply of water which filled the cylinder. The bearers then elevated the nozzle, when the other pushed in the plunger, the skill of the former being employed in directing the stream of water upon the fire. Such primitive contrivances are said to have been used during the great fire of 1666.

IS ON THE FENCE

Roosevelt Has Not Taken Sides With Either Faction.

DENIES SHOWING FAVORITISM

Emphatically Declares His Position Is Neutral as Regards Stalwarts and Progressives.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 14.—Theodore Roosevelt said with emphasis that he has taken no stand as yet in favor of either the progressives or the regulars in the Republican party, and he desires to correct any impression that he is showing favoritism. Of the situation within the party in New York state he said that he saw only harmony ahead.

"I want you to make it clear," he said to interviewers, "that I am seeing both sides. I wish you would make that emphatic. My main interest is in the state, but on national issues I want to see both regulars and insurgents. I want to see Democrats as well as Republicans."

"But you do not want to see Democrats win?" he was asked.

"Not if the Republicans do the right thing," replied the colonel.

Timothy L. Woodruff, chairman of the New York State Republican committee and a stanch organization man, was in the house as Colonel Roosevelt explained his attitude. So was Representative Charles N. Fowler of New Jersey, who is a first to last progressive. During the day Colonel Roosevelt had talked with them both, and apparently with equal affability.

Talked Politics With All Three.

Governor Hughes had departed earlier in the day. Colonel Roosevelt said that he had talked politics with all three and that he had gained about the same impression from Mr. Woodruff as he had obtained Tuesday from James W. Wadsworth, Jr., speaker of the assembly.

Mr. Wadsworth made it clear that, so far as it lay within his power, there would be no surrender on the part of the organization in favor of a direct nomination bill such as Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Hughes urged in vain. For his part Mr. Woodruff said that he was glad that Colonel Roosevelt was active in politics.

"You know the insurgents had cold feet when I came back from abroad," said the colonel, "because the first four men with whom I conferred were Senator Lodge, Secretary Meyer, Secretary Wilson and Nick Longworth.

"I had similar experiences when I was in the White House. When J. Pierpont Morgan came to see me they said I had sold out to Wall street and when Samuel Gompers came they said I was going to hoist the red flag.

"But," he added, "I didn't do either."

COMMISSION TAKES ACTION

Suspends the Rate Advances Recently Made by Railroads.

Washington, July 14.—The interstate commerce commission has determined to suspend recent general advances made by the railways in their freight rates. The tariffs suspended, in accordance with the policy decided upon by the commission for the most part are those recently filed by the Western Trunk Line association and by the carriers, although some of the tariffs against which questions were raised were filed by individual roads in other territories.

By arrangement with the president and with the commission the railways agreed to supplement their original advanced tariffs, which were to have become effective about July 1, with the tariffs to become effective August 1.

This postponement of the effective date of the proposed rates was for the purpose of enabling the commission thoroughly to examine its authority under the new railroad law. The understanding, at the time the agreement was reached, was that such advances as were general in character and affected large interests should be suspended pending an inquiry into the reasonableness of the increases.

The vote taken by the commission was rather on a line of policy to be pursued by the body as to suspension than upon specific tariffs. Now that the policy of the commission has been determined it will be automatically applicable, in a sense, to such tariffs as fall within its purview.

Mythical Horses.

Pegasus ("born near the source of the ocean") was the winged horse of Apollo and the Muses. Bellerophon rode this animal when he charged the Chimera.

Sleipnir ("the black horse of Odin") had eight legs and could carry his master on sea as well as land. This animal is believed to typify the wind, which blows from eight different points.

Al Borak ("the lightning") was the horse commissioned by Gabriel to carry Mohammed to the seventh heaven. He had a human face and the wings of an eagle. Every step he took was equal to the farthest range of human vision.

According to Thessalian legend, the first horse was miraculously brought forth by Neptune striking a rock with his trident.

A Startling Comparison.

In silent absorption they consumed delicious cherry pie.

"James," said the hostess to the butler, "save all the cherry stones, please. Wash and dry them and put them on a shelf in the attic."

"Why," a guest inquired, "do you save cherry stones?"

"You never saw them burn," said the hostess, "or you wouldn't ask that question. All winter long I keep a copper jar of them on the drawing room hearth. As the fire burns up I stoop and throw a handful of the cherry stones in the blaze. The effect is wonderful. The stones crackle and send forth delicate green flames, and puffs of exquisite odor, an odor as sweet as cherry blossoms, float through the room."

"There's sandalwood," began another guest.

"Oh," said the hostess, "I use sandalwood, too, but it compares to cherry stones in fragrance as limburger cheese compares to heliotrope."—Minneapolis Journal.

An Embarrassing Question.

Mrs. Monroe was carefully explaining to her small daughter Margaret what she must do that evening. Company would be there for dinner, and Margaret was going to be allowed the privilege of sitting at the table. She listened very attentively and faithfully promised to obey. During the first part of the meal she never spoke, but remained quiet and thoughtful, but it seemed a long time to her before the dessert came. Finally a large dish was placed near her of which the contents looked most appetizing. For some time she gazed at it, and when no longer able to resist the temptation she reached over and put her dainty finger deep into the jelly and cream, then licked her finger and continued to smack her lips with great satisfaction. Before the mortified mother could say anything Margaret remarked:

"Say, mamma, is this the jelly which the cat licked the cream off of and you said it didn't matter, there was more cream?"—Los Angeles Times.

Sacred Nuts of Japan.

Although well known to travelers and collectors of curiosities, the horn nut, or "sacred nut," of Japan was almost wholly unknown to fruit and nut dealers in this country prior to 1888, when a New York commission merchant received the first large consignment. They are called "sacred nuts" because used in certain forms of Japanese worship, where they are placed on the altar and ignited. Being very rich in oil, they burn with a hot, bluish flame and give off a peculiar odor, the fumes being supposed to rise as an acceptable incense to the gods. They grow under water and have a leaf like an American lily, the form of the nut itself being an almost exact counterpart of an Asian buffalo's head, drooping horns and all. In the raw state they are hard and tasteless, but when cooked the flavor resembles that of boiled chestnuts. They are said to retain their edible qualities for upward of twenty years.

The Decoy.

"I notice," said the man to the parson, "that, although I am in the front pew, there is always a five dollar bill on the collection plate when it comes to me. Is that the contribution of the man who takes up the collection?"

"Not at all," replied the parson, who believed in business methods. "That's our decoy."—Detroit Free Press.

The Mammoth Cave Rat.

The cavern rat found in the Mammoth cave is of a soft bluish color, with white neck and feet. It has enormous eyes, black as night, but quite unprovided with an iris. These eyes are perfectly insensible to light, and when the experiment has been made of catching a cavern rat and turning it loose in bright sunlight it blunders about, striking itself against everything, is unable to provide itself with food and finally falls down and dies. In its native depths, however, it is able to lead a comfortable enough existence, as its enormously long whiskers are so extremely sensitive that they enable it to find its way rapidly through the darkness. The principal food of the cavern rat consists of a kind of large cricket of a pale yellow color and, like most other cave dwellers, itself perfectly blind.

The Lilies.

Two thousand years ago it was supposed that water lilies closed their flowers at night and retreated far under water, to emerge again at sunrise. This was Pliny's view, and it was not impeached until the English botanist John Ray in 1688 first doubted its veracity. The great lily of Zanzibar, one of the grandest of the lily family, opens its flowers, ten inches wide, between 11 in the morning and 5 in the afternoon. They are of the richest royal blue, with from 150 to 200 golden stamens in the center, and they remain open four or five days. It is not generally known that there are lilies that have nocturnal habits—night bloomers as well as day bloomers. They are very punctual timekeepers, too, opening and closing with commendable regularity.

Eating For the Love of It.

Pawlow has given epicureanism in eating strong scientific support, and many of Horace Fletcher's ideas find orthodox justification. The first rule of dietetic conduct, according to Fletcher, is to eat only when one is hungry and to eat only the things from which one anticipates enjoyment. He also teaches that one must eat in the way that gives the greatest sensual pleasure—that is, by thorough chewing and tasting; also serenity of mind, pleasant surroundings at a meal, congenial friends, pleasurable conversation—in fact, everything that adds to enjoyment aids digestion. In other words, the process of digestion furnishes a beautiful illustration of the influence of mind upon matter. The inspiring stimulus is not mechanical, but psychic. The preliminary essential to the orderly assimilation of food is the keen desire for it.—McClure's Magazine.

Strange Fishing Matches.

In the olden time in England lords and ladies sometimes invented queer amusements. They were always on the lookout for some novelty, and one of the strangest they discovered was fishing by a goose. A line with a baited hook attached having been fastened to the goose, tied to its leg, she was flung into the water from the boat in which were all the gay lords and ladies. Then, when a pike caught the bait, she was sport indeed, a royal battle between bird and fish, and all the time, between the loud splashings, wheelings and flounderings, the onlookers in the boat giving vent to their feelings in cheers, handclappings and handkerchief waving. But the goose was usually the victor and ended the struggle by landing its prisoner on the shore, where its quack-quack as it cleared itself from the line and waddled away ended the scene. The lake of Monteith, in the southwest of Perthshire, was often the scene of such angling matches.

The Soldier Ant.

The lion is the king of beasts, but all of his magnificent strength and ferocity would avail him nothing when he faced a mere ant. But this ant is not the usual kind which peacefully goes about its domestic duties day by day. It is the terrible driver or soldier ant, said to be the most invincible creature in the world. Against these tiny enemies no man or band of men, no lion or tiger, not even a herd of elephants, can do anything but hurriedly get out of the way. Among the Barotse natives a favorite form of capital punishment is to coat the victim with grease and throw him before the advancing army of soldier ants. The quickness with which the poor wretch is dispatched is marvelous when it is considered that each ant can do nothing more than merely tear out a small particle of flesh and carry it off. Yet in a surprisingly short time the writhing victim will have been changed into a skeleton.

Good and Evil.

Nothing is truly good to a man which does not make him just, temperate, courageous and free, and nothing can be evil to a man which does not give him the contrary disposition.—Marcus Aurelius.

Hypnotism and Marriage.

PROGRESS ON NEW ROAD

Twenty Miles Laid of the Thirty Five

By Saturday evening there will have been laid about twenty miles of steel on the Plummer end of the new Soo Line railroad. There will be thirty five miles of steel laid from this end, after which the crews working here will be taken to Ladysmith, Wisconsin.

There is a crew of one hundred at the front and work is running smoothly. Two miles of steel can be laid in a day but usually only a half day is devoted to that, which brings the average below two miles. They are cutting thru the grades and bridging the low places with ties. There has been no gravel hauled, but a pit a mile out of town will be opened in a week.

To put down two miles of track it requires six carloads of 33-foot rails, 107 to the car, and sixteen carloads of ties, averaging 400 to the car. The ties are loaded in boxcars in Mich. and are transfered by hand to flatcars on arriving here. The steel is loaded in cattle cars at Chicago and unloaded here by hand on to flatcars. The steel men get $1.75 per day. The tie "buckers" get $1.25 per hundred, some of them making as high as $10 a day.

The telegraph force have started setting poles and will soon be up with the road crew.

Oakley is the first town on the new line. It is ten miles out and is situ-high and dry in a good place for building purposes. There are no stores completed as yet but a hardwarestore and lumber yard are in construction. It is reported that the sale of lots is slow on account of the high price asked for them.

New Well

The well digging crew of S. Swanson, Minneapolis, are here this week putting down a new well for the Soo. The old well was only a hand dug cistern and peayed out on account of dry weather ane the heavy drain of water by the working trains. A sufficient flow of water is expected at 110 feet. The cre will go orom here to Mankato where they will put down a 1000 foot well for the city water works.

TWENTY MILE DITCH

A. Lindquist, O. Zaiser and K. O. Gigstad passed thru here Thursday on their way to Red Lake Falls to attend a hearing on ditch no. 50 east of Thief River. They have been appraising a projected ditch which o have it's source in east Hickory. It will pass west thru Hickory, Deerpark and a part of Mayfield where it will strike the Clearwater. The ditch will lie between and parllel the Clearwater and Red Lak rivers, turning south in Mayfield to reach the former. This ditch will open for paying cultivation a large and fertile section of the county. The land is quite dry this summer. But without a good outlet for water, the crops will drown every year to a great extent.

Equality Echoes

Everybody is busy making hay.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Green visited at Henry Compton's Sunday.

J. J. Donahue is building an addition to his house in the way of a kitchen.

The Young People's Society will meet, Sunday July 31st., at the home of Mrs. Con Short.

The crops are looking better since the rain last Saturday, and farmers look satisfied.

The dance, given at the home of August Lillo in Deerpark township, was well attended by the young peop from this side. Everybody present reports a very good time.

Germand Larson had the misfortune to cut the leg off a valuable horse last week. While mowing hay the team became frightened and ran away. One horse in some way got his leg caught in the sickle bar and was so badly cut that he had to be killed.

WEAN THE COLT NOW

Forest Henry, one of the farmers Insitute workers in Minnesota, and a succesful farmer, says that his experience teaches that the time to wean the colt, even if not more than three months old, is before going into the harvest field with the mare. He teaches his colts to drink skim milk and to eat oats with the mare before weaning. But in feeding skim milk caution is used on Mr. Henry's farm at first, and the amount of milk is limited to two or tree quarts a day. After a few days the amount is increased at each feeding time. Oats and wheat bran are fed the colts quite freely. Second crop clover, free from mold is excellent hay for colts. Provide plenty of exercise with access to shelter. Darkening the stall during fly time thru the day and turning the colts out at night is a good plan to follow. When the flies are gone and cold weather approaches, reverse the scheme by sheltering at night and giving exercise through the day.

HOT WEATHER DON'TS

Dr. H. O. Collins, of the city hospital, Minneapolis, gives a series of "don'ts" for the unusually hot weather now prevailing. They are:

Don't eat to much meat, fat or sugar.

Don't work during the heat of the day if possible to avoid it; do your heaviest work in the early moring or in the evening.

Don't eat heavy or indigestable foods.

Don't cool of too suddenly, or indulge in large quantities of iced drinks.

Don't sleep in poorly ventilated rooms.

Don't go in swiming while overheated or take cold shower baths until cooled off.

Don't drink whiskey, beer, wine or other alcholic stimulants.

Don't worry over the heat, take it easy and you won't get so hot.

Don't try to do everything at once, or hurry over anything, it won't poy in the long run, even tho seemingly important at the time.

Don't eat to much.

Don't go without the proper amount of sleep.

Don't walk any distance in the sun without a head covering.

Heaven often smites in mercy, even when the blow is severest.—Baillie

TO BOOM THE STOCK MARKET

Purpose of Increase in Cotton Tariff Schedules.

BRISTOW BLAMES ALDRICH

Kansas Senator Says That the Rhode Island Man Insisted Upon Increased Cotton Duties, When Mill Owners and Manufacturers Testified They Were Not Needed.

Topeka, Kan., July 26.—In an address here United States Senator Joseph L. Bristow declared that United States Senator Aldrich forced an increase in the cotton tariff schedules when the cotton manufacturers in this country were not asking for it; Senator Bristow charged that the increases were made for the purpose of booming the stock market.

"It is interesting to know," declared Senator Bristow, "why Mr. Aldrich insisted upon increased cotton duties when the mill owners and manufacturers testified in the hearings before the ways and means committee that they were not needed. But an examination of the stock issues for the United States for the year 1909 furnished the reason.

"These increases were not made for the protection of any legitimate manufacturing enterprise in the United States, but to boom the stock market. Last year there were issued $90,000,000 additional cotton and woolen stocks, $64,000,000 that had been previously authorized but not issued and $26,000,000 of new stocks.

"How much of this stock represented actual investment I am not advised, but under the impression that these increased duties on cotton goods and maintenance of the excessive duty on woolens would give at least a temporary impetus to the business these stocks found a market.

In the Interests of Gamblers.

"So these increases, therefore, driven through by Mr. Aldrich, were in the interests of the stock gamblers and speculators and not in interests of legitimate manufacturing enterprises.

"The duty on cotton goods valued at more than 7 cents per square yard was increased on an average of 20 to 25 per cent in the face of the testimony of H. P. Lippitt, representative of the Cotton Manufacturers' association of New England, before the ways and means committee, that the cotton manufacturers did not want any increased schedules."

Continuing, Senator Bristow said:

"This method of tariff legislation is almost as reprehensible as the increase in the duties on lead and rubber.

"The woolen schedules, declared indefensible by President Taft in his celebrated Winona speech, carried on the ordinary woolen fabrics of women's dress goods duties ranging from 115 to 145 per cent; on woolen blankets from 118 to 165 per cent and on other woolen clothes and fabrics used by every family duties usually as extravagant. No attempt was made to ascertain the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad on these fabrics, but imperative demand was made by Senator Aldrich that the woolen schedule be not touched, declaring it to be the keystone of the protective arch."

GOT THE WRONG IDEA.

Exchange: We heard a young man remark the other day "that the world owes me a living." It is hoped for that young man's good that he will get the notion out of his head. It is a mistake, a grave mistake. He never entertained a more foolish idea nor one which will bring him a smaller measure of respect. The world owes th young man nothing but instead he owes the world and society an active noble manhood, a steady, honest energy which will enable him to associate with decent men and women in a true nameless character that will make him and his friendship valuable and his preseaces and companionship desired. The truly intelligent activity, and this young man should contribute to society's happiness and welfare the grace which comes thru study, toil and honesty.

Albert Berg,
Spooner, Minnesota.

The Minnesota Supreme Court in an opinion written by Justice O'-Brien, has sustained the validity of the law passed by the last session of the legislature, requireing all persons buying milk or cream, for the manufacture of butter or cheese to take out a state license. This means approximately 1800 buyers must pay a fee of $1.00 forthwith or be subject to prosecution for violation of the law. The statute went into effect January 1st, and at that time about 1200 persons in the state took the examination prescribed by the dairy and food commission. R. E. Cobb, a Saint Paul dealer, objected to the statute on the ground that it was unwarranted interference with business and hence unconstitutional, and went into the courts with the case. When the action was taken, Andrew French, Dairy and Food Commissioner, stopped the collection of fees for licenses, pending a decision of the case. Mr. Cobb won in the lower courts but the state appealed to the Supreme court and has just won a decision. Notices will be sent out at once to all persons who passed the required examination that they may now get their licenses on paying of the fee. A warning will be issued to all others buying milk and cream for manufactureing purposes, that they must conform to the statute. One dollar pays for a two year license. —Ex.

Cardinal Gibbons Congratulated on Reaching Seventy-sixth Year.

Baltimore, July 24.—Cardinal Gibbons celebrated the seventy-sixth anniversary of his birth. He received many letters and telegrams of congratulation from men and women in all walks of life in this country and from Rome.

The only American cardinal was born in Baltimore July 23, 1834, and with the exception of a few years has spent his entire life here. He enjoys good health, although somewhat feeble, and continues to perform the active duties of his office. During the past few months he has confirmed over 800 persons in the different parts of the archdiocese.

On June 30, next year, the venerable cardinal will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood at Union Mills, Md.

WILL CONTINUE FIGHT

Grand Trunk Refuses to Arbitrate With Strikers.

Montreal, July 26.—Solution of the Grand Trunk strike problem is now in sight, according to the company's officials. It neither includes, they say, arbitration nor any further negotiations with the 5,000 conductors and trainmen who struck a week ago for a wage scale higher than the 25 per cent increase awarded by the board of conciliation. The only essential yet to be provided for in the situation, from the company's point of view, as set forth in the message sent by President Hays to Mackenzie King, minister of labor, is adequate protection of the company's property and employes, especially those who have taken the place of the strikers.

"While we were desirous of arbitration," says President Hays, "time for such action has been passed."

The strike leaders, on the other hand, expressed the utmost confidence in the steadfastness of their ranks and their ability to force the railroad to terms by an irremediable freight paralysis.

Grand Jury Returns True Bill on Criminal Libel Charge.

Des Moines, July 21.—Governor B. F. Carroll has been indicted by the Polk county grand jury on the charge of criminal libel.

The prosecuting witness is John Cownie, former member of the state board of control, whose resignation the governor demanded as a result of an investigation of affairs at the state industrial school for girls. At the time Cownie resigned Governor Carroll published a statement in the Des Moines Capital which Cownie declares was libelous.

The indictment has created a sensation and may have important bearing upon the state campaign.

MAYOR KILLED BY A BOMB

Executive of Little Virginia Town Assassinated.

Ridgeway, Va., July 26.—Mayor A. H. Bousman was assassinated by a dynamite bomb, which was thrown from the street under a hammock in which he was lying. He died an hour after the explosion. No clue to the identity of the murderer or the cause of the crime has been found.

Chicago to Bar Fight Films.

Chicago, July 26.—Chief of Police Steward announced in effect that the Johnson-Jeffries fight pictures will not be allowed to be exhibited in Chicago. He said he would issue an order prohibiting the exhibition of any pictures of any act illegal in Illinois. As prize-fighting is not permitted in this state the Reno films are said to come under the ban.

RAIN CHECKS FIRES

Damage Is Immense in the Pacific Northwest.

RAINY RIVER APPEARS SAFE

Ontario Town May Escape Destruction, but Loss In That Vicinity Is Very Heavy.

Portland, Ore., July 24.—Showers during the past fifty-six hours have done much to check the disastrous progress of the great forest fires which have been sweeping through the forests of the Pacific Northwest and British Columbia. Despite the downpour, however, several big fires continue to burn in Idaho and British Columbia and a few smaller ones in Montana, Washington, Idaho and Oregon.

A conservative estimate made by men conversant with the situation places the damage at $4,500,000, with a strong possibility that it will go higher when full reports are made. Some lumbermen state the damage will reach $6,000,000.

The devastation wrought by the fires during the past week has been terrific. Two towns, Whitewater and Ryan, Wash., were wiped off the map. Thirteen persons, including a woman and child, were burned to death. More than 400 persons lost their homes and stretches of country once heavily covered with millions of feet of choice timber have been converted into a desolate waste of smoking ashes.

RAINS SAVE RAINY RIVER

Downpour Checks Fires Threatening Canadian Town.

Winnipeg, July 24.—The latest report made to the Canadian Northern railroad officials from the Rainy River fire threatened district is that a strong southeast wind is blowing the fire away from the town. It is also raining quite hard. The people of the town now believe that all danger is past.

Nearly 1,000 feet of hose was dispatched by express to Rainy River and all the available engines of the Canadian Northern railroad were sent to be ready in case the rolling stock of the railway should have to be moved.

To the north of Devlin and Crozier the flames cut a wide swath and hardly a stick of green timber can be seen. The loss will be heavy both to the settlers and to the government. It is certainly the worst calamity in years and a large number of settlers will be homeless and almost penniless.

Heavy Rain in Wisconsin.

Merrill, Wis., July 24.—Forest fires are being checked by a heavy rain. All the 400 homeless of the fire swept town of Heinemann are cared for. Bloomville and Gleason have been saved. It is hoped that the fires will be entirely quenched within twenty-four hours. It is estimated that twenty-five square miles have been burned over in the section just north of here.

Washington Fires Under Control.

Seattle, July 24.—All of the forest fires burning in various parts of Northwestern Washington were reported under control by the Washington Forest Fire association. Although little rain fell in King county a heavy downpour checked fires in Whatcom and Skagit counties.

FAMOUS PORTRAIT IS STOLEN

Paris, July 24.—The Cri de Paris states that Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece, "Mona Lisa," the most famous portrait in the world, was stolen from the Louvre one night about a month ago, through the complicity of a high official of the museum.

A copy of the painting was put in place of the original, the report states, and the genuine painting is now in New York.

The paper says a New York millionaire collector, whose initials are J. K. W., has the original. An offer of $5,000,000 for the painting, made by the British government, had been refused.

ABOUT ONE HUNDRED DEAD

Many Times That Number Injured in Italian Hurricane.

Milan, July 26.—Rescuers are still taking victims from the wreckage caused by last Saturday's hurricane that swept Northern Italy.

It is now estimated that 100 persons perished and that more than 500 received serious injuries. A number of smaller cities and villages were almost obliterated. The survivors are begging for food and clothing. Hundreds are homeless. The government is preparing to render aid.

Officer Kills Five Negroes.

Elliott, Miss., July 23.—Five negroes were killed and two others were mortally wounded by Deputy Sheriff Sid Cauley of this county, when the negroes, whom he was trying to place under arrest, advanced on him with pitchforks and other weapons.

Beginning of the Germ Theory.

Agostino Bassi, a country doctor in the north of Italy, early in the last century was the starter of the germ theory of disease. At that time a peculiar disease was killing the silkworms, bringing ruin to the whole silk country of Italy. Bassi, by the microscope, discovered the germ which is the cause of the disease. The germ later was named Botritis bassiana. Bassi believed and stated that human diseases were also caused by germs. Bassi's work was sneered at and pooh-poohed by his fellow men and physicians, and he failed to make a lasting impression, thereby losing great glory for Italia.—New York Press.

The Turkish Soldier's Fatalism.

The lethargy of mind which is the mental habit of the Turkish soldier—the personal expression of fatalism—is a most valuable quality in its way, for it means that its possessor is always cool and collected, grumbles little and has marvelous endurance. It is alien to all forms of panic, just as it is alien to a conspicuous elan. If the Turkish soldier never goes very fast, he never goes very slow. Except by the best trained or most dashing troops he is bad to beat.—London Spectator.

The Ever Active Brain.

The question, "Does the brain ever rest?" would seem to be answerable only in the negative. Unconscious cerebration appears to be a necessary concomitant of the powers of intellect, and during sleep, whether we remember it or not, we are always dreaming. Of course, during waking time we are perpetually thinking, thinking, thinking—not always logically and deliberately, but, all the same, thinking. Dream is the thought of the sleep time, when reason is out of the game, and the fancy, or imagination, has the reins, with nothing to hold her back. We take many a trip under her guidance that we are unable to recall when she has resigned the reins into the hands of reason. Awake or asleep, we are always busy. The mind never rests.—New York American.

Did Her Best.

"We're always careful about these contiguous diseases," said Mrs. Lapsling. "When Johnny had got well of the measles we bought some sulphur candles and disconcerted the house from top to bottom."—Chicago Tribune.

An Advantage.

"So you prefer servants who speak English imperfectly?"

"Yes," replied the housewife. "If I don't understand what they say I am not obliged to dismiss them so frequently."—Exchange.

Assyrian Seals.

The ancient Assyrians nearly 6,000 years ago put in moist clay their seals, engraved in intaglio upon precious stones, on chests and doors, in order to prevent their being opened. There were no locks or keys in those days. If they wished to send a private letter they would often seal it with a hippogriff, which fabulous winged horse was regarded as the emblem of secrecy. Centuries later the Greeks and Romans adopted similar devices for the same purpose.

LAKE PILOT KILLS ENGINEER

Tragedy Occurs in a Northern Minnesota Town.

MURDERER SOON CAPTURED

Took to the Woods With His Rifle After Firing Fatal Shot, but Made No Resistance When Posse Found Him—Slayer Claims Victim Was Making a White Slave Out of His Daughter.

Walker, Minn., July 26.—Edward Lucia, a steamboat pilot on Leech lake, shot and killed James Boardwell, engineer at the Leech Lake Lumber company's sawmill, with a rifle, the shot taking effect in Boardwell's forehead, death being instantaneous. Lucia says Boardwell and his stepson, Earl Hover, were making a white slave of his sixteen-year-old daughter, Cora.

Arriving at the tent where Boardwell and the boy were together with Mrs. Boardwell, Lucia opened up on the man, firing three shots, and then took to the woods back of the premises. The village was at once aroused, and men with guns organized themselves as a posse and commenced a search of the woods for Lucia, who was found after half an hour by Robert Block of St. Paul. Block took the gun away from Lucia and the man went peaceably to the county jail, where he is now in custody. The shooting was evidently premeditated, as Lucia went to the place with a gun and a woman heard him remark that he was going to shoot both the man and his stepson.

Lucia's daughter had been staying at the Boardwell home for some time, and her father had had words with Boardwell on prior occasions because she remained at the latter's home. The girl is exceedingly good looking and has a tinge of Indian blood in her veins, her mother being a halfbreed. She has always borne a good reputation. Boardwell was about forty-two years of age, and Lucia is sixty-four.

Bill Collector Kills Debtor During Quarrel.

Billings, Mont., July 26.—Ward Huz of Huz-Yates Implement company, one of the most prominent business men of this city, was shot and instantly killed here by William Denton, a local liveryman.

Denton, it is said, had endeavored to collect a bill for $1 from Huz and a dispute arose. Huz was shot twice, one bullet penetrating one of his lungs. Denton made an effort to escape, but was captured by a posse about four miles from the city. Feeling against the alleged murderer is high, but there is no talk of lynching. Huz was prominent in Elk and Masonic circles.

WORTH OVER HALF A MILLION

Negotiable Bonds Taken by New York Bank Cashier.

New York, July 26.—"Wanted—Erwin Wider, about thirty-two years old, five feet five inches in height. Weighs about 135 pounds, swarthy of complexion, with a small black moustache curled at the ends. Wears rimless nose glasses, talks with a German accent and is timid in address."

Such is the general alarm sent out by the police for the missing cashier of the Russo-Chinese bank.

When the bank first made public the fact that its strong box was short the amount was given as $80,000, all in negotiable bonds, a list of which was furnished. Later the amount suddenly jumped to $600,000, of which the additional $520,000 is said to be in stocks partly owned by the bank and partly by its customers.

No positive statement has been made yet as to where these stock certificates now are, or with what intent they were stolen. No list of the certificates or the owners in whose names they stand on the books of the companies by which they were issued is available.

PUTS ACID IN HER EYE

South Dakota Woman Suffers From Mistake in Bottle.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 26.—Mrs. John Dukek of Wentworth had a distressing experience, mistaking a bottle of carbolic acid for a bottle of rosewater, which she had been using for an affected eye. Reaching to a dresser, she secured what she believed to be the bottle containing the rosewater. Instead the bottle she grasped was one containing carbolic acid. Pouring a quantity into her eye cup, she tipped her head back and poured the burning liquid into her eye. She suffered terribly, but retained presence of mind enough to as quickly as possible wash out the burning liquid with water and then apply alcohol. Her promptness alone saved the eye from complete destruction, and as it was the eye was badly injured, but it is believed it will be saved.

Scotland Yard Inspector Hurrying to Canada.

London, July 24.—Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard, who has been in charge of the search for Dr. H. H. Crippen, murderer of his wife, Belle Elmore, left hurriedly for Canada after admitting that information had been received which indicated that an important clue had been found there as to the whereabouts of the missing man.

Inspector Dew's hurried departure for Canada is explained by the Evening News as being due to the receipt of a wireless message at Liverpool. The message, which came from a vessel in midocean, declared that two passengers greatly resembling Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve are on board bound for Canada.

EXPLOSION KILLS NINE

Artillerymen Lose Their Lives During Target Practice.

Fort Monroe, Va., July 22.—Nine artillerymen are dead and a number of others seriously injured, including two officers, as the result of the blowing out of a breechblock in a twelve-inch shore gun at the De Russy battery during the coast artillery practice here.

The accident occurred while student officers were endeavoring to sink a fleet of towed targets, representing an imaginary hostile fleet proceeding toward Washington. The battery was under the immediate command of Sergeant Harry Haas of the Sixty-ninth company, United States coast artillery. The known dead are:

Sergeant Harry Haas, gun commander; Corporal Bradford, gun pointer; Privates A. J. Sullivan, Duffy, Adkins, Adey, King, Chadwick, Smith.

Lieutenant Van Dusen suffered a broken leg and Lieutenant Hawes was injured about the face.

Many prominent officers of the army and navy, who went to Hampton Roads to witness what was expected to be the greatest target practice of this character that had been attempted anywhere, saw the accident.

BULLET FOR MAURA

Former Spanish Premier Shot in the Leg.

NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH

Young Woman Seizes Assailant and Last Shot of Would be Assassin Goes Wild.

Madrid, July 24.—Republican members of the cortes express open jubilation over the attempted assassination in Barcelona of Antonio Maura, former Spanish premier, who was shot in the leg by Posas Roca, a delivery wagon driver and a prominent Laborite.

The Republicans declare the shooting will give them a chance to air in court the charges of Republican Leader Iglesias that Maura was primarily responsible for the Barcelona massacre last year in which nearly 200 persons were slain and following which 500 persons were shot by orders of courtmartial.

Senor Maura, with members of his family, was en route from Madrid to the island of Majorca, where he expected to spend the summer.

Although a police guard has constantly surrounded Maura since Iglesias urged that he be shot Roca managed to get inside the Franca depot at Barcelona. As Maura disembarked from his train Roca rushed forward and fired two shots, the second striking Senor Maura in the leg.

A young woman cousin of the wounded statesman seized the assailant, but was unable to prevent his firing a third shot. However, she managed to strike his revolver aside and the bullet wounded Senor Olivera, a personal friend of Maura.

Senor Maura was not seriously hurt. He was carried aboard the steamer Miramir, where he was given medical attention and continued on his way to Majorca.

Roca, who shot Maura, it is said, was a close personal friend of Ferrer and was inspired to the shooting by the death of Ferrer and the speech of Senor Iglesias, who only a short time ago declared that Maura ought to be shot.

The Real Need.

In negro households, especially in communities where negroes form a large portion of the population, it frequently happens that the woman is the head of the family, being not only the breadwinner, but also the disciplinarian, and in that capacity on occasions she regards her putative lord and master as subject to her will. This at least was the assumption of the colored woman who was a party to a little scene enacted in the office of a justice of the peace.

A man had been arrested on the charge of beating and cruelly misusing his wife. After hearing the charge against the prisoner the justice turned to the first witness.

"Madam," he said, "if this man were your husband and had given you a beating would you call in the police?"

The woman addressed, a veritable amazon in size and aggressiveness, turned a smiling countenance toward the justice and answered:

"No, jedge. If he was mah husban' an' he treated me lak he did 'is wife Ah wouldn't call no p'liceman. No, sah; Ah'd call du undertaker."—Youth's Companion.

Flexibility of English.

English is not only, as Richard Jefferies asserted, the most expressive and flexible of tongues, but also, in Swinburne's opinion, the most musical. He proclaimed the lines—

> Music that gentlier on the spirit lies
> Than tired eyelids upon tired eyes to be unmatched for melody in any language. And few would venture to contradict such a master of music and tongues. But surely French ranks next on the roll of languages. For clearness of diction it is unrivaled, and, thanks to its abundance of vowels (close on one for every consonant) it flowes rhythmically from the tongue. Against Westley's dictum, that French is to German as a bagpipe to an organ, may be cited a saying of another famous divine, Dr. Dollinger, "L'Allemand n'est pas une langue, mais ceux qui parlent ce jargon se comprennent entre eaux" (German is not a language, but those who speak this jargon understand one another).—London Chronicle.

Facts About Giants.

That very few of the giants who have ever lived have been healthy or well formed recent researches prove beyond a doubt. All we know about Goliath is that he was very tall, but in the second book of Kings we read about another giant, who had more fingers than an ordinary human being, and, according to modern scientists, this is invariably a token of degeneracy. Marcel Donnai saw at Milan a giant who was so tall that his body filled two beds at night, but whose legs were so weak that he could hardly stand upright. William Evans, the gigantic porter of Charles I., had little strength, and Cromwell's porter, another giant, ended his days in a lunatic asylum. Finally, O'Brien, the Irish giant, has been described as "an enormous sick child who grew up too fast."

The Story of a Rose

By MARY A. BOWERS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

If all the old books in the world could be opened at once and the articles found between their pages displayed to the world they would fill a museum. These inclosures would be made up of faded flowers, memoranda, bits of lace and occasionally a letter. And among those letters there would be found some that would wreck the peace of families. A librarian once told me that every book returned to the library was shaken and almost always something would drop out. How many of these articles could tell a love story?

I am—or was—a white rosebud. When I was born I don't remember any better than people remember when they were born. I was very young when I was plucked, and that is the earliest event in my life that I recall. It was a June morning, June 15 (I'll tell later why I know this), and most of the dewdrops on me had been absorbed by the air. A young man came into the garden. He was barely nineteen and as handsome as a picture. He wore no hat, and the sunshine poured in and out of his tumbled hair. He looked about among us flowers as if searching for one he especially wanted. Then his eyes lit on me. I was the only bud just opened. He plucked me and took me into the house. After breakfast he put me in his buttonhole and, calling his dog, set out down the road. Presently he stopped before a house, on the piazza of which stood a girl. She, too, was very young—only seventeen, I fancy—and was dressed in pure white, not a bit of color about her. The young man turned in at the gate and joined her.

"I have come to say goodby," he said. "I am going away this afternoon to take the position that has been offered to me."

I saw the girl change countenance. I don't think he noticed it, but you know a man has not the delicate perceptive faculties of a white rose. They sat down together on wicker chairs and chatted for a long while. It seemed to me that he would have liked to tell her that he loved her, but some reason interposed, probably the fact that he was just starting in life and both were very young. At any rate, he rose to go without having done so. But he did the next best thing. He offered me to her and told her that if she would keep me till he came again he would have a secret to tell her.

She tried to look indifferent when he called his dog and started back home. But as soon as he was well down the road she ran into the house, taking me with her, and up to her room, where she wept a long while. Then she noticed me on her bureau, where she had placed me, and put me in water. There I remained till she went to bed. Just before doing so she placed me in a book of poems.

In the morning as soon as she awoke she opened the book and kissed me. Then, lest I should fall from between the leaves, she pinned my stem to the leaf. Under me she wrote June 15.

This book of poems was to be my permanent home, a very fit dwelling place for a white rose. The girl read the book very often and always caressed me when she did so. A year passed, and when the next summer had gone she wrote under me on the margin of the page:

"Will he never come?"

Years passed—I don't know how many, perhaps five or six—and he did not come. Then the girl went away, leaving me with her other favorites. More years passed. One day a man came into the room where I was and packed all the books, the one I was in among the number, and they were carted away. When the box containing me was opened a man took out my book dwelling and placed it on a shelf of a shop with other books.

I must have been by this time eight or ten years old. At any rate, my leaves were yellow and brittle, though my stem was still firm. One day a man came into the bookshop and asked if they had a certain book of poems. I was taken down and handed to him. He opened the cover, and when he saw the name written on the flyleaf I felt his hand tremble. Then he turned over the leaves till he came to the page to which I had been pinned. His fingers clutched the book in a sort of spasm.

"How much?" he asked the shopkeeper.

"Oh, you can have that for 10 cents."

The purchaser tossed a bill on the counter and, forgetting his change, hurried away. The shopman called after him, but he did not hear.

I didn't recognize the purchaser till he saw me in the shop and what was written under me. Then I knew him, despite a full beard he wore. He took the book and me to his room in bachelor quarters, and there I remained a week. Then one day he wrapped us carefully in paper and took us to another city on a train. We there entered a house, and in a few moments a lady entered. The man looked at her and said:

"I have come at last."

The lady looked at him and uttered a little cry. He handed the book to her, open at the page to which I was pinned, and my dear mistress and I looked each other in the face again.

I now live with the two, who are married, and am considered the most precious thing in the house.

His Only Blemish.

When the pious looking lady entered the London birdshop and stated her need of a talking parrot the proprietor "reckoned 'e'd got the werry thing the lady wanted." "Course, ma'am," he said, "you don't want a wulgar bird. This 'ere one, now, was brought over by a missionary. Talks like a reg'lar 'ymn book, 'e does. I wouldn't let 'im go if I didn't think you'd give 'im a respectable 'ome. Thirty-five shillings that bird, ma'am."

"You'll soon know!" screeched Polly. "You'll soon know!"

"Dear me! How quaint!" gushed the lady, and 35 shillings changed hands. "What does he mean by 'you'll soon know,' I wonder?"

"It's 'is only blemish, ma'am," smiled the birdshop man. "'E's got it into 'is 'ead that every one's wonderful anxious to find out wot a missionary sez when 'e 'its 'is thumb with a 'ammer."

What She Missed.

Six-year-old Ruth was very unhappy because one of her many wants had been denied. Her papa was giving her a lecture and said, "You have everything that most little girls have, and I don't think there is another little girl in town has more than you."

"Oh, yes," said Ruth. "Alice has."

"What has she that you have not?" said papa.

"Well, I guess she had a ride to her grandma's funeral."—Exchange.

The Serpent's Venom.

A physician while talking with a group of friends remarked: "It is common to hear people speak about poisonous serpents. Serpents are never poisonous; they are venomous. A poison cannot be taken internally without bad effects; a venom can. Venoms to be effective have to be injected directly into the circulation, and this is the manner in which the snake kills. Their venom taken internally is innocuous."

The Weapon He Needed.

An excited citizen burst frantically into the police station. "My life's in danger!" he cried. "I've just received a threatening letter from the Black Hand, and I want a permit to carry a weapon."

"All right, sir," replied the captain "I'll give you a permit to carry a fan—that's the weapon you need; something that will keep you cool."—Chicago News.

An Odd Apology.

This is the classic apology of a celebrated statesman of the last generation: "Mr. Speaker, in the heat of debate I stated that the right honorable gentleman opposite was a dishonest and unprincipled adventurer. I have now, in a calmer moment, to state that I am sorry for it."

The Elevator Man's Joke.

Hobbs—I guess the elevator is out of order. What is that sign on the door?

Dobbs—The elevator man must be a bit of a wag. It says, "Please pardon me for not rising."—Boston Transcript

Her Goodby.

She was one of those very gushing, effusive ladies who occasionally infest newspaper offices, and she had been admitted into the sanctum of the managing editor of the paper on which Homer Davenport was cartoonist, recites the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Davenport was in the room at the time. When the time came for her departure she first grasped the hand of the managing editor, saying, "Goodby Mr. Niles, goodby!"

Then, turning to the assistant managing editor, she also shook him effusively by the hand, exclaiming, "Goodby, Mr. Bliss, goodby!"

Davenport came next. There was no escape for him. "Dear Mr. Davenport, goodby!" she cried with all the delicate shading of a tragedy queen.

There was silence for a moment after she had gone. Then Davenport found his voice. "Where is she going?" he asked.

"Up to Ninety-third street," replied the assistant managing editor.

"Suffering cats!" drawled Davenport. "What should have happened if she had been going to One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street?"

She Handed It Back.

A noted doctor believes in training children to reason for themselves, and this policy he carries out with his own child, a little girl of eight, and he tells a story in connection with her with great glee.

"My dear," he said to her, "I saw something today that I hope I shall never be pained to hear of you doing."

"What was that, papa?" the daughter asked.

"I saw little Mary Goodgirl stick her tongue out at a man today."

The child, evidently thinking that it was an occasion to tell of the faults of the other girl, said:

"Papa, I saw Mary"—

The doctor interrupted and told the child she must not gossip and if she knew anything that was not nice about anybody she must keep it to herself.

The child looked at her father and then said quickly:

"Well, papa, why did you tell me about Mary?"

The physician was so surprised he could not answer.—Philadelphia Times

WHAT SHE KNEW ABOUT LAW

By ANNA MARSH

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

There was a ring at the doorbell of Mr. Silas Bentley's residence. The butler went to the door, and a man asked to see Mr. Bentley if he was at home and Mrs. Bentley if he was not at home. Mrs. Bentley went down into the hall where the man was waiting.

"I'm a constable, ma'am, and have been sent by the court to make a search for certain papers required in the case of Perkins versus Bentley."

Throwing back his coat, he showed a badge, then took a paper from his pocket, which he presented as a search warrant. Mrs. Bentley knew nothing of the badge and was not sufficiently versed in court procedure to discover if the search warrant was in form. She knew that her husband was being sued by his ex-partner in business, and she considered the said ex-partner a rascal. She gave no thought to the genuineness of the warrant. She concentrated her mind upon the problem of circumventing the search. Her husband had told her to keep the papers in question where they would not be readily found, since it was important for his own side of the suit that they be not produced in court except upon the choosing of his own counsel.

"Please wait a moment," she said and turned to go into the library, when the man stopped her.

"I can't let you go and hide the papers," he said.

"Very well. I merely wish to consult my brother." Then, calling "Will!" a young man of serious and intellectual mien appeared. Mrs. Bentley told him of the search warrant. He examined it, pronounced it an order from the court and, taking his sister aside, warned her not to refuse the man permission to make the search, since she might render herself liable to severe punishment if she did—perhaps imprisonment.

"I don't believe he's an officer of the court at all," said Mrs. Bentley.

"Why not?" asked her brother.

"Well, I don't know. His nose is crooked, and there is a cast in his eye."

"That's a pretty reason. Do as you please, but if you get imprisoned for contempt of court don't blame me."

"I won't," said Mrs. Bentley.

Mrs. Bentley told the constable to make the search. He went upstairs, she following. When he entered a bedroom to search it he ordered her to remain outside in such commanding tones that she obeyed. Finally he came to a closet wherein was kept the family silver not in use. An iron door had been put in to make it doubly safe. It was locked. The man demanded the key. Mrs. Bentley produced it. The man opened the door and went inside. Mrs. Bentley closed it and turned the key. Then she went downstairs and told her brother what she had done.

He informed her that she had certainly been guilty of contempt of court. Mrs. Bentley, without heeding him, went to the telephone, called up her husband and told him what she had done. Mr. Bentley telephoned his lawyer, and the lawyer telephoned the clerk of the court, but found no one who knew anything about the search warrant.

"I thought he was a fraud," said Mrs. Bentley to her husband over the phone.

"Why so?"

"I don't know. I didn't like the looks of his nose, and he squints."

She heard laughter through the receiver.

"Well," said Mr. Bentley, "keep him where he is, and I'll come right up. I'll bring a policeman."

Mr. Bentley soon appeared with a genuine cop. They all went to the closet and unlocked the door, and out stepped the constable.

"My eye!" exclaimed the cop. "If it isn't Joe Green, alias Tom Dugan, alias several other names."

"I told you so," said Mrs. Bentley.

"Look at his pockets," said the cop. They were bulging with the jewelry Mr. Green had picked up while in the bedrooms. You didn't know him for what he is, did you, ma'am?"

"No, but I didn't believe he was what he pretended to be."

"Why not?"

"Don't you see," Mr. Bentley put in, "that his nose isn't straight and he's cross eyed. That's how she spotted him. She's no good for logic, but she hits right conclusions."

Mr. Green was removed to the station house, where he explained that he had seen in the morning paper that there was a dispute about certain documents in the case of Perkins versus Bentley, and it had occurred to him that the circumstance furnished a chance for a stroke of genius. Having had a great deal to do with courts (though they were the criminal courts), he knew enough to perpetrate the fraud. Possessing himself of a blank search warrant, he filled it up himself, and, borrowing a fireman's badge, he considered himself well equipped to play the part of constable. It was only Mrs. Bentley's peculiar method of determining the difference between a thief and a constable that spoiled his game.

Mr. Bentley's brother, who had pronounced the search warrant genuine, became a lawyer. Mr. Bentley always insisted that Mrs. Bentley could tell more about law by the twist in a man's nose and a cast in his eye than her brother could tell by a legal document.

Mr. Fergann, west of Thief River, lost his barn by fire caused by lightning during Saturday's electric storm. There was no damage done in the immediate vicinity of Plummer.

John Moylan of Thief River came down Thur. to work on dredge no. 3. This is a walking dredge and is getting along nicely. The floater east of here, however, is hung up for lack of water to float it.

Plummer sure is the home of the restless these days. All classes of men are constantly coming and going. Some stick for a day and others longer, but the majority soon leave. It reported that over five hundred men have began and quit work.

James Cook, who has been working on tee new railroad since the middle of last May, left for Greenbush on Monday evening to spend a few days with relatives. He will go fom there to the harvest fields of Dakota. It was our pleasure to thank James for a year's subscription before he left.

The ice cream sale given Wed. afternoon by the little girls of the Summer School was a decided sucess. The receipts were $15.20. The cream and a liberal supply of cake were served under the trees west of the bank. Everyone had a good time departed with a smile. The school extends heartfelt thanks to all who helped make the sale a success.

Frank Powell, who has been working in the material yards, left Monday for Duluth where he expects a position as fireman or assistant engineer on a lake boat. He belonged to the Union when the fireman, oilers, engineers and wheelman of the freight boats were called out on a strike. The strikers have been replaced by other men and this leaves many lake-water men to work up a new profession or go and scab it.

Old Saws and Sayings.

A few old sayings on the subject of food come to us rather as a surprise in our age of daintiness and refinement, yet they have their raison d'etre notwithstanding. "Meat is much, manners are more;" "Cease your chatter and mind your platter;" "The ass that brays most eats least;" "The wing with the liver to him who's the giver;" "He can give little to his servant who licks his own trencher."

Apropos of this remark, it is amusing to note that "manners" was the name given to the remnants of a meal. These came to the servants as official perquisites; hence our well worn expression before emptying a dish, "Leave the last slice (or whatever it may be) for manners," though if votes were collected on this point it is hardly likely that any of us would have taken it as it stands in the original.

Three Men.

When H. H. Rogers was in the prime of his power, says a New York writer, he ormed a "friendship partnership" with Mark Twain and Thomas Brackett Reed and took personal charge of their affairs, looking after them as he would a couple of children. It was great fun for all three, and especially Rogers. Neither Clemens nor Reed had any sense for business. The big ex-speaker came to New York a poor man. Five years later he died suddenly, and his estate assayed over $600,000. He probably had no idea what he was worth at any stage. Rogers made as much or more money for Clemens.

The Long Silence.

"Yes, we are pretty comfortably fixed here," admitted a veteran employee in the reading room of the Congressional library when a visitor envied him his soft berth and comfortable surroundings. "But there's one thing we long for—yes, thirst for with a burning thirst. That's noise—a real, nerve racking, ear splitting noise. The long hours of soft silence, the dead stillness of everything about, grows so oppressive that at times we could shriek out. We get into a sort of sickroom tiptoe and a low tone of voice that finally degenerates into a whisper even at the telephone. Give us an occasional battery of artillery or a roaring lion or a steam calliope. Even a squalling baby would help some."—Washington Star.

Canada Thistles

And Sulphate Spraying

Experiments with Canada thistles and iron sulphate spraying at the University Farm, St. Anthony Park, have conclusively shown that sulphate of iron solution, properly applied with force, in form of spray, will destroy the leaves and stems of the weed, and so far hold their growth in check as to prevent ripening of seeds. Spraying has a weakening effect only on the roots of the plant and does not injure the grain, but gives it a chance to mature with less hindrance from the weed. To eridicate the weed is the great problem. The most practical way thus far discovered for thoro elimination of Canada thistles is to mow the thistles close to the ground, when in full bloom, and plow ground very shallow—two or three inches—in August. Disc it thoroughly and harrow so as to expose the roots to sun and air. Gather and burn all the that can be seen. Having great vitality, roots, seemingly dry and dead will grow when conditions become favorable. Drag and disc ground weekly in Aug. and Sept. and sow it to winter wheat or rye. This crop may be pastured in April and May succeeding, plowed under in June and ground planted to a cultivated crop. Sorgh- is said to be an excellent smother.

FEED GRAIN TO LIVE STOCK.

The Experiment Station at St. Anthony Park, by its attention to the dairy cow as well as to all other animals on University Farm, shows that stock provides the best market for Minnesota grain. With the dairy cow there is an abundance of skim milk and buttermilk for calves, pigs and poultry. Cattle, sheep, hogs, horses and poultry return to the soil fertility taken by the production of grain. No less grain may be raised but more will be sold in butter, eggs, beef, pork and mutton. That means more money for the farmer than selling grain at the elevator. The acreage may be shorter but the yield will be larger, involving less labor. The methods of dairying and stock raising at University Farm, if faithfully followed by the farmers generally, will soon pay the mortgages.

Infantule Paralysi.

Dr. Robert Clark reports two cases of Infantile Paralysis out east of here during the past week. One being a child in Peter Lund family. This case has not proved fatal but as the decease almost always leaves permanent traces it is a very sad case. The other case was the ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stanley. This case proved fatal and the little fellow left this world of trouble and pain and went to his eternal rest.

Landseekers Return From Canada.

The tide of immigration of home seekrrs to Canada which has been the subject of great concern to the administrators of the public demand for the last few years, has turned, in the opinon of the officials of the reclamation service. Thousands have returned and a great many more are expected back soon.

Clarence J. Blanchard, statistician of the reclamation services, reports that he has interviewed a great number of settlers in Montana who had tried the Canadian experiment, but were glad enough to return home. They stated that ~~practically every~~ American farmer in the neighborhood of Alberta where the Canadian government maintains its irrigation project, was anxious to get back if he could sell his holdings.

The American settlers were dissatisfied with the character of the land, the crops from which they alleged, consisted principally of alfalfa and such hardy grains as wheat, and even these were not sure. The form of government did not appeal to them, and they considered the railroad freight rates exorbitant. The climax was a sort of dissatisfaction, ice and snow in August and September of last year adding to their discontent.

During the last nine months, it was said at the reclamation service today 15,000 settlers have returned to the States from Canada, and the projects for a general ackward move-

Harvest is here, early seeded oats will be cut this week and wheat will be ready to cut in about ten days.

Press reports concerning the crops, all seem encouraging from all over the country, but just wait until the returns come in, and we reckon there will be something "doing" when the press reports have all vanished with the wind and the wheat gets ready for the biggest jump in history.

It is however true that the crops in Red Lake County will not be as bad as it was at one time feared, during the hot spell, but even with favorable weather conditions from now on. will not give us much more than half a crop, that is in oats and wheat and some flax will not even be fit to cut.

Geo. Singer transacted business at Kratka last Tuesday.

M. E. Hyland is expected home from North Dakota, soon.

There seems to be some kind of worm working in the wheat fields up this way. He seems to operate inside of the stem near the first joint down from the head, can anyone tell us what sort of a worm it is?

The fire was sweeping along for a couple of days when parties had to gather and put it out. There is however some doubts as to who did the job of starting the fire, a couple of parties are mistrusted, in the meantime we expect that the thing is going to be looked up and the guilty parties punished.

STATE EMPLOYMENT BUREAUS.

The state of Minnesota operates free employment bureaus in several parts of the commonwealth. The annual report of this department of the state government shows that in two years 36'524 positions were obtained for 37,761 applicants at an average cost of forty cents for each position filled. In the three principal bureaus, namely in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, the cost of operation was only $14,600 for the two years. This result appears to support the claim that it is cheaper and better for the state to help thus in secureing work for the jobless than to arrest them as vagrants or send them on the road to various charitable institutions by leaving them to the tender mercies of the private employment agencies.—Ex.

THE ANNUAL COUNTY FAIR

The Ninth Annual county fair at Thief River Falls was pulled off this week with about the useral success. The horse racing feature was not so much in evidence as it has been heretofore but all the displays of horses cattle, sheep and hogs were as good or better than in the former years.

The display of corn, wheat, oats, barley, potatoes and vegetables was far in excess of what any one might have expected during the season when the whole surrounding country is so droth stricken as to have hardly grass enough for pasturage. This is a great advertisement for Red Lake county and is certain to have its affects on the land values.

The ladies also had a splendid display of paintings, fancy needle work and goodies.

Those from here who attended the fair were. A. B. Lindager, the entire Gullingsrud family, J. W. Pahlen, Miss Alice Wichterman, Arnold and Marrion Finrow, Henry Rose Amanda Midchill, Dora Johnson, Agnes Rothsten, Tom Norby and many others.

"EQUALITY ECHOES"

Harvest Time Is Nearly Here.

Mrs. Con. Short was down to Plummer Monday, doing some necessary shopping.

Mrs. C. O. Lindberg left on Thursday last for Richland where she will spend a month visiting with relatives and friends.

Dan Stonehouse was at Plummer on business last Monday.

Ben Walker left Tuesday for Crafton N. D. where he will put in the fall threshing with his rig.

Mrs. J. W. Lynch and son Clarence attended the county fair at Thief River Falls on Thursday.

The Lillo Base ball nine drove over to Espetvet Sunday where they played a game of ball with the Chester nine. The results was a Victory for the visitors with the score 22 to 6 a return game will be played on the local diamond near the Clearwater Creamery next Sunday.

A bear seen in this neighborhood on Wednesday caused quite an excitement. A party of several men armed with rifles gave chase but did not succeed in getting a shot at him.

The Cynic's Point of View.

Of course we all like to know that our enemies are vulnerable, but it is only the cynical elect who can appreciate with fine epicurean fastidiousness the glorious revelation that their friends are human after all. And it is not only the weakness of those near and dear to us, but their misfortunes and annoyances, which give a thrill of illicit joy to those honest contortionists who can look in their own hearts. I once heard a young mother say that there was only one thing which gave her greater pleasure than hearing that the children of her friends were sick, and that was to hear that they were bad. No one but a brom-idiot (to borrow the excellent root with which Mr. Gelett Burgess has enriched us) would think of condemning this young woman for being malicious or unkind. Misery is not the only human quality that loves company. Some of her distant relatives—Anxiety, Discouragement, Annoyance—are equally sociable.—Atlantic.

Crookston Burglaries.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 2.—Last night A. O. Bustured's hardware store was entered by burgulars, who smashed the glass in the rear window, and took about $12 from the till. The robber was jocular in that he rung up money paid out $10 05 The bills and checks had been placed in the safe and no attempt was made to blow it.

A revolver and some ammunition is also missed. Other articles may have been stolen but not in large quantities.

Joseph Lebanc's meat market was also burglarized of $3, there was in the cash register. Considerable meat may also have been taken. The crime is laid to the hangers on of a carnival company which spent the night here enroute to Stephen and Thief R Falls. The police searched several suspects but no arrests were made. Many of the attaches of the carnival company were intoxicated last night and Capt. Eck was called to the boarding car, where one man was badly slashed about the face with a knife, but not dangerously injured, although permanently disfigured.—T. R. F. News.

A western professor has figured out that an inch of rain means 860 barrels of water to an acre of land, 550,400 barrels to a section, and 19,814,000 barrels of water to a township. When one realizes that we have had a shortage of about 7 inches of rain thus far in 19'0 at this point, and applies the above figures, he finds that each acre is short of moisture to the extent of 6020 barrels, each section has had 3,852,800 barrels of wter less than the average for thirty years; each township is 138,698,000 barrels short, while the shortage of precipitation since January 1 for the county amounts to 4,160,094,000 barrels. Is it any wonder that the crops have been affected, that weeds are drying up and that the river is lower than it has ever been before in July?—

And now the government has closed the saloons! Thats adding insult to inury.—Bemidji Pioneer.

The Minnesota Supreme Court in an opinion written by Justice O'-Brien, has sustained the validity of the law passed by the last session of the legislature, requireing all persons buying milk or cream, for the manufacture of butter or cheese to take out a state license. This means approximately 1800 buyers must pay a fee of $1.00 forthwith or be subject to prosecution for violation of the law. The statute went into effect January 1st, and at that time about 1200 persons in the state took the examination prescribed by the dairy and food commission. R. E. Cobb, a Saint Paul dealer, objected to the statute on the ground that it was unwarranted interference with business and hence unconstitutional, and went into the courts with the case. When the action was taken, Andrew French, Dairy and Food Commissioner, stopped the collection of fees for licenses, pending a decision of the case. Mr. Cobb won in the lower courts but the state appealed to the Supreme court and has just won a decision. Notices will be sent out at once to all persons who passed the required examination that they may now get their licenses on paying of the fee. A warning will be issued to all others buying milk and cream for manufactureing purposes, that they must conform to the statute. One dollar pays for a two year license. —Ex.

County Option is a proposition to give to every man in the county the right to a voice on the license question. County Option, as much, has nothing to do with temperance or prohibition. It may lead to the supression of the saloon and hence to a curtailment of the regular liquor traffic but it will do this only as the people want the saloon supressed. Under present conditions, only about one-fifth of the people have anything to say about the license question. Under County Option, all will have a voice. When all the people have a right to vote to abolish the saloon. The veople will have their right of choice jest as they do in any election so what the county optionists are working for is to give the people what most of them do not posess at present namely, the right and privilege to vote on license question. It is difficult to see how any man can oppose the county option proposition, except he fears the effects of giving to all the people the right to a voice on the license question. How any public man can take the position that he is not in favor of giving to all the right to vote, is difficult for us to understand. He might with entire justice to himself say that he is not in favor of voting out the saloons, but to deny others a voice in the matter is to put them hopelessly out of sympathy with the spirit of American institutions. What county optionists are contending for is the passage of a law giving to all the people the right to vote on the license question. After such a law is on the statute book granting to the people their suffrage rights, then the people can vote any way they want to. How they vote, is another story. The point is, they will have the right to vote.—Long Prairie Leader.

..Manure for hay land. Wheat, corn and other crop are no more improved by rotation than hay. The Minnesota Experiment Station shows that a plot continuously cut for hay the past fifteen years has given an average yield of 1.73 tons per acre, while on a plot under a three-years rotation of wheat clover and corn hay has yielded the past ten yars an average of 2.9 tons per acre. In a five-year rotation of wheat, timothy and clover, pasture, oats and corn, the hay has yielded an average of 3.9 tons per acre since 1900. Eight tons of manure per acre were applied once in five years on the five-year rotation plots. There is money in manure.

Larger Crops in Minnesota.—Elements that will produce larger crops in the state, as demonstrated at the Experiment Station, are an increase in soil fertility, the use of improved seed, better cultivation and a proper system of rotation, shown in numerous bulletins published by the station and sent free on application to the Experiment Station, at University Farm, St. Paul.

..It is the custom of the Minnesota Experiment Station to shock grain so it will permit the free circulation of air between the bundles to hasten its curing. To do this the station places three pairs of bundles in a line and two pairs on the outside of these. Cap sheaves are then put on, the heads having first been broken down, and the bundles spread over the shock when both head and butt ends are pressed firmly into the shock so as to shed rain and avoid as far as possible the soaking of the shock with water.

WHO PAYS THE TAXES?

The men who turn over the greatest store of money to the various public treasuries—such as merchants and others who handle much money—assume with the greatest vigor that the citizen who handles less of the "long green" pays no taxes, and should therefore have less to say about public affairs than they themselves should have.

The extent to which this error prevails in the mind of the community is surprising to one who thinks about it for the first time.

The fact is, the ultimate consumer pays all the taxes. The manufacturer collects the amount of his taxes from the wholesaler in the price of his finished product. So he is fully remunerated for his payment of taxes, and the cost of payment has been transferred to the wholesaler, who, in like manner, transfers the cost to the retailer, and he to the consumer, who having no recourse, must pay the cost of the article he consumes.

On the Fourth of July the minor boy who bought a firecracker or other device of the evil one and exploded it, paid all the tax thereon from the manufacturer down.—Ex.

Religious Strife Adds to Existing Crisis in Spain.

BREAK WITH THE VATICAN

Spanish Government's Recall of Its Representative at Rome Not Generally Approved.

Madrid, July 31.—Anarchy, Republicanism and a Carlist government, with Pretender Don Jaime at the helm, is freely predicted in Spain, following the sensational rupture of diplomatic relations between the government and the Vatican.

Torn by internal dissensions of almost every sort, with political and labor disputes ever threatening a crisis, with thousands of exiles encamped along the French border, awaiting an opportune time to march to Barcelona and proclaim a revolution, with a foreign war draining the treasury, the country reeking with the spirit of anarchy and now plunged into a religious strife that may alienate the bulk of the population, King Alfonso's throne is believed to be tottering and monarchy itself facing engulfment in the impending upheaval.

The complete severance of diplomatic relations between the government and the Vatican is expected the moment the Vatican receives the ministerial note that is now being prepared, supporting the cabinet and king in their stand against the authority of the Vatican in Spanish church affairs.

Spain's Roman Catholic press makes no effort to conceal its joy over the decision of Premier Canalejas to recall Marquis de Ojeda, the Spanish ambassador to the Vatican. The rupture with the Vatican and the prospective fight with clericalism will, they predict, result in the downfall of the premier. The chartering of special trains and steamers to carry the crowds of manifestants to San Sebastian, the summer capital, to make demonstrations before King Alfonso is advocated.

Another Addition to List of German Bank Failures.

Dortmund, Germany, July 29.—The list of bank failures in Germany through excessive speculative operations has received a striking addition in the insolvency of the Niederdeutsche bank, against which bankruptcy proceedings were begun.

This action was preceded by the arrest of Herr Ohm, one of the directors and the chief manager of the bank, who came to grief through his attempts to found numerous industrial companies, which were inadequately capitalized.

Twenty Blacks Reported Dead at Slocum, Tex.

Houston, Tex., July 31.—Special dispatches from Palestine, Tex., report a serious race riot at Slocum, Anderson county, a small town fifteen miles south of Palestine. Latest advices state that twenty negroes were killed and three white men were wounded.

The trouble seems to have been precipitated in a controversy over a promissory note which a man named Alford had endorsed for a negro. The negro, when questioned as to the reason why he had not paid the note, cursed Alford and said no white man could "do" him. Fighting between them began at once and others were drawn into the affair.

Sheriff Black, with a large posse of citizens heavily armed, have gone to Slocum.

WENDLING CAUGHT IN FRISCO

Alleged Slayer of Louisville Girl Under Arrest.

San Francisco, July 31.—Joseph Wendling, wanted in Louisville, Ky., in connection with the murder of Alma Kellner, was taken into custody here. He had admitted his identity.

Wendling was captured in a Third street lodging house by Detectives Ryan and Burke of the local department. He made no resistance and admitted to the officers on the way to the city prison that he was Wendling.

Chief of Police Martin, District Attorney Fickert and the two detectives immediately visited him in the prison and attempted to secure a confession from him.

THIRTY PERSONS ARE KILLED

Many Others Injured in Railroad Accident in Algeria.

London, Aug. 2.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph says that thirty persons were killed and many injured in a railway accident near Oran, Algeria.

A Toothsome Revenge.

During the reign of Charles II., the age of gallantry, it was the custom among gentlemen when they drank a lady's health in order that they might do her still more honor to destroy at the same time some part of their clothing.

Upon one occasion Sir Charles Sedley was dining in a tavern and had a particularly fine necktie on, whereupon one of his friends to play him a trick drank to the health of a certain lady, at the same time throwing his necktie in the fire. Of course Sir Charles had to do likewise, but he got even, for not long after that, dining with the same company, he drank the health of a fair one, at the same time ordering a dentist whom he had engaged to be present to pull out a refractory tooth which had been troubling him. Every one else was obliged in this manner to mourn a molar.

Great Forests.

Canada owns a forest larger in area than the whole of England, Scotland and Wales all put together. The greatest length of Britain is 608 miles, and its greatest width 325 miles, while a Canadian forest in the Hudson bay and Labrador region is 1,000 by 1,700 miles in extent. Another big forest stretches from Alaska to Washington state. The Amazon basin, South America, comprises about 2,100 by 1,300 miles of forest, while Central Africa has a forest region 3,000 miles from north to south and of unknown width from east to west, and the pine, larch and cedar forests of Siberia are 3,000 by 1,000 miles in extent.

Logic.

"What—a boy of your age doesn't know the parts of speech!" exclaimed the schoolmaster.

"No, sir," replied the pupil.

"Haven't you ever heard of a noun?"

"Oh, yes, sir!"

"Well, what comes next?"

"I don't know, sir."

"A pronoun," said the master. "Now remember that. Then comes the verb. Now what follows that?"

"A proverb, please, sir."—London Scraps.

His Critic.

What astonishes the visiting Briton most is the manner in which every kind of immigrant to the United States adapts himself to the prevailing ideas about Englishmen. In the course of conversation with the noble Italian who condescends to brighten shoes the visitor informed the bootblack that he was an Englishman—and Englishmen had a great respect for Italians and had entertained Garibaldi in grand style.

"Inglees! Ha, ha! Inglees!" said Diego in soft, musical tones. "Ha! They spic no good. Dey droppa da hiatch!"—Exchange.

Nothing perhaps produces quite so much wit from a cabman as a sense of being underpaid, which in most cases means that he has been justly paid. A lady who had been guilty of this kind of justice experienced the usual sense of discomfort when her driver straightened the palm into which she had just dropped her shilling and looked at her speechlessly. She was weakly about to add another sixpence when the cabby's sense of humor prevailed. He transferred the shilling to his pocket and smiled sweetly down at his embarrassed fare. "Course, missy," he remarked, "there was the pleasure o' drivin' you!"—London Chronicle.

To Local Buyers

Merchants and local dealers may be too fastidious about the class of goods and the time that they purchase the same from the local farmers. Complaints have come to our office during the last week to the effect that flax could not be sold to the local grain buyers because it was not timely and hence a farmer was obliged to haul his flax back home and hold it until he threshed some more in the fall Again hogs have not been acceptable becausethey have been too old or too fat even at a figure that was less than the same animal was sold for when shipped to St. Paul markets. And again a farmer has been offered 2½ cents per pound for a fat steer which a shipper gladly paid 3½ for and then expected to make some profit.

Now it appears to us that even tho a certain article is not exactly timely yet after the farmer has taken the trouble of raising the grain or stock and having hauled the same to town it should be purchased at a fair figure by men who make it a business of buying produce of that particular kind. If this is not done the farmers will very naturally look elsewhere for a market where they can profitably dispose of their produce. While engaged in looking up this foreign market it is only natural that the farmers attention should be called to the fact that he can buy just as cheaply elsewhere and probably have a larger assortment from which to make his selections.

From the foregoing we draw the conclusion that the best way to encourage farmers to buy from catalogue houses or to make trips to the cities for the purpose of getting their supplies is to treat the farmer as tho we did not care whether he came to this city with his produce or not, the city and thereby for each individual merchant, butcher, miller or any other business man is for each buyer, of produce to pay as much for a certain article as he possibly can afford to pay without actually losing money thereby.

BLASTING BOULDERS

Prof. Stewart, chief of the division of engineering at the Minnesota Agricultural College, says that ordinarily it is not economical to break rocks by placing explosives on toy of them —a method requiring a very high grade and large quantity of dynamite In such case, if the boulder is hard, the attempt will often result in failure. The efficiency of this method may be somewhat increased by laying the explosive in a depression in the rock and covering it with wet clay.

Another method is to make a hole with a long auger or spade through the earth to a point under the center of the rock,, and place the explosive there, tamping the hole full of dirt afterward. This method is much more satisfactory than the first, tho it many times throws the rock out of the ground unbroken.

The surest method, and the one requiring the least explosive, is to drill a hole in the rock and tamp in the charge with damp clay.

The proper plan, where a large number of rocks is to be broken up, is to do a little experimenting. Try each of these methods, keeping an account of the time required to prepare the charge, the cost of explosive used, and the results, and from these determine the best method to use with the rocks in question. With high priced explosive and cheap labor it will ordinarily be most economical to drill the rock. If labor is scarce and high priced it may be more desireable to use a large quantity of explosive under the rock as suggested above. Rock has been satisfactorily disposd of by all three methods.

The Minnesota Experiment Station agrees with Prof. E. K. Slater, that when a dairy cow is utilized as a market for Minnesota grain, cheese factories and creameries will be abundant andcontribate their full share to the prosperity of the farmer and the wealth of Minnesota; that farmers will learn to co-operate and work together for each other's mutual advantage in creamery building, in stock breeding, in marketing farm products and in buying farm supplies. When stock is the farmer's grain market "the little brass kettle" will not affect the price; the farmer will have less stuff to haul to market over poor roads and have profitable trips to town.

A Co-operative Creamery brings the farmer the highest price for butter removes from burdens of tired farm women the work of butter making, and gives to a community a higher commercial standing in the business world, is statement made by Supt. McGuire ofthe Northwest Minnesota Experiment Station. This is demonstrated wherever the farmers have in good faith co-operated to develop their own business.

By Hook or by Crook

By EDGAR FALES MOODY

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

When the civil war came on two classes of men in the north went out to fight. The one were actuated by patriotism, the other by what they expected to make out of the matter. But the war, instead of lasting but a few months, as many at first expected, furnishing military titles and big pay for this last named class, proved a gigantic, bloody struggle, and with each fight the army was in need of these so called soldiers.

Colonel Jim C. in 1862 commanded the brigade in which I served. The colonel had been a politician in a large city and was one of the first to "offer himself a sacrifice to the Union," his idea of that sacrifice being that he would start out with rank of colonel and return with that of general, picking up sundry "perquisites" by the way, then run for a fat office. He was a fine looking man and prided himself on being a lady killer.

No sooner were the troops grouped into brigades and divisions than Colonel Jim by virtue of the date of his commission was placed in command of a brigade. As soon as this elevation took place he looked about him for a staff. Being allowed two aids, he chose Louis Richmond and me, both second lieutenants. Richmond told me that he didn't like the colonel and was intending to ask to be returned to his regiment. But no sooner had he told me this than on receipt of a letter from the north he said that he would remain on the staff. I asked him why he had so suddenly changed his views, but he shut up like an oyster and refused to utter a word in explanation.

It was not long after this that one morning at the breakfast table the colonel's brow was very lowering.

"Gentlemen," he said, "there's a thief on my staff. Last night while I was at Colonel B.'s headquarters"—he had been playing poker—"my trunk was rifled of a package of papers."

As he spoke he looked at all our faces to note the effect of his words. I noticed that Richmond was the only one of the staff whose looks indicated consciousness.

"Might not the thief be one of the headquarters guard or an orderly?" suggested the commissary.

"No," replied the colonel; "the robbery was not committed for gain. There was money in the trunk, and it was not taken. Some one on my staff took the papers for a purpose. If I can prove it on him I'll have him court martialed."

The colonel's eyes were fixed intently on Richmond as he spoke. But Richmond went on eating his breakfast with a fair amount of equanimity considering that he was virtually accused of being a thief. Nevertheless during the day he made application to Colonel Jim to be returned to his regiment.

Now, the relations between a general and his personal staff are of a peculiarly intimate and confidential character. The general may nominate his own staff, and the nomination is considered an honor. But he is not likely to retain an officer who prefers not to hold the position given him. What was our surprise to learn from Louis Richmond that the colonel declined to issue the order returning him to his regiment. Evidently the commander believed that his aid had stolen his papers and proposed to force him to stay where he was until he could recover them.

Since Richmond made no denial of being guilty of the colonel's charge we treated him with coolness and finally refused to speak to him except officially. Though the young man winced under this, he seemed to be sustained by a consciousness of innocence. Meanwhile there were conditions between him and the colonel that we could not understand. Neither took any definite stand. The colonel did not prefer charges, and Richmond made no move to force the colonel to permit him to join his regiment, which seemed to be the only way to get rid of a very unpleasant situation. I noticed that Colonel Jim made no mention of the character of the purloined papers, and his aid made no effort to free himself from the obloquy that rested upon him.

Such were the conditions when we entered our first fight. The colonel did not show up at the head of his brigade, and Richmond, who appeared to be best fitted to take his place, issued orders in his stead. When the fight was over the colonel appeared, explaining his absence on the ground that he had got separated from his command when the fight opened and could not afterward find it.

But the division commander did not accept this excuse and called for Colonel Jim's resignation. It was handed in, and the political general disappeared from the service.

Colonel Jim's relegation to ward politics relegated Richmond and myself to our respective regiments. Soon after the fight he asked me to come to his quarters. There he made an explanation of the conditions existing between him and his commander. A lady had written him that the colonel had a number of letters from her which she was desirous should be returned. The colonel had declined to give them up. She asked Richmond to get them for her by hook or by crook. He had hooked them.

Of course Richmond received his reward. It was the lady herself.

MURDERER ENDS HIS OWN LIFE

Kills Himself After Shooting Former Comrades.

TURNED IN A FALSE ALARM

And When Firemen at San Diego, Cal., Responded He Shot and Killed One and Probably Fatally Injured Two Others—Then He Went Home and Killed His Wife and Baby.

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 2.—Bert Durham, who had been hunted relentlessly for hours, dodging his pursuers and leaving them without a clue, boarded a car in the residence section and rode quietly to the Plaza in the center of the business district, where he put a bullet into his brain. He recovered consciousness later, but the coroner says he will die.

Bert S. Durham, who was a former city fireman, in a fit of revenge, turned in a false alarm of fire and when his former fellow workers responded he fired a volley of shots at them, killing one and probably fatally injuring two others. Durham then ran to his home and, with a piece of steel wrapped in a handkerchief, beat his wife and baby about their heads as they lay asleep, killing both.

Fearing the crazed man might make an assault upon his parents, Chief of Police Wilson placed a guard about their house. A guard also was placed about Durham's home on D street to prevent the murderer from returning and firing on those attending the bodies of his wife and child.

Discharged for Insubordination.

Several months ago Durham was discharged from the fire department for insubordination. He was said to be quarrelsome. He was a wagon driver. His dismissal is said to have preyed on his mind until he concocted a plan for obtaining revenge.

After midnight he turned in a false alarm in a dark quarter of the city and laid in ambush awaiting the response of the fire department. On their arrival he opened fire with a revolver.

At the first shot Driver Don Grant fell to the ground dead with a bullet through his head.

At the second shot Hoseman Guy Elliot fell with a bullet in his stomach, Peter Sampsell was shot through the lung.

Two more shots were fired at the members of the crew, but they went wild. At this instant Assistant Fire Chief Snedecor drove up. Covering the assistant chief and the members of the fire department with his revolver, Durham made his retreat. As he disappeared in the darkness he called back to the men: "Tell my wife I am going to commit suicide."

Within a few minutes the police were notified and a score of officers in automobiles were on the scene searching for Durham. When they went to his home the second tragedy was discovered. Durham had locked the doors of his home after him.

No trace was found of the murderer.

At St. Joseph's hospital it was said that Sampsell will die and that there may be some hope for Elliott.

DIGGERS UNCOVER NUGGETS

Placer Ground Found by Laborers In the Black Hills.

Deadwood, S. D., Aug. 2.—While excavating for the foundation of a new bulkhead on Deadwood creek workmen for Peter Trucano uncovered what may prove to be valuable placer ground. In a few hours' time several good sized gold nuggets were found and panning of the dirt showed colors and indicates that it is similar to the old pay dirt of early days.

The finding of nuggets caused some excitement and the spot has been lined with people since, who are watching the progress of the excavation. The gold nuggets were found on bedrock at a depth of about four feet below the creek level.

Trucano is taking steps to have all the ground he owns on the creek sluiced for its gold value. Expert placer miners declare that in all probability the ground where the nuggets were found was overlooked in the early days.

Firemen Going to La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 2.—Between 150 and 200 paid firemen will attend the annual convention of the Wisconsin Paid Firemen's association to be held in this city Aug. 16, 17 and 18. The principal topic for discussion will be "Fire Escapes on Buildings; What Kinds Are Best Adapted and Who Should Have Control of Them." Mayor Sorensen will deliver the address of welcome.

Farmer Accidentally Shot.

Willow City, N. D., Aug. 2.—The bullet from a rifle accidentally discharged in the hands of Charles Olmstad nearly resulted fatally to William Davis, a Willow City farmer. The bullet, after first going through Davis' arm, struck him in the abdomen, passing across the stomach and lodging between two ribs, where it was found by surgeons.

A REWARD

By AINSWORTH RHODES

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

It was at the height of the season at the seashore. Aunt Charlotte, my sister Ruth and I were enjoying the sea air, and I especially was enjoying the sea water. My aunt had charge of us girls and considered herself responsible for us. She used to sit on the beach watching us.

I was wading one day in water up to my waist. I wore a little gold cross about my neck and had lost it. While looking for it—I could have seen it on the bottom—I went down into deep water.

I had been swimming a good deal and was tired. They say that swimming is the hardest exercise one can take. At any rate, in trying to swim back to shallow water I found that I didn't move at all. I got frightened, and this made matters worse. The tide was setting down to the south and was moving me with it—not far, but proximity makes little difference when one is powerless. I called to my aunt, but she did not hear me or was not aware of my condition, for she made no move to help or call on any one to help me.

What an awful thing it is to be in danger of drowning and see some one looking at you, thinking that you are enjoying yourself!

But there was one of more experience in such matters who did see me. Near by was a pier extending out into the ocean, and on that pier was a man. He was standing over deep water some twenty feet above the surface. He was in shirt waist costume. I saw him jump feet foremost and swim for me. I went down before he reached me, but only for a moment. I felt his hand under my arm. We rose to the surface, and a few strokes carried us to shallow water.

One would suppose that my first feelings would be gratitude to the man who had helped me. Singularly enough, what I thought about was my lost cross, a little gold trinket not worth $5. As soon as I got my breath I said:

"Oh, my cross! I fear I shall never see it again."

"Your cross?"

"Yes. I dropped it near here. I was looking for it when I stepped beyond my depth."

He cast his eye about him and, suddenly thrusting his hand down for an object glistening in the sunlight, picked up my cross and handed it to me.

It was impossible for me, dressed as the man was, to tell to what class he belonged. He might be a boatman or a fisherman or follow any calling pertaining to the water. He certainly swam like a duck. I hesitated a moment about offering him money for having helped me out of deep water, but finally as we walked up on to the beach I said, "If you will call at the Arlington hotel I shall have something for you."

"At what hour?" he asked.

"Well, say directly after luncheon."

He took off his hat to me and walked away, doubtless to get on dry clothes.

After luncheon I went to my room for a rest, which I greatly needed. I was falling into a doze when a waiter rapped at the door and said that a man was below who said I had asked him to call. I went to my trunk, where I kept my money, took out a ten dollar bill and told the waiter to give it to the man below. The waiter went downstairs, but soon returned with the bill.

"He says it isn't enough, miss."

I was rather taken aback; but, going again to my trunk, I got out another ten dollar bill and sent it with the first. But the waiter came back, as before, with the message, "Not enough." I kept sending additional bills until I had sent $50, but they all came back with the same message. At last I told the waiter to ask the man what would satisfy him. The reply came back:

"The little gold cross."

My surprise at this was greater than before. The man had declined $50 and asked for a gold cross which, as I have said, was not worth $5. I had no especial attachment to the trinket, so I handed it to the waiter and told him to give it to the man below.

I may have been stupid about it, but I couldn't understand the matter at all. Why a man who would take a reward for saving a life should decline a substantial one for a girl's ornament I couldn't imagine. But I was very tired and went to sleep thinking about it.

Well, I didn't see the man any more on the beach, nor anywhere else for that matter. One evening we went over to the Bellevue for the dance there. One of the girls said that a yachting party of young men were to be there, and we all got our prettiest costumes. When we reached the Bellevue the hop was in full swing, but the yachtsmen had not appeared Presently they came in.

"Well, I declare," I exclaimed, turning red as a beet on seeing one of them there, "if that isn't the man who took my cross as a reward for saving me."

"That," said a lady standing near, "is the yacht's owner; he's a triple millionaire."

"He saw me and came right up to me. I tried to slip away, for my cheeks were flaming, but he was too spry for me. Holding out my cross, he said:

"I won't keep it any longer as a reward, but I would be glad to have it for a token of our first meeting."

He Was a Good Mixer.

There used to be a popular minister in Indianapolis who was well known in Louisville. He was pastor of one of the leading churches of the city. He was built on the plan of the late Henry George, whose motto was, "I am for men." This Indianapolis preacher was what is called a "good mixer." One day he stopped in a blacksmith shop to chat with the workmen. During the visit a florid faced man of prosperous appearance came into the shop. He and the minister began chatting, but neither knew the other's line of business. They became good friends in a few minutes. Finally the florid faced man produced his card, which announced that he was in the saloon business on West street.

"Come down to my place any time," he said, "and I'll show you a good time."

"All right," replied the minister, "and, by the way, I'm running a pretty good place myself. Come and see me, and I'll show you a good time."

"I'll sure do that," said the other. "But, by the way, where is your joint?"

"My joint," was the reply, "is the First Presbyterian church. Just inquire for Myron W. Weed, the pastor, and I'll be at your service."—Louisville Times.

The Military Salute.

All salutes, from taking off the hat to presenting arms, originally implied respect or submission. Of military salutes, raising the right hand to the head is generally believed to have originated from the days of the tournament, when the knights filed past the throne of the queen of beauty and by way of compliment raised their hands to their brows to imply that her beauty was too dazzling for unshaded eyes to gaze upon.

The officer's salute with the sword has a double meaning. The first position, with the hilt opposite the lips, is a repetition of the crusader's action in kissing the cross hilt of his sword in token of faith and fealty, while lowering the point afterward implies either submission or friendship, meaning in either case that it is no longer necessary to stand on guard. Raising the hand to the forehead has also been explained as a sign that the weaponed hand is empty and in an inoffensive position, but this reason does not seem so convincing as the others.

Doing Very Well.

"How's your son making out in business?" asked the first capitalist.

"Very well, indeed," replied the other; "he's got a quarter of a million."

"Why, you started him with a million, didn't you?"

"Yes, and it's two months now since he started operations in Wall street." —Catholic Standard and Times.

---

A Choice of Calves.

The difficulties the early Virginian colonists had with their live stock is curiously illustrated by the fact that in the colony of Massachusetts Bay a red calf was cheaper than a black one, experience having shown that the former was more likely to be attacked by wolves owing, it was thought, to the wolves mistaking it for a deer.

---

Effects of Drugs.

Persons employed in india rubber factories sometimes inhale bisulphide of carbon and suffer from frightful dreams of being murdered or of falling over precipices. Opium stimulates imagination; alcohol in excess excites dread and suspicion; hasheesh, from which the word assassin was derived, produces homicidal mania. These drugs have a distinct effect upon the moral sense. Sometimes, as from alcohol, a coarse and stupid brutality is stimulated, or, as from morphia, a gloomy and morose temper, or, as from cocaine, while the manner remains gentle, the victim develops thieving and lying habits.

---

Blind Justice.

We meet our philosophical friend and observe that he is smiling contentedly.

"What has gone wrong now?" we ask.

"Nothing has gone wrong," he explains. "Something went right. Spriggans owed Hennett $10,000 and put his property in his wife's name so that Hennett couldn't collect."

"But that isn't anything unusual."

"And last night Mrs. Spriggans eloped with Hennett!"—Life.

PARIS PLUMBERS ON STRIKE

Twenty-five Thousand Demand an Increase in Wages.

Paris, Aug. 2.—Twenty-five thousand plumbers and gas fitters struck for higher pay and shorter hours. All plumbing work is suspended.

Training For a Crash.

"That man is always anxious to get into the spot light," said the observant citizen.

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum, "but he doesn't discriminate. One of these days he's going to stand in front of a locomotive headlight and not realize his mistake till he is run over."—Washington Star.

Labouchere's Sarcasm.

Of Gladstone Henry Labouchere once remarked, "I do not object to Mr Gladstone occasionally having an ace up his sleeve, but I do wish he would not always say that Providence put it there."

---

An Obliging Father.

A man who grew rich had a son of whom he disapproved, and when the son was married against the father's wishes the father made him an allowance of $20 a week and said that was all he could have.

Awhile later he was discussing the matter with a friend of his pioneer days. "Do you think $20 a week is enough for the boy?" he asked.

"Well," replied the friend judicially, "I don't know about that."

"It's a darn sight more than we had when we started in," argued the father.

"Perhaps it is," said the friend, "but you must remember that times have changed. We used to dig clams for our dinner."

"By George," said the father, "I guess I have been too severe with him! I'll be kinder in the future. I'll buy him a spade and show him where the clams are."—Exchange.

His Conciliatory Way.

Mr. and Mrs. Pickaway, although really fond of each other, had frequent quarrels owing no doubt to infirmities of temper on the part of both. Mr. Pickaway was telling his troubles to his elderly maiden aunt.

"I try to be as good a husband to Bertha as I know how to be," he said, "but we don't seem to get along. It takes so little to irritate her, and when she starts to scolding she never knows when to stop. She takes offense, too, at such little things."

"Then don't say those little things, Joshua," said his aunt. "When she is cross you must try to be conciliatory."

"I am conciliatory, Aunt Betty," he answered. "I often say to her, 'Bertha, I know the utter uselessness of trying to reason with you, but will you listen to me just a minute?' and she gets mad even at that."—Youth's Companion.

They Like Fat Girls In Tunis.

A Tunisian girl has no chance of marriage unless she tips the scale at 200 pounds, and to that end she commences to fatten when she is fifteen years old. She takes aperients and eats a great deal of sweet stuff and leads a sedentary life to hasten the process. Up to fifteen she is very handsome, but at twenty what an immense, unwieldy mass of fat she becomes! She waddles, or, rather, undulates, along the street. Her costume is very picturesque, especially if she be of the richer class. She is clothed in fine silks of resplendent hues of a bright red, yellow or green and wears a sort of conical shaped headdress, from which depends a loose white drapery. Turkish trousers and dainty slippers, the heels of which barely reach the middle of the feet, complete the costume.

Mythical Creatures of Japan.

The Japanese believe in more mythical creatures than any other people on the globe, civilized or savage. Among them are mythical animals without any remarkable peculiarities of conformation, but gifted with supernatural attributes, such as a tiger which is said to live to be a thousand years old and to turn as white as a polar bear. They also believe in a multitude of animals distinguished mainly by their size or by the multiplication of their members. Among these are serpents 800 feet long and large enough to swallow an elephant, foxes with eight legs, monkeys with four ears, fishes with ten heads attached to one body, the flesh of which is a cure for boils. They also believe in the existence of a crane which, after it has reached the age of 600 years, has no need of any sustenance except water.

Blamed the Last One.

A man who from all appearances had dined well, but not wisely, bought a ticket at the box office of a theater where a farce was being produced in German. The man settled comfortably back in his seat, smiling at the pretty stage setting and evidently prepared to enjoy an evening of pleasant diversion. After a time he began to look worried and leaned forward in his seat.

"Strangest thing ever sperienced," he muttered.

A few minutes later he left the theater. At the door the ticket taker offered him a return.

"Nope; don't want it," he said as he brushed it aside. "Guess that last drink went to my head. Can't understand a blamed thing them people a-sayin'. I'm goin' home to bed."—Philadelphia Times.

Shot His Own Hens.

Two neighbors kept hens and quarreled because they scratched each other's potato rows up. One sold his hens unknown to the other, who made a large run and fastened his hens up, saying:

"Now, the first hen I see in my garden I shall shoot."

Next day he saw a hen scratching as usual, so he got the gun and shot it and then threw it over his neighbor's fence, saying:

"Take your hen!"

The hen was picked up, taken in and cooked.

The following days the same thing happened. Still the neighbor took them up and said nothing till the seventh came over and hit him on the head. Then he picked it up and threw it back at his neighbor, saying:

"Eat your own old hens! We are tired of eating them and prefer a little pheasant. I sold my hens over a month since!"—Pearson's Weekly.

The Medium.

"Papa, what is the person called who brings you in contact with the spirit world?"

"A bartender, my son."—Exchange.

Alleged Wife Murderer Was on Steamer Montrose.

MISS LENEVE ALSO ARRESTED

Dressed as a Boy Former Stenographer Found in Company of Long Sought Dentist.

Father Point, Que., Aug. 1.—Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen and Ethel Clara Leneve, his stenographer, who fled from London after the disappearance of Belle Elmore, the doctor's wife, were arrested here aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Montrose at the command of Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard.

The identification of the long sought fugitives on board the fog shrouded steamer by the English detective, who had raced across the Atlantic ahead of the Montrose, marked the culmination of one of the most sensational flights in recent criminal annals. Accompanied by two Canadian officers he boarded the vessel and fifteen minutes later both man and girl were locked in their staterooms, Crippen broken in spirit, but mentally relieved by the relaxed tension; the girl, garbed in boy's clothes, sobbing hysterically. They were no longer "Rev. John Robinson and son," as booked from Antwerp on July 20.

After a brief delay the Montrose continued her 160-mile journey up the river towards Quebec, where jail awaited the pair. Crippen is charged with the murder of an unknown woman, believed to have been his actress wife. The girl is held as an accessory.

Canada Thistles And Sulphate Spraying

Experiments with Canada thistles and iron sulphate spraying at the University Farm, St. Anthony Park, have conclusively shown that sulphate of iron solution, properly applied with force, in form of spray, will destroy the leaves and stems of the weed, and so far hold their growth in check as to prevent ripening of seeds. Spraying has a weakening effect only on the roots of the plant and does not injure the grain, but gives it a chance to mature with less hindrance from the weed. To eridicate the weed is the great problem. The most practical way thus far discovered for thoro elimination of Canada thistles is to mow the thistles close to the ground, when in full bloom, and plow ground very shallow—two or three inches—in August. Disc it thoroughly and harrow so as to expose the roots to sun and air. Gather and burn all the that can be seen. Having great vitality, roots, seemingly dry and dead will grow when conditions become favorable. Drag and disc ground weekly in Aug. and Sept. and sow it to winter wheat or rye. This crop may be pastured in April and May succeeding, plowed under in June and ground planted to a cultivated crop. Sorghis said to be an excellent smother.

He Got Badly Left.

Experiences of a correspondent of a Nuremberg paper go to show that the German adulteration laws are drastic He says: "A French friend sent me four bottles of burgundy. After paying the duty I was informed that all wine coming from abroad has to be analyzed. As my consignment included two kinds of wine a double analysis was necessary, and for this I paid a fee of $9.24. As the end of a week I received first a certificate attesting that my wine was pure and, second, the case in which the bottles were sent I was also informed that two bottles had been required to form the basis of each analysis and that consequently there was no wine left. I am naturally grateful to the state for the precautions taken to guard my health, but I cannot help thinking I am entitled to the empty bottles. Surely these were not also analyzed."

BALLINGER VISITS ST. PAUL

Secretary of the Interior Says He Has Been Lied About.

St. Paul, Aug. 2.—Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, thinks he is one of the worst maligned men in public life. He says so—says it quickly and abruptly. Then he meditates a moment and says it emphatically, using such words as were not in the vocabulary of men before the days of Moses and the Bible.

"I have been lied about a lot," he said. "I have been framed up against. Garfield, Pinchot and that whole bunch have had their hammers aimed at me and have been trying to raise ——." He finished the sentence all right, but Colonel Roosevelt once declared such words unprintable.

The Man With the Iron Mask.

The Man With the Iron Mask was a mysterious French prisoner of state, whose identity has never been satisfactorily established. He was closely confined under the charge of M. de St. Mars at Pignerol in 1679, at Exiles in 1681, at Sainte-Marguerite in 1687 and finally was transferred to the Bastile in 1698, where he died on Nov. 19, 1703, and was buried the following day in the cemetery of St. Paul under the name of Marchiali. Dumas made him a twin brother of Louis XIV.

Twenty-five Injured in Crash.

New York, July 16.—Twenty-five persons were injured in an accident on the Manhattan approach of the Queensboro bridge over the East river when a crowded car from North Beach with a theatrical party aboard crashed into the rear of a Flushing car. All of the injured will recover.

MAYOR GAYNOR SHOT

A dastardly attempt was made last Tuesday morning to assassinate Mayor William J. Gaynor of New York. The would be assassin was James J. Gallagher, a discharged city employee who chose as the opportune time to do his cowardly deed just the moment when the Mayor, on board the Liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, stood ready to sail for a month's vacation trip abroad.

The mayor was in the midst of a circle of city officials who were biding him Godspeed on his trip when the assassin sought to strike him down. The Gaynor party was posing for a photograph, when Gallagher pushed his way to the mayor and whipped out a 38-caliber revolver. As the mayor staggered back Robert Adamson, his secretary, struck Gallagher's arm into the air, while at the same instant Commissioner William H. Edward's lunged forward with his 300 hundred pounds of bulk and dealt the man a crashing blow in the face. As he went to the deck, a shot wounded Edwards in the arm. A desperate struggle ensued, Gallagher fighting like a manic and pulling at the trigger in an effort to fire again.

"I've got him. I've got him!" shouted Edwards as he wrenched the weapon from Gallagher's hand, while on top of the two men a dozen others were piled in a struggling heaving mass. Henry Geering, a special officer of the North German Lloyd line, rushed up with handcuffs, and the nippers were snapped over Gollaher's wrists.

The Mayor was escorted to a cabin and bandaged and has gained strength gradually and there are hopes of his recovery.

Mayor Gaynor has demonstrated to New York that many reforms were possible and his affliction is certainly to be regretted.

COUNTY DIVISION.

The only real argument used by the Red Lake County Bosses with the north end farmers is that they will have heavier taxes to pay when Pennington county is estblished, that the same officers will be necessary to run the new county and that the expenses will be practically the same as it now takes to run the whole of Red Lake County.

Under ordinary circumstances this question would be one for the farmer to consider but in this case it should not and will not have any weight at all with the voters of the territory comprising the proposed county of Pennington.

The present county management, which is and always has been under the control of the south end has so persistantly ignored the rights of the people and has been so extravagant and reckless in the use of the funds entrusted to them and in other ways proven themselves incompetent and unfit to represent the people of a county the size of Red Lake. For these reasons the farmers of the north end have decided to stand solidly for division and no argument can change that decision. They realize that with such men as Wold, Aubel and the other worthy men selected as commissioners for Pennington County they will get a square deal what they do pay in taxes, be it more or less, they will get the benefit of it.

No, gentlemen, your past record is such that your argument will have no weight with the intelligent voter. We may be friends as neighbors but never as members of the same family. A number of those belonging in the south end admit that we have not been treated fairly and we have no assurance of fair play in the future. Let every reader study the matter carefully and become convinced that by division, and in no other way, can you ever get any real benefit from what you contribute in the way of taxes.—Eleven Towns.

Your Own Misfortunes.

Bear your own misfortunes with half the resignation that you bear other people's and you will be happy. It is so easy to tell other people how to be heroic and so difficult to be courageous ourselves.

A Slight Change.

Slight changes sometimes make a great difference. "Dinner for nothing." would be agreeable, for instance; not so, "Nothing for dinner."

His Wish.

Tom—I wish this ten dollar bill was a ten dollar debt. Dick—Heavens! Why? Tom—I'd never get rid of it.—Cleveland Leader.

SEN. HANSON'S PLATFORM

TO THE VOTERS OF THE SIXTY-FIRST LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT:

Four years ago you nominated and elected me to represent you in the state senate. In announceing my candidacy at that time I made known to you my position on the questions that were being considered, as follows:

"I favor and will support, if elected, the extension of the primary nominating system to include all state officersand United States senators; the enactment of a reciprocal demurrage law; prohibiting the issuing to and use of railway passes by all state, legislative, judicial and county officials whether elective or appointive; reduction in freight, express and passenger rates; increasing the power of the railroad and warehouse commission; thorough control and regulation of all corporations; taxing of corporation property in the same manner as all other property; redistricting of legislative districts of the state so as to give to the Northern part of the state its proper representation in the state legislature; local option by counties in the granting of licenses to sell intoxicating liquors; the enactment of a more stringent pure food law; liberal support of the state sanitorium for care and cure of consumptives; liberal support of schools, educational institutions, drainage, good roads, and for state development; the safe-guarding of state timber and mineral property; the re-electing of Knute Nelson as United States Senator. I will put forth my best effort to secure the enactment of any other legislation that would be to the best interests of the people of the district and state.

In becoming a candidate for re-election I wish to respectfully submit that I supported every measure mentioned in that statement and endeavored to the best of my ability to fulfill every promise made therein and on all other measures that came up I voted for or against them on the merits of such measure. I voted for the Initiative Referendum! the nomination of United States senators by direct vote of the people; the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment granting equal suffrage; a tonnage tax on iron ore; reform of the rules; and the distance tariff. I opposed every measure proposed which, in my judgment, was not in the interest of the people of this district and state. I assisted in defeating the million dollar appropriation asked for the holding of a "Semi-centennial Exposition" at the State Fair Grounds; also the one hundred thousand dollars asked for the "Alaska-Yukon" and the fifty thousand dollars asked for the "Jamestown" expositions. I opposed every raise of salary, except that of governor and county commissioners, and every expenditure of the peoples money except for necessary and useful purposes. I also opposed the county bonding bill, taking away from the people the right to say whether or not the county board should issue bonds. In opposing this bill I was fully aware that I was incurring the displeasure of the "big interests" in some of the counties in my district, but as I was there as the representative of the people I considered that I had no right to vote to allow their county boards to bond them without their consent. I believe the opposition to my reelection is largely based on my opposition to this county bonding bill and because I favor county option. I know that I am criticized as not having accomplished anything and the reasons assigned are that I am not a good mixer and that I created antagonisms. I believe that I can say without fear of truthful contradiction that I supported as much legislation in the interest of the people and opposed as much that was against their interest as any member of the Senate. I believe, too, that I can count as my personal friend every member of that body who stood for legislation in the interest of the people.

If you shall again decide to nominate and elect me to represent you I will continue to stand for such legislation as will be for the best interests of this district and state. I will do my utmost to secure a fair and just re-apportionment of the legislative districts of the state at the next session of the legislature, to take effect before the election of 1912. I believe that the state lands should be classified and that the agricultural lands should be appraised and at all times open to entry and purchase on liberal terms on condition of residence and improvement. A constitutional amendment permitting a change in the handling of state lands should be submitted to the people so as to permit this.

It would be only exact justice for the state to aid in drainage and in building roads and bridges and in the support of schools in those counties from which it has received incomes from the sale of Internal Improvement and Swamp lands and in which it still owns large tracts of such lands It was the purpose of the federal government in donating such lands to the state to have the state so improve them as to make them fit for cultivation and for the building and supporting of homes upon them.

I favor: Agricultural and industrial instruction in all schools of the state and liberal state support for that pur-

The Steel gang moving.

The steel gang that has been at work laying steel east of here during the past six weeks yesterday completed all their work as far as the grading has been done. The steel is now laid out from this place a distance of thirty miles but as the graders still have considerable work to do on this end the laying of steel will have to be suspended. The crew from here will go to Ladysmith, Wis. where they will be kept busy the balance of the season. The laying of steel on the Plummer—Moose Lake line will be completed from the other end and as there is less than fifty miles left to lay the work can easily be completed this fall. If the grading had been completed as per contract the laying of steel would have been competed by Sept 15th at the latest.

Many Uses of Sand.

The sands of the sea are singularly useful. They are of primary importance in glassmaking. They have an important place in warfare, as a bank of sand twenty inches thick is proof against modern rifle shots. The electrical properties of sand show that it has positive electricity, although a rod of silica, the chief constituent of sand, is negative.

The singular drying effect which occurs when a stretch of wet sand is pressed by the foot is due entirely to an alteration in the piling of the sand grains. Normally the grains are close together, but abnormal piling is brought about by pressure of the foot, the space between the edges of the grains being enlarged and the water drained away. If the pressure of the foot is continued the sand becomes wetter than ever, the partial vacuum quickly bringing water from the surrounding sand.

In quicksand the moving character is thought to be due to the imprisonment between the grains of gases from organic matter.—Chicago Tribune.

Lodging House at Jamaica, L. I., Destroyed by Fire.

New York, Aug. 6.—Seven lives were lost in a fire which destroyed a three-story lodging house in the foreign section of Jamaica, L. I. The blaze started in a hallway, the only exit, and spread so rapidly that few of the inmates had an opportunity to escape.

The dead, five men and two women, were all foreigners. They were asleep at the time and were all suffocated by smoke as they lay in their beds.

Candidate for Re-election

SENATOR

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the district.

Ada, Minn., May 3rd., 1910.
A. L. Hanson

The attempted assasination of Mayor Gaynor was not a step toward political freedom. The more violence the less freedom.

C. W. Johnson has filed to succeed himself as Clerk of the District Court. He has no opposition for this office as yet but there is plenty of time for several more fellows to get into the game.

Ben Christianson has filed for Judge of Probate. Mr. Christianson is an able and honorable gentleman and as he will make a smart campaign there will be some tall hustling for the judeship.

Gustav G. Kindseth of Red Lake Falls, has filed as a candidate for County Treasurer. Mr. Kindseth is an able and worthy gentleman and will receive much support in the North end if no new candidate appears

Peter Matson is mentioned as a candidate for Judge of Probate of the 14th Judicial District to succeed Judge Watts. If he is any good at all he would certainly get a big vote and his chances for defeating Judge Watts would be better than ever.

We publish this week a lengthy statement by Senator A. L. Hanson of Ada, in which he sets forth his position on all the leading issues. The Senator has been accused of being unable to do much for his district. It may be true that Mr. Hanson is not the most eloquent speaker or the most intriguing politician bnt he stands absolutely right on every issue of importance to this district at this time. It is our opinion that no man is better fitted to wear the senatorial toga during the coming session than is Senator Hanson. He was a member of the last legislature and is acquainted with the affairs of law making, and his record is absolutely above reproach. A vote for Senator Hanson is a vote for a man who will stand for what he considers right at every point without any consideration of his personal interests.

Political Starter.

The address given last Monday evening by Hon. H. O. Bjorge was interesting and instructive. Mr Bjorge will certainly make an inpression if he goes to congress.

The people of Plummer were given there first treat along the political line, when Hon, Bjorge candidate for the Republican Nomination for Congress made an address on national issues, He discussed particularly the Tariff question and how a just and unjust tariff affects all the different classes of people. There was no lack of coroborative figures in his agrement and his logic was clear and pointed,

Ed A. Aubol, residing on lots three (3) and six (6) in section twenty-nine (29) in township one hundred fifty-three (153) north of range forty-three (43) west of the 5th principal meridian, in said proposed new county.

Daniel Shaw, residing in the City of Thief River Falls in said proposed new county.

Olaf Larson, residing on the south half of section eight (8) in Township one-hundred fifty-four (154) north of range forty-five (45) west of the 5th principal meridian, in said proposed new county.

Whereas, the said petition represents and avers that the said hereinbefore territory comprises more than four hundred square miles, and contains more than two thousand inhabitants, and that the remaining area of Red Lake County after deducting the territory hereinbefore described, will comprise more than four hundred square miles and contain more than two thousand inhabitants; and

In witness whereof, I have here unto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be hereto affixed, at the Capitol, in the City of St. Paul, this twelfth day of May, A. D. 1910.

pose; the best possible protection against the recurrence of forest fires; the loaning of the trust funds of the state within the state so as to aid in its development; a one mill road and bridge tax and in order to make it available to the counties most in need of assistance I favor the repeal of the constitutional requirement that a county must tax its people two dollars to be expended on roads and bridges every dollar that it gets out of the "State Road and Bridge Fund"

I will support a reasonable appropriation for advertising the state's advantages to actual settlers. It is however my judgment that it would be a far better investment to spend a much larger amount for the betterment of the people now living in the state. If they can be made prosperous and contented the question of immigration to the state will take care of itself.

I believe in the conservation and development of our state and national resources and in everything that tends to the betterment of our people. I believe in progress measures.

I am a firm believer in that all people should have a voice in their government and that a majority should rule, and for this reason believe in "county option" in the granting of licenses to sell intoxicating liquors.

I believe it is my duty if elected, to vote your wishes on all questions and believeing that your choice for United States Senator to be elected at the next session of the legislature, is Moses E. Clapp, I hereby promise if elected to cast my vote for his re-election.

If these policies and those for which I have stood in the past meet your approval, I solicit and shall appreciate your good will and support in this campaign.

Thanking you for a consideraton of my candidancy, I am,

Yours Very Truly,
A. L. HANSON.

His Critic.

What astonishes the visiting Briton most is the manner in which every kind of immigrant to the United States adapts himself to the prevailing ideas about Englishmen. In the course of conversation with the noble Italian who condescends to brighten shoes the visitor informed the bootblack that he was an Englishman—and Englishmen had a great respect for Italians and had entertained Garibaldi in grand style.

"Ingleest Ha, ha! Ingleest" said Diego in soft, musical tones. "Ha! They spic no good. Dey droppa da hlatch!"—Exchange.

Nothing perhaps produces quite so much wit from a cabman as a sense of being underpaid, which in most cases means that he has been justly paid. A lady who had been guilty of this kind of justice experienced the usual sense of discomfort when her driver straightened the palm into which she had just dropped her shilling and looked at her speechlessly. She was weakly about to add another sixpence when the cabby's sense of humor prevailed. He transferred the shilling to his pocket and smiled sweetly down at his embarrassed fare. "Course, missy," he remarked, "there was the pleasure o' drivin' you!"—London Chronicle.

Backing.

Borrowby—The scheme would be a howling success if I could secure the proper backing, and— Grimshaw—The only backing I am doing this year is out.—Puck.

Deadwood, S. D., Aug. 9.—In the United States circuit court here next month a case of much importance to this section will be tried, involving the alleged origin of many forest fires in the Black Hills.

The government has brought suit against the Burlington railroad for $42,000 damages for the destruction by fire on Labor day, 1908, at Galena, near here, of over 1,000 acres of valuable timber on the Black Hills national forest.

That the case will be bitterly contested was made evident by the stubborn defense put up by the road in the two similar cases brought by Charles Krouse and George Benner in circuit court here in June.

The government suit will also be the first one tried here in the United States courts in which the double double damage act is relied upon. If the plaintiff is successful the amount of its damages can be put at $84,000, but it is understood that in such an event the validity of the state statute on the subject, passed in 1907, will be tested in the higher courts.

Progressives Control Iowa Republican Convention.

STALWART PLATFORM KILLED

Resolutions Adopted Endorse Taft Administration for Its "Good Intentions" Only.

Des Moines, Aug. 5.—Upon the most progressive platform adopted in any state, a platform endorsing President Taft only for good intentions and lauding Senators Dolliver and Cummins for their fight in securing changes in the railroad and postal savings bank bills, the Iowa insurgents dominated the state convention.

The insurgent majority rejected the minority report of the committee on resolutions, read by former Congressman W. P. Hepburn, which lauded Taft and the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, but refused to remove from the state central committee the five standpat members, as some of the militant insurgents wished.

There was a dramatic scene in the convention hall when the two reports from the resolutions committee were read. George M. Curtis presented the majority report, which the insurgents cheered while the standpat element remained silent.

When Colonel Hepburn read his minority report endorsing Taft the younger element thought it was humorous and waves of laughter swept the convention and Chairman Dolliver was unable to keep order.

The insurgent platform was adopted by a majority of 244.

A. M. Doce of Hancock county was nominated state superintendent on the second ballot. Judges Davis and Deener were renominated by acclamation for the supreme bench.

UNION PRINTERS ASSEMBLE

Annual Convention in Session at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Aug. 9.—Great enthusiasm marked the opening of the fifty-sixth annual convention of the International Typographical union, which was formerly called to order at Dreamland pavilion. The decorated dancing pavilion was converted into a convention hall which held the 235 delegates and about 1,500 ex-delegates and visitors.

President Henderson of the local union opened the convention by introducing Ralph W. Wheelock, representative of the governor, who welcomed the delegates on behalf of the state of Minnesota. Owing to the absence of Mayor Haynes, Alderman J. D. Williams welcomed the visitors on behalf of the city.

President J. M. Lynch responded to the speakers and gave the opening address of the convention. He briefly reviewed the great advance made by the I. T. U. and referred to the improved legislation it has secured. He took to task the union "knockers," who, he declared, are getting into the limelight by paying for space in the newspapers of the country.

GRAND TRUNK STRIKE ENDS

Trainmen and Conductors Will Return to Work.

Montreal Que., Aug. 4.—A settlement of the Grand Trunk strike was effected at a final conference between Messrs. Lee and Garretson and President Hays.

All the strikers, save those guilty of disorderly conduct, will be reinstated as soon as possible. The increases as offered from July 18 become effective and date back to May 1. On Jan. 1, 1912, the standard rates of pay, as on the Canadian Pacific, will go into effect.

Washington Women Say Attack on Certain Persons Is Unfair.

Washington, Aug. 9.—In this city, where society is tinged with the foreign habits of the diplomatic set and where cigarette smoking is so common among society women that it is no longer a matter of much comment, there is a strong feeling that the anti-cigarette crusaders have been unfair in directing their criticism at one or two individual women smokers.

"Pa," said Mrs. Hathaway, "I think Howard Crook and Effie would make a good match."

"If you wish them to mate don't let them know it. Nothing keeps young people apart like trying to bring them together."

"I've no hope of their getting together. They're both so bashful they don't dare look at each other."

"Let 'em alone, and if they have a natural attraction for each other they will make it up in time. Better still, tell them that not on any account shall they fall in love, that there is a special reason why they must not marry."

"Nonsense! They're too bashful to get together anyway. I don't care to put anything else between 'em to keep 'em apart."

But Mrs. Hathaway noticed that the young people needed some spice to move them toward each other, and she concluded to try her husband's plan. She called her daughter to her one day and told her that she was not to take any interest in Howard, since on no account could she marry him. She would have said the same to Howard, but it is not a very pleasant thing to tell a young man that he must not think of marrying one's daughter, especially when that young man has shown no predilection for her. When Mrs. Hathaway had given Effie this bit of information she told her husband what she had done. At the time he was shaving.

"Pa," she said, "I've warned Effie."

"About what?"

"Not to fall in love with Howard."

"How did she take it?"

"She acted kind of funny."

"What do you mean by that?"

"She caught her breath."

"That would indicate that she has already cast covetous eyes upon him."

"You mean that the poor child is so young and innocent that the very mention of her falling in love puts her in a flutter. You must remember that Effie's only sixteen, and Howard is but nineteen—two children. We ought to be ashamed of ourselves to talk about marrying to either of them."

"You mean you ought to be ashamed of yourself. I've had nothing to do with it."

"You know just as well as I that when Howard comes of age he'll have $100,000."

"Well, my dear, I hope you'll get him for her. I'm going downtown."

A few days later conversation on the same subject was reopened by Mrs. Hathaway. Mr. Hathaway was reading his evening paper.

"Pa," she said, "those two children make me tired."

"What's the matter now?"

"Oh, yesterday I told them they might take Bob and the box wagon and go for a drive together. Effie said she didn't like driving, and Howard said he had a baseball match on hand. You needn't tell me that two young things like them would decline an offer to be together for a whole afternoon if they weren't indifferent to each other."

"I thought you said it was bashfulness."

"Well, I don't know but it is. When I told them they might go Effie turned red and Howard looked kind of queer. I mean they looked as if they wanted to, but didn't dare."

"Well, my dear, if you can't manage them I can't."

And Mr. Hathaway went upstairs to bed.

Their bashfulness or whatever it was seemed to increase instead of diminish. The "children" didn't seem to get together at all. If Mrs. Hathaway went into the room where they were she would find Howard reading a book at one end of the room, while Effie would be cutting out pictures at the other end. Then she would wonder if the child would ever grow to be a woman. If Howard was ever at the house to a meal he and Effie would sit mum on either side of the table, never venturing a remark except to one of the older people. On one occasion Howard said something and Effie corrected him. Howard averred that he was right about it. Effie offered to bet him. She was thinking what to bet him when her father, winking at her mother, said:

"Bet him a kiss, Eff."

Effie colored to the roots of her hair and Howard looked as if he were going to bolt.

"There," said Mrs. Hathaway to her husband, "you've spoiled everything. Those two children will never be easy in each other's company again."

The next time Mrs. Hathaway had anything to say to her husband on this subject—it was but three days later—her tone was changed.

"Pa," she said, "I must have some money."

"How much do you want, my dear."

"I think about $500 will do, though really I ought to have more."

"What is it to go for?"

"Why, you see, Effie hasn't had anything new for a long while and she hasn't a respectable costume to her name."

"It isn't for a trousseau, is it?"

"Yes, it is."

"You don't mean those two children are engaged?"

"No, I don't."

"Well, what do you mean?"

"I mean they've been married ever since I first spoke to you about them."

IN BRIBERY PROBE

Vice President Sherman Mentioned by Senator Gore.

SEVERAL OTHERS IMPLICATED

Curtis of Kansas and McGuire of Oklahoma Alleged to Be Interested in Indian Land Deal.

Muskogee, Okla., Aug. 5.—Carrying out his purpose to disclose all he knew concerning an alleged offer of a bribe of $25,000 for which, he said, he was asked to promote a $30,000,000 Indian land deal, United States Senator T. P. Gore told the special investigating committee of the house of representatives the time and place at which the alleged bribe was offered.

Senator Gore charged Jacob Hamon, former national Republican committeeman from Oklahoma, with offering the bribe at Washington on May 6.

Senator Gore declared that when he frowned on the proffer Hamon said the amount would be raised to $50,000. "Hamon also told me that Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas and Congressman B. S. McGuire of Oklahoma were interested in the McMurray contracts," testified Senator Gore, "and, while I am about it, I may as well tell that he said an official higher up in the government was also interested in the deal."

Vice President Sherman was named by Senator Gore as the man quoted higher up in connection with the McMurray contracts.

Gore Says He Was Amazed.

"When he named persons higher up I held up my hands in astonishment and said, 'Is it possible that a person so high in the United States government could lay himself open to such an imputation?'

"Well," replied Hamon, "that is a lot of money, you see.'"

The bribery offer, said Senator Gore, followed his opposition to the approval by congress of what are known as the McMurray contracts, which affect the Choctaw and Chickasaw tribes of Indians.

By these contracts, he said, J. F. McMurray, an attorney, and associates were to receive 10 per cent of the profits on the sale of 450,000 acres of coal and asphalt lands belonging to the Indians. As a New York syndicate stood ready to pay $30,000,000 for the lands the 10 per cent to the McMurray interests for "attorneys' fees" would realize $3,000,000, said the senator.

Senator Gore appeared before the special investigating committee, which convened here as a direct result of charges made by him in the senate on June 24.

HAMON DENIES THE CHARGE

Says He Did Not Attempt to Bribe Senator Gore.

Muskogee, Okla., Aug. 6.—Jake L. Hamon, accused by Senator T. P. Gore with having offered him a $25,000 bribe to influence legislation in congress for the sale of Oklahoma Indian lands, took the stand before the congressional investigating committee.

He denied that he at any time had been closeted with Senator Gore in the senator's office at Washington to urge the approval of the contracts.

He denied he had ever mentioned Vice President Sherman, Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas or Congressman B. S. McGuire of Oklahoma as being "interested" in the contracts, as charged by Senator Gore.

He denied he had ever spoken of a bribe to anybody about the legislation, or that he ever was interested in the McMurray contracts.

He denied that at the time the contracts were being discussed he called up Congressman Creager on the telephone at Washington, asking for an appointment, but said Mr. Creager had called him up; Mr. Creager previously had testified that Hamon asked an appointment, at which the "interest" in the contracts was spoken of.

Russian Statesman Begins Term of Four Weeks for Dueling.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—Alexander Guchkoff, who temporarily resigned his functions as president of the imperial duma in order to serve a sentence of four weeks for fighting a duel with Count Uvaroff, a rival leader in parliament, began his term in the fortress of Peter and Paul.

In a duel, which was fought Nov. 30, M. Guchkoff, then a private member of the duma, wounded Count Uvaroff slightly in the shoulder.

INDICTED ON TWO COUNTS

Officers of the United Wireles Telegraph Company.

New York, Aug. 5.—Seven officers of the United Wireless Telegraph company, most of whom had previously been arrested, were indicted by a federal grand jury on two counts—one charging conspiracy to defraud by use of the United States mails, the other charging conspiracy in devising a scheme to induce investors to buy worthless stock.

Jungle Housekeeping.

The negro housewife in the West Indian jungle finds housekeeping very easy. Fruit and vegetables grow wild all about the hut and the river abounds with fish. On wash day all she has to do is to pick a few of the berries of the soap berry tree, take her clothes to the river and use the berries as she would use ordinary soap. Even her cooking pots grow on the trees, the calabash cut in halves being used for this purpose. Calabashes are used also for bowls, basins and jugs for carrying water from the river, while the small ones make excellent cups. In the afternoon, when she is ready for her cup of tea, the negress picks half a dozen leaves from the lime bush growing at her door, boils them, squeezes the juice from a sugar cane for sweetening and the cocoanut supplies the milk. Thus she has a delicious cup of tea without depending on the grocer for it. She makes the mats for her floor out of the dried leaves of the banana, plaited and sewed together as the old country people in this country make their rag mats.

Not For Himself.

"It does me good to see a pompous man get his," said a stockbroker. "I have a friend who just about believes the Lord created the earth in seven days for his especial benefit. He has a fine home on Long Island, with a retinue of servants, but his wife is a semi-invalid, and it falls to the lot of Mr. Pompous to execute various commissions for her in the city. The other day she asked him to stop at a clothing store and get a couple of white duck jackets for the butler. I happened to be with him when he entered the store. Striding majestically up to a sallow little salesman, he said, with much impressive dignity:

"'I wish to purchase a couple of white waiter's coats.'

"'Yes, sir,' said the little salesman, 'What size do you wear?'

"Mr. Pompous got red in the face, spluttered and gurgled, and then as if fearing to trust himself to speech turned on his heel and strode from the place. He left me at the next corner and has avoided me ever since."—New York Sun.

An Experience at Hull House.

Even death itself sometimes fails to bring the dignity and serenity which one would fain associate with old age. I recall the dying hour of one old Scotchwoman whose long struggle to "keep respectable" had so embittered her that her last words were gibes for those who were trying to minister to her. "So you came in yourself this morning, did you? You only sent things yesterday. I guess you knew when the doctor was coming. Don't try to warm my feet with anything but that old jacket that I've got there; it belonged to my boy who was drowned at sea nigh thirty years ago, but it's warmer yet with human feelings than any of your confounded charity hot water bottles." Suddenly the harsh gasping voice was stilled in death, and I awaited the doctor's coming, shaken and horrified.—Jane Addams in American Magazine.

Empty Titles.

"You all know of the colonel," he said, "who got his title by inheritance, having married Colonel Brown's widow? But I once met a general who got his title neither by inheritance, nor by service, nor by anything you could mention.

"'General,' I said to him, 'how do you come by this title of yours, anyway?'

"'Why, sir,' said he, 'I passed my youth in the flour trade and for twenty-seven years was a general miller.'

"I know another titled man, Judge Greene.

"'Are you, sir,' I once asked him, 'a United States judge or a circuit court judge?'

"'I ain't neither,' he replied. 'I'm a judge of hoss racin'.'"

Fear.

Fear causes more disease than do microbes, more deaths than famine, more failures than panics. It costs more than war, is always a failure and is never necessary, said a medical man. Fear weaken's the heart's action, induces congestion, invites indigestion, produces poison through decomposing foods and is thus the mother of autopoisoning, which either directly causes or greatly aids in the production of quite 90 per cent of all our diseases.

Simplified Spelling.

"Why did you take Elnora away from school, Aunt Mahaly?" a lady asked her cook one day. Aunt Mahaly sniffed scornfully.

"'Cause de teacher ain't satisfactionary tuh me, Mis' Mally. What you reckon she tell dat chile yistidy? She 'low dat IV spell four when even a idjut 'ud know dat it spells ivy."

Not Strong Minded.

"Your wife, Clark, is, I should say, a strong minded lady."

"There you would be wrong. I should rather describe her as brittle minded."

"Brittle minded?"

"Yes; she's been giving me pieces of her mind for years."

An Easy Arrangement.

Wife—Am I, then, never to have my way in anything? Husband—Certainly, dear. When we are both agreed you can have your way. When we differ I'll have mine.

An irritable man lies like a hedgehog rolled up the wrong way, tormenting himself with his own prickles.—E. P. Hood.

MIND YOUR OWN BUSINESS

By CARL SARGENT CHACE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

If there's one thing I'd ruther do than all other things it's mindin' my own business. If there's one thing my Mandy 'd ruther do it's to mind somebody else's business. I allus tole her that the principal troubles we git into in this world is pokin' our noses into other people's affairs.

When Rogers and his wife come to occupy the form adjoining ourn I tole Mandy to let 'em alone. Mebbe she could 'a' done it if it hadn't bin thet we could hear 'em quarrelin' clean across the fields a quarter of a mile away. That started Mandy. She was continually a-listenin' and a-watchin' and a-spyin' to see if she couldn't find out somep'n.

It was about the middle of summer when Mandy's mother that lived in the adjinin' county tuk sick. She kep' a-sendin' for Mandy, but Mandy wouldn't go without me. I got in the airly crops and was gittin' ready fur the later ones. Then one day a letter come sayin' Mandy's mother was a-dyin'. That settled it; Mandy hed to go, and I hed to go with her.

One mornin' airly I put the gray mare in the buggy to drive Mandy over to say goodby to her mother. We hadn't slep' more'n half the night from hearin' the quarrelin' goin' on between the Rogerses. Jist as we got on to the road, Mandy, who couldn't keep her eyes off our neighbor's house, saw Rogers go outen his house carryin' the limp figure of a woman in his arms.

"Law sakes!" says Mandy. "He's killed her."

"Supposin' he has," says I. "'Tain't none of our business." And, whippin' up the gray mare, I druv along in a hurry so's Mandy couldn't see any more of it.

Waal, Mandy's mother was a consarned long time dyin'. Mandy wouldn't stay there without me, she wouldn't come home with me and she wouldn't let me come home without her. Consequence was we was gone a long while. After Mandy's mother died, knowin' the crops was sufferin', I got home as soon as possible. As we was a drivin' along Mandy says, says she, "Wonder ef they've discovered the murder," and I says, says I, "Jest you keep your mouth shet."

I was mighty busy after that and didn't think about nothin' but gittin' in my corn, but Mandy she went snoopin' round to find out what was known about the murder. All she could find out was that Mrs. Rogers hed gone away. She asked where Mrs. Rogers hed gone, but no one knowed anything 'bout it.

Fearin' she'd git us into trouble, I tried to stop her questionin', but it wasn't no use. She jest talked and talked till the wimmen suspicioned somethin', then they turned in and did a lot of questionin' on their side.

I stopped her jest in time to prevent her tellin' the whole story; but, considerin' she'd talked so much and nobody knowed where Mrs. Rogers hed gone, people begun to suspect thar was somethin' in it.

First thing I knowed Rogers was arrested for murderin' his wife. He couldn't tell where she was, 'cos he said he didn't know. They waren't livin' happy together, and after a bigger quarrel 'n any they'd had before she'd left him. But everybody knowed that, and Mandy 'n me knowed a good deal more. Somehow the idee hed got abroad that he'd murdered her after one o' their fights, and the authorities was determined to find out about it.

When the case was ready for trial sure enough a constable left a paper at the house, summonin' me and Mandy as witnesses.

"There you be," I says to her. "If you'd 'a' kep' yer tongue in yer head you wouldn't 'a' been pestered to tell about somep'n as don't consarn you."

"I'm perfectly willin'," she answered, "to tell what I know—it's my duty. That's what you want to shirk, Elisha; you don't appear to reckon you've got any responsibility in the gov'ment o' yer country."

"A man," says I, "as can't govern his wife's tongue isn't fit to bother his head about his share of governin' millions of men, women and children."

This shet her up fur a few minutes.

The day of the trial come on. Thar wasn't no real evidence agin Rogers—only circumstances pintin' to somep'n. I was put on the stand and questioned, but I didn't hev to say nothin' about seein' Rogers carryin' out a body jist about dawn. I'd tole Mandy, too, not to tell it if she wasn't asked. But, bein' sworn to tell the hull truth and nothin' but the truth, she out with it.

The hull court, spectators and all, was electerfied. Rogers started up to say somep'n, but he was ordered to keep quiet. Funny, isn't it, they won't let the person most interested say what he knows. Waal, the prosecutin' attorney was a-thunderin' agin the murder when the court was electerfied ag'in.

The murdered woman walked in.

"Jedge," she says, "I seen in a paper that my husband was a-goin' to be tried fur killin' me. I jist come back to say that if there had 'a' been any killin' I'd 'a' done it myself."

The court adjourned and the prisoner was set free.

"I'd like to know," says Mandy to Rogers, "whose body you carried out that mornin'."

"The crows was eatin' the corn and I wanted to stop 'em. That body you seen was a scarecrow."

From the date of the first settlement of America there was warfare with the Indians, and during the war of the Revolution there was also war with the British. But by that time the Indian fighting had retreated westward. In 1777 Harrodsburg, Ky., was surrounded by red men, and the people, not daring to go out to hunt for game, were often in great straits for food. The settlement was protected by one of those stockade forts used at that time for keeping off savages, and when they were hostile the inhabitants of the place were obliged to keep within its inclosure.

During this Indian hostility and consequent lack of food a youth of sixteen made himself invaluable by leaving the fort before dawn, hunting all day and returning after nightfall with the game he had shot. James Ray was the name of this brave boy, and he afterward became a general officer in the United States army.

One day Ray and a companion were outside the fort shooting at a mark. Suddenly Ray heard the report of a rifle and his friend fell dead. It did not require a process of reasoning for Ray to know that the shot had come from an Indian. Looking about him he saw the redskin who had killed his friend and raising his rifle was about to shoot him when there was a whoop from another quarter. Then Ray took to his heels and ran like a deer toward the fort a few hundred yards distant.

Ray was a very quick runner. The Indians could not catch him, but they followed him with a brisk fire. He reached the fort without having been hit, but found the gates closed. Those within had heard the firing, had shut themselves in and were too terrified to open the gates. Ray called upon them to let him in, but fearing that if they did the savages would follow him and massacre the garrison they refused to do so.

Ray threw himself flat on the ground, a stump covering him from the fire of the enemy. That is, the Indians couldn't hit him, though their bullets sang in such proximity to his ears as to make him think that the next would cut off one of them, or perhaps tear a strip out of his side or go through his foot. He was but half a dozen steps from the fort, within which he would be safe if he could only get there.

But this was impossible so long as the Indians were threatening him. Near enough to see those in the fort looking through the loop holes he talked with them about ways to extricate him from his position. While the bullets were singing on either side of him he was conversing with his mother. There seemed no way to relieve him except to open the gates, and by doing this many lives might be sacrificed in an ineffectual attempt to save one.

There was one in the fort who suffered as much, doubtless far more, than Ray himself. That was his mother. She looked through a loophole, where she could see him lying in his perilous position, and she could see each spurt of smoke as it left an Indian rifle, knowing that it marked the sending of a bullet to kill her boy. And Ray could not only hear the bullet sing by him and feel the dust sprinkling over him, but saw his danger reflected in his mother's face.

Hour after hour passed without any change in the situation. When it seemed impossible for him to lie any longer in one position and he attempted to change it, the consequent exposure of some portion of his body would draw more fire, admonishing him to endure the constrained attitude rather than risk a wound by trying to relieve it. The ground on each side of him was torn up in furrows by the bullets that had been shot through it, and he was covered by dust they had thrown upon him.

Night was coming on and the Indians were drawing nearer. When it became dark there could be nothing to prevent the savages from coming near enough to take him or to shoot him from a position where the stump would not protect him. For four hours he had laid in view of those in the fort, his mother trying to encourage him, yet herself needing encouragement, when a sudden thought occurred to him.

"For heaven's sake," he cried, "dig a hole under the cabin wall and take me in."

All wondered why they hadn't thought of the plan before. Pick and spade were brought, and a hole was sunk in the ground. Then when it was of a depth sufficient to excavate under the wall, a channel was run out to the young hunter and he was drawn within the fort.

Ray had no sooner emerged from the hole than he found himself hugged in his mother's arms, and the others crowded round to congratulate him. The redskins heard the shout of triumph that was raised in the fort and knew that the man they were firing at had escaped. But how? It was still light enough for them to keep in view the stump behind which he had taken refuge, and had he got up and been assisted over the stockade he would have been in their full view. The gate had not been opened. Surely the paleface had been translated into the fort by the Great Spirit.

Wreck at Erskine,

Last Wednesday evening there occurred a disasterous wreck at Erskine resulting in the loss of three lives. A collission of freight cars caused about either cars to be pilled up in a heap. Inside of some of these cars were three men who had evidently decided to get a ride without paying for it. In this case, whoever thy paid vary highly as it cost all three of the umfortunate men their lives.
Traffic was not delayed at all and the work repairing was commenced without delay. This should certainly be a lesson to men who are in the habit of riding in box cars.

"Yes, sir. I"—

"Then," said the crocodile, "by our agreement I shall keep him, for if you have told the truth I am not going to give him back, and if it is a lie I have also won."

GOVERNMENT TO PROSECUTE

Will Try to Reclaim Title to Indian Lands.

JOKER IN APPROPRIATION BILL

Now a Law and One of the Principal Efforts of the Federal Attorneys Will Be to Overcome Its Effects. Department of Justice Officials Have Unearthed a Startling Condition of Affairs.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 9.—A vigorous prosecution to reclaim title to a vast amount of Indian land in Oklahoma is being planned by the department of justice for the coming autumn. One of the principal sections in prospect is to overcome the effect of an ingenious "joker" written into the Indian appropriation bill just before that measure was handed to the president for his signature.

The "joker" was discovered by Solicitor General Bowers, but it was agreed between the president and Mr. Bowers that it was too late to send the bill back to congress and that a means of offsetting the "joker" would be devised.

This "joker," which is now a law, granted the right of appeal to the United States supreme court in a case involving over 20,000 Indian contracts which had been decided in favor of the government by the court of appeals of the Eighth circuit. As the matter had been taken into the circuit court on a demurrer the defendants had no right of appeal to the supreme court.

It is the belief of the government officials that the authority to appeal was sought and secured, not with any idea that the case might be won in the court of final resort, but simply to gain a delay of a year or eighteen months. This belief is based on the fact that the lands involved in this case are practically all coal and oil lands and every day that passes they are being stripped of these natural resources as fast as the coal can be mined and the oil pumped. A year and a half delay means millions of dollars to the claimants.

The plan to offset this move by the possessors of the land is to apply to the United States court in Oklahoma for a receiver for the lands just as soon as the autumn term begins. In this way the court will exercise full control over all the operations and secure the benefits to the final successful litigants.

Startling Condition of Affairs.

In investigating the contracts by which it is contended the Indians have been defrauded of lands granted to them by the government it is said that the department of justice officers have unearthed a startling condition of affairs involving many persons, which will come out fully when the cases are heard. The government is fighting the cases hard for the Indians and once the lands are reclaimed it is proposed to further protect them if congress can be prevailed upon to do so.

The defendants in some of the actions that are pending have offered unique legal propositions to be met by the government. In the first place, they claim that having granted the land to the Indians, the government has not the constitutional right to restrict this land. The court of appeals decided against this claim, however.

It is now argued in another case that the Indians have been granted citizenship in the state and congress has no right to act respecting them.

The government is preparing a novel answer to this suit. It will be contended that, while the Indians may have been granted the right of citizenship under the United States, they do not become citizens under the Fourteenth amendment providing that persons born in and under the jurisdiction of the United States or naturalized were citizens of the United States and of the state in which they resided. It will be claimed that the Indians were not born under the jurisdiction of the United States, but under their tribal jurisdiction. The United States deals with the tribes, but never with the individuals. The outcome of this contention will be watched with particular interest.

President Taft has told several of his callers recently that he was fully acquainted with Vice President Sherman's attitude as to the Indian contract cases involved in the pending Oklahoma investigation caused by the Gore charges, and that he knew the vice president was opposed to allowing the b'g fees to attorneys in connection with the alleged attempt at bribery.

ANTI-CIGARETTE CRUSADE

Washington Women Say Attack on Certain Persons Is Unfair.

Washington, Aug. 9.—In this city, where society is tinged with the foreign habits of the diplomatic set and where cigarette smoking is so common among society women that it is no longer a matter of much comment, there is a strong feeling that the anti-cigarette crusaders have been unfair in directing their criticism at one or two individual women smokers.

YIELD SURPRISES FARMERS

Wheat Crop Larger Than Had Been Expected.

Grand Fork N. D., Aug. 16.—Harvesting is rapidly coming to an end in this section of the state, only the late wheat and some of the very late oats and the flax remaining to be cut. Threshing operations were carried on quite extensively during the past week and will be general this week. Some of the threshers are having difficulty in getting enough men to make up full crews, but a large number of machines are now starting the season in earnest.

Yields generally are surprising and are much in excess of the estimates made earlier in the season. The reason is that very few realized how well the heads had filled or how unusually long they were as compared with the length of the straw. Not only this, but the grain is exceptionally plump and heavy, some samples of the early threshing weighing up to sixty-two pounds to the bushel, remarkably fine in color and grading up to the top notch.

Some fields in this vicinity have yielded as high as twenty-eight bushels to the acre, but these cases are exceptional. However, much of the wheat that was estimated at six to eight bushels to the acre is giving ten to fourteen and even up to eighteen bushels.

Queer, but the man who doesn't need credit is the one who can most easily get it.—Portland Express.

Out on the New Line.

C. C. Jackson accompanied Subt. Michaels on a trip over the new Duluth line of the Soo last week. They went thirty three miles east of Plummer and Mr. Jackson says that they passed through a fine farming country and that the crops were looking fine. He believes that Clearbrook will make the best town on the line between here and Bemidji. —T. R. News.

Will Quit Meat Market

Mr H. H. Finrow has decided to quit the meat business and will close up his meat market as soon as he has disposed of his present stock. He gives as his reason that there is not a sufficient amount of business to make it pay. This will be a great loss to Plummer in as much as it is not likely taht any one else will start in this business and the village will be without a meat market.

Mother and Babe Drown

In an automobile accident at Oslo, caused by the steep grade to the approach to the ferry across the Red river, Mrs Rasmus Hage of Warren and her eightmonths-old child were drowned and Mr. Hage and a twelve-year-old girl narrowly missed death.

Hage, with his wife and child and the child of a neighbor, left Warren early in the morning for Halstad in an automobile, and, while endeavoring to leave the ferryboat at Oslo up a steep incline, the machine refused to work and slipped back. After catching the slip of the engine three times, Hage who was driving, gave up the battle and the car, with its occupants tore down the little hill into the river, burying all of the occupants, beneath the wreckage.

Hage and the twelve-year-old girl were rescued from beneath the car, but Mrs. Hag and her eight-months-old baby were drowned, the bodies not being recovered for some time.

ROOSEVELT AND GRISCOM SILENT

Refuse to Divulge the Result of Their Conference.

CARRIED MESSAGE FROM TAFT

Chairman of the New York Republican County Committee Bore a Communication From the President to the Former Chief Executive—Believed Colonel Roosevelt Has Not Altered His Programme.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 16.—No tidings went forth from Sagamore Hill at the conclusion of the conference between Theodore Roosevelt and Lloyd C. Griscom, chairman of the New York Republican county committee. The county chairman is known to have been the bearer of a message from President Taft and it was generally supposed that the message was sent in the hope of obtaining Colonel Roosevelt's outspoken support for a move to obtain harmony within the Republican party.

Colonel Roosevelt would not allow interviewers to get any closer to his house than the tennis court at the bottom of the hill.

In spite of Colonel Roosevelt's reticence it is believed here that he has mapped out a programme which does not include, for the present at least, a definite endorsement of the Taft administration. There is good ground for the belief that the visit of Mr. Griscom did not cause him to alter his opinion.

Not Sent by the President.

Mr. Griscom was not anxious to make it appear that he had come to Sagamore Hill as an emissary from the president. He not only said that the president had not sent him, but he added that Mr. Taft did not know that the conference was to be held.

"How do the views of President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt coincide, in reference to national politics?" Mr. Griscom was asked.

The county chairman paused for some time before he replied: "I did not discuss national politics to any great length with President Taft."

"Are they agreed as to the New York state situation?"

"Yes. I have discussed candidates and platforms, and the whole New York state situation with both of them, and their views coincide."

Mr. Griscom said that no names had been mentioned prominently for the gubernatorial nomination, although a good many had been considered.

Many Frightened by Strange Letter.

The Sun re-publishes the following letter taken from the Stevens Point Gazette, not as a matter of news, veracity or injunction but rather as a periodical curiosity. The Gazette says:

" Papers thruoghout the United States are printing what is alleged to be a letter written by Christ.

In this letter was an injunction that it should be published to the world by whoever found it, together with the statement that misfortune and bad luck would follow the person having posession of it in the event that it was not publicity.

There was likewise a promise that whoever may have a copy of this in his or her possession will prosper and be followed by good fortune.

The Gazette has received some hundreds of request to print this letter, so if it will relieve the superstitious fear of anyone here it is:

According to the history of the letter it was written by Chist just after his crucifixion, signed by the Angel Gabriel ninety-nine years after the Savior's birth and presumably deposited by hem under the stone at the foot of the cross.

On this stone appears the legend, "Blessed is he who shall turn me over."

No one knew what the inscription meant or seemed to have sufficient curiosity to investigate, until the stone was turned over by a little child and the letter which follows was discovered:

"Who so ever works on the Sabbath day shall be cursed, I command you to go to church and keep holy the Lord's day, without any manner of work. You shall not idle or misspend your time in bedecking yourself in superfluities of costly apparrel and vain dressing for I have ordered it a day of rest. I will have that day kept holy that your sins may be forgiven you.

"you will not break my commandments, but observe them, they being written by my hand and spoken by my mouth. You shall not only go to church yourselves, but also your man servant and your maid servant. observe my words and learn my commandments.

"You shall finish your work every Saturday at 6. o'clock in the afternoon, at which hour the preparation for the Sabbath begins. I advise you to fast five days following in rememberance of the five bloody wounds I received for you and mankind.

"You shall love one another and cause them that are not baptised to come to churbh and receive the Holy sacrament, that is to say baptism and then the supper of the Lord, and be made a member thireof and in so doing I will give you long life and many blessings. Your land shall be replenished and bring forth abundance and I will comfort you in the greathst temptation and surely he that doeth to the contrary shall be cursed.

"I will also send hardness of the heart of them and especialy on hardened and unpenitent believers. he that hath given to the poor shall find it profitable. Remember to keep the Sabbath day, for the seventh day I have taken as a resting day to myself.

"And he that hath a copy of this letter written by mine own hand and spoken by my own mouth and keepeth it without publishing it to others, shall not prosper, but he that publicheth it to others shall be blessed by me and if their sins be as many as stars at night, and if they truly believe not this writing and my commandments will have my plagues upon you and you will be consumed with your children, goods and cattle and all other worldly enjoyments tnat I have given you. Do but onee thiuk of what I have suffered for you, if you do, it will be well for you in this world and in the world which is to come.

Whosever shall have a copy of this letter in the house and keep it, nothing shall hurt them, neither pestilence, thunder or lightning, or if any women be in birth and put her trust in me will be delivered of her child. You shall hear no more news of me except througe the Holy Scriptures, until the day of judgment. All goodness and prosperity shall be in the house where a copy of this letter shall be found. Finished."

The story goes that a littse child who found it passed it to ona who became a convert to the Christian faith. He failed to have the letter published He kept it however as a sacred memento to Crist and it passed down to different generations of his family for more then one thousand years.

During this period the family suffered repeated misfortunes, migrated to different countries until finally one of them came here to America, bringing the letter with them. They settled in Virginia, then moved farther south, still followed by misfortune when finally the last member, a daughter, approachyd her death bed and called a neighbor, Mrs Thomson, giving her the letter and related its history for more then one thousand years. The Thomson women began the attempt to have it published and it first appeared in the Rome, Ga., Tribune on Oct. 31, 1891. It then appeared in the Dalton, Ga., Citizen and Mrs Worthman, now living in Marion, Ind., clipped it and kept it in her possession for many years without any effort to have it published. She was followed by misfortune which she attributed to her neglect in trying to have the letter published.

Mrs Ruby Crutchfield of Trzavant. Tenn. is also said to have had a copy and failed to make an affort to have it published for three years, and was followed by a varied lot of misfortunes which she attributed to the fact of her neglect in thid respect.

PRICE REDUCED IN CONCEQUENCE.

Statistics secured by the government at Washinghton show that the women of the United States are wearing more than ever American made silk in preference to that from the looms of France and other foreign countries.

The value of the silk sold in the states last year is estimated at $165,000,000 of which sum $132,000,000 were paid for American silk, the bulk of whice, no doubt, were produced in New Jersey. The silk industry has been built up under a protective tariff the price of a silk dress has been reduced in consequence, so that the multitude of women instead of the few con purchase and wear it if they choose.—Camden N. The rule is that the less a man knows the more he thinks he knows.

Goods well bought are half sold; but goods well bought and well advertised are completely sold.

When a man rides on a railway train or a street car and has to stand up while he is doing so, he should be entitled to a rebate on his transportation of not less than twenty-five percent. This we believe would be just both to the transportation company and to the traveler.

Candidates are not very numerous in this county. It would in some instances almost seem as tho there is to be no contest whatever. What can be the matter? Is it that men who otherwise might be candidates consider that the county is so nearly broke that they fear they may not be able to get their salaries.

Florence Nightingale is dead. Florence Nightingale, the Angel of Crimea, the beloved of all England, the woman who gave not alone her wealth but herself to better the condition of the sick and suffering soldiers, the woman who raised the nursing profession from degradation to the noblest of all professions, the woman who deserves above all, her name of the "Soldier's Friend" has departed and her memory only is left. But such a memory one which any girl might emulate, she stands an ideal in her self-sacrificial life and her name will continue to be that of one of the world's great women.

Many Bears Killed

Bear stories are getting as common as "fish stories" but those recently brought in and the truth of which have been vouched for credit John Sorum of Silverton with the killing of 3 or 4 of the animals and Mr. Bye of the town of Star has also gotten a call from the bears. The largest bear reported was one killed by Peter Thune of the town of Smiley it weighing 400 or 500 pounds, but the most thrilling bear adventure is credited to Nels Larson of Grand Plain township who found a large she bear and three cubs in his pasture one day last week. He had a pitchfork along with which he drove the bruin quartet home where he got a rifle and quickly dispatched the trespassers.

Fire Doing Damage

Fires have been raging in the territory northeast of here for about ten days and large areas of fine grass lands have been burned. Grass that would have made thousands of tons of hay have been laid in ashes some haystacks have been burned and farmers' grains and buildings have been imperiled, and it is reported that at some places where the soil is of somewhat peaty composition it has ignited and is burning down to the subsoil beneath.

Some desultory attempts have been made to control them but to very little effect, as the fires are still raging.

A man by the name of Anderson has arrived from the state department to take charge of the work but so far as we are informed he has done nothing as yet to assist the local wardens nor the suffering farmers. When he calls on them it is to be hoped that they will all realize that it is a duty they owe the state to go at once and give him all possible aid in controling and extinguishing these fires.

CRITICISES THE PROGRESSIVES

Declares That They Desire Protection for Their Constituents, but Favor Lower Duties for Others—Illinois Man Does Not Believe That President Taft Would Like to See Him Retire—Expects to Be Re-Elected.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—The Inter-Ocean prints an interview with Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives, in which he denounces the progressives, says that he will be a candidate for the speakership of the next house and declares that reports of a contemplated reorganization of the Republican party originated with progressives and Democrats.

Referring to the dispatches from Beverly, Mr. Cannon said:

"I don't believe Mr. Taft contemplates any such action. The president is not the kind of man to yield to every passing whim of a minority. The story that Senators Aldrich and Hale and myself were to be thrown out of the party will be found, when traced to its source, to have originated with some of the insurgent-Democratic allies, whose wishes are father to the thought.

"I expect to be re-elected to congress by an overwhelming majority and then I will be a candidate for speaker, but always subject to the will of the people. If I am beaten in the caucus, which I believe is remote, I will willingly take my place in the ranks."

Answering the question, "Will you be a candidate for re-election as speaker of the next house?" Mr. Cannon made this statement:

"I have been asked that question frequently, especially by our Democratic friends and their practical allies, the followers of La Follette and Cummins. I have answered it, but so far the answer as I gave it has never been published by our friends, the enemy.

"I am speaker of the house, elected by a Republican majority four times. I have been in harmony with and have to the best of my ability cooperated with the Republican majority in the legislation that has been enacted for the last seven years, during the administrations of Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft.

Candidate for Speaker.

"I know of no reason, personal or political, that would prevent my being speaker again if a majority of the house of representatives should so desire. Under these conditions, pending a campaign, I could not upon the demand of the enemy, pledge in the event of my re-election to congress, that I will not be a candidate for speaker, without acknowledging that the record of the house during the past seven years is subject to criticism and that the Republican majority, with which I have co-operated in the enactment of legislation, is subject to just criticism.

"This I will not do because I believe that the record of the party for the past seven years should be endorsed and not condemned."

Mr. Cannon then devoted his attention to the insurgents.

"The senators and representatives who call themselves 'insurgents' and who voted against the enactment of the Payne bill, voted to increase or maintain the duties on the industries and products of their own states and sections," he declared. "They were protectionists for their own people, but were opposed to protection for other people in other sections.

"Senator La Follette did not vote to increase the duties on lead and zinc, but he defended the finance committee's schedules on those products in speeches, saying they were not high enough, explaining, however, that he could not vote on the question because, he said, he had a personal pecuniary interest in the outcome.

"Senators La Follette and Bristow and the other so called insurgents voted to increase the duty on barley and barley malt for the reason their constituents produce barley In other words, these gentlemen, who call themselves 'insurgents,' voted with the Republicans on schedules that protected the product of their constituents and with the Democrats on schedules that protected the products of other sections of the country."

Whistler's Ways.

It was Whistler's custom when drowsy to go deliberately to sleep, no matter where or what the circumstances might be. At one dinner party his gentle snore suddenly aroused his neighbor, who nudged him violently with his elbow. "I say, Whistler," he protested excitedly, "you must not sleep here!"

"Leave me alone!" snapped Whistler. "I've said all I wanted to. I've no interest at all in what you and your friends have to say."

One evening he was my guest at dinner at a hotel. Edwin A. Abbey was also there. Right after dinner Whistler went calmly to sleep. On the way to the theater he enjoyed another nap in the cab, and he slumbered peacefully through the greater part of the play. The next morning he blandly asked me: "What did Abbey have to say last night? Anything worth while?"—Century.

Judging from the size of the cream checks the patrons of the Plummer Creamery are receiving we predict that within 5 years there will not be an acre of good land anywhere within 10 or 12 miles of Plummer to be had for less than $ 40 or $ 50 per acre Red Lake county is fast getting to be know as one of the best dairy counties in the state of Minnesota and the immigration agents and Rail Road Companies predict that there in this county this coming year (1911) there will be the greatest movement in land with sales principally to actual settlers from southern Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois that this country has ever seen and they are certainly in position to know whereof they speak.

Explorer Is Preparing for His Flight Across the Atlantic.

MAKING PRELIMINARY TRIALS

Wellman Expects to Cross the Atlantic in September.

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 16.—Walter Wellman, aviator and Arctic explorer, has left for Atlantic City to commence a series of preliminary flights in his dirigible balloon up and down the coast preparatory to his flight across the Atlantic next September.

Wellman's ship is on the Zeppelin type, but pispenses with the inner braces; is 228 feet long and equipped with two eighty-horsepower engines and one ten-horsepower.

LOSS TOTALS MILLIONS

Brussels Exposition Partially Destroyed by Fire.

Brussels, Aug. 16.—The Brussels Universal International exhibition is virtually at an end as a result of the fire which wiped out two-thirds of the buildings and exhibits and entailing a loss that is estimated at from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000.

No lives were lost, but at least forty persons were injured in the stampede in the Bruxelles Kermesse, a sort of American "white city."

The fire, which resulted from a short circuit in the telegraph building, completely destroyed the Belgian and British sections and practically ruined the International gallery, in which were the exhibits of America, Austria, Russia, Denmark, Norway, Japan, Turkey and Switzerland.

The French section was also virtually destroyed. This section was filled with priceless works of art, of which those that escaped the flames were ruined by smoke and water.

The flames were not checked until they had reached the Italian section, which was slightly damaged. Practically the whole of one side of the Avenue des Natione, the central thoroughfare of the exposition grounds, was wiped out. A number of houses were also burned.

Millions of dollars' worth of diamonds, laces, tapestries and art works were destroyed.

The loss of these is what swells the total to such tremendous figures, as many of the art stores and galleries of the old world had been ransacked for the benefit of the exposition.

HAD POLITICAL INFLUENCE

Why Cecil A. Lyon Was Asked to Join in Land Deal.

Sulphur, Okla., Aug. 14.—What part Cecil A. Lyon, national committeeman of Texas, took in the activity at Washington for the approval of the old tribal McMurray contracts for the sale of Indian lands was described by Mr. Lyon in the hearing before the congressional investigating committee.

These contracts were disapproved by President Roosevelt in 1908. The new contracts, which are the cause of the present investigation, Mr. Lyon said he has no interest in.

Asked if he was requested to join in the old contracts because of his political influence and acquaintance with President Roosevelt Mr. Lyon said:

"It is entirely possible."

Mr. Lyon then told of his going to Washington and of his failure to have the contracts approved.

IS VICTIM OF TUBERCULOSIS

Joe Gans, Former Lightweight Champion, Dies at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Aug. 11.—Joe Gans, formerly lightweight champion pugilist, is dead.

Gans died of consumption, which manifested itself about a year ago. Late last spring he went to Arizona, with the hope of restoring his health, but the disease had been too deeply seated and he declined rapidly. He was brought here last week to die. He was thirty-four years old.

Gans won the title of lightweight champion from Frank Erne at Fort Erie in one round in 1902 and lost it to Battling Nelson in 1908

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

Famous Nurse of the Crimean War Is Dead.

FAMOUS NURSE PASSES AWAY

Florence Nightingale Succumbs to Attack of Heart Failure.

London, Aug. 15.—Florence Nightingale, the famous nurse of the Crimean war, and the only woman who ever received the Order of Merit, is dead at her London home. Although she had been an invalid for a long time, rarely leaving her room, where she passed the time in a half recumbent position and was under the constant care of a physician, her death was somewhat unexpected. An attack of heart failure brought the end.

THOUSANDS DROWNED

Hordes of Others Homeless and in Want of Food.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—With hundreds of dead bodies caught in the collapsed structures in the east section of Tokio, 600,000 Japanese homeless and near 6,000,000 starving in the prefectures adjacent to Tokio and Yokohama, as the result of the floods, prayers for mercy are ascending in the great temples in Japan.

The government's effort to give aid to the shelterless hordes of men, women and children and the futile efforts of the civil authorities to bring order out of chaos, have been pitiable when compared with the tremendous disaster brought in the cities and towns of the Hondo low lands. From Takasaki and Karasisawa on the north to the Shiduozoka river on the south, the sea has reached out and claimed the land, laying great stretches of water over fertile lands, destroying lives, wiping out homes, demolishing residences and further impoverishing the peasantry.

The total number of dead cannot be ascertained until communication with the interior is restored. The most conservative estimate is 3,000.

Passes Half Million Mark.

Washington, Aug. 16.—The population of Pittsburg is 533,905, an increase of 82,393, or 18.2 per cent, as compared with the combined population of Pittsburg and Allegheny of 451,512 in 1900.

GAYNOR IMPROVES

Wounded Mayor of New York on Road to Recovery.

HIS CONDITION NEAR NORMAL

Temperature, Pulse and Respiration Are Satisfactory, but the Bullet Has Not Been Removed.

New York, Aug. 16.—"One more day and we will be able to call Mayor Gaynor a convalescent," was the declaration at St. Mary's hospital in Hoboken. The patient's condition continued satisfactory when he awoke in the morning from his seventh night on a hospital cot. His attendants were frankly cheerful and more optimistic than on any previous occasion.

The physicians will watch the passing of the day with keen interest, for with its safe conclusion the dreaded bugbear of a "crisis" will be practically over and they will allow themselves to consider recovery assured. The official bulletin was as follows:

"Mayor Gaynor has passed a good night and slept well. He has taken nourishment well and is in good general condition. Temperature, 99 4-5; pulse, 70, and respiration, 16."

The police are engaging themselves with the theory that James J. Gallagher, the wound be assassin, may have had an accomplice. Gallagher denies this, but a man with a police record is under suspicion.

Mayor Gaynor will be taken to the Adirondacks just as soon as his condition permits, but whether he will undergo an operation to remove the bullet before his trip to the mountains has not been fully determined.

AGAIN CALLS OUT TROOPS

One Thousand Militia Ordered to Columbus, O.

Columbus, O., Aug. 16.—Preparations are being hastily made to rush 1,000 soldiers into the city following the orders of Governor Harmon calling out the troops. The action was taken because of the increased rioting in the carmen's strike on the street railway here, the union carmen demanding a recognition of their union.

The announcement that troops were again called out after the dismissal last week of the 3,200 soldiers who served on strike duty here for ten days created much excitement on the streets. The ten days' service of the 3,200 troops which ended last week cost the state $150,000.

WILL REACH IMMENSE SUM

Graft in Construction Contracts on Illinois Central.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—The new graft investigation of the Illinois Central railroad in connection with the letting of grading and construction contracts may reveal stealings which will rival the car repairing operations, according to Chicago men in close touch with the latest inquiry.

Local officials of the railroad were inclined to discount the reports that as much as $1,000,000 had been stolen from the road in construction work on the Southern lines. They, however, said that the inquiry had not gone far enough to determine the amount.

GERMAN SHIP YARDS TIED UP

Thirty-five Thousand Men on Strike for Higher Wages.

Hamburg, Aug. 14.—The shipbuilding industry of Germany came to a practical standstill with the addition of thousands of workers to the strike that was started recently in this city. The yards at Stettin, Lubeck, Fensburg, Rostock, Bremen, Kiel and Bremerhaven are tied up. There are approximately 35,000 men on strike.

The strikers demand an increase in wages of approximately 15 per cent, which the shipbuilders say they cannot meet.

ARMY SAFE CARRIED AWAY

Thieves Secure $6,500 of the Government's Money.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 12.—An army paymaster's safe containing $6,500 was stolen from the maneuver camp at Pole Mountain, twenty-five miles west of here, and carried away.

There is no trace of the robbers, although an extra heavy guard was on duty. When Captain W. T. Wilder arrived the first of the week with the money for the troops the safe contained $80,000.

SAYS HOME WAS WRECKED

Montana Cattleman Fatally Wounds Alleged Betrayer.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 15.—Alleging that his home had been wrecked, Dell Reed, a prominent cattleman of the state, shot and fatally wounded William Cohen and then calmly motioned to a policeman on the corner to place him under arrest.

In his cell Reed declared that he had shot Cohen as a warning to men not to steal the wives of other men.

TO FIGHT FLAMES

Additional Troops Sent to Montana Forest Region.

RAIN ON THE PACIFIC COAST

Forest Fires Extinguished There After Causing Damage Aggregating Several Millions.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 16.—As a result of extensive forest fires in Western Montana two more companies of soldiers will report to Supervisor Bunker of the Flathead National forest. One will be stationed at Gary and the other at Poala.

The condition at Wallace no longer is believed to be dangerous.

A forty-acre fire is reported from the Crazy mountain portion of the Absaroka forest. The situation there is not serious, but on the Cabinet forest reserve conditions are grave.

Forestry officials have a report that twenty horses and a force of men are marooned somewhere in the Clearwater country. Their exact location cannot be ascertained.

The Kootenai forest is threatened by a blaze having a twelve-mile front.

A bad fire has broken out in the Bitter Root forest and the state militia may be called out if the situation grows more acute.

Explosions Bring Rain.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 16.—At Wallace, Ida., hundreds of pounds of dynamite hung to the limbs of trees on the high points surrounding the city and exploded in the hope that the effect might produce rain to check the forest fires is said to have a result, for at midnight rain began falling for the first time in two months. The fall has been heavy.

Loss Will Reach Millions.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 16.—Until a general rain comes to break the long dry period it is evident that the forest fires now raging in a score of districts all over the Pacific Northwest will remain a serious menace. The loss at present can be counted only in millions, but how many can scarcely be guessed. The forecaster gives no hope for rain.

Brush Fires Checked by Rain.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 16.—Heavy rains which fell through Northwestern Washington checked the brush fires which have been burning since early in the summer and the rangers believe there will now be little difficulty in keeping the fires under control.

CRUSHED BY FALLING WALLS

Mayor of El Paso, Tex., Killed While Warning Others of Danger.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 16.—W. E. Robinson, mayor of El Paso, lost his life while endeavoring to warn a number of firemen of imminent danger from a tottering wall. At the same time Todd Ware, a fireman, was instantly killed and William Robinson and Dave Sullivan, also firemen, were injured.

The casualties followed a fire which broke out in a dry goods store. Mayor Robinson, who had watched the fire, left the sidewalk and approached the building to instruct the firemen to stop further work on the unsafe walls.

As he approached the building a large portion of brick wall buckled and fell, crushing Robinson and Ware and knocking the other men down. Mrs. Robinson witnessed the accident from the sidewalk.

FRANCE HAS TOO MUCH RAIN

Wine Output Will Be Only One-third as Much as Usual.

Paris, Aug. 16.—Further reports have been made to the minister of agriculture of the destruction wrought to the wine crop in the northern part of France by protracted rains of the last few weeks.

In many sections of France's best producing grape country the vineyards will yield practically nothing this year. These sections include much of the famous "champagne country," and it is now believed that there will not be more than a third of the usual output of the better grades of champagne this year. Already the price of wines is soaring.

CHOKES TWO MEN TO DEATH

Athlete Makes Short Work of Alleged Robbers.

Marine, Ill., Aug. 16.—John Burton, an amateur wrestler of Alton, Ill., choked two men to death with his bare hands, following a quarrel. Burton had come here to engage in a contest. He is under arrest, but claims that his two victims attempted to rob him.

Gus Wentz and Lewis Welbrecht are the men whom Burton killed. The latter is a powerful man, six feet three inches in height and weighing 220 pounds.

Three Children Drowned.

Menominee, Mich., Aug. 16.—Eva Riengren, aged twelve, Hazel Lindholm, aged thirteen, and William Riengren, aged nine, of Crievitz, fell into the water and were drowned when a raft on which they were riding separated in segments.

THAT MONKEY WRENCH

By ELSIE B. MATTESON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

This bit of heroism was an actual occurrence.

Molly Tryne was born to the clicking of telegraph keys. Her father was an agent at a station on the O. B. and G. railroad, and from the time Molly was five years old nothing delighted her so much as to sit in his lap and with her little hand under his on the key send messages. Then when she knew they were real messages that were being sent she would be delighted.

"Now, dear," he would say after sending an order for a train to come on, "you've ordered up '17,' and she'll be here in ten minutes, or when the hand of the clock stands there."

Sure enough, when the hand pointed to the designated figure the train would steam up to the station.

As Molly grew older her father taught her the Morse alphabet, and when one day she sent a message all by herself her pleasure knew no bounds. She continued to practice and to learn, and by the time she was fourteen she was of great assistance to her father.

A year later Tryne fell ill and died. Molly was by this time so well versed in telegraphy that the managers of the railroad continued temporarily her father's salary to her mother, Molly selling tickets, operating the wires and acting as dispatcher. Of course she could not go to school, but, being ambitious to learn, she studied at home, which meant in the ticket and telegraph office. One night she had her books before her studying when, hearing a rap on the window, she looked up and saw the ugly face of a man.

"What do you want?" she asked, her heart leaping up into her throat.

"Open the window!"

Molly sat still, not knowing what to do. As to opening the window, she had no thought of that.

"Open the window or I'll kill you!"

Molly sat looking at him. She may have been paralyzed by fear. Anyway, she made no move to throw up the sash.

The man smashed a pane of glass with his fist and put his arm through the opening to unloosen the catch, but not finding it or because he didn't know how it worked he concluded to try to effect an entrance in another way. Molly heard his steps as he went around to the door which opened on the other side of the station. Running from the office, she was at the door before him and locked it. Then she ran back to her clicker and called for help.

In a few moments she had caught a station where a freight train had just pulled in and told the operator there that a man was trying to break into her office. She had hardly got her message through and received word that help would be sent at once when the man appeared again at the window.

And now Molly rose to the occasion like a true heroine. On her desk was a little nickel plated monkey wrench, glistening for all the world like the polished barrel of a pistol. Seizing it and aiming it at the robber, she called out:

"If you don't go away I'll shoot you!"

The man didn't go away, but he drew back, and from his walking around the station Molly knew that he was trying to find another entrance. Meanwhile she clicked an inquiry as to what had been done for her relief and was told that the engine of the train that had come in had been detached and was coming to her assistance as fast as steam would drive it with several armed men aboard. It had left several minutes before, and since it could get over a mile in a minute it should be there in six or seven minutes.

Presently Molly heard its rattle, and the robber probably heard it, too, though not as quick as Molly, who was eagerly expecting it. Besides, he was on the wrong side of the station to hear it. Consequently when the locomotive pulled up he had barely a minute's start. Leaping from the cab, one of the men sought Molly, while the rest sought the robber. They caught sight of him running in company with two other men and, calling on them to halt, fired a shot after them to enforce the order. Every one of the fugitives was captured. Then those who had come to save the little operator assembled to hear her story. When she came to the monkey wrench that had served for a pistol they were lost in wonder. Taking the robbers back to the station the railroad men had come from, the story was told and was telegraphed all along the line. The next day trainmen and passengers, when they passed the station, if they stopped, must see the little girl who had stood off a robber, and if they did not stop crowded the windows and platforms, waving congratulations.

But a more substantial honor, or, rather, a reward, came from the president of the company. He sent an order that Molly report at the main office. She obeyed the order, and when the timid looking slip of a girl was paraded through the various departments all the employees arose and craned their necks to get sight of her. Then she was taken into the president's room.

He told her that her mother would be given a pension and that she would be sent to school. He dismissed her, with a fat check.

An Experiment

By R. PEMBERTON SLADE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

When I was surgeon on board the Allemania, making trips between Bremen and Philadelphia, as I was taking my constitutional one afternoon on the upper deck a lady sitting in a steamer chair accosted me.

"I believe you are the ship's medical man," she said.

"I am," I responded, raising my cap.

"If you will kindly sit by me I will tell you of an operation I am thinking of having performed."

I dropped in the vacant chair beside her, and she began.

"My eyes are a natural freak," she said. "You will perceive that my right eye is black and my left is steel color. I, being a woman, am very sensitive to my personal appearance. Now, I wish to talk with you of the feasibility of making my eyes the same color."

"That is impossible," I said decidedly.

"Why?"

"Why—why, because it is impossible."

"I have thought much of the matter and have conceived a plan by which I think it can be done."

"You? Do you know anything about surgery of the eye?"

"Not professionally."

"Then why do you aspire to suggest a process that an educated oculist would not even consider?"

"Because I believe it is possible."

Thinking the woman might be insane, I looked her in both eyes—for the eye is a telltale on insanity—but could see no indications as to what I suspected.

"Very well," I said. "What is your process?"

"I propose to tattoo my gray eye with India ink."

I was at first disposed to smile at the idea, but it soon occurred to me that if the India ink could be placed beneath the surface of the cornea, as it may be tattooed under the skin—Nonsense! Does not the pupil contract and dilate? When much contracted it would leave a ring of the original color.

"My dear young lady," I said, "your scheme is preposterous."

"Nevertheless I shall try it."

"And lose your eye."

"That is my only fear. But I have decided to take the risk."

Finding it impossible to dissuade her or induce her even to wait till she reached port, where she could be knocked out of her crazy idea by an oculist, in order to save her from the probable consequences of her experiment I said:

"The cornea of the eye is not sensitive. Indeed, it is really a casing to the eye, something like an onion. Now, I would suggest, since you will not listen to reason, that I tattoo some harmless fluid of the proper color on the eye as near as possible to the pupil. True, it will soon be absorbed, but it will be a test to guide us as to whether it will be safe to repeat the operation with a durable filling."

"How long will this experimental fluid remain?" asked the lady.

"Several days perhaps, possibly longer."

"The very thing! Will you perform the operation?"

"Not unless you refuse to promise that you will not do it yourself."

"I certainly shall do it myself unless you consent to do it for me."

"Well, then, whenever you are ready come to my office."

The lady did not come to me till the day before we were due in port. It seemed absurd to attend to a matter about which there was not the slightest necessity for haste, and I made a strenuous attempt to persuade her to defer the operation till after she had landed. But she resolutely persisted in her intention to perform it herself before a glass if I declined, and, knowing that this, especially on a rolling ship, might result in the loss of the eye, I finally gave in.

Taking a lot of needles, I tied them into a bundle, dipped them into a harmless vegetable preparation and tapped the eye with their points ever so lightly. This I kept up till the surface to be covered was so nearly of the hue of the other eye that the difference could not be easily detected.

The next day when the lady went ashore she was profuse in her thanks and volunteered to advise me of the success of the experiment. I told her I should be interested to hear it, though, to tell the truth, I never expected to hear from her again, regarding her one of those many cranks who appear to be perfectly sane, but in whose makeup some screw is loose.

A couple of weeks later I received a letter, the handwriting of which was not familiar to me. Indeed, it bore evidence of having been disguised. It read:

> My Dear Doctor—I am happy to report to you that the experiment was admirably successful. The tattoo lasted about ten days, which was all that was required. The customs officers had a description of me, their attention having been especially directed to my one gray and one black eye. They were watching very carefully when I descended the gangplank and spotted me for everything except the eyes. Thanks to you I got $50,000 worth of diamonds through duty free. Your fee by express.

The letter was unsigned. The next day I received a package containing a fine diamond, which I had mounted for a solitaire stud.

After that I refused any request of a passenger unless I understood the reason for its asking.

Wreck on the New Line.

Last Thursday the Engene and Tender on the working train east of Plummer left the rails. It was on a big swamp where the train was going to stop, than the track gave away at one side and the Engene tipped over in the ditch. The working crew started to load up some ties and rails to send out there to make a side track to run the Engene on the track again.

Maternal Instinct.

"Children that yell like that ought either to be gagged or kept at home," remarked the irascible gentleman with the white beard to the bus conductor.

"And faces like the one wot you're scarin' people with," chipped in the mother of the noisy infant, "oughter be made into door knockers or sent ter the chamber o' 'orrors."

The gentleman with the patriarchal face fungus took a brick red complexion. "I know it's awkward at times"— he commenced.

"It's more'n awkward; it's nothin' short o' 'orrible," snapped the lady, as she once more glanced at the sorry elderly man's set of features.

When the rest of the passengers tittered audibly the old gentleman came to the conclusion that it behooved him to speak to the point.

"I mean the child"— he tried once more.

"Aud you didn't mean it no good." returned the lady, "else you wouldn't a looked at it."—London Ideas.

The Expense of a Wife.

A wife is a decided addition to the demands upon one's purse. In that sense, however sensible and managing she may be, she is expensive. But everything worth having has its price of one sort or another, and there are some things which cost much without which life is hardly worth living.

Said Thiers: "Most men contemplate making some self denial when they marry. They think they will give up such and such expensive pleasures. Later on, when they discover that they cannot do so, and at the same time they lack the means to indulge, they complain that it is the extravagance of their wives which causes the inconvenience."

Aunt Sally Henderson was the widow of a farmer. She was a bustling little woman with a babyish look. She kept a hired man on the farm and a hired girl in the kitchen, but she was a boss and a worker as well. She was kind to wayfarers and a liberal contributor to the unfortunate, and she was ready to take advice on all points but one. There she was singularly obstinate and seemingly foolish.

During his lifetime Farmer Henderson had been the victim of a bank failure. True, he lost only $17 in it, but it was a lesson to last him the rest of his days and to be handed over to his wife when he departed. She had been a widow for three years, when a sister died and left her a thousand dollars in cash. There was then a private banker in the nearest village, and he was spoken of by all as God fearing and strictly honest. There were people who had known him from infancy, and they vouched that there was not a blot on his character. When Aunt Sally got her thousand she was advised to bank it. She declined. After she had been talked to by her neighbors, her minister, the justice of the peace and others she did consent to drive into the village one day and take a look at the banker. He looked good to other folks, but after five minutes Aunt Sally turned from him and said:

"I wouldn't trust that man with a single dollar!"

"But why?" was asked.

"Because he toes in when he walks. You take my word for it, he'll turn out to be a rascal."

She was laughed at, but she said no toe-in banker for her thousand dollars. She'd keep it in the house. Of course she was warned of the danger of robbers, but she smiled in her baby way and replied that they could come on as fast as convenient. In a month it was known pretty much all over the county that Aunt Sally Henderson had a thousand dollars in the house. Some said it was buried in the cellar, others that it was hidden in the garret, others still that it was in a trunk under her bed. With everybody talking there was bound to be results.

It was a big tramp who came limping along the highway at sundown one day and talked of his hunger and afflictions. Besides his limp he had his left arm in a sling. No friends, no home, nothing in the future for him. He wept as Aunt Sally questioned him. He was fed and given quarters in the barn. At midnight he came out of the barn without his limp or his sling and raised a kitchen window and stepped in. As he stepped in he also stepped into a beartrap yawning for Weary Willie, and the jaws closed on one of his legs. He was a big man, and he made a fuss according to his size. Aunt Sally dressed and came out of her bedroom and had him carried out on the lawn. There he was tied up and the trap removed, and she said she would see him later. After breakfast his case was attended to. The hired man brought up some blue beech gads, and while he laid them on Aunt Sally stood by and sang "Shall We Gather at the River?"

The next comer floated in from the village. He was traveling with a circus as a seller of pink lemonade. Although he was making 500 per cent on his liquid he sighed to get rich faster. Hearing of that thousand, he walked out to cooper it and buy some cold storage stock. No kitchen window for him. In the first place he was too tony, and in the next he found a parlor window open. It looked good to him. He went in. The same beartrap was there. Aunt Sally had simply shifted it. The victim had a good voice on him, and he used it to arouse the house. He was taken out and laid on the grass as the other had been, but when morning came his punishment was a bit different. The rain barrel at the corner of the house was full, and he was lifted up and ducked until he had swallowed about half the contents and was nearly drowned in the rest. It was the hired man and girl who did the ducking.

The last attempt on that $1,000, so far as heard from, for the widow still lives and keeps it in the house, was a pretty fair plot. A stranger called and introduced himself as a minister, who wanted board in a quiet place for a month while he composed half a dozen sermons and rested up. He toed in, but Aunt Sally took him in and determined to watch. One afternoon at the end of the second week she had to spend an hour at the barn with a sick horse, and he was left to finish a sermon on the sin of dancing and circus going. When she came back to the house he was hunting among the cobwebs of the garret for an old oyster can holding a thousand dollars. He claimed to have gone up there to be nearer heaven, and his claim was not disputed. He was tied up, however, and lowered down the well. It was a deep well and a cold well, and he had no fur coat. He was left there for three hours, while the widow sang "Beacon Lights" for him. He was then hauled up and thawed out with a thorough good licking, handed his manuscripts and headed out into the world. He had flashes of heat and cold as he went, and he heard Aunt Sally singing "Watchman, What of the Night?" until he was half a mile away.

A Brougham Pun.

John Brougham was celebrated for his ready wit, and a story is told of him and Pat Hearne, who was the Canfield of his day. Hearne was a big man and addicted to flashy waist coats. In one of his parts Brougham made up to resemble Hearne and wore a particularly loud and gaudy waistcoat. Hearne's friends persuaded him to go to see the play, anticipating considerable amusement at his expense. As they were coming out of the theater he was asked what he thought of Brougham's performance. "Not a bit like me. Why, I wouldn't own such a waistcoat." Brougham, hearing this, said, "I see; he wouldn't acknowledge the Pat-Hearne-ity (paternity)." — "Recollections of Lester Wallack."

Dead as a Doornail.

The phrase "dead as a doornail" originated in this way: In early days, when door knockers were common, the plate upon which the knocker struck was sometimes called a nail. In the course of years it was struck so often that all life was supposed to be knocked out of it; therefore when it became necessary to refer to anything hopelessly lifeless it was merely an emphatic expression to say that it was "as dead as a doornail."—Home Notes.

FIRST STATE BANK OF CLEARBROOK

This week Ole O. Deld assisted by Arnold Jensen has been busy erecting a temporary building for the First State Bank of Clearbrook, on the new Soo line in Clearwater county, until their new quarters are ready for business, which will be built of brick when the lots are sold. The bank will be open for business the latter part of this, or first part of next week, providing the fixtures can be brought out. L. Jensen will be cashier.

That the Clearbrook bank is built on something solid and substantial in the business world, a glance at the men behind the gun is all that is necessary. They are: President, S. S. Stadsvold; vise president, Lewis Lohn; cashier, L. Jensen. Directors, A. D. Stephens, S. S. Stadsvold, Lewis Lohn, A. Kaiser and L. Jensen.

More Whiskey Confiscated.

Bemidje, Aug. 25.

N. A. Way, deputy Indian agent, came in last night and this morning said that Friday night he had confiscated forty-five gallons of whisky and twelve cases of beer which were being hauled into Park Rapids in a wagon driven by N. V. Spenser.

Mr Way said, " I have traced this shipment to Bemidje and know the saloon which sold the whiskey. Say for me that Bemidje will soon be in dry terrstory if this kind of business is not stopped at once. I traced the goods by the revenue stamps."

Stolen Horse and Buggy.

Horse and buggy was stolen in Polk county the first part of this week by Joe LaMonlange. He is about 25 years old; dark complexioned, and very short built. The horse is a light bay with star in forehead; small white spot on tip of nose, white hind legs dark mane and tail. The buggy is an open run about dark body and dark red gear. The harnes is a black rubber trimmed. Which way he is going they dont know.

The man behind the Plow

I am not so much at singing, as those high falutin chaps.,
My voice it may be husky,
and a little loud perhaps.
For I have been a plowing with a lazy team you see,
That's kept me busy with my "get up, whoa, haw, gee,
But if you'll pay attention,
to what I have to say,
About a great mistake you make and do it every day,
In deling out your praises,
and I want to tell you now,
To often you forget the man behind the plow.

Talk about your learned man,
your wit and wisdom rare,
Your poets and your painters,
they get praises everywhere,
They are well enough to make a show, but will you tell how
This world would ever do without the man behind the plow.

It's very nice to go to school,
to learn to read and write,
It's nicer to dress up fine
and sport around at night,
Your music, painting, poetry,
may all be hard to beat,
But tell me what you are going to do, for something good to eat?

You say my boots are muddy,
my clothing is too course,
I make a good companion
for the oxen or the horse;
My face is red, my hand is hard,
too true I will allow,
But don't be quick to spurn
the man behind the plow.

I like your great invention,
I am glad you are getting smart,
I like to hear your music for it kind o'stirs my heart;
But twill never touch the stomach
of a hungry man,
And so I call attention to the kind of things that can.

Then boys, don't be too ready to leave the good old farm,
Father's getting feeble now
he'll need a youthful arm,
If honest in your purpose at your feet all must bow,
For the greatest of great men is the man behind the plow.

ROOSEVELT LOSES

Rejected for Chairman of New York State Convention.

COMMITTEE TURNS HIM DOWN

Vice President Sherman Selected for Place Over Former President by Vote of 20 to 15.

New York, Aug. 17.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's name was presented for the office of temporary chairman of the coming Republican state convention at the meeting of the Republican state committee, but his selection for that honor was lost by a vote of 20 to 15.

Vice President James S. Sherman was named as temporary chairman of the convention by unanimous vote, following the defeat of the motion to make Colonel Roosevelt the temporary presiding officer.

The state committee selected Saratoga and Sept. 27 as the place and time for the convention.

After the time and place of the state convention had been chosen William J. Barnes, Jr., of Albany offered a resolution presenting the name of Vice President Sherman for temporary chairman. Lloyd C. Griscom moved to substitute the name of Colonel Roosevelt and also moved that the vote be postponed until later.

Roosevelt's Name Rejected.

After much debate the motion to postpone was defeated by a vote of 12 to 23. The resolution to make Colonel Roosevelt temporary chairman was then lost by a vote of 20 to 15, following which Vice President Sherman was unanimously chosen, Lloyd C. Griscom and Henry Mack of New York not voting.

Commenting upon the action of the committee in rejecting the name of former President Roosevelt Mr. Griscom said:

"I presented the name of former President Roosevelt after conferring with him. The place of the temporary chairman was obviously his, not only by virtue of his having been president of the United States, but by the signal services rendered by him to the Republicans in New York state.

"Mr. Roosevelt was anxious to engage in the political campaign in this state and his name at the head of the convention would have lent extraordinary prestige to the meeting and been of incalculable value to the party throughout the state."

STATEMENT BY ROOSEVELT

Makes Known His Attitude In Regard to Chairmanship.

New York, Aug. 17.—Colonel Roosevelt issued the following statement:

"To the various persons who asked me whether I would accept the position of temporary chairman of the state convention I said that I would do so only if they were sure, after knowing my attitude, that they desired me, because my speech would be of such a character that it might help if the convention nominated the right kind of a man, on a clear cut progressive platform; but that it would hurt if neither the right kind of a man were nominated nor the right kind of a platform adopted."

CLEAN SWEEP IN CALIFORNIA

Late Returns Indicate Progressives Elected Entire Ticket.

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—With the continuing of the official canvass and the receiving of late returns from remote districts indications are that the Lincoln-Roosevelt league, the champion of progressives in California, elected its entire ticket at the primary election.

In the contest on the advisory vote, by legislative districts, for United States senator, late returns indicate a slight plurality for John D. Works. Supporters of Allen G. Spalding claim the endorsement for their candidate, declaring he has captured fifty-three out of the 100 districts, which would oblige his party representatives in the legislature to vote for him regardless of Works' plurality of votes.

LONGWORTH AGAINST CANNON

Ohio Congressman Will Oppose the Speaker's Re-Election.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 19.—Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio gave out a statement in which he says he will never support Speaker Cannon again and that he does not believe Mr. Cannon ever can be re-elected. This is regarded as the actual beginning of the real fight on Mr. Cannon.

The fact that the statement was given out immediately following the conference at the summer White House regarding plans for the coming congressional campaign is taken here as indicating that President Taft as well as Vice President Sherman is behind the movement to eliminate Mr. Cannon.

Girl Seriously Burned

Serena Offtedahl, a young lady employed in the laundry of the Soo Cafe, was dangerously burned last Friday morning. It was first thought that she could not recover, but the danger point is past and her recovery is assured.

Serena was in thelaundry in the basement of the Grundy building and while engaged in filing a gasoline tank she accidently got some gasoline on her clothes and these were later ignited when she struck a match to light the torch her clothes caught fire and burned until she had run all tre way to the Cafe kitchen. Her breast was severely burned and little hope of her recovery were at first entertained. She was taken to the hospital and given the best care possible and she has improved so much as to be beyond danger. The young ladies parents reside near Holt and as they have been in this country but a short time this shock makes it doubly hard for both them and Serena.

Just because Alaska only cost us about two cents an acre is no reason why the Gugenheims should steal all of that part of it that is worth $50,000 an acre.

If the "interest of the people" were looked after one-tenth as much after election by ambitious politicians as they are heralded in party platforms and political announcements, we would have a condition of affairs in government that even Frank Day could tolerate.

Scott County Argus: He told his twelve-year-old son to milk the cows, feed the horses, slop the pigs hunt up the eggs, feed the calves catch the colt and put him in the stable, cut some wood, split the kindling, stir the cream, pump fresh water, in the creamery after supper, and be sur to study his lesson before he went to bed. Then he went to th farmer's club to discuss the question "how to keep the boys on the farm".

From the appearance of things it looks as though Billy Ham, the chief factor in the brewery combination has pretty fair control of both parties. He didn't control the Republicans two years ago, and they failed to land their men for governer. This year he is finding no fault with Eberhart. It is up to the Republicans to elect a legislature pledged not to be dictated by the brewery element. It is about time Minnesota was run by some faction besiides the liquor interests.—
Slayton Gazette.

From the evidence adduced through the raids on blind pigs, wherever they have been made it is plainly to be seen that the brewers aid them in carrying on their nefairous business by all kinds of ingeneous devices to cover up the true nature of the tariff. Yet these same brewers can, when occasion demands, put on a sanctimonious air and talk about "fair deal", nice sounding phrases. The fact of the matter isthat they are engaged in a rotten business with rotten methods, no matter from what point it is viewed;—
Hollock News.

The brewery interest do not care for re-apportionment. They know that the sooner Nothern Minnesota has a fair represantation in the legislature the sooner county option will become a fact in this state. These same interests have an interest in defeating every candidate that stands for county option. A. L. Thompson, for the house, and A. L. Hanson, for the senate, are candidates who favor both county option and reapportionment, and if elected neither will be under any obligations to the breweries They are paying their own expenses.

A common sense ruling was handed down by the supreme court of Minnesota when that body recently decided that wholesale jobbers wro sell adulterated foods to retailers are liable under the same law that holds the retailer responsible if he sells such foods to his customers. The manufacturer will now see to it that his products comply with the pure food laws. Heretoforre under the pure food law the retailer ras been arrested and fined for its violation, which in most cases was an injustice as the manufacturer and jobber often were the real offenders.

COUNTY DIVISION

The Red Lake Falls Gazette, in its last issue tries to convince the farmers that Thief River Falls business men are all thieves and robbers and in the event of Pennington County being established would control all elections, gobble all the county offices, draw their salaries and smoke good cigers at the expense of the tax-payers. They do not deny to extravangance, graft and crookedness under the present management of county officers but try to make you believe that Thie fRiver Falls business men are going to rob you so much more systematically that you will be bettr off to remain in Red Lake County. For genuine gall this exceedd the limit. It reminds us of the passenger conductor in Iowa who when caught setaling cash fares was called up by the Superintendent and told that he would have to be discharged. His argument was that they better keep him as he had stolen all he neded and would be honest in the future while if they tried a new man he would probably steal more than he had stolen. They are even worse than this conductor. They have been at it for years and are getting greedier every year and the only thing to be done is to discharge th present management of county officers and run the chances of doing better. We do not say that all our county officers are dishonest but it is a well known fact that our county affaiir are not run in a satisfactory manner and never will be as long as controlled by the present manipulators.

So far during the argument on county division we have not seen or or heard one word derogatory to the business men of Red Lake Falls. In fact from personal knowledge we are pleased to say they are gentlemen and a more hospitable town cannot be found in the state. Why should the business men of Thief River Falls be called thieves and robbers. The most of our readers are acquainted with them and know them to be honest upright gentlemen and will resent the slurs cast upon them by the Gazette.

It is not ReD Lake Falls business men we are fighting. It is the gang that controls the county affairs and the gag ule by which it is controlled. Besides who will have control of Pennington County affairs and be responsible for an honest accounting of the county funds. It will be our new board of county commisioners. Peter C. Wold; Peter Hedeen; Ed A. Aubul; Daniel Shaw and Olaf Larson and who is there who will dare say one word against the honesty and integrity of these gentlemen. Hunt the county, and over a better election could not be made with the county affairs in their handwa the farmer can be satisfied there will be no extravagence or crooked work. If our readers could all read tre article refered to and at the same time vote the fat county patronage the Gaxette monopolizes and it bills which the county pays they would see a reason for its selfish argument opposing county division. If our opponents cannot advance any better argument than they have so far Pennington County is an assured fact.

—Eleven towns.

I am an independent Democrat. I live in the largest city under prohibitory law in the world. I publish a newspaper that was the first metropolitan daily to get behind a prohibition movement, I did it on a business basis free from all mandlin sentiment. All calamities in the calender were predicted by those who opposed the sentiment I was fostering. I was called an enemy of progress and a hinderance to the best interets of city and state.

But the first year of the prahibitory law with a loss of $160,000 in licenses, our city saw an increase of licenses, our city saw an increase of the state increased $511,000. In our city of 160,000 population there were 8,311 less arrests than the preceding year. We have lived undr it three years, with all its promised horrible destructive influences, and our city has never ben as prosperous as it is today.

The city has voted $3,500,000 for water, sewers and other municipal improvements. We are building twelve modern, up-to-date public school buildings to accommodate our enormous groth in population. We have 1,400 more school children enrolled this year than last. We are building over a mile of macadamized road a day. To show you that we are not singing psalms, fasting and pining away, I will say that our city is having five performances of grand opera by the Metropolitan Opera Company, a greater number than any city in the United States outside of New York and Chicago has been able to support, these being given in an auditorium costing $200,000 with a pipe organ costing $32,000 more, the greatest pipe-organ in the United States, and all ownd by the city. One night Caruso, the world's greatest singer, sang to an audience of 7,000 people who paid $18,800 for admission.

Do these facts show that we are living at a poor dying rate or that we have lost by the act that complicated the free and untrammeled sale of alcholic drinks.

I am neither a preacher nor an evangelist and I refuse to be called a crank. I am the publisher of a plain everyday newspaper that has to depend on public esteem an dpublic sentiment for its prosperity, while it takes $1,000 a day to meet expenses and I assure you, so far as I am able to see after three years of th operation of this restraining law in my state, there has never been a more helpful influence, not only from a humane and moral standpoins, but fom a business and industrial standpoint, for labor is better and crime is less.

A Handy Snuffbox.

A curious story is told as to how the Rothschilds supported Carafa, the composer. The latter was far from rich. His principal income was derived from a snuffbox. And this was the way of it: The snuffbox was given to the author of "La Prison d'Edimbourgh" by Baron James de Rothschild as a token of esteem. Carafa sold it twenty-four hours later for 75 napoleons to the same jeweler from whom it had been bought. This became known to Rothschild, who gave it again to the musician on the following year. The next day it returned to the jeweler's. The traffic continued till the death of the banker and longer still, for his sons kept up the tradition, to the great satisfaction of Carafa.

Little Else.

A London attorney named Else, rather diminutive in his stature and not particularly respectable in his character, once met Jekyll. "Sir," said he, "I hear you have called me a pettifogging scoundrel. Have you done so, sir?"

"Sir," said Jekyll, with a look of contempt, "I never said you were a pettifogger or a scoundrel, but I said you were 'little Else.'"—Westminster Gazette.

MANY PERISH IN FIRES IN WEST

Estimated That at Least Fifty Persons Lost Their Lives In the Flames.

WALLACE PARTLY DESTROYED

Property Damage In Idaho City Will Total $1,000,000—Hundred and Eighty Fire Fighters Missing.

Missoula, Mont., Aug. 22.—Thirteen lives were lost when forest fires spread to the town of Wallace, Ida. The property loss is placed at $1,000,000. The entire east half of the town has been destroyed, but the flames are believed to be under control. Elsewhere the fire situation is worse than the earlier reports showed.

Mercilessly and relentlessly the forest fires in Western Montana and Idaho are sweeping over a vast area, driving hundreds of fugitives before them, destroying small settlements and wiping out of existence millions of dollars' worth of property.

The situation is more serious than ever, except as to Wallace, Ida., where it is believed that nearly half of the city will be saved.

Communication with Wallace to the west has been possible at intervals, but eastward it is entirely cut off. It is known that the entire east half of the town above Seventh street has been burned.

West of that a hard fight is being made, and with an improvement in the water supply there is more chance that the flames may be driven back. For a few minutes the Daily Missoulian's representative at Washington had a wire. He summarized the situation as follows:

"Thirteen lives lost; property loss $1,000,000; fire still threatening."

Elsewhere in the fire zone the situation has gone from bad to worse. The most serious incident is reported from the St. Coe country, where 180 men engaged in the forestry service are missing and it is feared they have been burned to death. When the fire approached the camp where there were 200 men, two of the fighters took a horse and riding the animal to death, reached another camp and ordered a rescue party, which penetrated the fire to Bird Creek.

Eighteen Found In Water.

Eighteen of the men were found in the water, where they had gone for safety, and they were unharmed. Of the remaining 180 no word has been received. The forestry service has organized a relief train, well equipped with pack animals, carrying provisions and hospital supplies, and will endeavor to get through the fire.

About 1,000 refugees have been brought into Missoula. There is much distress among them. Their wants are being supplied by Missoula people and they have been given temporary homes. The first of the trains came in over the Northern Pacific's Coeur d'Alene branch and brought the patients who had been in the Sisters' hospital at Wallace and as many refugees as could find place on the small train.

There were 250 on this train and a second train brought as many more. These people came from the small towns along the line between here and Wallace.

Many of them had been roused from their sleep by the people on the train, whose summons had been the first intimation that the fire was near; there had been no sign of it when the people went to bed at night. In most instances these people escaped only scantily clad. A woman who had fled from her home at midnight gave birth to a child in a box car just after the arrival of the first train at Missoula.

Homes Opened to Refugees.

Local hospitals are caring for the sick.

Missoula homes have been opened freely and the homeless are comfortable for the present. Another train with 500 people on board is expected over the Chicago, Milwaukee and Puget Sound railway.

The town of Taft, near the Idaho line, has been entirely destroyed by fire.

Saltesse, just below Taft, has been abandoned by its inhabitants and is known to be surrounded by fire. Deborgia is seriously threatened and one man is missing. At St. Regis the fire has crossed the river and threatened outlying buildings, though no fears are entertained for the town.

Haughan is reported to be deserted, the last word from there being that the fire is dangerously near and the telephone operator was preparing to flee. The area covered is 100 miles square, most of it in the mountains and sparsely settled. It is difficult to obtain information from any of the points and impossible to reach some of the places at all.

There is a probability that there has been serious loss of life, as there are camping parties and lumbermen all through the mountains and the fire may have come upon them while they slept at night or they may have been awakened in the morning to find themselves cut off.

JAMES C. DAHLMAN.

Choice of the Nebraska Democrats for Governor.

SHALLENBERGER IS BEATEN

Mayor of Omaha Gets Democratic Nomination for Governor.

Omaha, Aug. 20.—Additional returns from Tuesday's primary election indicate Mayor James C. Dahlman of this city has secured the Democratic nomination for governor over Governor Shallenberger by a safe majority.

Returns from 1,338 precincts out of 1,645 in the state give Dahlman 24,949 and Shallenberger 22,652. The remaining precincts unheard from would have to give Shallenberger a 5 to 1 vote to overcome this lead.

Mayor Dahlman has started on his election campaign through the state. Governor Shallenberger abandoned his watch of the returns and started for Iowa to make a speech.

THREE UNDER ARREST

Charged With Defrauding Railroad Company.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Three ex-officials, formerly high in the management of the Illinois Central road, have been arrested in connection with alleged huge frauds by means of which the railroad claims to have been defrauded out of $1,500,000. The men arrested were: Frank B. Harriman, former general manager of the road; Charles L. Ewing, former manager of the lines north of the Ohio river, and John M. Taylor, former general storekeeper of the road.

The warrants were sworn to by President Harahan of the railroad company concerned. They charge the three men with conspiracy to cheat and defraud the railroad by false pretenses and with operating a confidence game. Harriman and Ewing were taken to the Harrison street police station. Their bonds of $10,000 each were signed by a professional bondsman.

ROOSEVELT AND TAFT FRIENDS

Chief Executive Finally Makes a Statement.

IN A LETTER TO GRISCOM

He Explains That He Never Took Part In Any Committee Cabal to Defeat Colonel Roosevelt for Temporary Chairman of the Coming Republican State Convention in New York—Communication Pleases the Former President.

New York, Aug. 23.—President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt are again fellow workers in the same political field. The fear that they might pull apart had been forefended by a full explanation on one side and an unreserved acceptance on the other.

The president makes it plain in a letter given out here by Lloyd C. Griscom, president of the New York Republican county committee, how the misunderstanding arose. He explains that he never took any part in a committee cabal to defeat Colonel Roosevelt for temporary chairman of the coming Republican state convention. On the contrary, he explicitly deplored the result of the committee meeting which choose Vice President Sherman; he rebukes the party leaders who have permitted it to go abroad uncontradicted that the president was behind their factional preferences; he insists that at every opportunity he advised the fullest conference with Colonel Roosevelt and he explains that he has been pained by the "columns of unfounded assertions in the newspapers concerning my attitude in respect to the New York situation."

For his part, Colonel Roosevelt, when he read President Taft's letter as communicated to him at Oyster Bay, said:

"I am very glad to see President Taft's letter and am pleased with it."

Ought to Be Avoided.

In the course of the correspondence there comes out a telegram from the president to the vice president hitherto withheld, but of which mention had nevertheless crept into print. In substance the president informed Timothy L. Woodruff, Republican state chairman, and William L. Ward of the national Republican committee, "that the thing of all others that ought to be avoided is a controversy in the convention."

The president's letter throughout is temperate, though positive. Mr. Griscom, in his comment on it, was much more outspoken. He did not hesitate to charge that the Republican organization of the state had played politics with the president's name and had misrepresented his attitude.

Colonel Roosevelt in his statement explains what had been the course of his negotiations with the organization and how, after his successive rebuffs, he had felt that further overtures could not consistently come from him. His future attitude he does not define because he is as yet uncertain what effect on public sentiment President Taft's letter will have when it has been read and digested by the voters of the state.

INDIANS NEED THE MONEY

Some Winnebagos on the Point of Starvation.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 23.—A. P. Jones, Black River Falls, special Indian agent, who has been appointed by the Winnebago Indians to represent them in a hearing at Washington regarding the disbursements of the tribal funds, conferred with Congressman J. J. Esch preparatory to going to Washington. Frank E. Edgerton has been appointed special examiner to investigate the heirship claims of the tribe.

The Wisconsin Winnebagoes allege that many Nebraska tribesmen were enumerated as living in Wisconsin, thus causing an unequal appropriation per capita when the division of funds is made. The Wisconsin Indians also demand the payment of a loan of more than $200,000 made the Nebraskans out of their portion of the fund, and 6 per cent interest on the amount for the several years it has been out. The situation among the Indians pending settlement is serious, some being at the point of starvation. Even now it is considered impossible that a settlement will be made before late in the year.

Fifty Cities Represented.

St. Paul, Aug. 23.—After several weeks of preparation on the part of some of the most active business men of the Twin Cities and the members of the common council arrangements for the fourteenth annual convention of the League of American Municipalities, which opened in the Auditorium here, were completed. Fifty cities are represented at the convention.

Novelty Works Burned.

Ladysmith, Wis., Aug. 23.—The novelty works of Alden & Sons were destroyed by fire. The loss on the building and stock is placed at $20,000; insurance $5,000.

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND.

Makes Vigorous Defense of Taft Administration.

VIGOROUS DEFENSE OF TAFT

John Hays Hammond Addresses Ohio Political Club.

Cleveland, Aug. 21.—With the statement that President Taft was one of the ablest and most sagacious of the executives of the United States John Hays Hammond made a vigorous defense of the administration at the annual outing of the Cuyahoga County League of Republican clubs.

Mr. Hammond justified Mr. Taft's support of the Aldrich-Cannon section of the party on the ground that if he had plunged into a Republican civil war his four-year term of office would have been barren of results and not one of his campaign pledges could have been carried out.

FLEE FROM THE PLAGUE

Great Alarm Caused by Cholera Outbreak In Italy.

Bari, Italy, Aug. 20.—The epidemic of cholera which has broken out in Southern Italy is steadily showing an increase in the districts affected, particularly in the town of Trani, where the number of deaths already is more than thirty. The epidemic is of a violent type and the death rate is high.

Even greater danger is anticipated from the fleeing population of the infected districts, who may bear the germs of the disease to regions not yet involved. Trani seems almost deserted as a result of the panic, 20,000 of the residents, fully half of the population, having fled the town. Fully as many have escaped from the island town of Barletta.

Ten Thousand Deaths a Week.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 20.—One week's cholera record for Russia shows 23,944 new cases of cholera and 10,723 deaths, bringing the total number of cases in Russia this year to 112,985. Of these 50,287 have died, the mortality percentage being 44.5. The figures are those furnished by the sanitary bureau, covering the week from Aug. 7 to Aug. 13, inclusive, and are, therefore, fully official.

M'MURRAY ON WITNESS STAND

Declares He Did Not Try to Bribe Senator Gore.

Sulphur, Okla., Aug. 19.—"It has been charged that you, through Jake L. Hamon, offered Senator Gore $25,000 or $50,000 as a bribe to influence him in congress to withdraw opposition to the approval of your contracts. Did you or did you not offer Senator Gore such a bribe?"

To this question, in the hearing before the congressional committee investigating Indian land affairs J. F. McMurray answered "No."

The witness also denied he ever offered $25,000 as a bribe to D. C. McCurtain, a Choctaw lawyer. Senator Gore has testified Hamon had offered him the bribe in the senator's office in Washington on May 6 last. Mr. McMurray testified he twice had called on Senator Gore after that date and the senator had made no reference to the alleged offer of bribery until his speech in the senate on June 24.

Jake L. Hamon, mentioned by Senator Gore as being the man who offered the bribe in McMurray's behalf, took the stand two weeks ago and denied he had ever made any such offer. The examination of McMurray will be continued.

GAYNOR IS OUT OF DANGER

Physicians Say Complete Recovery Is Assured.

New York, Aug. 21.—Mayor Gaynor's condition is excellent, his physicians said, and the period of danger has now passed. The doctors agree that he will be completely recovered within a short time and he will go to the Adirondacks to complete his recovery. Mayor Gaynor, though, has indicated that he thought he ought to return to his home in St. James, L. I., after leaving the hospital.

The physicians have practically decided not to operate to remove the bullet, as they think Mayor Gaynor will suffer no inconvenience from it.

A DOLL

By DELIA TREVOR.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

This story illustrates how much more powerful is kindness than brute force.

Major Hopkins, commanding Fort ——, garrisoned by two companies of cavalry, seeing some of his scouts approaching, rode out to meet them. As they approached he saw riding before the sergeants a little Indian girl about five years old.

"What have you there, sergeant?"

"We were getting a peep, sir, at the devils from the bushes when this little tot came running right into us. There was nothing for us to do but seize her and clap a hand over her mouth. Then, of course, we had to bring her with us to prevent her cries drawing the reds after us."

"She must be returned, but it is too late today. We'll keep her till morning. But what did you learn?"

"They've got the war paint on, and the whole tribe is wild. There must be between two and three thousand tepees, which would give them from 500 to 800 warriors."

The major turned and rode back to camp, motioning the sergeant to ride beside him and continue his report of the information he had gained. The prospect was not pleasant. There were not a hundred men for duty in the fort, which was an old fashioned affair, and the ammunition was low. The Indians would undoubtedly attack and if they kept up the siege long enough would certainly capture the fort. The logical end of this was a massacre of the whole garrison, including women and children.

Upon entering the inclosure the major dismounted, took the Indian child in his arms, lifted her from the horse and, taking her to his quarters, turned her over to his wife. Then he hurried away to prepare for a death struggle.

The little redskin stood stolidly where she was placed in the middle of the floor, her straight hair falling in any and every direction, her beady black eyes darting hither and thither. The white children clustered around her, gaping at her as an object of wonder. Being perfectly quiet, she needed no attention till the shades of night cast a gloom about her, when her child's Indian stoicism broke down and she began to cry.

Mrs. Hopkins endeavored to quiet her without effect. Little Maud Hopkins possessed a very beautiful doll with waxen head and shoulders and light, fluffy hair. Taking up this doll, her mother placed it in the arms of the tiny captive.

"There," she said. "If you'll cease crying you may have it to keep."

Whether or not the child understood the words, she certainly understood the act. She hugged the doll against her breast, ceased weeping and soon fell asleep.

The next morning Major Hopkins ordered the sergeant who had captured the child, with a dozen cavalrymen, to take her back to the Indians. In doing so there was a risk of their being murdered. But the major, believing that the loss of the youngster would tend to further irritate the savages, did not dare hold her. The child mounted before the sergeant, tightly holding her doll, looking out of her coal black eyes as if she would annihilate any one who attempted to deprive her of it, rode out of the fort toward the Indian village.

When the party was descried approaching a body of warriors, seizing their arms, prepared to receive them. But when the whites drew near and the captive was distinguished the women set up a howl of pleasure. Then when the child was clasped by her mother, still tightly holding her white doll, every Indian in the village crowded around to see.

When the sergeant and his men turned to ride back to the fort no effort was made to prevent them. Soon after their departure a powwow was called among the chiefs. Their preparations were all made to begin the attack on the fort, and in this incident they saw delay. The child that had been returned was taken to the conclave and set in the center of the circle with her doll. The Indian mother asked permission to go to the fort and thank the donor for her beautiful gift. After a long discussion the request was granted.

The same evening a band of Indians was seen approaching the fort. The whites at first considered them as an advance guard of the enemy coming to make the expected attack. But the redskins came on close under the stockade, and it was then seen that a squaw was among them. They asked for admittance, and the gates were thrown open. Upon entering the inclosure the object of the visit was made known, and the squaw was conducted to Major Hopkins' quarters. The Indian mother acquitted herself of her mission, and Mrs. Hopkins invited her to partake of refreshments.

The visit lasted several hours, and when the party returned the squaw mother bore a message of peace and good will to the Indians, including a promise from the commander of the fort that certain wrongs should be redressed and a request that they would return to their reservation. The terms were accepted, and the redskins took off the war paint.

Thus a long war with its attendant horrors was averted by a bit of moth

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP

By ELIZEBETH BOND.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Jennie Dwyer, having but two weeks' vacation from her duties in the office where she was employed and having to take them after everybody else in the concern had been accommodated, was obliged to wait till autumn for her outing. Then she went into the country, stopping at a farmhouse not far from a village.

Jennie's was one of those many cases where a girl brought up in comfort finds herself obliged to get on as best she can. So long as her father lived there was a-plenty, but, nothing being laid up when he died, his income ceased; consequently Jennie, who had the refinement of a lady, was obliged to work like any other poor person.

Jennie's chief recreation on her vacation was taking long walks. There was a handsome place on one of her routes which reminded her of one she had lived in when she was a little girl. Her father had then been rich and surrounded his family not only with comforts, but with luxuries. This place which attracted her attention appeared to be vacant except for a caretaker and his wife, who lived in a cottage on the premises. How Jennie longed to enter and stroll about over the pleasant grass and in among the trees and the flower garden! Being a timid little thing, she was a long time screwing up her courage to do so. She satisfied herself that there was no dog on the place and found that there were some loose pickets in the fence at a distance from the house where she might enter unobserved.

So one morning when the air was fresh and crisp she pushed the pickets aside and timidly advanced, keeping at a safe distance from the house. But there is always something to tempt a lawbreaker, and Jennie saw in the garden certain flowers of a hardy nature that had not yet succumbed to the early autumn cold snaps. She dearly loved flowers, and from the trees she cast covetous eyes on these, which were rather too near the house for her to safely poach. However, there was not a person in sight, and, leaving cover, she started for the garden, but haltingly, stopping now and again to make sure no one was observing her.

Though she did not know it, some one was observing her. Tom Maryweather, the son and heir of the owner of the place, a graceless scamp, had come down from town to get a gun he had left there, and at the moment the girl was advancing on the flower garden he was standing back out of view looking at her through a window. He had his gun in his hand, being about to carry it downstairs. He waited while Jennie hesitatingly moved on the garden, cast a final distrustful look at the house, then began to appropriate the flowers. Tom, being of an artistic turn of mind, was quite enraptured with the scene of a shy girl so fond of flowers that she could not resist the temptation to steal them on this beautiful autumn day. He was also dramatically disposed and wondered what kind of scene would result if he were to adopt measures usual with poachers. Presently, when Jennie stopped to take another furtive glance at the house, Tom, advancing to the window, gun in hand, cried:

"Stand, you robber!"

Jennie did stand, though it was all she could do to keep her legs, while one by one the flowers she had plucked dropped from her hand. Tom was not near enough to discern the terror he had inspired, so he proceeded further:

"Don't you know," he cried in a stentorian voice, "that the wages of sin is death?"

There was no reply to this.

Suddenly Tom discovered that he was playing with firearms with a vengeance. Jennie, taking the realistic scene in earnest, collapsed. Tom saw her stagger sidewise, then sink down in a heap.

Jumping out of the window, he landed on an extension roof, from there dropped to the ground and ran like a deer for the girl.

When Jennie recovered consciousness she found herself in the arms of a man who was looking into her face eager to know whether he had killed her. Seeing her open her eyes and look straight at him, a great relief came into his eyes. He was about to cover her face with kisses when he remembered that he had not even been introduced to her. But he did not consider her sufficiently recovered to stand alone. At any rate, he held on to her till she of her volition disengaged herself.

The rest of this story is just like any other love story. Tom, who, as I have said, was artistically inclined, was captivated by the picture he had seen from his window. He is not the only man who has been caught by a girl unconscious that she is making herself attractive. But Tom's fate was sealed when the crisis came and he saw what he had done. Long after Jennie had forgiven him he kept up his protestations of regret, calling himself every bad name in his vocabulary. He loaded Jennie with flowers, begged her to come and take all she wished and insisted on getting out a horse and his two wheeled cart and driving her home. The house at which she was boarding was a mile distant, but Tom failed to get there in less than a dozen. Instead of going back to town and thence to his shooting club, he remained in the house as long as Jennie's vacation lasted. The courtship ended in the winter.
